JUDGMENT.—These are two consolidated appeals by the plaintiffs from two decrees, dated the 30th July 1917, of the High Court at Patna, which reversed a decree, dated the 21st May 1914, of the District Judge of Darbhanga and dismissed the suit of the plaintiffs.

The suit was brought by the plaintiffs, the appellants here, on the 10th of January 1912 in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Darbhanga for certain declarations as to title and for a decree for possession of certain immoveable property and for mesne profits. That immoveable property will in this judgment for the sake of brevity be referred to as the property in dispute. The property in dispute was originally the property of one Sadik Ali Khan; the plaintiffs claim title through one Lalji Lal; the defendants claim title through one Kamal Narain Choudhury. The facts will later be briefly stated, but their Lordships may here say that in their opinion the fate of these consolidated appeals depends upon the effect of an order of the 14th September 1886 of the Subordinate Judge of Tirhoot, which was made in certain execution proceedings to which Kamal Narain Choudhury as an objector to an application for the attachment of the property in dispute, and Lalji Lal, as applicant for the attachment, were with Sadak Ali Khan parties.

Sadik Ali Khan on the 13th January 1882 by deed mortgaged the property in dispute and much other immoveable property, with which this suit is not concerned, to Lalji Lal for Rs. 40,000 and interest which might become due thereon. On the 27th September 1883 Kamal Narain Choudhury brought in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Muzaffarpur a suit for money due to him against Sadik Ali Khan. On the same day the suit was transferred to the Court of the District Judge of Darbhanga. On the 24th November 1883 Kamal Narain Choudhury obtained from the District Judge an order for the attachment before judgment of the property in dispute, and that property was attached. On the 2nd April 1884 Kamal Narain Choudhury obtained from the District Judge a decree against Sadik Ali Khan for the money owing to him. On the 27th June 1884 Kamal Narain Choudhury obtained from the District Judge attachment of the property in dispute. On the 21st March 1885 Sadik Ali Khan by deed further mortgaged to Lalji Lal for Rs. 90,000 the property in dispute, and much other property with which this suit is not concerned.

SARJU PRASAD MISSIR v. MAKSUDHAN CHADHURY.

The Rs. 90,000 included the debt due under the mortgage of the 10th January 1882, and it was expressly agreed by the mortgage of the 21st March 1885 that Lalji Lal's security under the mortgage of the 10th January 1882 should continue. On the 11th December 1885 Lalji Lal brought, under section 88 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, against Sadik Ali Khan a suit in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Muzaffarpur to recover the money due to him under the mortgages of the 10th January 1882 and the 21st March 1885, amounting together to Rs. 98,519-13-6 and further interest. On the 12th February 1886 Lalji Lal obtained in that suit a decree under section 88 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, for sale of the properties mortgaged if the decretal money should not be paid to him by Sadik Ali Khan within 4 months from the date of the decree.

The property in dispute being under attachment in execution of Kamal Narain Choudhuri's decree of the 2nd April 1884, Lalji Lal, on the 20th February 1886, presented to the Court of the District Judge of Darbhanga a petition for the execution of his decree of the 12th February 1886, in which he stated the nature of the assistance from the Court for which he asked, thus:—

"That in the above-mentioned case, though postponement for four months has been granted to the judgment-debtor to pay the entire decretal amount, but there is very little chance of the judgment-debtor paying the entire decretal money within the time allowed. The judgment-debtor owes a considerable amount, and besides this his properties have been advertised for sale in satisfaction of several decrees. If proceedings for execution of this decree would be taken by your petitioner after expiry of four months' time allowed by the Court, then the decretal money due to him cannot be realised in any way; for this reason it is very necessary to take out the execution proceedings. Therefore, it is prayed that the case may be registered, that proceedings for attachment of the properties of the judgment-debtor may be taken; that sale proclamation may be issued and date for sale of the properties may be fixed by the Court after the time allowed, and that the decretal money due to your petitioner may be realised. Inventory of the properties is given below."

On the 20th May 1886 Lalji Lal obtained in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Muzaffarpur an order of attachment under his decree of the 12th February 1886 of the property in dispute, and the property in dispute was accordingly attached.

On the 16th August 1886 the right and interest of Sadik Ali Khan in the property in dispute were put up for sale at public auction in execution of Kamal Narain Choudhuri's money-decree against him of the 2nd April 1884, and Kamal Narain, who had previously obtained permission to bid at the sale, purchased the right and interest of Sadik Ali Khan in the property in dispute. On the 8th September 1886 Kamal Narain Choudhuri presented to the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Tirhoot a petition of objection to the attachment of the property in dispute, which Lalji Lal had obtained. To that proceeding by petition of objection Lalji Lal and Sadik Ali Khan were made parties. That petition, so far as it is material, was as follows:—

"That objection on behalf of the objector in the execution case of Lalji Lal Sahu; decree-holder, against Sadik Ali Khan, judgment-debtor, is as follows:—

"1. That a Title Suit No. 18 of 1883 was filed by the objector on the 9th Kartik, 1291, corresponding to the 25th October 1883, in the Court of the District Judge, and the properties of Babu Sadik Ali Khan, the defendant-judgment-debtor, situated in Mauza Bhandarson asli, with dakhli, together with the tolas, Pargana Loam, were attached, and on the 2nd April 1884 a decree was passed in favour of the objector; in the execution of decree on the 24th Asarh 1291 F. S. corresponding to the 2nd July 1884 the said property was attached, and on the 16th August 1886, after having been sold by the District Judge, was purchased by the objector.

"2. That the judgment-debtor, after the attachment mentioned above, mortgaged the said property under a bond, dated the 12th (21st) March 1885, to Lalji Sahu. Hence the said mortgage under the provisions of section 276 of the Civil Procedure Code is null and void.

SARJU PRASAD MISSIR V. MAKSUDHAN CHADHURY.

"3. That subsequent to attachment by this objector Babu Lalji Lal Sahu attached the said property on the 7th Jeth 1293 alleging a lien under a decree obtained on confession of judgment, and the date for the sale of the said property is fixed for the 15th September 1886.

"4. That when the said property had been sold they cannot now be sold under the provisions of section 285.

"5. That the said property having been sold, is purchased by this objector, the Court has no jurisdiction to sell the property again, and the said property under section 278 is fit to be exempted; and it is prayed that by allowing this objection Mauza Bhandarson, asli, together with dakhli and the tolas in Pargannah Loam, be exempted from sale.

"I, Kamal Narain Choudhury, objector, do declare that the contents of this petition of objection are true to my knowledge.

"(Signed) Kamal Narain Choudhuri, objector, "By my own pen."

There appears to be some confusion in paragraph 1 of the petition of objection as to facts and dates. The decree of the 2nd April 1884 was made by the District Judge in the suit which was brought on the 27th September 1883, and the order for the issue of the writ of attachment was made on the 27th June 1884. It is to be observed that there is nothing in that petition of objection which would suggest to the Subordinate Judge that Lalji Lal had held any mortgage of the property in dispute except the mortgage of the 21st March 1886, or would draw the attention of the Subordinate Judge to the fact that by the mortgage of the 21st March 1886, the security which Lalji Lal had obtained by the mortgage of the 10th January 1882, was maintained, or to the fact that the mortgage of the 10th January 1882, was made before Kamal Narain Choudhury had obtained his attachment of the property in dispute.

Those facts do not appear to have been brought to the attention of the Subordinate Judge by or on behalf of Lalji Lal or by any one. On the 14th September 1886 the Subordinate Judge on that petition made the following order: "It is ordered that the objection of the objector be so far allowed that Mauza Bhandarson asli bearing No. 22 (the property in dispute) in the inventory of the decree-holder (Lalji Lal) be exempted from the sale." As their Lordships construe that order, it was an order that the property claimed should not be sold under the decree which Lalji Lal had obtained on the 12th February 1886. Lalji Lal did not appeal against that order of the 14th September 1886 of the Subordinate Judge, and it became final. On the 19th November 1886 Kamal Narain Choudhury obtained his sale certificate in respect of his purchase at the auction-sale on the 16th August 1886 of the right and interest of Sadik Ali Khan in the property in dispute, and obtained possession as the purchaser.

On the 21st February 1895 the plaintiffs in this suit, who are the appellants here, in a suit to which the respondents here, who are the representatives of Kamal Narain Choudhury, were not parties, obtained a money decree against Lalji Lal. In execution of that money-decree the plaintiffs, appellants here, purchased the mortgage-decree which Lalji Lal had obtained on the 12th February 1886, and eventually, in execution of the mortgage-decree of the 12th February 1886, applied for the sale of the property in dispute, which was sold and was purchased by them on the 16th February 1907, and a certificate of sale was granted to them on the 29th May 1908. The defendants, respondents here, were not parties to those proceedings. This suit was brought by the plaintiffs (appellants) on the 10th January 1912 to obtain declarations of title to and possession of the property in dispute, and mesne profits. The suit was tried by the District Judge of Darbhanga and went on appeal to the High Court at Patna. There are concurrent findings of these Courts which determine a question which arose as to the identity of the property in dispute.

The District Judge being of opinion that the order of the Subordinate Judge of Tirhoot of the 14th September 1886 was made without jurisdiction, as Lalji Lal's decree was a decree for sale under the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, and that Lalji

FIRM DEOKI NANDAN v. RAM LAL AULAK.

Lal's decree of the 12th February 1886, was binding on the property in dispute, gave the plaintiffs, appellants here, a decree for possession, subject to a right of the defendants, respondents here, to redeem and decreed that plaintiffs were entitled to mesne profits. From that decree the plaintiffs and the defendants appealed to the High Court at Patna.

The learned Judges of the High Court before whom those appeals came were of opinion that Lalji Lal had not obtained under section 89 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, an order absolute for sale, had, in ignorance of his rights, elected to surrender his rights under his mortgage of the 10th January 1882, and had proceeded to execute his decree of the 12th February 1886, as a money-decree; had attached the property in dispute under section 274 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882; had gone to trial on the objection of Kamal Narain Choudhury under section 278 of that Code, and had acquiesced for 20 years in the decision of the 14th September 1886, against him under section 278 and they allowed the defendants' appeal and dismissed the plaintiffs' appeal and their suit. From those decrees these consolidated appeals have been brought.

At the hearing of these consolidated appeals Counsel were unable to show that any order absolute for sale under section 89 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, was made, but their Lordships are aware that even in 1886 the necessity for an order absolute under that section was sometimes overlooked in suits for sale, and sales proceeded in suits for sale under an ordinary order for execution such as would be made for the execution of a money-decree. Their Lordships do not draw the same conclusion as the High Court that Lalji Lal, elected to surrender his rights under the mortgage of the 10th January 1882. Lalji Lal had got the property in dispute attached in order to bring it to sale, and on the petition of Kamal Narain Choudhury the Subordinate Judge made his order of the 14th September 1886, which, as their Lordships construe it, was an order that the property in dispute should not be sold in the suit of Lalji Lal. It appears to their Lordships to be unnecessary to consider whether that order should or should not have been made. The petition of objection was a petition which the Subordinate Judge had to consider and dispose of, and any party to that proceeding who was dissatisfied with the order which the Subordinate Judge might make could have appealed from it. Lalji Lal was a party to that proceeding and he did not appeal, and the order became final and binding upon Lalji Lal and upon those who claim title under him. From 1886 Kamal Narain Choudhury or the defendants who represent him have been lawfully in possession of the property in dispute under the certificate of sale of the 19th November 1886, and the plaintiffs did not bring this suit disputing that title until the 10th January 1912. Their Lordships are of opinion that the decrees of the High Court were right.

Their Lordships will humbly advise His Majesty that these consolidated appeals should be dismissed. The appellants must pay the costs of these consolidated appeals.
Z. K. Appeals dismissed.

Solicitors for the Appellant.—Messrs. Watkins and Hunter.

Solicitors for the Respondents.—Messrs. Truefitt and Francis.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No 2270 OF 1918.

January 23, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Broadway and Mr. Justice Zafar Ali.

THE FIRM DEOKI NANDAN AND SONS
—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS—

versus

RAM LAL AULAK AND MESSRS.
LOCKWOOD BROTHERS—DEFEND-ANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 230—Principal and agent—Contract with foreign merchant—Personal liability of agent—Presumption.

Under section 230 of the Contract Act an agent is not personally bound by a contract entered into by him on behalf of his principal in the absence of any contract to that effect. Such a contract, however, has to be presumed to exist when the contract is made by the agent for the sale or purchase of goods for a merchant resident abroad. But this presumption is not applicable where the contract is entered into directly with the foreign merchant; the agent acting merely as a sort of post office and undertaking no sort of responsibility. [p. 887, col. 1; p. 888, col. 1.]

Tulika Basavaraju v. Parry & Co., 27 M. 315
Arumachalam Chettiar v. Kasi Nenenda Pillai

FIRM DEOKI NANDAN V. RAM LAL AULAK.

24 Ind. Cas. 1007, Puran Chand v. Tara Singh, 131 L. R. 1905, Bharagava & Co. v. B. Kolkayashi, 65 Ind. Cas. 468; 2 L. L. J. 374; 18 P. W. R. 1922, relied on.

Fasal Ilaht v. Imperial Chemical Co., Delhi, 67 Ind. Cas. 157, distinguished.

First appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Delhi, dated the 20th April 1914.

Lala Sardha Ram, for the Appellants.
Lala Durga Das, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The firm of Messrs. Deoki Nandan and Sons of Delhi on the 20th of February 1912 instituted a suit against Ram Lal Aulak of Lahore for the recovery of Rs. 2,100. In the plaint it was alleged that a contract had been entered into between the plaintiffs and the defendant on the 4th of February 1908 for the purchase by the former from the latter of Fawn Rugging at rate of Re. 1 per yard net at Karachi according to a particular sample sent to the defendant along with the order; that the goods supplied were not in accordance with the sample, they being different in quality and weight; that at the instance of both parties a survey was held at Karachi by two European Surveyors who furnished their report, dated the 16th of July 1908, holding that the plaintiffs were entitled to an allowance of Rs. 5 per cent. on the invoice value of the goods; that the defendant failed to pay the amount allowed and on the 24th of February 1909 definitely agreed to pay the sum of Rs. 1,550 in full settlement of the plaintiffs' claim in this connection; that the defendant gave a letter to the plaintiffs addressed to the National Bank of India directing the said Bank to allow the plaintiffs the sum of Rs. 1,500 in connection with another draft and at the same time undertook to remit the remaining sum of Rs. 50 from Lahore; that the National Bank of India failed to make the allowance and the defendant failed to remit the sum of Rs. 50, and that on the 13th of January 1910 the defendant wrote to the plaintiffs asking for further time, but not having been paid any part of the sum agreed upon the plaintiffs claimed a decree for Rs. 1,550 plus interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, or a total of Rs. 2,100.

Ram Lal Aulak traversed the averments in the plaint pleading that he had not entered into any contract with the plaintiffs but had merely acted as a "post office" between the plaintiffs and the firm of Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, Sheffield. He further denied that he had been any party to the survey proceedings referred to, and alleged that he had been merely acting as the agent of Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, and had in no way rendered himself personally liable. The non-payment of Rs. 1,500 was admitted, but it was attributed to the plaintiffs' own neglect. It was also pleaded that the suit was time-barred and that the Court at Delhi had no jurisdiction. As a result of these pleadings Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, were added as defendants in the suit by order of the Court; but that firm did not enter any appearance throughout the proceedings. The plaintiffs traversed Ram Lal's pleas and the following issues were settled:—

(1) Is this case within the jurisdiction of this Court?

(2) Is it within time?

(3) Did the defendant Ram Lal act only as agent of Lockwood Brothers?

(4) If so, is not he liable personally for the due of the plaintiff?

(5) Was the matter in dispute referred to the arbitration of surveyors? If so, how much was allowed to the plaintiff on account of deficiency in weight and quality?

(6) Is the decision of surveyors binding on defendant No. 1?

(7) Is the plaintiff guilty of any laches disentitling him from claiming amount awarded to him by surveyors?

(8) In case issue No. (6) goes in favour of defendant No. 1 and issues Nos. 3 and 4 against him, was there any deficiency in weight or quality of the goods supplied, and, if so, is the plaintiff entitled to any damages on account of that from the defendant?

(9) Has the plaintiff any cause of action?

(10) Is the survey report admissible in evidence?

The District Judge held that the plaintiffs were fully aware of the fact that Ram Lal Aulak was acting as the agent of Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, in connection with this contract and that Messrs. Lockwood Brothers were the real principals. A decree was, however, granted against both the defendants, Ram Lal Aulak being held liable by virtue of section 230 (1), the presumption therein being held not to have been rebutted. It was held that the suit was within time and within the jurisdiction of the Delhi Court (Issues Nos. 2 and 1) and that Ram Lal Aulak was aware of the survey proceedings and had agreed to them on behalf of his principals (Issues Nos. 4, 5 and 6). The remaining issues were also decided in favour of the plaintiffs.

FIRM DEOKI NANDAN & RAM LAL AULAK.

Against this decree two separate appeals have been filed; one by the plaintiffs who complained against the disallowance of interest and an item of Rs. 55 in connection with the survey report, and the other by Ram Lal Aulak in which he challenged the correctness of the decision in its entirety, more particularly as to his own personal liability. On behalf of the plaintiffs in both cases we have heard Mr. Sardha Ram, while Mr. Durga Das has addressed us on behalf of Ram Lal Aulak.

Mr. Durga Das confined his arguments to the question of Ram Lal Aulak's personal liability and contended that on the findings arrived at by the learned District Judge the suit as against his client should have been dismissed. After a careful consideration of the evidence on the record and the arguments of the learned Vakils, we are of opinion that Mr. Durga Das contention is correct. Under section 230 of the Contract Act an agent is not personally bound by a contract entered into by him on behalf of his principal in the absence of any contract to that effect. Such a contract, however, has to be presumed to exist where the contract is made by an agent for the sale or purchase of goods for a merchant resident abroad. It was contended by Mr. Durga Das that in the present case the contract was actually entered into between the plaintiffs and Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, Ram Lal Aulak acting purely as a sort of post office, and, therefore, it was contended that Ram Lal entered into no contract at all either for himself or for a merchant resident abroad. In Tutika Basavaraju v. Parry & Co. (1) a contract had been entered into by Messrs. Parry and Company acting as agents of the East India Distilleries and Sugar Factories, Limited. Messrs. Parry and Company, had actually signed the contract but had described themselves as doing so on behalf of their principals and it was held that Messrs. Parry and Company were not personally liable under the contract. Similarly, in Arunachalam Chettiar v. Kasi Nevenda Pillai (2), it was held that an agent by entering into a contract in his principal's name holds out that he is merely an agent and it is the principal and not the agent who is liable on such a contract. A similar view was expressed in Puran Chand v. Tara Singh (3) by Johnstone, J., and Bhargava & Company v. B. Kobayashi (4) is another decision to the same effect. Fazal Ilahi v. Imperial Chemical Company, Delhi (5) relied on by Mr. Sardha Ram is clearly distinguishable. There it was definitely held that the defendant had entered into a contract with the plaintiffs on his own behalf. In the present case it appears from the correspondence on the record between Ram Lal Aulak and the plaintiffs that on the 3rd of February 1908 Ram Lal Aulak wrote to the plaintiffs saying that if they favoured him with an order by return of mail he would guarantee the delivery in May, but subject to the approval of his home friends by wire. To this is the plaintiffs' reply Exhibit P-1 dated the 4th of February 1908. They enclosed "sample" of the goods they wanted, referred to the price and then proceeded as follows:—"We will pay you the money on getting the things cleared. They may draw upon us through any Bank, say National Bank, and it will pay customs duty and other charges itself. It is better for you to send the sample and write to them all particulars about this, if they accept let them wire, if not, then we will arrange in other way."

From the above it appears to be perfectly clear that the plaintiffs understood that the acceptance of their offer was in the hands, not of Ram Lal, but of his "Home friends" Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, and it was that firm that had to accept by wire. Ram Lal has sworn that he sent an indent form duly signed by Messrs. Deoki Nandan and Sons to Messrs. Lock-

(2) 24 Ind. Cas. 1007.

(3) 138 P. L. R. 1905.

(4) 65 Ind. Cas. 468; 2 L. L. J. 374; 18 P. W. R. 1922.

(5) 67 Ind. Cas. 157.

(1) 27 M. 315.

FIRM DEOKI NANDAN V. RAM LAL AULAK.

wood Brothers, Limited, in England. A copy of this indent is to be found at pages 12 to 14 of the printed book, Exhibit P. W. No. 6. It was produced by the plaintiffs and, although they denied having signed the original, we have no hesitation in accepting Ram Lal Aulak's assertion that the original was signed by the plaintiffs. On the 4th of March 1908 Ram Lal wrote (Exhibit P. W. No. 7) to the plaintiffs in which he informed them that Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, had cabled their acceptance of the offer and the original telegram was forwarded. In another letter dated the 8th April 1908 (Exhibit P. W. No. 8) reference was made to the indent. A copy of it being sent to the plaintiffs it being asserted that the indent (in original) had been accepted as per telegram already forwarded.

The above correspondence satisfies us that the plaintiffs understood that Ram Lal was not in any way rendering himself personally liable under the contract. Both the plaintiffs and he clearly understood that it was for Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, to accept the offer made by the plaintiffs or not, such acceptance being by wire. In these circumstances, it appears to us that the presumption referred to in section 230 of the Contract Act does not here arise, inasmuch as Ram Lal Aulak entered into no contract for Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, the contract in question having been entered into directly between the plaintiffs in India and Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, in England. This being the case, Ram Lal Aulak was not personally liable under the contract.

It was contended, however, that Ram Lal Aulak had subsequently accepted personal liability, inasmuch as he had agreed to the survey and, on the 24th of February 1909, had settled the dispute for the sum of Rs. 1,550. His personal liability was further alleged on the strength of a letter Exhibit P. 4 written by him on the 13th of October 1910. While we agree with the Court below in holding that Ram Lal Aulak was aware of the survey proceedings, we consider that his action in connection therewith was merely as an agent and that he did not render himself personally liable under the contract. Again, on the 24th of February 1909 in arriving at the settlement he distinctly states that he did so "under directions" of Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited. His personal liability cannot be inferred under that letter. In the letter dated the 13th October 1910 there is nothing which indicates that he undertook any personal liability to pay the amount agreed upon by way of settlement. It is true that he asked for a period of seven weeks delay in the said letter, but it is clear that he did not render himself personally liable, for he distinctly states that he had written a very strong letter to Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, thus making it evident that it was they and they alone who were to pay.

Mr. Sardha Ram then contended that the phraseology of Exhibit P. W. No. 6, the indent, showed that it could not have been addressed to Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited. Here, again, we are unable to agree. The form is one evidently used by Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, and there is nothing in its terms which indicates that any person other than Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, was to deal with the offer therein contained. That the original indent was sent for acceptance to Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, is further supported by a letter (Exhibit D-F) dated the 5th February 1909 from Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, to Ram Lal Aulak in which they complain of Ram Lal's action in connection with the survey proceedings, saying that it was most unsatisfactory that he should have allowed an arbitration to proceed on a sample other than the original sent to them by him to work to. It will be borne in mind that in Exhibit P-1 dated the 4th of February 1908 the sample with which the plaintiffs wished the suppliers to be supplied was forwarded to Ram Lal who very evidently forwarded the same to Messrs. Lockwood Brothers. In this view of the case, it is not necessary to go further into the arguments of the learned Vakils.

In our opinion Ram Lal Aulak was not personally liable under the contract and we accordingly accept this appeal (Civil Appeal No. 2867 of 1918) and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit with costs throughout. Messrs. Lockwood Brothers, Limited, were made defendants by order of the Court, but the plaintiffs have never amended their plaint at any time, nor have they sought any relief against them. The suit as instituted is, therefore, dismissed. It follows that the plaintiffs' appeal (Civil Appeal No. 2270 of 1918) is also dismissed.

QADAR BAKHSH V. MANGHA MAL.

Z. K.

*Appeal dismissed.LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 521 OF 1920.

February 16, 1923.

Preseat:—Mr. Justice Broadway and Mr. Justice Moti Sagar.

QADAR BAKHSH AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTSversusMANGHA MAL AND OTHERS—*DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Adverse possession—Mortgagor and mortgagee—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 49—Unregistered document—Admission for collateral purpose.

It is going too far to say that in no possible case can a mortgagee set up an adverse title to the mortgaged property. [p. 890, col. 1.]

A mortgagee can set up adverse possession if his possession at its inception was that of a trespasser. [p. 890, col. 2.]

Jiwa Khan v. Lakhmi Chand, 11 Ind. Cas. 429; 232 P. L. R. 1911; 146 P. W. R. 1911, followed.

It is to be decided on the facts of each case whether or not the circumstances establish an adverse title in a mortgagee. [p. 890, col. 1.]

A document although inadmissible for want of registration to prove title, can be referred to in order to ascertain the nature of the possession of the holder of the property. [p. 890, col. 2.]

Varada Pillai v. Jeevarathnammal, 53 Ind. Cas. 901; 43 M. 244; (1919) M. W. N. 724; 10 L. W. 679; 24 C. W. N. 346; 38 M. L. J. 313; 18 A. L. J. 274; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 64; 22 Bom. L. R. 444; 46 I. A. 285 (P. C.), Karnam Kandasami Pillay v. Chinappa, 62 Ind. Cas. 603; 44 M. 253; 40 M. L. J. 105; (1921) M. W. N. 1; 29 M. L. T. 167; 13 L. W. 423 Musigadu v. Maniam Gopal Reddy, 63 Ind. Cas. 215; 13 L. W. 400; (1921) M. W. N. 251, Mahendra Bahadur Singh v. Chandrapal Singh, 63 Ind. Cas. 284; 24 O. C. 155; 8 O. L. J. 622, Jhamphu v. Kulramani, 42 Ind. Cas. 713; 39 A. 696; 15 A. L. J. 761 and Ram Singh v. Basi, 48 Ind. Cas. 447; 89 P. W. R. 1918, relied on.

Defendant was in possession as mortgagee of certain property belonging to the plaintiffs. In 1884 a portion of the property was redeemed and a fresh mortgage was created of the remainder, but without possession. On that date the mortgagors obtained possession of the whole of the property. In 1888 the portion under mortgage was sold to the defendant by an unregistered sale-deed and the latter obtained possession of the property sold and continued in possession for over twelve years. In a suit for redemption of the property:

Held (1) that although the unregistered sale-deed was inadmissible in evidence to prove the defendant's title, it could be referred to in order to ascertain the nature of his possession after 1888; [p. 890, col. 2.]

(2) that the defendant having obtained possession of the property in 1888 without title, that is, as a trespasser, his possession was adverse to the plaintiffs from its inception and having continued for over twelve years had ripened into ownership.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Multan, dated the 1st December 1919, modifying as to costs only that of the Munsif, First Class, Multan, dated the 15th February 1919.

Sheikh Niaz Muhammad, for the Appellants.

Lala Har Gopal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The suit giving rise to this appeal was filed by Qadar Bakhsh and three others and was for possession of certain land by redemption. It was alleged that the plaintiffs' father and uncle had mortgaged the land in suit on the 18th of August 1880 for Rs. 200 in favour of Kanhya Lal, father of the defendants; that half of the land mortgaged had been redeemed, and that the remaining half was redeemable on payment of Rs. 100. The defence set up was that the mortgage of 1880 had come to an end in 1884 when the father of the plaintiffs alone mortgaged his share by a mortgage-deed, dated the 7th of March 1884, this subsequent mortgage being without possession and containing no clause under which the mortgagees could obtain possession. Further, it was pleaded that in 1888 Allah Ditta, father of the plaintiffs, had sold the land in suit to one of the defendants for Rs. 600, and that possession had been obtained under that sale and given effect to in the mutation proceedings in 1890. The Trial Court dismissed the plaintiffs' suit holding that the defendants had been in adverse possession for a period of over twelve years, and that the plaintiffs had failed to show that the land they sought to redeem was the identical land which had been mortgaged by Allah Ditta. It was held that the deed of sale propounded by the defendants was inadmissible in evidence for any purpose whatsoever owing to its not having been registered.

QADAR BAKSH V. MANGHA MAL:

The plaintiffs appealed, but the learned District Judge maintained the decree of the Trial Court, although on different grounds. He held that the plaintiffs had proved that the land in suit was identical with the land mortgaged to Kanhaya Lal under the mortgage dated the 7th of March 1884. He further held that the deed of sale of 1888 was admissible in evidence as it did not require to be registered under section 17 of the Registration Act. Finally, he held that the mortgage of 1880 had come to an end and had been superseded by the mortgage of 1884; that under this mortgage of 1884 the mortgagor continued in possession up to 1888 when the defendants obtained possession not as mortgagees but as vendees, thus holding adversely to the original owner, this adverse title being rendered unassailable by the efflux of time.

The plaintiffs have now come up to this Court in second appeal through Mr. Niaz Muhammad and we have heard Mr. Har Gopal on behalf of the respondents. For the appellants it has been urged that, inasmuch as the respondents were mortgagees, their possession must be regarded as that of mortgagees and, therefore, no adverse title could be, or had been proved. In support of this attention was drawn to Jiwa Khan v. Lakhmi Chand (1), Indar v. Asa Singh (2), Amir v. Nadir Ali (3), Lehna Singh v. Santa Singh (4), Khtarajmal v. Dalm (5).

While we are in accord with the general principles enunciated in those decisions we are unable to see that they support the whole of Mr. Niaz Muhammad's contention. In Jiwa Khan v. Lakhmi Chand (1) it was specifically pointed out that it would be going too far to say that in no possible case could a mortgagee set up an adverse title to the mortgaged property. We think that it is to be decided on the facts of each case whether or not the circumstances established an adverse title. In the present case, we may say at once that, in our opinion, the deed of sale is inadmissible in evidence for want of registration, and the respondents, therefore, cannot base any title to the land under that deed.

There is, however, authority for the view that a document, although inadmissible for want of registration, to prove title, may be referred to in order to ascertain the nature of the possession sought to be disturbed, see, for instance, Varada Pillai v. Jeevarathnammal (6), Karnam Kandasami Pillay v. Chinnappa (7), Musigadu v. Maneam Gopal Reddy (8), Mahendra Bahadur Singh v. Chandrapal Singh (9), Jhampu v. Kutramani (10), Ram Singh v. Basti (11).

We think that in this case the deed of sale may be referred to for the sole purpose of determining the nature of the possession taken by the respondents in 1888. On doing so, we find that this document supports the finding arrived at by the learned District Judge to the effect that the mortgagee's possession in 1888 was not as mortgagees but under colour of a deed of sale. This deed of sale, not having been registered, created no title in favour of the respondents, thus leaving them in the position of trespassers, and as their possession has extended for over a period of twelve years, they have now become full owners of the land and their possession cannot be disturbed. It was held in Jiwa Khan v. Lakhmi Chand (1) that a mortgagee can set up adverse possession if his possession at its inception was that of a trespasser.

We accordingly dismiss this appeal with costs.

Z. K. & N. H.

Appeal dismissed.

(6) 53 Ind. Cas. 901; 43 M. 2441 (1919) M. W. N. 724; 10 L. W. 679; 24 C. W. N. 346; 38 M. L. J. 313; 18 A. L. J. 274; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 64; 22 Bom. L. R. 444; 46 I. A. 285 (P. C.).

(7) 62 Ind. Cas. 603; 44 M. 253; 40 M. L. J. 105; (1921) M. W. N. 1; 29 M. L. T. 167; 13 L. W. 423.

(8) 63 Ind. Cas. 215; 13 L. W. 400; (1921) M. W. N. 251.

(9) 63 Ind. Cas. 284; 24 O. C. 155; 8 O. L. J. 622.

(10) 42 Ind. Cas. 713; 39 A. 696; 15 A. L. J. 761.

(11) 48 Ind. Cas. 447; 89 P. W. R. 1918.

(1) 11 Ind. Cas. 429; 232 P. L. R. 1911; 146 P. W. R. 1911.

(2) 65 P. R. 1908; 113 P. W. R. 1908; 90 P. L. R. 1908.

(3) 68 Ind. Cas. 7331 (1923) A. L. R. (L.) 74.

(4) 13 Ind. Cas. 8521; 9 P. W. R. 1912; 138 P. L. R. 1912.

(5) 32 C. 296; 32 I. A. 23; 2 A. L. J. 71; 1 C. L. J. 584; 7 Bom. L. R. 1; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 534; 9 C. W. N. 201 (P. C.).

KHAN MUHAMMAD V. AHMAN.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS SECOND CIVIL APPEAL

No. 876 OF 1922.

December 1, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Broadway.

KHAN MUHAMMAD—JUDGMENT—

DEBTOR—APPELLANT

versus

AHMAN AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFF—

DECREE-HOLDERS AND JALLU—VENDOR—

DEFENDANT—RESPONDENTS.

Pre-emption—Decree directing payment of certain sum and costs—Failure to pay costs, effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 148, applicability of, to pre-emption decrees.

It is the duty of the decree-holder in a pre-emption suit to take all precautions and make sure that the decree passed in his favour is strictly complied with.

Kanhaya Lal v. Mohammad Shafi Khan, 18 Ind. Cas. 600; 141 P. L. R. 1913 13 P. W. R. 1913, followed.

Section 148 of the Civil Procedure Code is not applicable to decrees in pre-emption suits.

Suranjan Singh v. Rambahal Lal, 21 Ind. Cas. 585; 35 A. 582; 11 A. L. J. 950, relied on.

A decree in a pre-emption suit directed the pre-emptor to pay into Court a certain sum of money together with the costs of the suit within a certain time. The pre-emptor paid in the amount specified in the decree but failed to pay in the costs within the time fixed.

Held (1) that the decree being perfectly clear, the pre-emptor was not entitled to any extension of time for payment of the costs;

(2) that, having failed to comply with the decree, his suit must stand dismissed.

Kanhaya Lal v. Mohammad Shafi Khan, 18 Ind. Cas. 600; 141 P. L. R. 1913; 3 P. W. R. 1913, distinguished.

Miscellaneous second appeal from an order of the Additional District Judge, Jhelum, dated the 16th February 1922, reversing that of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Gujrat, dated the 4th March 1921.

Mr. Nanak Chand, for the Appellant.

Mr. Jalaluddin for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In a pre-emption decree, passed on the 31st May 1920, it was ordered that the pre-emptor should pay into Court a sum of Rs. 1,500 and costs within three months from the date of the decree. The pre-emptor had already deposited Rs. 300 in Court and within the prescribed time he paid in the balance of Rs. 1,200 but omitted to file the costs. The vendees thereupon urged that the suit should be stand dismissed. The Court of first instance gave effect to this plea and against this the pre-emptor preferred an appeal to the District Judge who found that the decree was in no way ambiguous and clearly required the pre-emptor to deposit the costs as well as the pre-emption money within the specified period of three months. He, however, came to the conclusion that the parcha given to the pre-emptor was a little misleading and, acting under section 151, Civil Procedure Code, extended the time for payment of the costs. Against this order the vendee has come up to this Court in second appeal through Mr. Nanak Chand. The respondents have been represented by Mr. Jalaluddin.

Reliance is placed on Kanhaya Lal v. Mohammad Shafi Khan (1) as giving the Court power to extend time. That case, however, is clearly distinguishable, for there the decree, which was passed under O. XX, r. 14, Civil Procedure Code, did not include the costs as part of the money to be paid in by the date fixed. A reference to the parcha said to have been given to the appellant is not very clear. No parcha was produced in the Court of first instance and the grounds of appeal contained no reference to the existence of such a document. As pointed out by Mr. Nanak Chand, such a piece of paper is obtainable at any time without any serious difficulty. If, as a matter of fact, the appellant had been misled by any such parcha it is this document that would have been the basis of his claim for extension of time. As pointed out in Kanhaya Lal v. Mohammad Shafi Khan (1) it is the duty of the decree-holder in a pre-emption suit to take all precautions and make sure that the decree passed in his favour is strictly complied with. As pointed out by the District Judge, the decree is perfectly clear and I am unable to see that any case has been made out for the extension of the time under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code. Section 148 does not seem to apply and, according to Suranjan Singh v. Rambahal Lal (2), it is not meant for pre-emption suits.

I accordingly accept this appeal and, setting aside the decree of the lower Appellate Court, restore the order of the Court of first instance with costs throughout.

Z. K.

Appeal accepted.

(1) 18 Ind. Cas. 600; 141 P. L. R. 1913; 3 P. W. R. 1913.

(2) 21 Ind. Cas. 585; 35 A. 582; 11 A. L. J. 950.

PAIRA RAM V. KESHONATH.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS SECOND CIVIL APPEAL

No. 977 OF 1920.

February 1, 1923.

Present :—Mr. Justice Abdul Raouf.

PAIRA RAM—PLAINTIFF — APPELLANT
versus

KESHONATH, REPRESENTATIVE OF BUDH
RAM, DECEASED, AND OTHERS—DEFEND-ANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. II, rr. 3 (1), 6—Pre-emption suit—Joinder of several causes of action against vendee—Discretion of Court.

A pre-emption suit is really directed against the vendee, the vendor not being a necessary party thereto.

Under the provisions of r. 3 (1), O. II, of the Civil Procedure Code a plaintiff in a pre-emption suit is entitled to claim to pre-empt in a single suit several sales effected by different vendors in favour of the same vendee.

Where a Trial Court does not think fit to take action under r. 6 of O. II of the Civil Procedure Code, against a joinder of several causes of action in the same suit an Appellate Court should not interfere with the exercise of its discretion.

Miscellaneous second appeal from an order of the District Judge, Lyallpur, dated the 31st March 1920, reversing that of the Munsif, First Class, Jhang, dated the 18th February 1919.

Messrs. M. Saleem and Devl Dayal, for the Appellant.

Dr. Nand Lal for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from an order of remand in a pre-emption suit made under the following circumstances:—

The vendee purchased four plots of land from different owners at different dates and for different prices. The plaintiff pre-emptor brought a single suit in respect of all the sales impleading the vendee and also the various vendors of the four sales. An objection was raised in the Trial Court on the ground of misjoinder of causes of action and parties. It was overruled and the suit of the plaintiff was decreed in respect of all the four plots. The vendee appealed to the lower Appellate Court and again put forward the objection as to the misjoinder. The lower Appellate Court without deciding whether the suit was bad on account of misjoinder of parties or causes of action has thought it proper to act under O. II, r. 6, Civil Procedure Code and has directed the institution and trial of four separate cases regarding the sales and has made an order of remand under O. XII, r. 23, Civil Procedure Code.

Against this order of remand the present appeal has been preferred. O. II, r. 3 (1) provides that "save as otherwise provided, a plaintiff may unite in the same suit several causes of action against the same defendant, or the same defendants jointly, and any plaintiffs having causes of action in which they are jointly interested against the same defendant or the same defendants jointly may unite such causes of action in the same suit." Rules 4 and 5 of the same Order provide that in certain cases this cannot be done. The suit for pre-emption was really against the vendee. The different vendors under the different four sale-deeds were not necessary parties. They were simply impleaded as pro forma defendants. The suit was, therefore, properly instituted. The Trial Court did not think fit to act under rule 6, tried the case and passed a decree. In my opinion, it was not proper for the Appellate Court to have interfered with the discretion of the Trial Court in this matter. Evidence has been taken, the suit has been tried and a decree has been passed. It is highly inconvenient, if not improper, that the entire proceedings taken in the Court below should be set aside and four separate suits should be instituted and the trial should begin over again. This will result in loss of time and money to the parties.

I accordingly accept this appeal and set aside the order of remand with costs.

Z. K. & N. H.

Appeal accepted.

LALU V. FAZAL DIN.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2159 OF 1919
December 21, 1922.Present:—Mr. Justice Abdul Raof and
Mr. Justice Moti Sagar.

LALU AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS

—APPELLANTS

versus

FAZAL DIN AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Specific Relief Act (I. of 1877), s. 42—Declaration as to right of succession—Suit, maintainability of.

A suit does not lie for a declaration, not of an existing right but of a spes successionis, that is, the chance or possibility of acquiring a right in the future. The Courts will not grant a declaration that plaintiff is entitled to succeed to certain property on the happening of a certain event.

Strimathoo Moothoo Vija Ragoonadah Kollandapuree Natchiar v. Dorasinga Tevar, 2 I. A. 169; 15 B. L. R. 83; 23 W. R. 31; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 456 (P. C.), Greeman Singh v. Wahari Lali Singh, 8 C. 12; 9 C. L. R. 249; 6 Ind. Jur. 191; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 8 (P. C.) and Pirithi Pal Kunwar v. Guman Kunwar, 17 I. A. 107; 17 C. 933; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 569; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 118; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1167 (P. C.), relied on.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Rawalpindi, dated the 4th July 1919, varying that of the Junior Subordinate Judge, Rawalpindi, dated the 21st October 1918.

Mr. M. S. Bhagat, for the Appellants.
Sardar Kharak Singh, for Mr. D. R. Sawhney, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The following pedigree table will explain how the parties are related to each other.

On the 20th January 1883 Karam, son of Zulfiqar, gifted the property in suit to Musammat Biwi, his daughter, and Karam Bakhsh, his daughter's son. Lalu, the 2nd son of Musammat Biwi, was evidently not born at this time. In 1884 the plaintiffs, who are the sons of Mehr, brought a suit against the donor and the donee for a declaration that the said gift was invalid and that it would not affect the reversionary rights of the plaintiffs after the death of the donor. This suit was dismissed. On Musammat Biwi's death the property in suit was mutated in the name of her son, Karam Bakhsh, and when he died his widow, Musammat Karam Nur, succeeded to the property on a life-tenure. Musammat Karam Nur entered into a re-marriage with Lalu, brother of her deceased husband, and then the property had to be mutated again; this time in the names of her two minor daughters, Musammat Misri and Musammat Jan. This mutation was effected in 1908 and since that date the daughters have been in uninterrupted and continuous possession of the land in question. In April 1918 the plaintiffs brought the present suit for a declaration that they were the next reversionary heirs of defendants Nos. (1) and (2), viz., Musammat Misri and Musammat Jan, and that on the death or the marriage of the latter they would be entitled to succeed to the property now in their possession. The suit was resisted on the ground that the plaintiffs had no cause of action; that they had no locus standi to maintain the suit in the presence of Lalu, their uncle, who was a nearer heir than the plaintiffs; that the gift made by Karam in 1883 was intended for the benefit of the whole family, and that the property could not revert to the plaintiffs until the total extinction of the lineal descendants, male and female of the donees. On these pleadings Lalu was also impleaded as a defendant in the case. The Trial Court dismissed the suit on the ground that the plaintiffs were remote collaterals and had no right to sue in the presence of Lalu, a nearer reversioner than themselves. On appeal, the learned District Judge by an order, which is wholly unintelligible, modified the decree of the First Court and held that on the failure of the line of Musammat Misri and BENI PARSHAD V. GUR DEVI.

Musammat Jan, Lahu would be entitled to succeed to half the property in suit. Against this judgment and decree both parties have appealed.

In our opinion the order of the learned District Judge is clearly wrong and must be set aside on the short ground that there is no cause of action for this suit. What the plaintiffs want to obtain is an affirmative declaration; that they may have the right to succeed to the property on the death or the marriage of the two defendants; in other words, they ask for a declaration "not of an existing right but of a spes successionis, i. e., the chance or possibility of acquiring a right in the future. It has been repeatedly held that the Courts will not grant such a declaration, vide Strimathoo Meethoo Vijla v. Ragoonadah Kolandapuree Nat-chiar v. Dorasinga Tevar (1), Greeman Singh v. Wahari Lall Singh (2) and Pirithi Pal Kunwar v. Guman Kunwar (3). It will be open no doubt to the plaintiffs when succession opens out to sue for possession of the property if possession is denied them.

We accept the appeal and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit, but, having regard to the fact that the plaintiffs are not to blame for this appeal and that the appeal has been necessitated on account of the wholly unintelligible order passed by the Court below, we leave the parties to bear their own costs in this Court.

Z. K. & N. H.

Appeal accepted.

(1) 2 I. A. 169; 15 B. L. R. 83; 23 W. R. 314; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 456 (P. C.).

(2) 8 C. 12; 9 C. L. R. 249; 6 Ind. Jur. 191; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 8 (P. C.).

(3) 17 I. A. 107; 17 C. 933; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 569; Rañque and Jacksons's P. C. No. 118; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1167 (P. C.).

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2544 OF 1919.

February 27, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Le Rossignol and Mr. Justice Martineau.

BENI PARSHAD—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

Musammat GUR DEVI—DEFENDANT
—RESPONDENT.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Partition; partial, effect of.

The very conception of a joint Hindu family involves joint ownership of all the family property by its members, and the moment a partition takes place between the members, even though it is a partition of only a portion of the joint property, they cease to be members of a joint Hindu family. [P. 895, col. 1.]

Gavrishankar Parabhuram v. Atmaram Rajaram, 18 B. 611; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 916, dissented from.

First appeal from a decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Ambala, dated the 29th August 1919.

Mr. Manohar Lal, for the Appellants.

Lala Jagan Nath, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff is the brother, and the defendant Musammat Gur Devi, is the widow of Atma Ram, a Bania of Jagadhari, who died on the 9th June 1917, and the suit is for a declaration that the defendant is not the heir of Atma Ram and is not entitled to the Succession Certificate which she has obtained, the plaintiff's contention being that he and Atma Ram formed a joint Hindu family and that the defendant is also not entitled to succeed by reason of her unchastity during her husband's lifetime. The lower Court has dismissed the suit, finding that the plaintiff and Atma Ram were divided in status by a partition which took place between them, that the evidence as to the defendant's unchastity is unreliable, and that if there was any unchastity it was condoned by her husband. The plaintiff appeals.

It is not disputed that the plaintiff and Atma Ram executed a deed on the 23rd July 1916 (page 9 of the paper-book) by which they partitioned a portion of the immoveable property, viz., the houses and shops. But Counsel for the appellant contends that, notwithstanding this partition, they continued to be members of a joint Hindu family as regards the rest of the property which remained undivided. He relies on Gaurishankar Parabhuram v. Almaram Rajaram (1) which supports his contention. But with all respect we cannot agree with the view taken by the learned Judges of the Bombay High Court. The very conception of a joint Hindu family involves joint ownership of all the family property by its members, and consequently the moment the partition took place between the plaintiff and Atma Ram in 1916, even though it was a partition of only a portion of the joint property, they ceased to be members of a joint Hindu family. The case for the defendant is also supported by the plaintiff's own application and affidavit dated the 7th July 1917 filed in a suit which he and his brother had instituted against one Ganpat Rai for the possession of a half share in a garden. Atma Ram died during the pendency of that suit, and the plaintiff stated in his application and affidavit that Musammatt Gur Devi was Atma Ram's sole heir. Another fact which is noteworthy is that in the account-books of the family Atma Ram's khata is separate from the plaintiff's, as the latter has admitted. We have no hesitation in agreeing with the lower Court that the plaintiff and Atma Ram were not members of a joint Hindu family at the time of the latter's death.

SULTAN V. WARYAM.

We also agree in the finding that the defendant's unchastity has not been proved. No doubt it appears that unchastity was imputed to her, the allegation being that a child to whom she had given birth was illegitimate but the evidence produced against her is wholly unreliable, the statements of the witnesses in regard to her misconduct being purely hearsay.

We accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 18 B. 611; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 916.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL, No. 1226 OF 1920.

March 10, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Martineau and Mr. Justice Zafar Ali.

SULTAN AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
APPELLANTS
versus

WARYAM—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Muhammadian Law—Marriage—Option of puberty—Ignorance of marriage, effect of.

Under the Muhammadian Law a girl who is unaware of her marriage at the time when she attains puberty retains her option of repudiation until she becomes aware of the marriage, and the option is prolonged until she is acquainted with the fact that she has the right to repudiate the marriage.

Bismillah Begam v. Nur Mohammad, 63 Ind. Cas. 702; 19 A. I. J. 845; 3 U. P. L. R. (A) 186; 44 A. 61; (1922) A. I. R. (A) 155, relied on.

Second appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Jhang, at Sargodha, dated the 20th February 1920, affirming that of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Jhang, dated the 13th January 1920.

Lala Ram Chand Manchanda, for the Appellants.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff has been given a decree for restitution of conjugal rights, the Subordinate Judge finding that the defendant, Sahiban, who was born on the 12th August 1903, was married to the plaintiff when she was 4 or 5 years old, her brother, acting as her guardian, and that, although the marriage has not been consummated, she has lost her right of repudiating it as she did not exercise, the right immediately on attaining puberty, but repudiated the marriage for the first time when she filed her written statement in Court on the 4th July 1919, when she was nearly 16 years of age. The District Judge has affirmed the decree of the First Court, and the defendants have preferred a second appeal.

The judgment of the learned District Judge does not comply with the requirements of the law, as he has given only his bare finding on the issues without stating his reasons for them. It is, however, not necessary to remand the case for a proper judgment to be written by him as we think that even on the facts found the suit should be dismissed.

There is nothing to show that Sahiban, who was only 4 or 5 years old when she was married, had any knowledge of the marriage before the suit was instituted, and it stands to reason that she could not exercise her option of repudiating the marriage so long as she was ignorant that a marriage had taken place. That a girl who is unaware of her marriage at the time when she attains puberty retains her option of repudiation until she becomes aware of it is recognized in Wilson's Anglo-Muhammadan Law, 5th Edition, on page 95, and in Amir Ali's Muhammadan Law, Volume II, 4th Edition on page 426, and it has also been held in Bismillah Begam v. Nur Mohammad (1), that the option is prolonged until the girl is acquainted with the fact that she has the right to repudiate the marriage.

NAWAB BIBI V. ALLAH DITTA.

It was not till the 23rd May 1919 that Sahiban was served with a summons in the suit. She was not present in Court at the next hearing, which took place on the 2nd June, and the case was adjourned to the 17th June in order that she might attend and make a statement about her age. She appeared on the 17th but was not questioned, and the Court postponed the case to the 4th July, for the examination of the plaintiff. On that date the written statement was filed, in which Sahiban repudiated the marriage.

There was thus no unreasonable delay on her part in repudiating the marriage when she came to know that the plaintiff was claiming her as his wife. We hold that she had not lost her option of repudiation, and that the suit must, therefore, fail.

We accept the appeal ex parte, reverse the decrees of the Courts below, and dismiss the suit with costs throughout.

Z. K.

Appeal accepted.

(1) 63 Ind. Cas. 702; 19 A. L. J. 845; 3 U. P. L. R. (A.) 186; 44 A. 61; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 155.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 1068 of 1920.

March 5, 1923.

Present.—Sir Shadi Lal Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Zafar Ali.

Musammat NAWAB BIBI, MINOR,
THROUGH THE GUARDIANSHIP OF LABHU AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS
—APPELLANTS

VERSUS

ALLAH DITTA PLAINTIFF AND PHAGU—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Muhammadan Law—Restitution of conjugal rights—Marriage by way of exchange—Puberty—Presumption.

The father of the defendant, a Muhammadan girl, married her to plaintiff while she was still an infant in order to procure for himself the hand of the plaintiff's sister by way of exchange. Several years after the marriage and nearly two years after defendant had attained puberty, the plaintiff sued for restitution of conjugal rights:

Held, that under the circumstances the defendant was justified in denying the plaintiff's right to restitution of conjugal rights, which could not, therefore, be enforced.

The age of puberty is generally fixed at 14 in the male and 12 in the female but according to Muhammadan Law a girl must be presumed to have reached puberty on completing the fifteenth year of her life. [p. 897, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Gurdaspur, dated the 21st February 1920, reversing that of the Munsif, First Class, Shakargarh, District Gurdaspur, dated the 14th October 1919.

Lala Mehr Chand Mahajan, for the Appellants.

Lala Mul Chand, R. S., for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This second appeal arises out of a suit for restitution of conjugal rights. The parties are Mussalmans of a low caste known as Bharai. The First Court dismissed the suit finding that the alleged marriage was not proved. On appeal the learned District Judge came to the contrary conclusion and decreed the suit. It is contended in this Court on behalf of the alleged wife (appellant) that even if she was married, the plaintiff, under the circumstances of the case, was not entitled to a decree for restitution of conjugal rights. We are of opinion that this contention must prevail though the finding of the learned District Judge on the question of marriage being one of fact cannot be interfered with on second appeal. According to the plaintiff's own showing the marriage took place so far back as the 21st March 1905 when she was a child less than three years of age, and he was only about one year older than she. Her mother was dead and her father, in order to procure for himself the hand of the plaintiff's sister in marriage, married this infant daughter to the plaintiff by way of exchange. Therefore, it is clear that he made a sacrifice of her to serve his own selfish purpose without any regard to her future welfare. The plaintiff did not lay claim to her and did not care to bring her to live with him even after she had attained puberty. The age of puberty is generally fixed at 14 in the male and 12 in the female but, according to Muhammadan Law, a girl must be presumed to have reached puberty on completing the fifteenth year of her life which the appellant did in June 1917. The plaintiff neglected her all this time and did not institute the suit till the 4th March 1919. She is at present over 20 years of age and is, therefore, quite justified in denying the plaintiff's claim to conjugal rights against her. Therefore, we accept the appeal and dismiss the plaintiff's suit. The parties to bear their own costs throughout.

BEGUM v. JAFAR HASSAN.

Z. K. & N. H.

*Appeal allowed.LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 410 OF 1922.

January 12, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Abdul Raoof.

Muhammad BEGUM—PLAINTIFF

—PETITIONER

versus

JAFAR HASSAN—DEFENDANT

—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIII, rr. 7, 15—Application for leave to sue as pauper, dismissal of, for want of prosecution—Fresh application, whether barred.

The rejection of an application for leave to sue as a pauper for failure of the applicant to press it, is a bar to a subsequent application for leave to sue as a pauper in respect of the same right. [p. 898, col. 1.]

Ranchod Morar v. Bexanji Edulji, 20 B. 86; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 616, Naraini Kaur v. Makhani Lal, 17 A. 526; A. W. N. (1825) 105; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 636, relied on.

Petition, under section 44 of Act IX of 1919, for revision of the order of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Ludhiana, dated the 22nd February 1922.

Sheikh Umar Bakhsh, for the Petitioner.

Dr. Sir Mohammad Iqbal, Kt., for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application asking this Court to revise an order refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper. The applicant first made an application on the 23rd of November 1920, for permission to sue as a pauper. On the 30th of November 1920 some sort of compromise was effected between the applicant and the opposite party in consequence of which the applicant did not press her application and the Court on the 1st of December made an order refusing the application on the ground that it was not pressed. On the 25th of August 1921 the applicant applied for a review of the order of refusal but the review was not granted. The present application was made on the 3rd of October 1921 in respect of the same right to sue and was rejected on the ground that in consequence of the compromise the petitioner was not entitled to sue. The question which I have to decide is whether this application is barred or not by the provisions of O. XXXIII, r. 15, Civil Procedure Code. This rule provides that "an order refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper shall be a bar to any subsequent application of the like nature by him in respect of the same right."

It was contended on behalf of the applicant that r. 7, O. XXXIII, Civil Procedure Code, under which it is said the order of refusal was made contemplates an inquiry into the question of pauperism and that it is only after holding such an enquiry that the Court can make an order under that rule either allowing or refusing to allow the applicant to sue as a pauper. The argument is that as the first application was rejected without an enquiry into the pauperism of the petitioner the order of refusal cannot be said to have been made under rule 7 and that, therefore, the order of refusal made on the first application cannot be a bar to the present application. A similar question under almost similar circumstances was raised before the Bombay High Court in the case of Ranchod Morar v. Bezanji Edulji (1) and it was held "that the order rejecting the plaintiff's first application was an order under section 409 of the Code of Civil Procedure; that both the applications were made in respect of the same right to sue, and that the order rejecting the first application operated as a bar under section 413 of the Code to the entertainment of the second application." Rule 7 of O. XXXIII of the present Code makes the same provision as was contained in section 409, Civil Procedure Code, and rule 15 of the same Order is almost the same as section 413 of the old Code. In the Bombay case the Court had made an order of refusal as the petitioner had refused to go on with his application. In the present case also the petitioner had refused to press her application in consequence of the alleged compromise.

DIYAN D. HIRA NAND:

A further contention was put forward on behalf of the petitioner, that in this case there was no order of refusal but simply an order rejecting the application and, therefore, neither rule 7 nor rule 15 applied. A similar argument was put forward in the Bombay case and the learned Judges held that section 409 was the only section in the Code under which the order rejecting the application could have been made and that, therefore, it must be taken to be an order of refusal. In the case of Naratul Kuar v. Makhan Lal (2) the learned Judges of a Division Bench at page 528 are reported to have made the following observation:—

"It is obvious from section 413 that when an order under section 409 is made, there is a bar to any further application to sue as a pauper."

Following the two above decisions I must hold that the present application is barred. The application is rejected with costs.

Z. K.

Application rejected.

- (1) 20 B. 86; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 616.
- (2) 17 A. 526; A. W. N. (1895) 106; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 636.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 565 OF 1919.

February 5, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Broadway and Mr. Justice Zafar Ali.

Musammal DIYAN—PLAINTIFF—
APPELLANT

versus

HIRA NAND AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—
RESPONDENTS.

Custom—Succession—Step-mother, right of, to succeed step-son—Aroras of Montgomery District—Hindu Law—Succession—Disability—Lunatic—Person unable to manage affairs—Pleadings, construction of.

In cases where custom is alleged, a duty is imposed on the Court to endeavour to ascertain the existence and nature of that custom. [p. 900, col. 1.]

Fatima Bibi v. Gul, 127 P. R. 1893, Kartar Singh v. Mathar Singh, 94 P. R. 1898, Lorendi v. Krishen Kaur, 149 P. R. 1888 and Daya Ram v. Sohail Singh, 110 P. R. 1906; 31 P. L. R. 1907; 59 P. W. R. 1907 (F. B.), followed.

Prayaga Doss Jee Varu v. Venkama Naidu, 44 Ind. Cas. 641; 23 M. L. T. 1371 (1918) M. W. N. 346; 7 L. W. 477, Raja Rup Singh v. Rani Baisni, 7 A. 1; 11 L. A. 149; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 533; A. W. N. (1884) 246; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 902 (P. C.), Azhimanila Veetil Kannu Pillai v. Kayinari Gopalan Nair, 26 Ind. Cas. 3371 (1914) M. W. N. 883, Arabar Rahaman v. Ismail Ebrahim, 27 Ind. Cas. 373, Ganpat v. Daulat Ram, 68 P. R. 1904; 123 P. L. R. 1904; Khair-ul-nisa v. Bahadur Ali, 27 P. R. 1906; 11 P. L. R. 1906; 17 P. W. R. 1906, referred to.

The fact that a particular tribe has in many matters adopted agricultural custom, cannot by itself afford a basis for the deduction that in the said tribe a custom exists by which a step-mother succeeds to her step-son. [p. 900, col. 2.]

There is no general custom in the Punjab recognising the succession of the step-mother to a step-son. On the contrary, a step-mother's right to succeed to her step-son according to the general custom has been negatived, and it is for the person setting up such a right to satisfy the Court by the production of instances where step-mothers have succeeded that such a custom exists. [p. 900, col. 2.]

Among Aroras of the Montgomery District a step-mother is not entitled by custom to succeed to her step-son. [p. 901, col. 2.]

Obiter dictum:—A man may be incapable of looking after his affairs without being a lunatic within the meaning of that term for the purpose of preventing his succession under the Hindu Law. [p. 901, col. 1.]

The assumption of control by the Court of Wards of the property of a person does not imply lunacy such as would cause a disability to succeed under the Hindu Law. [p. 901, col. 1.]

Surti v. Narain Das, 12 A. 520; A. W. N. (1890) 110; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1082, relied on.

First appeal from a decree of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Montgomery, dated the 3rd March 1919.

DIYAN V. HIRA NAND:

Bakhshi Tek Chand, and Lala Mehr Chand Mahajan, for the Appellant.

Pandit Shes Narain, R. B., for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—A preliminary point was disposed of by our order dated the 23rd January 1923, and a short adjournment granted as we were informed that there was a possibility of a compromise being effected. Negotiations have fallen through, and the appeal has been heard on the merits.

One Nibahu Ram had three sons, Bahadur Chand, Kanshi Ram and Dalpat Rai. The parties to this case are the descendants of these three sons and the following pedigree-tables will be of assistance in the case:—

The plaintiff is Musammat Diyan, one of the widows of Mahtab Rai, on whose death his entire estate, real and personal descended to his son Fateh Chand. This Fateh Chand was said to have been insane. In any event, he was not capable of managing his own affairs with the result that the Court of Wards took over his estate. Fateh Chand died unmarried in December 1914. On the 14th of August 1915 the suit out of which this appeal has arisen was instituted by Musammat Diyan for a declaration that she was entitled to possession of the property left by her deceased step-son, Fateh Chand, during her lifetime as against the said Fateh Chand's collaterals. The parties are Aroras owning considerable estates in several villages in the Montgomery District, and Musammat Diyan alleged that they were governed by zemindara custom under which she was entitled to succeed to her step-son.

The Trial Court found that the property was not ancestral and that the plaintiff had failed to prove any general agricultural custom which would give her the right to succeed to her step-son. He, therefore, dismissed the suit, holding at the same time that the plaintiff might have succeeded if she had alleged a special custom among Aroras placing the mother and the step-mother on the same footing as regards succession to a deceased son. This remark was due apparently to the fact that the Trial Court had come to the conclusion that among agriculturists as a whole a step-mother was allowed to succeed to her step-son.

Mr. Tek Chand for Musammat Diyan has contended that the Trial Court has placed too narrow a construction on the plaint and that on the finding arrived at by him it should have decreed the suit. He further contended that the evidence on the record amply proved that the parties to this case were governed by agricultural custom under which a step-mother can succeed to her step-son. He urged that by using the expression 'zemindara custom' in the plaint the plaintiff meant the general custom as followed by the agriculturists in the Montgomery District and that under this custom a step-mother's right was recognised and that, therefore, there was no need to specifically mention the existence of a special custom as suggested by the learned Senior Subordinate Judge. It was also urged that, inasmuch as Fateh Chand was a lunatic at the time of his father's death, had the parties been governed by Hindu Law, the said Fateh Chand would not have succeeded. The fact that he did succeed, it was claimed, pointed to the parties (Aroras) being governed by custom. In support of the contention that the learned Senior Subordinate Judge had taken too narrow a view of the pleadings, our attention was drawn to Prayaga Doss Jee Varu v. Venkama Naidu (1), Raja Rup Singh v. Rani Baisni (2), Azhimanilla Veetil. Kannu Pallai v. Kayinari Gopalan Nair (3), Arabar Rahaman v. Ismail Ebrahim (4), Ganpat v. Daulat Ram (5) and Khair-ul-nisa v. Bahadur Ali (6). We are inclined to accept the contention that the learned Senior Subordinate Judge took too narrow a view of the pleadings and we are in general agreement with Fatima Bibi v. Gul (7), Kartar Singh v. Mathar Singh (8), Lorendi v. Kishan Kaur (9) and Daya Ram v. Soheli Singh (10), that in cases where custom is alleged, a duty is also imposed on the Court to endeavour to ascertain the existence and nature of that custom.

DIYAN V. HIRA NAND.

Mr. Tek Chand then took us through the evidence, oral and documentary, on the record. This evidence shows that in matters relating to succession Aroras follow agricultural custom. It was argued from this that it should be presumed that the said Aroras were also governed by a custom by which a step-mother was entitled to succeed to a step-son. In this respect our attention was drawn to Harbans Lal v. Atra (11), Taj Muhammad v. Sayad Muhammad (12), Nur Muhammad v. Khuda

(1) 44 Ind. Cas. 641; 23 M. L. T. 1371 7 L. W. 477; (1918) M. W. N. 346.

(2) 7 A. 1; 11 I. A. 149; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 533; A. W. N. (1884) 246; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 902 (P. C.).

(3) 26 Ind. Cas. 337; (1914) M. W. N. 883.

(4) 27 Ind. Cas. 373.

(5) 68 P. R. 1904; 123 P. L. R. 1904.

(6) 27 P. R. 1906; 11 P. L. R. 1906 17 P. W. R. 1906.

(7) 127 P. R. 1893.

(8) 94 P. R. 1898.

(9) 149 P. R. 1888.

(10) 110 P. R. 1906; 31 P. L. R. 1907; 59 P. W. R. 1907 (F. B.).

(11) 53 Ind. Cas. 858.

(12) 34 Ind. Cas. 126; 122 P. R. 1916; 48 P. L. R. 1917; 94 P. W. R. 1916.

Bakhsh (13) and Ram Lal v. Gopi (14). We are unable, however, to agree to this proposition. The fact that the tribe to which the parties belong have in many matters adopted agricultural custom is no doubt a fact to be considered in deciding whether or not the said tribe have adopted the particular custom set up by the plaintiff. That Aroras do follow custom in many matters cannot be denied, vide Nathu Mula v. Bihari (15), Laeko Bai v. Asa Nand (16), Mokanda v. Balli Singh (17), Pilambar v. Ganesha Ram (18), Anant Ram v. Hukman Mal (19) and Budhu Ram v. Muhammad Din (20) but in none of these cases was this particular custom with which we are now concerned under consideration.

So far as this Province is concerned, we have been unable to find any general custom recognising the succession of a step-mother to a step-son. Indeed, at page 88 of Notes on Punjab Custom by Ellis, it is said that the step-mother has no right ordinarily except to maintenance, and this proposition is also laid down in Rattigan's Digest of the Customary Law, pages 30 and 31. This proposition is also supported by Kirpi v. Ramjas (21), Kanhaya Singh v. Premi (22) and Bishen Das v. Mansa Devi (23). It seems to us, therefore, that, if anything, a step-mother's right to succeed to her step-son according to the general custom has been negatived and it is for the plaintiff in the present case to clearly satisfy us by the production of instances, where step-mothers have succeeded that such a custom exists.

The fact that Fateh Chand succeeded to his father cannot by itself be regarded as

(13) 34 Ind. Cas. 135; 125 P. R. 1916; 93 P. W. R. 1916; 49 P. L. R. 1916.

(14) 25 Ind. Cas. 710; 24 P. R. 1914; 58 P. W. R. 1914; 196 P. L. R. 1914.

(15) 67 P. R. 1888.

(16) 144 P. R. 1882.

(17) 85 P. R. 1884.

(18) 148 P. R. 1890.

(19) 62 P. R. 1902; 102 P. L. R. 1902.

(20) 32 Ind. Cas. 315; 86 P. R. 1915; 196 P. L. R. 1915; 165 P. W. R. 1915.

(21) 153 P. R. 1889.

(22) 20 Ind. Cas. 876; 322 P. L. R. 1913; 166 P. W. R. 1913.

(23) 23 Ind. Cas. 536; 47 P. R. 1914; 60 P. L. R. 1914; 176 P. W. R. 1914.

DIYAN V. UIRA NAND.

sufficient proof of the family being governed by custom. It is true that in the plaint it was alleged that Fateh Chand was a lunatic at the time of his father's death, but this fact was denied in the pleadings and there is no real evidence to support the assertion. A man may be incapable of looking after his affairs without necessarily being a lunatic within the meaning of that term for the purposes of preventing his succession under the Hindu Law. It was held in Surti v. Narain Das (24), that the assumption of control by the Court of Wards of the property of a person did not imply lunacy such as would cause a disability to succeed. A reference to the riwaj-i-am of this district shows that the question of a step-mother's right to succeed to her step-son was never considered although various other matters were brought forward, namely, questions relating to adoption, khana damadi and widow re-marriage. On general rules we are, therefore, unable to hold that the custom set up can be deduced. It was, however, contended that the said custom had been proved by the instances on the record and this view has undoubtedly been taken by the learned Senior Subordinate Judge in deciding issue No. 4. An examination of those instances, however, does not seem to us to warrant the conclusion arrived at by the Court below.

The first, Exhibit P.-14, relates to the succession to one Budhu a minor, who was succeeded by his father's two widows. This was a case amongst Brahmans and there was nothing whatever to show the existence of any other possible heirs. The mutations show that the two widows were living in the same house and clearly they were both entitled to maintenance at least.

Exhibit P.-24 refers to the same property as also does P. 25, which mutation shows that on the death of Budhu's mother his step-mother took the property. We cannot regard this instance as of any value.

Exhibit P.-17 relates to the succession to an occupancy tenancy, the last occupancy tenant being Dharam Chand, an Arora. He died without issue and without leaving a widow. His mother and step-mother were treated as heirs and the mutation was attested by Dharam Chand's paternal uncle. The area was not large. We cannot regard this instance as of any great value to prove the custom set up.

In Exhibit P.-29, Tara Singh and his step-mother succeeded jointly to the property of Tara Singh's father Rattan Singh, an Arora. This is not a case of succession by a step-mother to a step-son and cannot establish the custom set up.

Exhibit P.-26 is on the same footing as P.-29, and affords no assistance.

Exhibit P.-27 relates to Khahis and was not a succession to a step-son.

After a careful consideration of this evidence we are unable to hold that the custom set up by the plaintiff in this case has been proved. The fact that the tribe to which the parties belong are in many respects governed by custom cannot by itself afford a basis for the deduction that in the said tribe a custom exists by which a step-mother succeeds to her step-son.

Arguments were addressed by the learned Counsel as to whether the defendants-respondents with the plaintiff formed a compact village community. It is not necessary for us to discuss this question and we would only note that the history of the villages in which this family holds property appears to show that the said villages are owned almost entirely by this family.

It is clear that under Hindu Law Musammat Diyan would not succeed to her step-son Fateh Chand. The riwaj-i-am affords her no assistance, inasmuch as it is silent as to this question and the evidence on the record does not, in our opinion, prove the custom set up. We accordingly dismiss this appeal with costs.

A. K.

Appeal dismissed.

(24) 12 A. 530; A. W. N. (1890) 110; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1082.

FATEH DIN V. KISHEN LAL.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 260 OF 1922.

March 28, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Lindsay and
Mr. Justice Daniels.

FATEH DIN AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

KISHEN LAL.—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

*Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s.
68—Mortgage security—Diminution in value.*

A mortgage security will be considered diminished in value within the meaning of section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act, if its letting value has decreased, even though the property itself has undergone no change.

Where a person who mortgaged his shr plots with possession stipulated to pay Rs. 76 as interest on the mortgage-money and executed a simultaneous kahuli to rent the plots from the mortgagee at the amount but, at the time of the fixation of rent by the Revenue Court as ex-proprietory tenant, objected to the amount, and the Rent Court fixed the rent at Rs. 27:

Held, that the value of the security had diminished within the meaning of section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act and the mortgagee could sue for the mortgage money.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Agra, dated the 23rd November 1921.

Mr. N. P. Asthana, for the Appellants.
Mr. Panna Lal, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit in which a usufructuary mortgagee sued for his mortgage-money on the ground of not having obtained possession of the full property mortgaged to him. Two points were in issue and have been found by the Court below. In the first place, at the time of the mortgage it was stipulated that the mortgagors should pay Rs. 76 a year as interest on the mortgage-money. The mortgagors executed a simultaneous kahuli which was really part of the same transaction, agreeing to rent the plots from the mortgagee at a rent of Rs. 76. At the time of fixing rent by the Revenue Court they objected that Rs. 76 was in excess of the rent which they were liable to pay as ex-proprietary tenants—the plot mortgaged was shr plot—and rent was fixed at Rs. 27-4-7. The learned District Judge has held in favour of the defendants-appellants on this point on the ground that the value of the security was not diminished within the meaning of section 68 by this transaction. We are unable to agree with the learned District Judge on this point. The value of a property depends to a large extent upon the income which is obtainable from it and property yielding an income of Rs. 27 a year is obviously of much lesser value than property yielding an income of Rs. 76 a year.

The second point urged by the plaintiff was that certain plots had been inserted in the mortgage-deed which did not belong to the mortgagors and of which the plaintiff was, therefore, unable to obtain possession. The lower Appellate Court finds this to have been the fact, and under section 68 (c) of the Transfer of Property Act has given the plaintiff a decree for the mortgage-money. It is contended in this Court that section 68 (c) is not applicable on the ground that it is not proved that the mortgagors deliberately inserted these plots in the deed knowing that they had no title to them. This circumstance is, however, immaterial. Under section 65 of the Transfer of Property Act the mortgagor is deemed to contract that he has the interest which he professes to have in the mortgaged property, and, further, under section 68 (c) of the Act, whenever the mortgagor fails to deliver possession of the property to the usufructuary mortgagee the latter is entitled to sue for his mortgage money. On both issues, therefore, we find in favour of the plaintiff. We accordingly uphold the decree of the Court below and dismiss the appeal with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

M. A. A. & N. H.

Appeal dismissed.

GANWA v. JOTI PRASAD.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 67 of 1922.

November 24, 1922.

Present:—Sir Shadi Lal, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Fforde.

GANWA AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS

—APPELLANTS

versus

JOTI PRASAD AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I Art. 10—Pre-emption, suit for—Property in possession of tenants—Physical possession—Limitation.

Whether the subject of a sale does or does not admit of physical possession must be determined with reference to the date of the sale, and it is immaterial whether the property afterwards became susceptible of physical possession.

Property which is in the possession of a tenant does not admit of physical possession within the meaning of Art. 10 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

Letters Patent Appeal from the decree dated 7th February 1922 passed by Mr. Justice LeRossignol in Civil Appeal No. 1930 of 1921 and published as 69 Ind. Cas. 418 reversing that of the District Judge, Ambala, dated the 6th July 1921.

Lala Mehr Chand Mahajan, for the Appellants.

Mr. Devi Dial, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of an action for the pre-emption of a plot of agricultural land, and the sole question for determination is whether the claim was barred by limitation. Now the undisputed facts are as follows:—

The sale was effected on the 11th February 1918, but the property sold was at that time in possession of tenants who were not evicted until June 1918. It appears that a sale-deed was subsequently executed and registered in September 1918.

It is beyond dispute that Art. 10 of the First Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act of 1908 governs the action, but the matter in controversy is whether the first part of the third column of that Article or the second part applies to the claim. Now, it has been repeatedly held both by this Court as well as by the Allahabad High Court that property, which is in the possession of a tenant does not admit of physical possession within the meaning of that Article. This principle is firmly established, and it is now too late to question its correctness.

Whether the subject of the sale does or does not admit of physical possession must be determined with reference to the date of the sale, and it is immaterial whether the property afterwards became susceptible of physical possession. The date of the sale is the crucial date for deciding whether the first part of the Article governs the action, and it is common ground that on that date the property in question was in the possession of tenants. We must, therefore, hold that the subject-matter of the sale did not admit of physical possession and that the second part of the Article prescribes the rule of limitation applicable to this case.

ABDUL WAHAB v. ROKIA BIBI.

The sale-deed was registered in September 1918 and the action, which was brought within one year from that date, was not barred by the law of limitation. We accordingly accept the appeal and, reversing the judgment appealed against, we restore the order of the District Judge, remanding the case for re-decision. The vendees must pay the costs incurred by the plaintiff in this Court as well as in the Court of the learned Judge in Chambers.

Z. K.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL SUIT No. 661 of 1920.

March 16, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Kumaraswami Sastri.
ABDUL WAHAB SAHIB—PLAINTIFF—

APPELLANT

versus

M. ROKIA BIBI SAHIRA AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

*Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (2), O. XXVI, rr. 11, 12—Letters Patent (Mad.)
cl. 15—Partnership suit—Dispute as to terms of partnership—Reference by Judge of whole suit to Official Referee, validity of—Order, whether appealable—Order, whether can be questioned in same proceeding—Consent of parties, effect of—Functions of Court and Commissioner.*

In a suit on the Original Side of the High Court for dissolution of an alleged partnership and accounts, the defendants disputed the terms of partnership. When the suit came on for trial, the Judge referred the whole suit to the Official Referee to determine what share the plaintiff had in the business and then to take a full account of the partnership. The Official Referee without taking accounts submitted a report as to the terms of the partnership, its duration and shares of parties. The consideration of the report came up again before another Judge. On objections being taken to the report :

ABDUL WAHAB V. ROKIA BIBI.

Held, (1) that the order of the Judge referring the whole suit to the Official Referee was neither a "decree" within the meaning of section 2 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, nor a "judgment" within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent and was, therefore, not appealable ;

Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar, 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. L. J. (1910) M. W. N. 697; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1 (F.B.), followed.

(2) that the Official Referee had no power to decide questions as to terms of partnership, its duration or the shares of partners and the adjudication by him of these questions was ultra vires and the order of reference by the Judge could not confer jurisdiction on the referee to decide them. [p. 906, col. 1.]

(3) that, however, neither the order of reference nor the report of the Official Referee could be treated as mere nullities and in the same suit and the same proceedings it was not open to the parties to get behind the said order until it were reversed or modified in appeal or review.

Leardard v. Bull, 9 A. 191; 13 I. A. 134; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 741; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 561 (P. C.). Mtnakshi Naidu v. Subramanya, 11 M. 26; 14 I. A. 160; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 54; 11 Ind. Jur. 393; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 18 (P. C.). Rajlakshmi Dasi v. Katayanes Dasee, 12 Ind. Cas. 464; 38 C. 639, Nusserwanjee Pestonjee v. Meer Mynooddeen Khan, 6 M. I. A. 134; 19 B. R. 50, Raja Har Narain Singh v. Chaudhrain Bhagwan Kuar, 13 A. 300; 18 I. A. 551; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 14; 15 Ind. Jur. 283; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 189 (P. C.), distinguished.

George Henry Hook v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 60 Ind. Cas. 631; 48 C. 499; 19 A. L. J. 366; 40 M. L. J. 423; 29 M. L. T. 336; (1921) M. W. N. 313; 33 C. L. J. 405; 3 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 17; 23 Bom. L. R. 648; 48 I. A. 147; 25 C. W. N. 915; 14 L. W. 221 (P. C.). Munugl Pershad Ditch v. Grijia Kant Lakshmi, 8 C. 51; 11 C. L. R. 113; 8 I. A. 123; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 249; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 32 (P. C.). Sukhnath Rai v. Nehal Chand, 59 Ind. Cas. 801; 42 A. 661; 18 A. L. J. 644; 2 U. P. L. R. (A.) 240, Gomathan Alamelu v. Komandur Krishnamachari, 27 M. 118, Tuljaram Row v. Gopala Aiyar, 40 Ind. Cas. 611; (1917) M. W. N. 234; 21 M. L. T. 229; 32 M. L. J. 434, Sashikanta Acharyya v. Raja Sarat Chandre Rat Chaudhuri, 70 Ind. Cas. 6; 34 C. L. J. 415, Krishna Behari Roy v. Bunwari Lal Roy, 2 I. A. 283; 1 C. 144; 25 W. R. 1; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 559; 3 Suth P. C. J. 213; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 93 (P. C.). Bent Ram v. Nanku Mal, 7 A. 102; 11 I. A. 181; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 564; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 138 (P. C.). Rajeswara Sethupati Avergal [Raja of Ramnad] v. Velusami Tevar, 59 Ind. Cas. 880; 25 C. W. N. 581; 19 A. L. J. 168; 40 M. L. J. 197; 13 L. W. 290; (1921) M. W. N. 51; 33 C. L. J. 218; 23 Bom. L. R. 701, Ex parte Manohar Bhivrao, 2 B. H. C. R. 374, and Sadastva Pillai v. Ramaling Pillai, 15 B. L. R. 383; 24 W. R. 193, relied on,

There is a sharp division between the functions of a Judge disposing of a suit and of a Commissioner like an Official Referee who is merely to aid the Judge in taking accounts rendered necessary for the passing of a final decree. The function of the Court is to determine the substantive rights of parties where they are disputed and to decide in what manner and from what date accounts have to be taken. The function of the Official Referee is to take accounts having regard to the declaration of the rights of parties made by the Judge in passing the preliminary decree. His powers to deal with the question are not limited simply to matters of arithmetic but he has, for the purpose of carrying into effect the directions given by the Judge in the preliminary decree and for the purpose of arriving at conclusions as to the state of accounts between the parties, power to take evidence and deal with matters ancillary thereto. [p. 907, cols. 1 & 2.]

The powers of an Official Referee in Madras, limited as they are, must be sought for in the Civil Procedure Code and the Original Side Rules, and, in partnership suits, he is only a permanent Commissioner whose duty it is to take accounts and make enquiries contemplated by the Code and the Rules.

A distinction has to be drawn between cases where a Court having no jurisdiction to try the suit and cases where a Court having jurisdiction, passes an order which it is incompetent to pass. [p. 908, col. 2.]

An order without jurisdiction passed in a suit which the Court has jurisdiction to entertain and try cannot be treated as a nullity by the same Court in subsequent proceedings.

When a Judge has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject-matter of a suit the parties cannot, by their mutual consent, convert it into a proper judicial process, although they may constitute the Judge their arbiter, and be bound by his decision on the merits when these are submitted to him. But, when, in a cause which the Judge is competent to try, the parties without objection join issue and go to trial upon the merits, the defendant cannot subsequently dispute his jurisdiction upon the ground that there were irregularities in the initial procedure which, if objected to at the time, would have led to the dismissal of the suit. [p. 908, col. 1.]

The Rules of Practice and Procedure of the English Courts do not form part of the substantive rules on the Original Side of the Madras High Court.

Mr. C. P. Ramaswami Iyer, Advocate General, for the Appellant.

Mr. T. Ethiraja Mudaltar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This matter arises out of a report submitted by the Official Referee in pursuance of an order dated the 5th of April 1921. The suit was filed by the plaintiff for a dissolution of partnership and for the taking of the partnership accounts, the case for the plaintiff being that he and his father, the deceased Hajee Abdul Ghani Sahib, were trading in partnership from the 1st of September 1915 on the terms mentioned in the plaint. The defendants are sued as the legal representatives of the deceased Hajee Abdul Ghani Sahib. Defendants Nos. 1 and 3 filed written statements denying that the partnership was carried on on the terms mentioned in the plaint and alleged that the plaintiff worked in the business only up to the end of October 1917 and that he had overdrawn his share of the profits. The 2nd defendant filed a written statement putting the plaintiff to the proof of his claim. The 4th defendant is the plaintiff himself and is on record as one of the legal representatives of his father.

ABDUL WAHAB S. ROKIA BIBI.

The following issues were settled:—

(1) What were the terms of the partnership between the plaintiff and the deceased Hajee Abdul Ghani Sahib?

(2) What was the duration of the said partnership?

(3) Are the sums referred to in paragraphs 9 and 10 of the plaint assets of the partnership?

(4) What are the shares of the parties as heirs in the estate of the deceased Hajee Abdul Ghani Sahib?

(5) To what relief are the parties entitled?

When the suit came for trial, Coutts-Trotter, J., without determining any of the matters in controversy in the suit passed the following order on the 8th of April 1921:—"The whole case is referred to the Official Referee to determine what share the plaintiff had in the business carried on by the deceased Hajee Abdul Ghani Sahib and having determined that, to take a full account as in an ordinary partnership action and report to this Court." The 1st defendant states that this order was passed by consent of all parties, but this is not admitted by the plaintiff nor does the order purport to have been passed by consent. In pursuance of this order what is called an interim decree was drawn up by the office.

Objections have been filed to the Official Referee's report by the plaintiff. The Official Referee in the report submitted has not taken an account but has confined his report to the determination of Issues Nos. 1, 2 and 4, viz., as to the terms of the partnership, its duration and the shares of the parties. The objection taken by the plaintiff is, that the Official Referee had no jurisdiction to go into these questions; that the order referring the whole suit to him by Coutts-Trotter, J., was without jurisdiction and is ultra vires, and that, even if the Official Referee had power to go into these questions, his decision is wrong on the merits. It is contended for the defendants (1) that the Official Referee has power to go into the matter; (2) that, even if he has no power, the order of Coutts-Trotter, J., referring the whole suit to him cannot be questioned in this suit so long as it remains in force and has not been set aside either by review or by way of appeal, and (3) that section 97 of the Civil Procedure Code prevents the correctness of a preliminary decree not appealed against from being disputed in appeal from any final decree that may be passed and so a scintilla bars any objection to proceedings in the suit necessary for the obtaining of the final decree.

As regards the objection founded on section 97 of the Civil Procedure Code, the order is not an interim decree or even a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent. Rule 15 of O. XX of the Civil Procedure Code provides that where a suit is for the dissolution of a partnership, or the taking of partnership accounts, the Court, before passing a final decree, may pass a preliminary decree declaring the proportionate shares of the parties, fixing the day on which the partnership shall stand dissolved or be deemed to have been dissolved and directing such accounts to be taken, and other acts to be done, as it thinks fit. Section 2, sub-clause (2), of the Civil Procedure Code, defines decree as the formal expression of an adjudication which, so far as regards the Court expressing it, conclusively determines the rights of the parties with regard to all or any of the matters in controversy in the suit and may be either preliminary or final and the explanation states that a decree is preliminary when further proceedings have to be taken before the suit can be completely disposed of. It is final when such adjudication completely disposes of the suit. It may be partly preliminary and partly final. In order, therefore, for an order to be a preliminary decree the Court should dispose of finally some at least of the matters in controversy. In the present case there is nothing disposed of. All that the learned Judge states is, that the whole work is to be done by the Official Referee, no rights of the parties having been adjudicated upon. Nor is the order of the 8th of April a judgment within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent, as there is no adjudication on any matter. I need only refer to Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar (1), where the definition of judgment is fully discussed by a Full Bench of this Court. Sir Arnold White, C. J., observes as follows:—"The test seems to me to be not what is the form of the adjudication but what is its effect in the suit or proceeding in which it is made. If its effect, whatever its form may be, and whatever may be the nature of the application on which it is made, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding so far as the Court before which the suit or proceeding is pending is concerned, or if its effect, if it is not complied with, is to put an end to the suit or proceeding, I think the adjudication is a judgment within the meaning of the clause. An adjudication on an application which is nothing more than a step towards obtaining a final adjudication in the suit is not, in my opinion, a judgment within the meaning of the Letters Patent."

ABDUL WAMAB D. ROKIA BIBI.

As regards the powers of the Official Referee to go into the questions. I am of opinion that he has no power to decide questions as to the terms of partnership, its duration or the shares of the partners. So far as the Official Referee is concerned, there are no provisions in the Civil Procedure Code or in the Original Side Rules analogous to O. XXXVI of the Rules of the Supreme Court which deals with Referees and O. LV, which deals with the powers and duties of Masters, and, therefore, it is not necessary to consider the procedure in English Courts or the English decision based on those rules in arriving at a conclusion as to the powers of the Official Referee of this Court. There is no Statute constituting the office of the Official Referee, and his powers have, therefore, to be determined with reference to the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code and the Original Side Rules. So far as the Code is concerned, section 75 enacts that, subject to such conditions and limitations as may be prescribed, the Court may issue a Commission to examine any person to make a local investigation; to examine or adjust accounts; or to make a partition. O. XXVI refers to Commissions issued in pursuance of the powers conferred by section 75, and rules 11 and 12 refer to Commissions to examine or to adjust accounts. Rule 11 enacts that in any suit in which an examination or adjustment of accounts is necessary, the Court may issue a Commission to such person as it thinks fit directing him to make such examination or adjustment, and rule 12 enacts that the Court shall furnish the Commissioner with such part of the proceedings and such instructions as appear necessary and the instructions shall distinctly specify whether the Commissioner is merely to transmit the proceedings, which he may hold on the enquiry, or also to report his own opinion on the point referred for his examination. Clause (2) The proceedings and report (if any) of the Commissioner shall be evidence in the suit, but where the Court has reason to be dissatisfied with them, it may direct such further enquiry as it shall think fit. Rules 15 to 18 contain general provisions as to the expenses of the Commission, the powers of the Commissioner to examine parties, witnesses and documents and the appearance of the parties before the Commissioner. Prior to the appointment of the Official Referee in the year 1914 the practice of the Court was to appoint Commissioners ad hoc, whenever accounts had to be gone into in partnership, partition and administration actions. The practice was usually for a Vakil to be appointed who submitted his report, and the matter was disposed of by the Judge in Chambers in the Reference Court. This procedure having been found to be dilatory and inconvenient, it was thought desirable that there should be an officer of Court to do what was usually done by the Commissioner appointed and an Official Referee was appointed; but the rules do not confer on the Official Referee any higher powers than those conferred on the Commissioners. Order XXIII of the Original Side Rules

(1) 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. L. J. (1910) M. W. N. 697; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1. (F. B.)

ABDUL WAHAB S. ROKIA BIBI.

refers to the procedure in cases of reference to a Judge in Chambers and the provisions of that Order relate to cases where the Judge takes the accounts himself. O. XXIV relates to reference to Commissioner or arbitrator. O. XXIV-A refers to proceedings before the Official Referee and rule 1 provides that, subject to the rules hereinafter contained, O. XXIV of the Original Side relating to accounts and enquiries referred to a Commissioner shall, as far as practicable, apply to all proceedings before the Official Referee. O. XXIV-A while it prescribes the procedure to be followed by the Official Referee does not give him the powers which are conferred by the English Supreme Courts Rules on the Official Referee or Master. Rule 4 of O. XXIV-A has been referred to but it does not confer on the Referee all the powers of a Judge or constitute him a Judge of the Court. All that it states is that in matters within his competence he shall conduct the enquiry in the same manner as a Judge in Chambers hearing references. It seems to me that the Official Referee's powers, limited as they are, must be sought for in the Civil Procedure Code and the Original Side Rules and that, having regard to the provisions referred to by me above, the Official Referee is in partnership suits only a permanent Commissioner whose duty is to take accounts and make enquiries contemplated by the Code and the Rules. There has to be a sharp division between the function of a Judge disposing of a suit and a Commissioner who is to aid the Judge in taking accounts rendered necessary for the passing of a final decree. I think that the function of the Court in such cases is to determine the rights of the parties where the rights of the parties or the terms of the partnership are disputed and to decide in what manner and from what date accounts have to be taken. The function of the Official Referee is to take accounts having regard to the declarations of the rights of the parties made by the Judge in passing the preliminary decree and his powers to deal with the questions are not limited simply to matters of arithmetic but he has, for the purposes of carrying into effect the directions given by the Judge in the preliminary decree and for the purpose of arriving at conclusions as to the state of accounts between the parties, power to take evidence and deal with matters auxiliary thereto. He is not a Judge of the Court but only a Commissioner and I think that the adjudication by him of these questions which, under the Code and the Rules, form part of the functions of a Judge would be ultra vires. The Judge referring to the Official Referee questions which have to be tried by himself could not confer jurisdiction on the Official Referee any more than he can confer jurisdiction on a stranger by asking him to decide points in dispute in the case. Questions as to the substantive rights of the parties are solely within the province of a Judge and matters of detail, i. e., the working out of those rights either by taking out accounts or effecting a partition or selling properties are, under the rules, functions which the Judge may delegate to the Official Referee. While it is conceded by Mr. Ethiraja Mudaliar for the defendants that there is nothing in the Code or in the Rules which gives the Official Referee powers to dispose of questions in dispute as to the substantive rights of the parties his contention is that in the absence of any provisions in the Code or in the Rules, the English Rules of Practice should apply, but no authority is cited for the proposition that the Rules of Procedure of the English Courts form part of the substantive rules on the Original Side. It will be a novel and, in my opinion, a dangerous proposition to hold that the Rules of Practice in English Courts apply en bloc to the Original Side except in so far as our own rules modify them.

The question, however, remains as to how far I have power in these proceedings to treat the order of Coutts-Trotter, J., and the report of the Official Referee as mere nullities. It is contended by the Advocate-General for the plaintiff that, if Coutts-Trotter, J., had no jurisdiction to pass the order referring the whole suit to the Official Referee, no consent of parties, even if it was given at the time of the passing of the order, would affect the question, and that the proceedings before the Official Referee would be a nullity thereby leaving the whole matter in the same position as it was when the order was passed and reference is made by him to Ledgard v. Bull (2); Minakshi Naidu v. Subramanya (3); Rajlakshmi Dasi v. Katayane Dasee (4); Nusserwanjee Pestonjee v. Meer Mynooddeen Khan (5) and Raja Har Narain Singh v. Chaudhrain Bhagwant Kwar (6). There can be little doubt that, so far as the authorities go, want of jurisdiction in a Judge to try a suit renders the proceedings void and that no amount of consent could confer jurisdiction where no jurisdiction exists. The principle has thus been laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Ledgard v. Bull (2): "When the Judge has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject matter of a suit, the parties cannot, by their mutual consent, convert it into a proper judicial process, although they may constitute the Judge their arbiter, and be bound by his decision on the merits when these are submitted to him. But there are numerous authorities which establish that when, in a cause which the Judge is competent to try, the parties without objection join issue and go to trial upon the merits, the defendant cannot subsequently dispute his jurisdiction upon the grounds that there were irregularities in the initial procedure which, if objected to at the time, would have led to the dismissal of the suit." The authorities cited, however, refer to objection being taken either in appeal from the decision or in subsequent suits or proceedings. The cases cited by the Advocate-General do not touch the question as to how far in the same suit and in the same proceedings, it is open to the parties to get behind an order passed, however incorrect that order may be. No authority has been cited in favour of the contention of the Advocate-General that I ought to go behind the order of Coutts-Trotter, J., and the authorities I shall refer to are against the contention. In George Henry Hook v. Administrator-General of Bengal (7), their

ABDUL WAHAB V. ROKIA BEBI.

(2) 9 A. 191; 13 I. A. 134; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 741; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 561 (P. C.).

(3) 11 M. 26; 14 I. A. 160; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 34; 11 Ind. Jur. 393; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 18 (P. C.).

(4) 12 Ind. Cas. 464; 38 C. 639.

(5) 6 M. L. A. 134; 19 B. R. 50.

(6) 13 A. 300; 18 I. A. 53; 6 Sar. P. C. J. 14; 15 Ind. Jur. 283; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 189 (P. C.).

(7) 60 Ind. Cas. 631; 48 C. 499; 19 A. L. J. 366; 40 M. L. J. 423; 29 M. L. T. 336; (1921) M. W. N. 313; 33 C. L. J. 405; 3 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 17; 23 Bom. L. R. 648; 48 I. A. 147; 25 C. W. N. 915; 14 L. W. 221 (P. C.).

Lordships of the Privy Council held, that the principle of res judicata is applicable to all orders passed in the same suit between the same parties when the question arises in subsequent proceedings in the suit. The order of Coutts-Trotter, J., standing as it does unreversed or unmodified either by appeal or review, must, I think, be taken to bind the parties in subsequent proceedings in the suit, and that the only remedy of the plaintiff is to carry the order in appeal. I have already pointed out that in the present case no appeal lies at present, but under the Code an order passed which is not subject to appeal can be objected to after the passing of the final decree which under the Code can be appealed against. I think also, that a distinction has to be drawn between cases where the Court has no jurisdiction to try the suit and cases where the Court having jurisdiction passes an order which it is incompetent to pass. It cannot be disputed that in the present case Coutts-Trotter, J., had jurisdiction to try the suit though, in the view I take, he had no jurisdiction to refer the whole suit to the Official Referee for disposal. In Mungul Pershad Dickit v. Grija Kant Lahiri (8) it was held by their Lordships of the Privy Council that where a Court having jurisdiction to try an issue has given an erroneous decision, such decision must, if unreversed, be treated as valid. I may also refer to Sukhnath Rai v. Nehal Chand (9). It has been held that where a decree is passed by a Court not having jurisdiction and the decree is not appealed against objection cannot be taken in execution proceedings which forms a continuation of the suit. In Gomatham Alamelu v. Komandur Krishnamacharlu (10) a suit on a mortgage was instituted in a District Munsif's Court, which was competent to try a suit of its nature and value, but the mortgaged lands were situate outside the jurisdiction of the District Munsif, who would, therefore, have had no jurisdiction, if objection was taken, to pass a mortgage-decree affecting

(8) 8 C. 51; 11 C. L. R. 113; 8 I. A. 123; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 249; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 32 (P. C.).

(9) 59 Ind. Cas. 801; 42 A. 661; 18 A. L. J. 644; 2 U. P. L. R. (A.) 240.

(10) 27 M. 118.

KANSHI RAM V. SHARAF DIN.

the lands. Such a decree was passed and when the decree-holder applied for an order absolute and for execution of the decree objection was taken that the Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the suit and that the decree passed by it could neither be made absolute or be executed. It was held that the decree was not a nullity and that the judgment-debtor should not be allowed to object to the validity of the decree in the course of its execution. In Tuljaram Raw v. Gopala Aiyar (11) it was held that erroneous orders should be vacated by proper proceedings and should not be made the subject of collateral attack by the parties. In Sashikanta Acharyya v. Raja Sarat Chandra Rai Chaudhuri (12) it was held that the validity of an order at one stage of a litigation, unless forthwith challenged by appropriate proceedings in a Superior Tribunal, must be regarded as conclusive between the parties and cannot be questioned or collaterally attacked at a later stage, and reference was made to Krishana Behari Roy v. Bunwari Lal Roy (13), Mungul Pershad Dikhit v. Gria Kant Lahiri (8), Ram Kirpal v. Rup Kuari (14), Beni Ram v. Nanhu Mal (15), George Henry Hook v. Administrator-General of Bengal (7) and Rajeshwara Sethupati Avergal [Raja of Ramnad] v. Velusami Tavar (16). I may also refer to Ex parte, Manohar Bhivray (17) and Sadasiva Pillai v. Ramalinga Pillai (18).

It is argued by the Advocate-General that a distinction should be drawn between processual irregularities and fundamental defects of jurisdiction, but it seems to me that the decisions, I have referred to above do not support the view that an order

(11) 40 Ind. Cas. 611; (1917) M. W. N. 234; 21 M. L. T. 229; 32 M. L. J. 434.

(12) 70 Ind. Cas. 6134 C. L. J. 415.

(13) 2 I. A. 283; 1 C. 144; 25 W. R. 1; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 559; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 213; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 93 (P. C.).

(14) 6 A. 269; 11 I. A. 37; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 489; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 718; (P. C.).

(15) 7 A. 102; 11 I. A. 181; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 564; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 138 (P. C.).

(16) 59 Ind. Cas. 880; 25 C. W. N. 581; 19 A. L. J. 168; 40 M. L. J. 197; 13 L. W. 290; (1921) M. W. N. 51; 33 C. L. J. 218; 23 Bom. L. R. 701 (P. C.).

(17) 2 B. H. C. R. 374.

(18) 15 B. L. R. 383; 24 W. R. 193.

without jurisdiction passed in a suit which the Court had jurisdiction to entertain and try can be treated as a nullity by the same Court in subsequent proceedings.

In the view I take of the case, I think that, so far as the proceedings on the Original Side are concerned, I must treat the order passed by Coutts-Trotter, J., as valid. The reference will proceed on that footing. The objections to the Official Referee's report will be considered on the merits.

V. N. V. & N. H.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 241 OF 1921.

July 21, 1922.

Present:—Sir Shadi Lal, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Abdul Qadir.

KANSHI RAM AND ANOTHER—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

VERSUS

SHARAF DIN AND ANOTHER—
PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), ss. 53, 56—Temporary Injunction—Injunction, whether limited to subordinate Courts—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151, O. XXXIX, rr. 1, 2—Temporary Injunction, grant of—Inherent jurisdiction.

Section 56 of the Specific Relief Act, which occurs in the Chapter relating to perpetual injunctions, has no application to temporary injunctions which are by the express words of section 53 left to be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure.

A Court can issue a temporary injunction staying proceedings in a Court not subordinate to it.

The Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive and the Courts have inherent jurisdiction to act ex debito justitiæ in order to do that real and substantial justice for the administration of which alone they exist.

Manohar Lal-Mahabir Pershad v. Jai Navain-Babu Lal, 55 Ind. Cas. 403; 2 L. L. J. 283, relied on.

A Court can issue a temporary injunction staying execution of a decree in a proper case even though no ground, such as is mentioned in O XXXIX, r. 1 or r. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, has been alleged or proved.

LAKHMI DAS V. MEHR CHAND.

Letters Patent Appeal from a decree of Mr. Justice Broadway, in Miscellaneous Appeal No. 1214 of 1921, dated the 10th November 1921 and published as 66 Ind. Cas. 161.

Lala Hukam Chand, for the Appellants.

Mr. Des Raj Sawhney, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The circumstances which have given rise to this appeal are briefly as follows:—

On the 14th August 1919 the appellants, Kanshi Ram-Ram Das, obtained a decree for possession of a house by the ejectment of one Nur Din, and in execution of that decree the respondent, Sharaf Din, raised objections which were rejected by the Executing Court. The objector has now instituted a suit for a declaration that he is not liable to be evicted from the house and has also obtained an injunction prohibiting the execution of the decree pending the decision of the suit. The order of the Subordinate Judge granting the injunction has been upheld by Mr. Justice Broadway, and the main question in this appeal under clause 10 of the Letters Patent is whether the Subordinate Judge was authorised by law to grant the temporary injunction.

The learned Vakil for the appellants contends that as the Munsif who was executing the decree was not subordinate to the Subordinate Judge, the latter could not issue an injunction staying proceedings in the Munsif's Court. This contention is based upon clause (b) of section 56 of the Specific Relief Act, but it is clear that section 56 which occurs in the Chapter relating to perpetual injunctions, has no application to temporary injunctions which are, by the express words of section 53, left to be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure. If any authority on the subject were needed, we would refer to Amir Dulhyn v. Administrator-General of Bengal (1).

The only other question requiring determination is whether the Subordinate Judge could issue a temporary injunction staying the execution of a decree, when no ground, such as is mentioned in O. XXXIX, r. 1 or r. 2, had been alleged or proved. Now there can be no doubt that this case is not covered by the provisions of O. XXXIX, but it has been held in a Division Bench judgment of this Court reported as Manohar Lal-Mahabir Pershad v. Jal Narain-Babu Lal (2) (Letters Patent Appeal No. 17 of 1920) that the Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive, and that the Court has inherent jurisdiction to act ex debito justitiae in order to do that real and substantial justice for the administration of which alone it exists. The same view has been taken by the Punjab Chief Court in Manohar Lal-Mahabir Pershad v. Jal Narain-Babu Lal (2).

We are not, therefore, prepared to hold that the Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction to grant the temporary injunction. On the merits, no ground for our interference with the judgment of the learned Judge has been established. The appeal is therefore, dismissed with costs.

N. H.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) 55 Ind. Cas. 403; 2 L. L. J. 283.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 100 OF 1921.

June 21, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Scott-Smith.

LAKHMI DAS AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS.

versus

MEHR CHAND AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5—Appellant having good case on merits—Admission of appeal after limitation.

The fact that an appellant has a good case on the merits, is not a good ground for the exercise of the Court's discretion under section 5 of the Limitation Act for the admission of the appeal after expiry of limitation.

Appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Jullundur, dated the 19th August 1920.

Diwan Mehr Chand, for the Appellants.
Mr. Fakir Chand, for the Respondents.

(1) 23 C. 351; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 235.

MUHAMMAD UMAR v. FAYAZ UD-DIN.

JUDGMENT.—A preliminary objection is raised by Counsel for the respondents that this appeal is barred by time. The order appealed from is dated 19th August 1920 and the appeal was filed in this Court on the 20th November 1920, but was returned on the 30th November 1920 by the office because a copy of the First Court's judgment had not been filed with the memorandum of appeal. It was re-filed along with a copy of the First Court's judgment on the 10th December 1920. At that time the appeal was admittedly time-barred. Molu Mal v. Sri Ram (1) is an authority in support of the contention that the memorandum of appeal in second appeal to the High Court must be accompanied by a copy of the First Court's judgment and if the latter is not presented till after the period of limitation has expired, the appeal should ordinarily be rejected as barred by time. The same view was taken in Civil Appeal No. 2583 of 1920 which was reported as Dyala v. Hiru (2). Dewan Mehr Chand on behalf of the appellant admits that the appeal is barred by time but urges that it be admitted to hearing under section 5 of the Limitation Act. The only thing that he could urge is that on the merits his client has got a good case. This may or may not be so, but it does not appear to me to be a good ground for the exercise of this Court's discretion under section 5. A valuable right has accrued to the defendants by reason of the appeal having become barred by time and, therefore, I think that the appeal should not be admitted to hearing unless sufficient cause is shown. None has been shown and I, therefore, dismiss the appeal but I leave the parties to bear their own costs in this Court.

W. C. A.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 63 Ind. Cas. 331 2 L. 227; 3 U. P. L. R. (L.) 92.

(2) 67 Ind. Cas. 670; 3 L. L. J. 255.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 234 OF 1918.

January 20, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Broadway and Mr. Justice Zafar Ali.

MUHAMMAD UMAR AND ANOTHER—
PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

FAYAZ-UD-DIN AND OTHERS—DEFEND-ANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 16 (secondly)—“Structure”, meaning of.

The owner of a “building or other structure” on a site, within the meaning of section 16 (secondly) of the Punjab Pre-emption Act, is like a co-owner in the property sold and, therefore, his right of pre-emption is inferior only to a co-sharer therein.

The word “building” or “structure” is not defined in the Punjab Pre-emption Act, but, for the purposes of section 16 (secondly) of the Act, the word structure can be applied to a wall or a shed or any other unsubstantial erection, for which the word “building” cannot be used. Therefore, not only the owner of a building on a site, but also of an erection of a less substantial kind has a right of pre-emption in respect of it.

Second appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Delhi, dated the 21st August 1917, affirming that of the Subordinate Judge, Second Class at Delhi, dated the 29th May 1917.

Lals Durga Das and Sardha Ram, for the Appellants.

Lals Jagan Nath and Hargopal, for Bakhshi Tek Chand, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The only question for us to decide in this second appeal, which arises out of a pre-emption suit, is, whether the Courts below have rightly interpreted clause “secondly” of section 16 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913) in holding that the sheds, etc., existing on the site pre-empted, which had been erected by the defendant vendee before the sale when he held the land on a lease, were structures within the purview of the said clause “secondly.”

The site in question is situated on the margin of a public road in Delhi and is about 210 square yards in area. The defendant originally obtained from the owner a lease of it for three years and 11 months from the 31st January 1913 to the end of December 1916 to start a workshop there, and for that purpose he constructed therein three extensive sheds supported on wooden poles with roofs of iron sheets. As the level of the site was much higher than that of the road he constructed a stone wall along side the road up to the height of its level. Further, he constructed a latrine and a katcha wall with a door in it to serve as an entrance. The learned District Judge inspected the place and says in his judgment:—"I have inspected these erections and I have not the least hesitation in concurring with the lower Court and holding that they were erected before the sale and that they amount to "other structures" within the meaning of section 16, "secondly," Pre-emption Act.* * * The structures, although not of a very massive nature are by no means of a temporary kind. The place is being used as a kar-khana and the wooden pillars are well driven into the earth, and the roofing is sufficient to protect workers from the inclemencies of the weather." These structures were valued by an Overseer at Rs. 594-10-0.

GANGARAM BALKRISHN V. VASUDEO DATTATRAYA.

It was argued on behalf of the plaintiff-appellant that the clause "secondly," did not contemplate temporary structures of this kind; that the word "structure" signified a building or edifice of large dimensions; that the defendant was entitled to only the materials of the structures because he had to remove the same on the expiration of the term of his lease and could not be said to be the owner of a structure or building; that the building or structure according to clause "secondly" shall cover the whole of the site while the structures in the present case do not do so, and that the place in the order of priority given to this class of pre-emptors indicates that his rights should be of a very superior nature. We are of opinion that these contentions are quite untenable. What the law contemplates is, that the owner of the 'building or other structures' on a site is like a co-owner in the property sold, and, therefore, his right of pre-emption is inferior only to a co-sharer therein. The word "building" or "structure" is not defined in the Act but it may be stated that every building is a structure though every structure is not a building and the word "structure" can be applied to a wall or a shed or any other unsubstantial erection for which the word 'building' cannot be used. Therefore, not only the owner of a building on a site but also of an erection of less substantial kind, has a right of pre-emption in respect of it. It is true that on the expiration of the lease the defendant lessee was liable to remove the structures, but it does not follow from this that at the time of the sale he was not the owner thereof. Further, the structures practically cover the whole of the site leaving a space in the centre to be used as a courtyard. Therefore, it cannot be said that they do not cover the whole of the site.

We are, therefore, of opinion, that the clause "secondly" was rightly interpreted by the Courts below and we dismiss the appeal with costs.

S. K.

Appeal dismissed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL, APPEAL, NO. 794 OF 1917.

November 10, 1922.

Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.
GANGARAM BALKRISHN SAWANT—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

VASUDEO DATTATRAYA KIRLOSKAR AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 11
—Partition suit—Res judicata between co-defendants.

Where an adjudication between the co-defendants is necessary to give the appropriate relief to plaintiff, the adjudication will be res judicata between the defendants as well as between the plaintiff and defendants. But for this effect to arise, there must be conflict of interest between the defendants, and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants inter se. Without necessity, a judgment will not be res judicata amongst defendants, nor will it be res judicata amongst them by mere inference from the fact that they have been collectively defeated in resisting a claim to a share made against them as a group. [p. 914, col. 1.]

Ramchandra Narayan v. Narayan Mahadev, 11 B. 216; 11 Ind. Jur. 301; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 142, followed.

GANGARAM BALKRISNA V. VASUDEO DATTATRAYA.

Ramchandra v. Abaji, (1886) P. J. 15, explained.

In a partition suit all the parties who are interested in the property to be partitioned occupy much the same position whether they are plaintiffs or defendants and a party claiming or resisting partition, whether he is plaintiff or defendant, is bound by the decision of the Court. [p. 914, col. 2.]

Hari Annaji v. Vasudev Janardhan, 23 Ind. Cas. 944; 38 B. 438; 16 Bom. L. R. 283; referred to.

Nalini Kanta v. Sarnamoyi Debye, 24 Ind. Cas. 294; 17 Bom. L. R. 1; 27 M. L. J. 176; 1 L. W. 607; 16 M. L. T. 544; (1914) M. W. N. 948; 21 C. L. J. 23; 19 C. W. N. 531 (P. C.), noticed.

Second appeal from the decision of the Assistant Judge, Ratnagiri, in Appeal No. 484 of 1912, confirming the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge at Malvan, in Civil Suit No. 271 of 1909.

M. SRS. G. N. Thakor with S. Y. Abhyankar, for the Appellant.

M. SRS. S. R. Bakhale and P. B. Shingne, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Macleod, C. J.—The plaintiff filed this suit for partition of property alleged to be joint family property, claiming one-tenth share therein. The property, originally no doubt, was the joint family property of the Kirloskars. The pedigree of the family appears at page 23 of the print. It shows that several generations back the family had been split up into two branches, and undoubtedly, for years, various members of each branch have been alienating portions of the family property as if they were separately owned. Apparently, the allegation of the defendants who contest the plaintiff's suit is that there was a partition of the family property so far back as 1823. The evidence shows that the whole of the family property has got into the hands of strangers. The plaintiff seeks to set aside the alienations made by various members of the family, and to get back one-tenth of what was originally the family property on the ground that the property is still joint, and that he is entitled, in spite of those alienations, to his proper share therein. The first issue, the main issue in the suit, was whether the plaintiff's property was the joint property of the parties, Kirloskars. That issue was found in the negative. Both the lower Courts have come to the conclusion that, very many years ago, there had been a partition certainly between the two brothers, and the plaintiff's branch had nothing to do with the other branch. The plaintiff, however, relies upon the principle of res judicata, as estopping the defendants from contesting his claim to partition.

The plaintiff's contention has been disallowed in both the lower Courts, and has been fully argued by the appellant's Counsel in this Court. The plaintiff relies upon the proceedings in Suit No. 345 of 1890. That was a suit filed by Sakharam, one of the five sharers of Rama's branch in the pedigree, at page 23. The plaint is drawn in a very ambiguous manner. It stated that "certain lands and the whole village of Kirloo, formed the undivided joint ancestral property of the plaintiff and defendants Nos. 1—4 and 10—21, the share of the plaintiff and defendants Nos. 1—4 being half and that of defendants Nos. 2—21 half; that these latter held separate property as their share from a long time, the plaintiff's share in his own branch is one-fifth and not the whole property one-tenth; that if defendants Nos. 10—21 confirm the old private partition the plaintiff should be awarded one-fifth of such property as is held by his own branch or otherwise one tenth in the entire property." Owing to various alienations which had already been then made, the only contesting defendant in that suit was defendant No. 5 who set up a mortgage by other members of Sakharam's branch. Sakharam contended that that mortgage was not binding on his share. That contention prevailed. It is quite true that the decree seemed to have directed that the plaintiff was entitled to one-tenth of the whole property, but a direction in the decree is given that if the plaintiff's share in the Khasgi lands held by his own branch consisting of himself and his own brothers can be made up from other lands held by that branch of similar quality then, in that case, the lands mortgaged to defendant No. 5 should in partition be allotted to the shares of defendants Nos. 1—4 and continued in the possession of defendant No. 5.

There is no evidence to show how that decree was carried out or whether in execution the plaintiff obtained any properties that were in the possession of members of the other branch or their alienees.

GANGARAM PALERISNA V. VASUDEO DATTATRAYA.

But the question now before us is, whether the other persons who were entitled to nine-tenths of the whole property were barred by the decision in that suit from contending thereafter that the nine-tenths which remained in their hands was not joint family property, so that they were bound by the finding in that suit to partition nine-tenths on a partition being asked for by any member of the other branch. Apart from that, it is clear to my mind that there is no direct finding that the whole of the property which was originally joint was still joint at the time of this decree.

The principle to be followed in deciding the question whether a matter is res judicata as between co-defendants in a suit was laid down in Ramchandra Narayan v. Narayan Mahadev (1). The head-note says:

"Where an adjudication between the defendants is necessary to give the appropriate relief to the plaintiff, the adjudication will be res judicata between the defendants as well as between the plaintiff and defendants. But for this effect to arise, there must be a conflict of interests between the defendants and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants inter se. Without necessity, a judgment will not be res judicata amongst defendants, nor will it be res judicata amongst them by mere inference from the fact that they have been collectively defeated in resisting a claim to a share made against them as a group."

Applying that dictum to the facts of this case, even assuming that all the defendants in the suit of 1890 collectively resisted the claim to a share made against them as a group by the plaintiff, and were defeated, unless it could be shown that there was a necessity that the question whether the nine-tenths was joint family property in their hands should be decided in order to give relief to the plaintiff, then no question of res judicata could arise in a later suit between those parties. It is obvious from the judgment in the suit of 1890 that the present question was never at issue. There was no necessity to decide whether as between¹¹ the persons who might be entitled to the remaining nine-tenths of the family property that property in 1890 was joint or separate. The decision in Ramchandra v. Abaji (2) is not in conflict with the decision in Ramchandra Narayan v. Narayan Mahadev (1) as that decision was referred to by Mr. Justice West and distinguished. In the former case their Lordships referred to certain Calcutta cases in which it was laid down that,—

"The material point for deciding whether a matter had become res judicata under section 13 is whether it was directly and substantially in issue between the same parties and was finally decided. If the issue is clearly raised between the several parties to the suit and adjudicated, it matters not that the parties were marshalled in the one case differently from the other."

That is an entirely different question from the one which came before this Court in Ramchandra Narayan v. Narayan Mahadev (1), where the test was whether there was the necessity to decide the point, whether as a matter of fact it was ever raised between co-defendants, and whether it was decided. That decision has been consistently followed by this Court. I need only refer to the decision of Hari Annaji v. Vasudev Janardhan (3).

No doubt, in a partition suit all the parties who are interested in the property to be partitioned occupy much the same position whether they are plaintiffs or defendants, and a party claiming or resisting partition, whether he is plaintiff or defendant, is bound by the decision of the Court. But in this case none of the parties were claiming or resisting partition except the plaintiff, and, therefore, any questions regarding partition which might thereafter arise between the defendants in that suit remained open to be decided. Nor is the decision in Nalini Kanta v. Sarnamoyi Debya (4) of any assistance to the plaintiff. In that case there had been a succession of suits for partition

(2) (1886) P. J. 15.

(3) 23 Ind. Cas. 944; 38 B. 438; 16 Bom. L. R. 283.

(4) 24 Ind. 294; 17 Bom. L. R. 1; 27 M. L. J. 76; 1 L. W. 607; 16 M. L. T. 544; (1914) M. W. N. 948; 21 C. L. J. 23; 19 C. W. N. 531 (F. C.).

(1) 11 B. 215; 11 Ind. Jur. 301; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1, 2.

MAHMUD SHAH v. TALAB HUSSAIN SHAH.

by various members of the family until there was only one left who had not filed a suit for partition, with the result that all the members who had filed suits had got their shares, and the balance of the property remaining in the hands of the last member of the family represented his share. He claimed that as a result of the various partitions what was left to him was less than his legitimate share in the family property. He sought to re-open the various partitions which had taken place in consequence of the suits brought by the other members of the family, and it was held that the various partitions made were binding upon him. That does not in any way touch the question now before us whether between the defendants in the suit of 1890, the question whether the property was joint or separate is res judicata. What the plaintiff seeks to do in this suit is to recover a share in the whole property after his own interest in his own branch had been alienated and after the other members of the other branch had alienated their properties. It is perfectly clear that he is not entitled to upset the various dealings with the family property which had taken place over a very lengthy period. The original plaintiff seems to have alienated his interest, whatever it might be worth, in this property pending the first appeal, and the present appellant is really a purchaser of litigation. In my opinion the appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Crump, J.—I agree.

M. D. J.

Appeal dismissed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS SECOND CIVIL APPEAL

NO. 1609 OF 1922.

January 29, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Martinez.

MAHMUD SHAH AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

TALAB HUSSAIN SHAH AND ANOTHER—

PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151.

O. XLI, r. 23, O. XLIII, r. 1 (4)—Remand for re-decision after amendment of plaint—Appeal, whether lies.

Order XLI, r. 23 of the Civil Procedure Code applies only when the case has been decided by the First Court on a preliminary point.

An Appellate Court has power to make an order of remand under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code, when O. XLI, r. 23 of the Code does not apply.

Abdul Karim Abu Ahmed Khan Ghaznavi v. Allahabad Bank, Limited, 41 Ind. Cas. 598; 44 C. 929; 26 C. L. J. 49; 21 C. W. N. 877, relied on.

An order of remand made under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code is not appealable.

An Appellate Court holding that on the plaint as it stood any decree which might be passed in favour of the plaintiff would be incapable of execution owing to vagueness, remanded the case to the Trial Court for a fresh decision after amendment of the plaint:

Held, that the order of remand was not one under O. XLI, r. 23 of the Civil Procedure Code, not being on a preliminary point, and was not, therefore, appealable.

Miscellaneous second appeal from the order of the District Judge, Multan, dated the 6th April 1922, reversing that of the Subordinate Judge, Multan, dated the 10th January 1922.

Lala Gobind Ram Khanna, for Lala Fakir Chand, for the Appellants.

Mr. M. Sleem, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT—The plaintiffs were given a decree by the First Court for possession of three out of four khasra numbers which they claimed. Both parties appealed to the District Judge, who was of opinion that it would be difficult to fix the actual boundaries of the land in suit by reference to the field numbers given in the plaint to which no plan was attached and that any decree that might be passed in favour of the plaintiffs would be practically incapable of execution owing to vagueness. He held, therefore, that there was no proper plaint before the Court and, setting aside the decree, he remanded the case for a fresh decision to be given after the plaint had been properly amended and a proper plan of the property placed on the file. From that order the defendants have appealed to this Court.

A preliminary objection is taken on behalf of the respondents that no appeal lies as the order of the lower Appellate Court is one passed under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code and not under O. XLI, r. 23. This objection must prevail. O. XLI, r. 23 applies only where the case has been decided by the First Court on a preliminary point, whereas it is clear that the First Court's decision in the present case has been given on the merits and not on a preliminary point. There is no doubt that an Appellate Court has power to make an order of remand under section 151 where O. XLI, r. 23 does not apply [see Abdul Karim Abu Ahmed Khan Ghaznavi v. Allahabad Bank, Limited (1)] and it must be held that the order passed by the lower Appellate Court in the present case was one under that section and is not appealable.

FIRM RUP CHAND-JIVAN SINGH V. FIRM POHO MAL-NATHU MAL.

Counsel for the appellants urges that the appeal should be treated as a revision, but it does not appear to me that there is a sufficient reason for so treating it.

The appeal is dismissed, but as there would have been a good deal to say in the appellant's favour if the appeal had been heard on its merits, I direct that the parties shall bear their own costs in this Court.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 41 Ind. Cas. 598; 44 C. 929; 26 C. L. J. 49; 21 C. W. N. 877.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL, NO. 3294 OF 1917.

January 9, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Scott-Smith and Mr. Justice Moti Sagar.

THE FIRM RUP CHAND-JIVAN SINGH,
THROUGH JAWAND SINGH, AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

THE FIRM ICHO MAL-NATHU MAL, THROUGH NATHU MAL—PLAINTIFFS—AND ISHAR DAS AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account, what is.

An open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or enclosed by settlement or otherwise, consisting of a series of transactions. [p. 917, col. 2.]

A current account is an open or running account between two or more parties, or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is, or can be, ascertained. [p. 917, col. 2.]

A mutual account is an account which shows reciprocity of dealings between the parties and not an account having items on one side only though made up of debits and credits. [p. 917, col. 2; p. 918, col. 1.]

Ram Pershad v. Harbans Singh, 6 C. L. J. 158, relied on.

In order that an account might be mutual, there must be transactions on each side, creating independent obligations on the other, and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. [p. 918, col. 1.]

Hirada v. Gadigi, 6 M. H. C. R. 142, relied on.

A mutual account is made up of matters of set-off, or, in other words, an account between parties who have a mutual and alternate course of dealings under an implied agreement that one account may and shall be set off against the other pro tanto. [p. 918, col. 1.]

The plaintiff firm was employed by the defendant firm to buy grain and sell it at a profit on behalf of the latter. The plaintiff firm was to supply funds for making these purchases, the defendant firm making a few advances in the beginning by way of margin money. The plaintiff firm was entitled to charge commission on the sales and purchases made on the defendant firm's behalf. In a suit by the plaintiff firm to recover a certain amount as balance due from the defendant firm on the transactions it was found that, except in the beginning, when the defendant firm made some advances by way of margin money, the balance of the account had never been in favour of the defendant.

Held, that it could not be said that the account between the parties was a mutual account within the meaning of Art. 85 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, and the suit, therefore, was not governed by that Article. [p. 918, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge, Jhelum, dated the 30th August 1917, modifying that of the Senior Subordinate Judge, Gujrat, dated the 12th March 1917.

Mr. Nanak Chand, for the Appellants.

Dr. Nand Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—These are two appeals against a decision of the District Judge of Jhelum, dated the 30th August 1917, and have arisen out of an action for the recovery of Rs. 3,474-5-6, principal and interest, brought by the plaintiffs under the following circumstances:—

The plaintiffs, who are a firm of commission agents carrying on business at Dinga, in the Gujrat District, were employed by the defendants' firm of Rup Chand-Jivan Singh to buy grain at Dinga and to sell it at a profit by exporting it to Karachi and other places. The plaintiffs were to supply funds required for making these purchases, the defendants only making a few advances in the beginning by way of margin money, and were to charge commission on the sales and purchases made by them on the defendants' behalf. The defendants were also liable to pay interest on the advances made by the plaintiffs for making these purchases for the defendants. It appears that the real purchasers of the goods were the second set of defendants Messrs. Sham Das, Diwan Chand and Ganda Mal of Mithalak, in the Jhelum Canal Colony, and that the first set of defendants were merely acting as their guarantee brokers. The plaintiffs had, however, nothing to do with the Mithalak firm and their dealings with the first set of defendants were as between principal and principal. The plaintiffs allege that from the 11th July 1910 to 14th July 1911 they made purchases to the extent of Rs. 58,998-9-6 and that they credited the defendants with a sum of Rs. 57,435-4-6.

FIRM RUP CHAND-JIVAN SINGH V. FIRM POHO MAL-NATHU MAL.

On the 4th June 1915, they brought the present suit for the recovery of Rs. 1,563-5-0, principal, being the balance due on these accounts, with Rs. 1,796, interest, plus a further sum of Rs. 115-0-6 due on account of miscellaneous charges alleged to have been incurred by them over these transactions. The suit, which was at first instituted against the firm of Rup Chand-Jivan Singh alone, was resisted by the defendants on a variety of grounds, but the main grounds of their defence were, (1) that the suit was barred by limitation under Art. 85 of the Indian Limitation Act, and (2) that their guarantee did not extend to the goods covered by the following three invoices on which, according to the accounts filed by the plaintiffs, an approximate sum of Rs. 1,200 remained due:—

(1) Har 1967:—Rs. 302.

(2) Asauj 1967 —Rs. 4,462.

(3) Katak 1967 —Rs. 2,409.

The defendants admitted their liability for the payment of Rs. 305-2-3 only, and denied that any interest was claimable by the plaintiffs. On these pleadings the Mithalak firm of Sham Das-Diwan Chand was also impleaded as a defendant in the suit. The Subordinate Judge found that the suit could not be regarded as one for the recovery of balance due upon a mutual, open and current account where there have been reciprocal demands between the parties and that it was within limitation. He further found that the goods covered by the three invoices in question had been ordered by the second set of defendants without the knowledge of their guarantee-brokers, and that, consequently, no liability could attach to the latter in respect of those goods. He accordingly decreed the plaintiffs' suit to the extent of Rs. 305, principal, and Rs. 121, interest, against both sets of defendants, and passed a decree for Rs. 1,367, principal, and Rs. 518, interest, (total Rs. 1,885) against the second set of defendants alone.

On appeal the learned District Judge agreed with the Subordinate Judge in holding that the suit was within limitation, but differed from his findings on the question of the liability of the first set of defendants as to the three invoices in dispute, and also on the question of their liability to pay interest. The result of his findings was, that the liability of the first set of defendants as to the principal amount claimed was enhanced by a further sum of Rs. 1,200, but the plaintiffs' claim as to interest was disallowed. The decree against the second set of defendants was, however, allowed to remain in tact.

Against this decision two appeals have been preferred to this Court, one by the plaintiffs and the second by the first set of defendants, namely, Messrs. Rup Chand-Jivan Singh. The first contention raised on behalf of the defendant-appellants is that the suit is barred by limitation, and that the learned District Judge was wrong in holding that Art. 85 did not apply. In our opinion on this contention has no force, and must be overruled. It is well settled that an open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted or unclosed, by settlement or otherwise consisting of a series of transactions. A current account has been held to be an open or running account between two or more parties, or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is, or can be, ascertained. Mutual accounts are accounts which show reciprocity of dealings between the parties and do not embrace those having items on one side only though made up of debits and credits—Ram Pershad v. Harbans Singh (1). In the case of Hirada v. Gadigi (2) it was observed by Mr. Justice Holleway that, in order that accounts might be mutual, there must be transactions on each side, creating independent obligations on the other, and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations. In Hajee Syud Mahomed v. Ashrufoonnissa (3) Mr. Justice Pontifex held that, if the balance was sometimes in favour of the defendant, but generally in favour of the plaintiff, the banker, the account between them would hardly be a mutual one. This principle is very clearly explained in Wood on Limitations, section 278, where it is pointed out that mutual accounts are made up of matters of set-off, or, in other words, are accounts between parties who have a mutual and alternate course of dealings under an implied agreement that one account may and shall be set off against the other pro tanto. In the present case it is impossible to say that there were such dealings between the parties in the course of business when sometimes the balance was in favour of one party and sometimes of the other. With the exception of the first few months after the commencement of the accounts when the defendants made a few deposits with the plaintiffs, there never was an occasion when the balance was in favour of the defendants. In these circumstances, it is clear that the account was not an open, current and mutual account within the meaning of Art. 85 of the Indian Limitation Act and that the suit was within time.

FIRM RUP CHAND-JIVAN SINGH V. FIRM POHO MAL-NATHU MAL.

Next, it is argued that the goods covered by the three consignments of Har, Asauj and Katak, 1967, of the aggregate value of Rs. 7,174 were ordered by the Mithalak firm of Sham Das-Diwan Chand independently of these defendants, and that as the latter never received any Railway Receipts relating to these consignments they are not responsible. In our opinion, there is force in this contention, and it must prevail. The learned District Judge has not given a clear and definite finding on the question of the defendants' liability on these consignments, and we are not impressed with the arguments of Dr. Nand Lal, that the question being one of fact cannot be agitated in second appeal. The learned District Judge is of opinion that, though the plaintiffs have failed to prove that the Railway Receipts relating to these consignments passed through the hands of the first set of defendants Rup Chand-Jivan Singh, yet as the guarantee was a continuous one and as the defendants did not make any attempt to withdraw their guarantee they must be deemed to have ratified these transactions. We do not think that such an inference is legally possible under the circumstances of this case. There is no evidence, express or implied, that the defendants ever ratified these transactions, and the letters relied on by the plaintiffs' Counsel do not bear any such interpretation. The transactions were never brought on to the books of the guarantors, and there is no evidence that they guaranteed the transactions of the Mithalak firm to an unlimited extent. In the absence of any evidence that the defendants either had previous knowledge of the transactions or that they accepted their liability as to these transactions in any other way, we must hold that they are not responsible.

As to interest we do not see any reason why it should not be allowed on the principal sum decreed in favour of the plaintiffs. The sum of Rs. 305 found to be due from the defendants has been outstanding for a long time, and must be paid back with interest at a reasonable rate.

The result is that we accept both the appeals and in modification of the order of the Court below decree the claim of the plaintiffs to the extent of Rs. 305 only with interest at Rs. 6 per cent. per annum from the 10th July 1910, the date on which the accounts were opened, till the date of realization. The decree against the second set of defendants passed by the Court of first instance will stand. As both sides have succeeded in part we think it equitable

(1) 6 C. L. J. 158.

(2) 6 M. H. C. R. 142.

(3) 5 C. 759; 6 C. L. R. 112; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1091.

CHUHAR MAL V. BIRA RAM.

to order that they should bear their own costs throughout and we order accordingly.
Z. K. Appeals accepted.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1667 OF 1922.
January 30, 1923.

Present :—Mr. Justice Abdul Raoof.

CHUHAR MAL—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus

BIRA RAM AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS, PAIRA RAM, MINOR, THROUGH Musarnmat SOBAGRI, HIS MOTHER,
—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENTS.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 12—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLII, r. 2—Appeal, second—Time spent in obtaining copy of Trial Court's judgment, whether can be excluded.

Under section 12 of the Limitation Act only the time requisite for obtaining copies of the judgment and decree appealed against can be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for the appeal. In the case of a second appeal the appellant is not entitled to the exclusion of the time spent in obtaining a copy of the Trial Court's judgment although under r. 2, which has been added by the Lahore High Court to O. XLII of the Civil Procedure Code, a copy of the Trial Court's judgment must be filed along with the memorandum of appeal.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Multan, dated the 14th March 1922, reversing that of the Munsif, First Class, Mailsi, District Multan, dated the 26th October 1921.

Mr. Anant Ram, for the Appellant.

Lala Har Gopal, for Lala Dharam Chand, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—A preliminary objection is taken to the hearing of this appeal on the ground that the appeal was filed beyond time and is, therefore, time-barred. The following facts will disclose the nature of the objection raised :—

The judgment appealed against is dated the 14th March 1922. An application for copy of the judgment and decree was made on the 19th May 1922. Copies of the judgment and the decree were delivered on the 20th of May 1922. According to this calculation, the appellant was entitled to 90 plus 2 days and the appeal ought to have been filed on the 14th June 1922 at the latest. It was, however, filed on the 15th June 1922, i.e., one day beyond time. Mr. Anant Ram, the learned Counsel for the appellant, contends that his client was entitled to an exclusion of the time occupied in obtaining the copy of the judgment of the Trial Court as well. The application for obtaining copy of the judgment of the First Court was made on the 25th May 1922 and it was delivered on the 12th June 1922. The time requisite for obtaining copy of the judgment of the First Court was 18 days. If these days be allowed to the appellant the appeal is within time. The learned Counsel for the respondent, however, relies on the Full Bench decision in the case of Narsingh Sahai v. Sheo Prasad (1) and contends that as long as section 12 of the Limitation Act is not amended, only the time requisite for obtaining copy of the judgment appealed against and of the decree can be excluded. I myself took the same view in the case of Madan Gopal v. Malawa Ram (2) and followed the Full Bench decision of the Allahabad High Court. Mr. Anant Ram, Counsel for the appellant, on the other hand, has relied upon a Division Bench ruling to be found in an unauthorised report reported as 36 P. W. R. 1921 [Rala Ram v. Diwan Chand (3)]. The facts of the case decided by the Division Bench in the above ruling are not fully stated in the judgment. The following are the observations made therein :—

"Counsel for the respondent has raised a preliminary objection that this appeal is barred by limitation, but his objection neglects the fact that O. XLII, r. 2, Civil Procedure Code, has been made a rule of the Court, and as under that rule it was necessary for the appellants to obtain and file a copy of the judgment of the Court of first instance the appeal is within time."

The attention of the learned Judges in the above-mentioned case does not appear

(1) 42 Ind. Cas. 855; 40 A. I. R. 15 A. L. J. 835 (F. B.).

(2) 68 Ind. Cas. 777; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 96.

(3) 63 Ind. Cas. 928; 36 P. W. R. 1921; 3 I. L. J. 390.

RAM LALLAN SINGH v. HARAKH NARAIN RAI.

to have been drawn to the provisions of section 12 of the Limitation Act. The precise question raised before me was neither considered nor decided by the learned Judges in that case.

Mr. Anant Ram, Counsel for the appellant, has asked me to extend the time in this case under section 5 of the Limitation Act and treat the appeal as within time. In support of this prayer the learned Counsel has stated certain facts. Mr. Har Gopal on behalf of the respondents rightly objects that I should pay no attention to those facts because the appellant has not taken the care to file an affidavit. There is force in this objection. I am, therefore, constrained to hold that this appeal is barred by time. I accordingly dismiss the appeal with costs.

Z. K. Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL, NO. 295
OF 1920 (CONNECTED WITH SECOND

CIVIL APPEAL, NO. 942 OF 1919).

November 9, 1921.

Present.—Mr. Justice Ryves and Mr.
Justice Gokal Prasad.

Babu RAM LALLAN SINGH, MINOR,
THROUGH MUSAMMAT DULHIN DHUNRAJ KUNWARI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus

HARAKH NARAIN RAI AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 96—Execution of decree—Sale—Property in possession of tenants—Formal possession, delivery of, effect of—Possession, suit for—Limitation—Hindu Law—Joint family—Mortgage, usufructuary—Necessity—Interest, whether can be all wed.

Zemindari property which is let out to tenants for cultivation is not property of a nature of which actual possession can be obtained by an auction-purchaser. Therefore, in the case of such property, the delivery of formal possession to the auction-purchaser under the provisions of O. XXI, r. 96, Civil Procedure Code, gives a fresh start of limitation. [p. 99., col. 1.]

Jang Bahadur Singh v. Hunwant Singh, 63 Ind. Cas. 212; 19 A. L. J. 469; 43 A. 520 (F. B.), distinguished.

Where a usufructuary mortgage of joint family property is challenged by a co-parcener, and a portion of the mortgage-money is found to have been paid for necessity the mortgagee is not entitled to interest on that amount as a condition of delivery to the plaintiff of his share of the mortgaged property. [p. 922, col. 1.]

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge, Gorakhpur, dated the 5th of April 1919.

Mr. Shiva Prasad Sinha, for the Appellant.

Mr. Harnandan Prasad, for Mr. Iswar Saran, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal and the connected Appeal No. 942 of 1919 arise out of one suit. The appeals are by two sets of defendants. The facts which have given rise to these two appeals are briefly as follows:—Ishri Prasad Rai was the owner of an eight-pie share in a certain village. He hypothecated the aforesaid share to Babu Udit Narain Rai under two hypothecation bonds of the 24th of June 1876 and the 2nd of July 1877, respectively. Later on, five pies out of the hypothecated property were sold in execution of a Revenue Court decree against the mortgagor and were purchased by his brother Dip Narain and his nephews, Chiranjit and Jaimangal, on the 20th of March 1882. Ishri Prasad Rai died later on and his widow, Musammat Sona Kunwar, succeeded to a Hindu widow's interest in the property. It appears that on the 3rd of September 1890 Musammat Sona Kunwar made a gift of the whole of the eight-pies share to her daughter's son Mahabajrang Dat. Chiranjit and his brother, Jaimangal, who were two out of the three purchasers of the five-pies share were own brothers and members of a joint Hindu family. Jaimangal died without leaving any issue and Chiranjit became the owner of his share also by right of survivorship. He sued for possession of a two-thirds of the property purchased at auction and obtained a decree against the donee Mahabajrang Dat on the 16th of March 1895. Babu Udit Narain, the mortgagee, died and after his death a suit for sale was brought by his son, and later on, the son also having died during the pendency of the suit, his widow, Musammat Sheobarta Kuari, obtained a decree for sale on the two mortgages against Chiranjit, Dip Narain and Mahabajrang Dat on the 15th of December 1896. On the 20th of December 1902 in execution of this decree the mortgaged property was sold and was purchased by the father of the plaintiff and defendant No. 4 and he obtained possession on the 18th of October 1905. This is how the plaintiff claims a title in the property. On the 20th of November 1902 the defendants Nos. 1-3 purchased two-thirds of the five-pies share purchased by Chiranjit and Jaimangal in execution of a simple money-decree passed under section 90 of the Transfer of Property Act. Defendant No. 4, whose father had purchased the whole of the eight-pies share mortgaged a portion of it consisting of specified plots to defendant No. 5. This is how the other defendants have been impleaded in the suit. The plaintiff says that the mortgage by defendant No. 4, who was a member of a joint Hindu family with the plaintiff, is unlawful and void as against the plaintiff. His further contention is that he, along with defendant No. 4, owned the property purchased by them in execution of the mortgage-decree and defendants Nos. 1 and 2 being purchasers in a simple money-decree have no right to withhold possession from them. It will be important to bear in mind that to the suit which terminated in the decree on 15th December 1896 Chiranjit was impleaded as a party after the death of Musammal Sona Kunwar, the widow of the mortgagor. He was, along with others, impleaded as a representative of Sona Kunwar and not as a purchaser of the mortgaged property.

RAM LALLAN SINGH v. HARAKH NARAIN RAI.

The points raised by defendants Nos. 1-3 are, firstly, that they were not made parties to the suit as purchasers and hence they had no opportunity of redeeming the mortgage and they should now be given an opportunity to do so and the plaintiff's suit dismissed, and, secondly, that the plaintiff's suit is barred by limitation.

The First Court decreed the plaintiff's claim for possession of half of the property. On appeal by the two sets of defendants the lower Appellate Court has in the appeal by defendants Nos. 1-3 passed the following order, "I, therefore, modify the decree of the Court below by dismissing the suit for possession of half of three-pies 5½ chatahs share together with joint possession of the sir and khudkashi lands appertaining to this share." And in the appeal by defendant No. 4 he has passed a decree for possession of half of the lands entered in the mortgage-deed of the 5th of February 1917 on payment of Rs. 350 with interest at 6 per cent per annum from the 5th of February 1917 to the date of the payment. The plaintiff comes here in second appeal, and the first point taken in this appeal is that Chiranjit having been a party to the suit for sale in execution of which the plaintiff's predecessor-in-title purchased the property, the defendants, who represent Chiranjit, are now debarred from raising the plea that, as purchasers in execution of a simple money-decree, they have still got a right to redeem the property.

It is contended on behalf of the defendants in reply that they were made parties to that suit as heirs and legal representatives of the widow of Ishri Prasad Rai and could not have pleaded their own subsequent purchase, having regard to the express provisions of O. XXII, r. 4 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

In our opinion we do not see how the defendants have been prejudiced by this action of the mortgagee. The mortgage-decree certainly gave six month's time to the defendants-judgment-debtors for payment of the mortgage-money. If these defendants wanted to save their property they could have repaid the money within the time allowed. They were parties to that decree and cannot now be heard to say that they had not an opportunity of redeeming this mortgage. They have no title as against the plaintiff. The second point taken in this appeal is that the suit is barred by limitation inasmuch as the plaintiff did not obtain actual possession of the property sold to him and reliance is placed on a Full Bench ruling of this Court in the case of Jang Bahadur Singh v. Hanwant Singh (1).

In our opinion that ruling does not apply to a case like the present one in which the property is zemindari property and is let out to tenants for cultivation and is not of a nature of which actual possession could be obtained by the purchaser as in the case of a house. We think the delivery of formal possession to the predecessor-in-title of the plaintiff gave a fresh starting point of limitation and the present suit is within time from that date and is not barred by limitation. So that, so far as the defendants Nos. 1-3 are concerned, there is no valid reason why the claim should have been dismissed against them.

(1) 63 Ind. Cas. 212; 19 A. L. J. 469; 43 A. 520 (F. B.).

DIWAN CHAND V. RAM LABHAYA MAL.

Coming now to the Second Appeal No. 942 of 1919 by the plaintiff against defendant No. 5, namely, Nageshar Prasad, the main ground argued before us was that the defendant had failed to show that any part of the mortgage-money had been taken for legal necessity. On this question there is a distinct finding by the lower Appellate Court that defendant No. 4, the manager of the family, had need to borrow a sum of Rs. 350 for payment of revenue. This is a finding of fact behind which we cannot go. The result is, that the mortgage in favour of defendant No. 5 is binding on the family property to the extent of Rs. 350. The learned Judge of the Court below seems to have been under the misapprehension that this amount was to carry interest. It was a usufructuary mortgage and we do not see on what principle the learned Judge has thought fit to award interest at 6 per cent, per annum on the amount he has found to have been advanced for legal necessity. The question of interest was the second point raised in the appeal. We think that the decree of the lower Appellate Court, so far as it makes the payment of interest on Rs. 350 conditional to the plaintiff getting a decree for half of the mortgaged land entered in the deed of the 5th of February, 1917, should be discharged.

An objection has been taken on behalf of defendant No. 4 that he ought to have been allowed Rs. 81 in addition to the amount of Rs. 350 allowed to him and also that the decree of the Court below is bad as regards costs. We think that the objection regarding Rs. 81 cannot be sustained. The finding is that Rs. 350 only represented the amount required for legal necessity and we cannot add Rs. 81 to it. As regards costs, having regard to the circumstances of the case and the way the parties have fought it out, we think it unnecessary to interfere with the discretion exercised by the Court below. The result is that we set aside the decree of the District Judge except as to costs and restore the decree of the Court of first instance with the modification that the decree for possession of half of the mortgaged property is to be subject to the payment of Rs. 350 by the plaintiff to defendant No. 5. So far as these appeals are concerned the parties will bear their own costs.

Z. K.

Appeals decreed.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 745 OF 1921.

January 23, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Scott-Smith.

DIWAN CHAND—PLAINTIFF—PETITIONER
versus

RAM LABHAYA MAL AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 148, 149
—Decree conditional on payment of additional Court-fees by certain date—Extension of time—Power of Court.

Where a decree is passed in favour of a plaintiff conditionally on his paying additional Court-fees by a certain date and the condition is entered in the decree, the Court passing the decree has no jurisdiction to extend the time fixed for the payment except on a review of judgment. The remedy of the plaintiff is either by way of review or by way of appeal. [p. 923, cols. 1 & 2.]

Sajjadi Begam v. Dilawar Hussain, 47 Ind. Cas. 4; 40 A. 579; 16 A. L. J. 625, relied on.

Petition, under section 44 of Act VI of 1918, for revision of an order of the Subordinate Judge, First Class, Jhelum, dated the 15th July 1921.

Lala Jagan Nath, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Dev Raj Sawhney, for Mr. Anant Ram, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The material facts of the case out of which the present application for revision arises are as follows:—

Plaintiff-petitioner on the 21st May 1921 obtained a decree for pre-emption of a house conditional on his paying Rs. 2,800 on or before the 18th June 1921. The Court also by its decree directed that the plaintiff should pay up Court-fee ad valorem upon Rs. 2,800 by the 23rd May, and that if he did not do so the suit should stand dismissed with costs. The plaintiff did not pay up the Court-fee by the 23rd May and on the 26th May made an application for extension of time offering to pay up the required amount then. The Court held that, no doubt, it would have had power to extend the time for payment of the Court-fee under section 148 of the Civil Procedure Code, but that the decree dismissing the suit in default of payment on the 23rd May stood in its way, and that decree could only be modified upon an application for review or upon appeal. The Court, therefore rejected the application.

ELVERS V. AMERICAN MOTOR COMPANY.

The plaintiff has come up to this Court on the revision side and it is contended that the Court had power under sections 148 and 149 of the Civil Procedure Code to grant time for the payment of the Court-fee and to extend the period even though that originally fixed might have expired. The lower Court thought that section 10 of the Court-Fees Act applied, but, in my opinion, it does not. The case was not one where the Court had to fix the market-value after an investigation. The plaintiff sued for pre-emption upon payment of Rs. 1,100 alleging that the price entered in the deed of sale had not been fixed in good faith. The Court held that the price entered in the deed had been fixed in good faith and had actually been paid. In accordance with its finding it was necessary for the Court to demand additional Court-fee and to allow the plaintiff to pay the additional sum and to fix the time for its payment under sections 148 and 149 of the Civil Procedure Code. It is contended for the respondents that sections 148 and 149 could not apply in the present case after the suit had been dismissed because the Court was then functus officio. Counsel relies upon Sajjadi Begam v. Dilawar Husain (1), which appears to me to be exactly on all fours with the present case. There the Court had made a decree in plaintiff's favour conditional on her paying an extra Court-fee of Rs. 20 within a week and had decreed that if this extra Court-fee was not paid the suit was to stand dismissed. The High Court held that once the term of deposit had been embodied in the decree the Court itself, even if it desired, had no jurisdiction to alter its own discretion save on an application for review of judgment. It held accordingly that the Court had no jurisdiction to extend the time limited by the decree.

In my opinion, it is clear that in the presence of the decree dismissing the suit the plaintiff could not be granted an extension of time for payment of the Court-fee upon the application made by him in that behalf. His proper course was either to ask the Court to review its decree or to appeal. I accordingly reject the present application, but, having regard to the circumstances of the case, I make no order as to costs.

Z. K.

*Application rejected.LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 657 OF 1922.

January 20, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Zafar Ali.T. W. V. ELVERS—DEFENDANT—PETITIONER*versus*THE AMERICAN MOTOR COMPANY, THROUGH LATIF AHMAD—PLAINTIFF
—RESPONDENT.Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXVI, r. 4—Commission to examine defendant as his own witness, when may be issued.

Defendant, who was residing in the territory of a Native State, more than 200 miles from the Court in which the suit was pending, and who was the only witness on his own behalf, applied for a commission for his examination as a witness. The application was rejected and an ex parte decree was passed against him. On revision:

Held, that this was a fit case in which a commission ought to have issued for the examination of the defendant as his own witness; and that the ex parte decree must be set aside and the suit decided afresh after the examination of the defendant on commission.

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, for revision of a decree of the Judge, Small Cause Court, Rawalpindi Cantonment, dated the 6th May 1922.

Mr. M. Obaidulla, for Mr. O'Connor, for the Petitioner.

Sheikh Hassan Din, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a petition in revision by a defendant-judgment-debtor

(1) 47 Ind. Cas. 4; 40 A. 579; 16 A. L. J. 625.

LEHNA SINGH V. JAGAT RAM.

for an order to set aside an ex parte decree passed against him by the Judge of the Cantonment ~~Small Cause~~ Court, at Rawalpindi, on the ground (1) that he erred in refusing to examine him as his own witness, and (2) that he had no jurisdiction to try the case.

(2) is not pressed before me, but as regards (1) the facts are as below:—

The defendant at the time of the trial of the case resided in Kishtwar in the Kashmir State, at a distance of more than 200 miles from Rawalpindi, and so his Counsel presented an application to the Court below to issue a commission to examine him at Kishtwar. This application was eventually rejected and as the defendant could produce no evidence in defence, the suit was decreed. I am of opinion that, under the circumstances stated above, the lower Court was wrong in refusing to issue a commission for the examination of the defendant as his own witness. He had no other witness, nor could be expected to come all the way from Kishtwar to defend the action personally or to appear in the witness-box. Therefore, I accept this petition, set aside the ex parte decree with the direction that the suit should be decided afresh after examining the defendant as his own witness. A commission must be issued for his examination as he does not reside within British India, and his place of residence is more than 200 miles by road from Rawalpindi. Parties to bear their own costs in this Court.

Z. K.

Petition accepted.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. III OF 1922.

January 17, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Campbell.

LEHNA SINGH AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

JAGAT RAM—PLAINTIFF—SANT SINGH AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS.

Punjab Courts Act (VI of 1918), s. 41 (3)—

Error of law or procedure in deciding question of custom—Burden of proof, wrong allocation of—Appeal, second—Certificate whether necessary.

The words "notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1) of this section," with which sub-section (3) of section 41 of the Punjab Courts Act commences, preclude a Court of second appeal, in the absence of a certificate, from going into the question whether the first Appellate Court has erred in law or procedure in deciding a question of custom. [p. 925, col. 2.]

Nur Ali v. Bahawal, 31 Ind. Cas. 386; 34 P. R. 1916; 54 P. W. R. 1916, distinguished.

A second appeal on a question of custom cannot be entertained, in the absence of a certificate, on the ground that the onus probandi was wrongly placed by the lower Appellate Court. [p. 925, col. 2.]

Arora v. Imam Bakhsh, 23 Ind. Cas. 352; 4 P. W. R. 1914; 28 P. L. R. 1914, followed.

Second appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Gurdaspur, dated the 28th October 1921, affirming that of the Munsif, Second Class, Pathankot, District Gurdaspur, dated the 30th July 1920.

Lala Faqir Chand, for Mr. Anant Ram, for the Appellants.

Lala Durga Das, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The suit here was by certain persons, claiming to be the reversioners of a childless proprietor named Sant Singh, for a declaration that a gift of ancestral land by Sant Singh to one Nanak, son of Santa Singh's brother, Lehna Singh, should not affect their reversionary rights. They asserted, inter alia, that Nanak was not the legitimate son of Lehna Singh because (a) no marriage took place between Lehna Singh and the mother Musammât Lachmi, and (b) even if there was a marriage ceremony, the marriage was invalid under custom, because Musammât Lachmi was a Chhinbi woman and Lehna Singh was a Jat.

The defendants, Lehna Singh and Nanak, pleaded that there had been a marriage and a valid marriage, that Nanak was a nearer heir than the plaintiffs, and that the gift was a good one.

Among the issues framed by the Trial Court were the following:—

(2) Did Lehna Singh go through a chadar ondozi ceremony with Musammât Lachmi?

(3) If so, was this ceremony illegal and invalid according to custom or law?

LEHNA SINGH v. JAGAT RAM.

The plaintiffs led evidence to prove that there had been no marriage, that Musammāt Lachhmi was a Chhimbi, and that there could be no legal marriage; tie between her and a Jat. The defendants produced witnesses to the contrary, from whom it was elicited in cross-examination that Musammāt Lachhmi had a former husband who was alive at the time of the alleged chadar andazi ceremony.

The First Court held that there had been a chadar andazi ceremony and that it was not necessary to decide issue (3) as the gift was otherwise invalid. The plaintiffs were granted a decree.

The defendants appealed and the learned District Judge dismissed their appeal on one sole point, namely, that the defendants' witnesses had stated Musammāt Lachhmi's first husband to have been alive at the time of the alleged chadar andazi that, consequently, it lay upon the defendants to prove that such a chadar andazi constituted a marriage valid by custom, and that they had produced no evidence on the point. The learned District Judge noticed that the onus of issue (3) had been placed upon the plaintiffs but held that the defendants had not been prejudiced.

The defendants have preferred a second appeal without a certificate, under section 41 (3) of the Punjab Courts Act, for which they applied unsuccessfully.

The question for decision is whether any second appeal by them can lie without such certificate.

The appellants' case is that they are not challenging any decision regarding the existence or validity of any custom and that they merely want a remand because the plaintiffs never pleaded that the marriage was invalid on account of the existence at the time of another husband and because they had no opportunity of meeting an attack based upon that fact.

The decree of the lower Appellate Court is a decree that no custom exists by which the chadar andazi ceremony in question, performed in the lifetime of Musammāt Lachhmi's first husband, can take effect as a valid marriage between the parties to it. The appellants want a Court of second appeal to set this aside on the ground that the lower Appellate Court acted contrary to law or was guilty of a substantial error in procedure in coming to a decision regarding the non-existence of a custom validating the marriage without the appellants having had an opportunity of proving that the first husband had repudiated Musammāt Lachhmi and of thereby establishing that a custom validating the marriage does exist. The question raised in appeal is thus the existence of a custom by which a Jat can contract a valid marriage with a Chhimbi woman whose first husband, though alive, has repudiated her.

The words "notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1) of this section," with which sub-section (3) of section 41 of the Punjab Courts Act commences, preclude, in these circumstances, a Court of second appeal, in the absence of a certificate, from going into the question of whether the first Appellate Court has erred in law or procedure. This is made clear in Arura v. Imam Bakhsh (1) where it is also pointed out affirmatively that a second appeal in such circumstances cannot be entertained on the ground that the onus probandi was wrongly placed by the lower Appellate Court.

The appellant's learned Counsel relies upon Nur Ali v. Bahawal (2) where it was held that the question raised in second appeal was not the validity or existence of a custom but whether the validity or existence of a custom was a question before the lower Appellate Court and that a second appeal lay without a certificate. The facts of that case, however, differ from those of the present. Here the issue regarding the validity of the marriage was drawn in general terms, and, although it is true that there was no specific plea that the marriage, if it took place, was bigamous and, therefore, a nullity, evidence was led on this point by the plaintiffs, for there could be no other explanation of the questions put by them in cross-examination to the defendants' witnesses about the first husband. The defendants knew that the answers elicited had come on to the record and they could have applied for a further opportunity to contradict or explain them. They cannot be said to have been taken unawares in the lower Appellate Court and it cannot be said that the sole question of invalidity before the Courts below was whether the chadar andazi was invalid by reason of the woman being a Chhimbi.

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 352; 4 P. W. R. 1914; 28 P. L. R. 1914.

(2) 31 Ind. Cas. 386; 34 P. R. 1916; 54 P. W. R. 1916.

CHOKALINGAM CHETTIAR v. PALANI AMBALAN.

I hold that no second appeal is competent without a certificate, and dismiss the appeal with costs.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL No. 25 OF 1921.

March 13, 1923.

Present.—Justice Sir Walter S. Schwabe, Kt., Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter.

R. M. P. V. CHOKALINGAM CHETTIAR

—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

S. PALANI AMBALAN—

DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), ss. 13 (3), 187—Improvements made by ryots after Act—Landlord, right of, to recover rent at wet rates under contract made before Act.

Under section 13 (3) of the Madras Estates Land Act, a landholder is not entitled to recover rent at wet rates from his ryots for land which the latter has been able to cultivate wet in consequence of improvements made at his own expense after the Act came into force but on the strength of a contract made before the Act was passed.

Dictum of Venkata Perumal v. Ramudu, 27 Ind. Cas. 688; 39 M. 84; 28 M. L. J. 81; (1915) M. W. N. 132; 17 M. L. T. 129, not followed.

The intention of the Legislature in framing sections 13 and 187 of the Madras Estates Land Act was to refuse to contracts made before, equally with contracts made after, the passing of the Act any effect on the relation between the ryot and the landholder.

Letters Patent Appeal against the judgment of Mr. Justice Krishnan, in Second Appeal No. 999 of 1920, on the file of the High Court, preferred against the decree of the District Court of Ramnad, at Madura, in Appeal Suit No. 694 of 1919, preferred against the decree of the Court of the Special Deputy Collector of Ramnad, at Manamadura, in Suit No. 277 of 1919.

Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna, for the Appellant.

Mr. S. T. Srinivasagopalachari, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The question is, whether the plaintiff, landholder, is entitled to recover rent at wet rates from his tenant, the defendant, for land which the latter has been able to cultivate wet in consequence of improvements made at his own expense. The plaintiff claims that he is entitled to wet rates on the strength of a contract contained in Exhibit D of the year 1885, before the Estates Land Act was passed. The improvements were made after it was passed. Krishnan J. held that, in the circumstances, the plaintiff is not entitled to rely on his contract with reference to section 13 (3) of the Estates Land Act.

It is no doubt true that, as the plaintiff contends, such a contract would have been enforceable under the previous law, section 11 of Act VIII of 1865. The only authority relied on by the plaintiff is a dictum of Kumarasam Sastri, J., in Venkata Perumal v. Ramudu (1), a case in which both the contract and the improvements were made before the passing of the present Act. The dictum was, therefore, unnecessary for the learned Judge's decision. The considerations which weigh with us are that, (1) the wording of section 13 (3) exempts the ryot from liability to pay a higher rate of rent in consequence of improvements made at his sole expense, notwithstanding any usage or contract to the contrary and that wording is absolutely general; (2) that, as Krishnan, J., has observed, the connected reference to usage renders it unlikely in the extreme that the Legislature intended to except contracts made before the Act, but not enforceable before it, from this provision; (3) the ryot is referred to in section 13 (3) as becoming liable to pay a higher rate of rent, inconsistently with the view that he had already become liable under a previous contract. Lastly, section 187 (1) must be read with section 13 and in the former the reference is to "contracts made before or after the passing of this Act." This indicates clearly that the intention of the Legislature was to refuse to contracts made before, equally with contracts made after, the passing of the Act, any effect on the relation between the ryot and the landholder.

(1) 27 Ind. Cas. 688; 39 M. 84; 28 M. L. J. 81; (1915) M. W. N. 132; 17 M. L. T. 129.

NANAK CHAND v. MUHAMMAD ZAHUR-UD-DIN.

Taking this view, we dismiss the appeal with costs.

V. N. V.

*Appeal dismissed.LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 2664 OF 1918.

November 16, 1922.

Present.—Mr. Justice LeRossignol and Mr. Justice Zafar Ali.

NANAK CHAND—DEFENDANT—
APPELLANT.

versus

MUHAMMAD ZAHUR-UD-DIN—
PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Registration Act (XVI of 1908), ss. 2 (7), 17 (1) (d)—Construction of document—Agreement to lease—Registration.

Defendant executed a document in plaintiffs' favour whereby he acknowledged the receipt of a certain sum as earnest-money and agreed to lease to the plaintiff a certain area of land for five years on an annual rental of Rs. 180:

Held, that the document was an agreement to lease and required registration under section 17 (1) (d), read with section 2 (7), of the Registration Act.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Ludhiana, dated the 24th June 1918, modifying that of the Junior Sub-Judge, Second Class, Ludhiana, dated the 16th April 1918.

Lala Fakir Chand, for the Appellant.

Sheikh Umar Bakhsh, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff came into Court on the strength of a document by which he alleged that Sarab Dayal defendant No. 1 on the 8th May 1917 acknowledged receipt of Rs. 25 as earnest-money and agreed to lease plaintiff 2 bighas. 14 biswas of land for five years on an annual rental of Rs. 180. He alleged that defendant No. 1, instead of executing a formal lease in his favour, had leased the land to defendant No. 2 and had given him possession. He further alleged that defendant No. 2 had full knowledge of the agreement with plaintiff and prayed for possession of the land and for an order to compel defendant No. 1 to execute a lease in accordance with the terms of the agreement. He asked in the alternative for damages of Rs. 1,000 against defendant No. 1. The first Court found that both defendants had joined in a fraud on the plaintiff and decreed him possession for five years, and the District Judge on appeal confirmed the decree holding, that it was unnecessary that a formal lease in plaintiff's favour should be executed.

In second appeal it is urged that the document on which the plaintiff's claim is based is not merely a receipt for earnest-money but is an agreement to lease; that it is inadmissible in evidence to prove the contract as it should have been registered, and that consequently no oral evidence in support of the contract is admissible. In our opinion the contention for the appellant must prevail. In his plaint the plaintiff refers to the document as embodying the agreement between himself and defendant No. 1 and it is obvious that it is more than a mere receipt. The terms of the lease, its duration and the annual rent and the date on which possession is to be given, are set forth in detail in this document, and there can be no doubt that it is an agreement to lease. Now, under section 2 (7) of the Registration Act a lease includes an agreement to lease. In this respect an agreement to lease must be discriminated from an agreement, and under section 17 (1) (d) of the same Act all leases of immoveable property from year to year, or for any term exceeding one year, or reserving a yearly rent, must be registered. The lease in question, reserving as it does an annual rent of Rs. 180 does not belong to a class of leases which may be exempted by the Local Government under the proviso to section 17 (1) (d) of the Registration Act.

In this view, the plaintiffs' suit is unsupported by any evidence and must be dismissed. We accordingly accept the appeal and dismiss the plaintiff's suit with costs throughout.

NAND SINGH v. LACHHMI NARAIN SINGH.

Z. K.

Appeal accepted.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

MISCELLANEOUS FIRST CIVIL APPEAL

No. 559 OF 1922.

November 24, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Broadway.

NAND SINGH—INSOLVENT—APPELLANT
versus

S. LACHHMI NARAIN SINGH—

OFFICIAL RECEIVER, AND OTHERS—

CREDITORS—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 60 (p)—Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1887), s. 70—Insolvency—Panchotra paid to Lambardar, whether exempt from attachment.

The amount of panchotra paid to a Lambardar does not fall within section 60 (p) of the Civil Procedure Code or section 70 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act and is not exempt from attachment on the insolvency of the Lambardar.

Miscellaneous first appeal from an order of the District Judge, Ambala, dated the 17th January 1922, ordering that the house of the insolvent should be sold through the Naib Nazir, Kharak, and his land should be leased through the Collector.

Sardar Kharak Singh, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—Nand Singh, an undischarged bankrupt, a Lambardar and Jagirdar in the Ambala District, has preferred this appeal against the order of the District Judge, Ambala, dated the 17th January 1922, directing the Receiver to sell a house belonging to the insolvent and to arrange through the Collector, for the farming out of his land, some 100 bighas in area. The order also directs the insolvent to pay into Court all panchotra money in his hand. Mr. Kharak Singh has appeared for Nand Singh, and no body has appeared on the other side.

So far as the house is concerned, inasmuch as the appellant is an agriculturist and as it is said that this is the only house he possesses, it appears to be not liable to be sold. The order relating to this house is, therefore, set aside.

In regard to the panchotra money Mr. Kharak Singh urged that it, too, was not liable to attachment under the provisions of section 60, Civil Procedure Code. He also referred to section 70 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act. I am unable to see that the income of the panchotra is covered by these sections. Qua this, the order will stand.

Next, it was urged that the Receiver only suggested in his report that three-fourths of the land should be farmed through the Collector, but the Court has directed that all the land should be so farmed. It has been pointed out in the grounds of appeal that two-fifths of the entire holding of the appellant is under mortgage, the mortgagees being in possession, and Mr. Kharak Singh urged that a provision should be made for the maintenance of the insolvent and his family suitable to his condition in life, not as an undischarged bankrupt, but as a Lambardar and a Jagirdar. The proposition appears to me somewhat novel. As, however, the Receiver has reported that three-fourths of the land belonging to the insolvent was sufficient and there is the order of the District Judge qua the whole land, I direct that only three-fourths of the appellant's land should be farmed through the Collector.

To this extent the appeal is accepted. No order as to costs.

Z. K.

Appeal accepted.

EMPEROR V. ZAWAR HUSSAIN.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 114 OF 1923.

March 21, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Walsh, and Mr. Justice Ryves.

EMPEROR—PROSECUTOR

VERSUS

ZAWAR HUSSAIN—ACCUSED.

U. P. Excise Act (IV of 1910), s. 60—Cocaine, unlawful possession of—Possession, meaning of.

A man is not ordinarily liable for the criminal acts of his agent. But he is so liable where, being authorised to traffic in prohibited goods under a license, and subject to restrictions, he puts a servant in to carry on the business for him, and the servant acts outside the restrictions. If mens rea is relevant, it must be shown that the principal had knowledge. [p. 931, col. 1.]

For the purposes of preventive Statutes, such as the Excise Acts, there may be and often is, in commercial dealings, possession, other than that which may be called strict legal possession. In such cases, control or dominion may amount to criminal possession, although actual legal possession, such as that of a bailee or an agent, may be in another. [p. 931, col. 1.]

Emperor v. Gajadhar, 25 A. 262; A. W. N. (1903) 29; Emperor v. Ghulam Hussain, 44 Ind. Cas. 975; 40 A. 420; 16 A. L. J. 323; 19 Cr. L. J. 447, followed.

Criminal appeal by the Local Government against an order of the Magistrate, First Class, Saharanpur, dated the 31st July 1922.

Mr. Lalit Mohan Banerjee, Government Advocate, for the Crown

Mr. G. W. Dillon, for the Accused.

JUDGMENT.

Walsh, J.—This is a Government appeal against the acquittal of one Zawar Hussain, on a charge tried by a First Class Magistrate of Saharanpur, for "possessing cocaine" without lawful justification. No lawful ground for the possession, if any, was suggested.

The case presents another example of the sort of travesty of justice of which this Court has had too much reason to complain of late in magisterial proceedings. The case lies in a small compass. The first witness was called on the 27th of March, within eight days of the date of the alleged offence. The last witness was not called till about the 7th of July, and the judgment was delivered on the 31st of July, after what must have been an enormous expenditure of money and magisterial time. We have been compelled to go through a mass of irrelevant matter, and a judgment consisting of twelve closely printed pages of wearisome discussion of superfluous details, and laborious reflections on side issues, of no importance to any one, in which the real issue has been almost totally obscured.

The prosecution made the initial error of trying to establish that Zawar Hussain lived on the premises; an issue which was bound to fail and which undoubtedly accounts for much of the waste of time for which the Magistrate was not responsible. The Magistrate, in the end, decided that Zawar Hussain did not live on the premises, and that he had no knowledge of the cocaine which was seized. As to the former of these issues, it is clear that he was right. As to the latter, we differ from the decision. We think that it is clearly established that Zawar Hussain used the house for concealing cocaine, and that if he had been charged under section 60 A, as amended by Act IV of 1919, he must have been convicted. The Government Advocate asked for a conviction under this section, but the accused was not charged under it, nor was this Court asked in the notice of appeal to alter the charge. Mr. Dillon, who represented the accused and argued his case with great force and fairness, objected on substantial grounds of hardship to this course. We are of opinion that we ought not now to try the accused on a fresh charge.

The question, therefore, which we have to decide is, whether the finding that Zawar Hussain was not in possession of the cocaine seized was one at which the Magistrate has arrived against the weight of the evidence.

The material facts are simple, and clear. On his own showing, Zawar Hussain is a notorious trafficker in cocaine. He has already been in prison for illicit dealing. He would have us believe that he is now a reformed character, and has been helping the authorities to catch other offenders. It may be so. The fact is not inconsistent, either with his guilt, or with his innocence in this case. He is a prominent, if not the leading member of his family, which live, either in, or around, the house raided. He is the owner, either in whole or in part, of the house which he had let on an agreement in writing to his brother-in-law, from year to year and went through the quite unnecessary formality of getting it registered. He lived in another house close behind, a few yards away, and was naturally an occasional, if not a frequent visitor to his brother-in-law. The unusual course, that a near relative and neighbour, was taken of putting the agreement of tenancy into precise terms in writing, and by it Zawar Hussain reserved to himself a locked apartment containing some of his goods. Bashir Hussain, the tenant, was called for the defence, and swore that he and his brother-in-law were not on visiting terms. This is quite incredible.

EMPEROR V. ZAWAR HUSSAIN.

One Gopal Narain, whom the Magistrate has criticised severely, and who was responsible for the allegation that the accused lived in the house, had reported that cocaine was hidden in the house which he believed to be the residence of Zawar Hussain. Mr. Young, Superintendent of Police, went on the 20th of March, with a large body of officials and constables, and raided the house. As he approached the place in a motor-car Gopal Narain pointed out to Mr. Young that Zawar Hussain was seated at a mosque situated in one of the angles of the sort of square which included the house to be raided, and the house of the accused. Mr. Young's attention was distracted by the traffic, and he was not able to look in the direction indicated. But it is inconceivable that Gopal Narain would have risked an idle falsehood, having no reason to know that accused was not at the house to be visited, or had not made off, as he afterwards, disguised as a woman, tried to do. It is, therefore, certain that the accused was sitting near by.

Outside the house raided eight persons were found seated. These included the tenant and brother-in-law of the accused, two of his brothers, one of whom lived also at the house, and, significantly enough, the accused's karinda. Inside the house were certain female members of the family. Much time has been wasted over the question whether one was the wife, or mistress of the accused, and over the identity of one who was shortly afterwards delivered of a child. These questions only bear on the issue whether the house was the residence of the accused. But, after a long and elaborate search, a considerable quantity of cocaine 9 oz. 6 grs., said to be worth about Rs. 1800, was discovered in the false bottom of a large box, in a room chained from the inside, and occupied, at the moment, by one of the females. Zawar Hussain had been sent for, but he deliberately kept away. He was in the immediate neighbourhood, and his conduct shows that he knew there was good reason for dissociating himself from the results of the search. An innocent man would naturally be anxious to assist the authorities, and to satisfy them of his bona fides. Letters addressed to the accused were found in the house.

The box in which the cocaine was secreted was a very large and heavy one, the presence of which in the house must have been known to the occupants. It was designed to prevent the discovery of its secret contents and not to promote it. This destroys the feeble suggestion of the defence that it had been planted on the people of the house by their enemies; enemies would scheme that cocaine should be found, and not a box which almost defied discovery of its contents. The box had not even the tempting attractions of the Wooden Horse of Troy and the conduct of the tenants in concealing and guarding it is inconsistent with its suggested character of an unwelcome intruder. The enemies of Zawar Hussain would hardly plant a box in a house which, according to him, every one except Gopal Narain knew was not his residence. The time, moreover, to acquaint the authorities with the wicked trick which had been played upon them was when Mr. Young and his party arrived to search. The box, carefully housed and guarded, was indeed surrounded by the family and agents of the accused. It is not suggested that any of them was able to obtain and trade, the cocaine to this extent; Bashir was paying a rent, if he paid any, of Rs5 per month; and the inference from all these circumstances is irresistible that the box was being kept for Zawar

GANESH SAHU v. EMPEROR.

Hussain in the house of his brother-in-law, in whose actual physical possession it was.

We have perused the mass of defence evidence without finding anything satisfactorily established, which is inconsistent with this view. It is not possible to say that Zawar Hussain was the sole owner, or the true owner. Bashir Hussain, the tenant and brother-in-law, swore to a new and startling story that one Buddhoo had suddenly deposited the box there the night before, as part of his luggage. This mysterious individual was expected to follow up this advance guard by arriving in force with the rest of his luggage "later on". But nothing more seems to have been heard of him. The notion that a man would abandon nearly Rs. 2,000 worth of cocaine to its fate in this way, requires more evidence than this to satisfy us of its truth. The onus was clearly thrown on the accused to prove the true ownership or at least to account for its presence in the custody of his relative and tenant, and he has failed to do either.

Mr. Dillon's view of the law applicable is perfectly sound. A man is not ordinarily liable for the criminal acts of his agent, except in those cases where, being authorized to traffic in prohibited goods under a license, and subject to restrictions, he puts a servant in to carry on the business for him, and his servant acts outside the restrictions. If mens rea is relevant, it must be shown that the principal had knowledge. But there may be, and often is, in commercial dealings, possession other than that which may be called strict legal possession, for the purposes of a preventive Statute such as this. Control, or dominion, may amount to criminal possession, although actual legal possession, such as that of a bailee, or an agent, may be in another. In Emperor v. Gajadhar (1) opium found in the house of a neighbour of the owner, who had left it with the neighbour for the night for safe keeping, was held to be in the possession of the owner. In Emperor v. Ghulam Hussain (2) the owner of fire-arms, who held a license to carry arms, had died. His widow and his minor son continued to live in the house where the fire-arms were kept. The mother was the legal owner, and the manager of the house. There was ground for holding that the youth had cleaned, and looked after them, if he had not actually used them. It was held that the son was rightly convicted of being in possession of them without a license.

We, therefore allow the appeal, and convict Zawar Hussain of having been in unlawful possession of these 9 oz. of cocaine.

It is a bad case, not merely because of the amount seized, and on account of the previous conviction, but also on account of the nature of the defence set up. We, therefore, sentence Zawar Hussain to two years' rigorous imprisonment from the date of his surrender to his bail, or arrest, in the event of his failing to surrender, whichever happens first.

Z. K.

Appeal allowed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 1128 OF 1922.

February 22, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Newbould and Mr. Justice Suhrawardy.

GANESH SAHU—ACCUSED—PETITIONER
versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 403—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 411—Stolen property, several articles of, found in possession of accused—Trial in respect of some—Acquittal—Subsequent trial in respect of remaining articles, legality of.

Several articles of property stolen from different persons were found in possession of the accused. He was tried in respect of some of the articles upon a charge under section 411 of the Penal Code and was acquitted. He was subsequently prosecuted under the same section in respect of the other properties found in his possession on the same date, but there was no evidence that the articles were received at different times:

Held, that under section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code the second trial was illegal. [p. 932, col. 1.]

Queen-Empress v. Mahan, 15 A. 317; A. W. N. (1893) 101; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 919 and Ishan Mucht v. Queen-Empress, 15 A. 511; 7 Ind. Dec. 925, followed.

Application for revision under section 435, Criminal Procedure Code.

(1) 25 A. 262; A. W. N. (1903) 29.

(2) 44 Ind. Cas. 975; 40 A. 420; 16 A. L. J. 323; 19 Cr. L. J. 447.

INDAR SINGH v. EMPEROR.

Babu Dasarathi Sanyal, with him Babu Lalit Mohan Sanyal, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Orr, Deputy Legal Remembrancer, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

Newbould, J.—The petitioner in this case has been convicted under section 411, Indian Penal Code, on the charge of having been in dishonest possession of stolen property on the 7th December 1921. It appears that on that date several articles of property were found in the room occupied by the petitioner. In respect of some of them he was prosecuted and after being convicted under section 411, Indian Penal Code, by the Trying Magistrate he was acquitted on appeal. He has now been tried and convicted in respect of other properties found in his possession on the same date. There was evidence that the different articles which were the subject of the charges in the two trials were stolen from different persons, but there is no evidence that they were received at different times. The facts of the case cannot be distinguished from those of Queen-Empress v. Makhan (1) which follows the decision of a Divisional Bench of this Court in Ishan Muchi v. Queen-Empress (2). On this authority we hold that the second trial was illegal under the provisions of section 403, Criminal Procedure Code.

We accordingly make this Rule absolute and set aside the conviction and sentence passed on the petitioner and direct that he be discharged from his bail-bond.

W. C. A. Rule made absolute.

(1) 15 A. 317; A. W. N. (1893) 101; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 919.

(2) 15 C. 511; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 925.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 1165 OF 1922.

January 23, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Scott-Smith and Mr. Justice Moti Sagar,

INDAR SINGH—CONVICT—APPELLANT
versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Criminal trial—Prosecution, failure of, to produce all witnesses, effect of.

The mere fact of the non-production of some of their witnesses by the prosecution cannot, in any way, affect the credibility of witnesses who are produced. [p. 933, col 2; p. 934, col. 1.]

Appeal from an order of the Sessions Judge, Gujranwala, dated the 21st November 1922.

Mr. Morton, for the Appellant.

Mr. Zafarulla Khan, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—On the 27th July 1922 one Kharak Singh, a Hindu Jat of the village Shahpur, in the Gujranwala District, is alleged to have been murdered by Indar Singh, appellant. The crime is said to have been committed early in the morning shortly after sunrise, and to have been witnessed by one Partap Singh (P. W. No. 2) who was planting paddy in a field close by and by certain other persons who have also been produced as witnesses on behalf of the prosecution in this case. The exact reason of the quarrel which led to this unfortunate incident is not known, but it is clear from the evidence of Radha Kishen, Patwari, (P. W. No. 10) and Sant Singh, Zaildar, (P. W. No. 7) that Indar Singh, appellant, and his father Rup Singh were not on good terms with Kharak Singh, deceased, owing to a dispute with regard to field No. 780 which was in the possession of the deceased and his uncle for a large number of years, though recorded in the Revenue papers as the property of Rup Singh, father of the appellant. It is also in evidence that, shortly before the murder was committed, a panchayat was held in the village to settle this dispute but that it did not lead to any successful results. An amicable settlement not having been arrived at, an application was made by Rup Singh to the Revenue Authorities on the 18th July 1922 that the boundary lines of his fields should be demarcated. This application is on the record, and is marked as Exhibit P. H. It appears that, before this application could be disposed of, the deceased Kharak Singh arranged to sow paddy in the field in dispute, and with this object in view engaged the services of one Ilahi Bakhshi, Changar, (P. W. No. 4), so that even if Rup Singh succeeded in the application made by him to the Revenue Authorities, he might not be able to get immediate possession of the field in question. This conduct on the part of the deceased evidently appears to have been resented by Indar Singh and his father Rup Singh, and it is alleged that on the morning of the 27th July 1922 when Kharak Singh was taking paddy plants to his field, he was followed by Indar Singh and Rup Singh and when the former came near his field, he was struck several blows from behind by Indar Singh with a Chhavi which the latter had in his hands. Partap Singh (P. W. No. 2) saw this, and raised an alarm which brought Rukin Din (P. W. No. 3) Sundar Singh (P. W. No. 5) and Ilahi Bakhsh (P. W. No. 4) towards the spot. None of these witnesses, however, went near the spot, nor did anyone of them make any serious effort to arrest the accused, as it is alleged that the appellant threatened to inflict injuries upon them also if they dared to interfere. Kharak Singh was killed on the spot, and then the accused is alleged to have run away. After his departure the witnesses went up to the place where Kharak Singh was lying and found that he had already succumbed to his injuries.

INDAR SINGH v. EMPEROR.

Partap Singh then went to the thana and lodged the First Information Report in which he distinctly mentioned the name of Indar Singh as the perpetrator of the crime. Investigations were at once started but Indar Singh could not be found. On the 30th July 1922, however, Indar Singh was arrested at the house of his sister at the village of Kullawala, and marks of certain injuries were found on his person. The medical evidence shows that these injuries had been inflicted by a blunt weapon, but there is no evidence to show as to how they were caused. It is possible that Kharak Singh had a lathi in his hand and that he struck Indar Singh with this lathi when he was attacked, but no evidence has been produced on this point and it is idle to speculate as to how these injuries were caused.

In the course of the investigation it was also found that the weapon with which the crime had been committed had been made over by the accused to one Mangal Singh. Mangal Singh has been produced as a witness, and has deposed to his having received the kulhari from Indar Singh on the day that the crime is alleged to have been committed.

On these facts Indar Singh was charged with the murder of Kharak Singh, and committed to the Sessions to take his trial under section 302, Indian Penal Code. The learned Sessions Judge has found him guilty of the offence of murder and has sentenced him to the penalty of death. The convict has appealed. His case is also before us under section 374 of the Criminal Procedure Code for confirmation of the sentence of death passed upon him by the Sessions Judge.

There is ample evidence on the record in support of the prosecution story as set out above. Partap Singh (P. W. No. 2), Rukna (P. W. No. 3), Ilahi Bakhsh (P. W. No. 4) and Sundar Singh (P. W. No. 5) all of whom are eye-witnesses, of the crime, have appeared as witnesses, in the case, and have stated that they saw the injuries being inflicted, and that it was Indar Singh who inflicted these injuries on the deceased. We see no reason to doubt the testimony of these witnesses, and the learned Counsel for the appellant has not been able to give any satisfactory reason why their evidence should be rejected.

It is contended by Mr. Morton that it was stated in the First Information Report that one Labh Singh, Lambardar, and three other Changars had also reached the spot where the murder had been committed but that they have not been produced in evidence and that this fact detracts very greatly from the value of the evidence which has been produced on behalf of the prosecution. In our opinion this contention has no force. Ilahi Bakhsh, one of the Changars, has been produced as a witness, and has deposed to his having seen the injuries being inflicted on the deceased. Labh Singh and the other two Changars have, of course, not been produced, but it is quite possible that they may have reached the spot after the attack was over and that they may not have been the actual eye-witnesses of the crime. In these circumstances, the prosecution may well have thought, that it was entirely unnecessary to produce these persons as witnesses in the case or there may be some other good reason for their non-production which is not clear from the record; but in any case it is clear that the mere fact of their non-production cannot in any way affect the credibility of the witnesses that have been produced.

HARI SATYA BISHNU V. EMPEROR.

The accused denied his presence on the spot and set up an alibi. He further stated that Partap Singh (P. W. No. 2) had more motive to murder Khafak Singh, inasmuch as the former was carrying on an illicit intimacy with Musammât Atri, aunt of the deceased, which was resented by the latter. The evidence as to alibi is most unconvincing, and we have no hesitation in holding that no reliance can be placed upon it. As to Partap Singh's intimacy with Musammât Atri, we do not find any evidence on the record in support of this plea, and we are clearly of opinion that the learned Sessions Judge was right in holding that the plea was palpably false and that it should be rejected.

The murder was a most brutal one, and the medical evidences show that the deceased received as many as seven injuries on his head and other parts of his person, causing extensive fracture of the skull and resulting in his voice-box and his wind-pipe being cut. From the nature of the injuries inflicted and from the nature of the weapon used in inflicting them it is clear that the accused must have intended to cause death and that he was guilty of murder.

After a careful consideration of the entire evidence on the record, we hold that the offence has been fully established and that the appellant has been rightly convicted of murder. We uphold the conviction and, confirming the sentence of death, we dismiss the appeal.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 985 of 1922.

January 12, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Newbould and Mr. Justice Suhrawardy.

HARI SATYA BISHNU AND OTHERS
—PETITIONERS

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal trial—Cognizance taken by different Magistrates, legality of.

Proceedings under sections 120 A and 420, Penal Code, were taken against the accused in the Court of a Deputy Magistrate before whom the case remained pending and no evidence was taken up to a certain date, when a formal complaint was laid before the District Magistrate by the Police on which the District Magistrate took proceedings which ended in the committal of the accused to the Court of Session:

Held, that there was no illegality in the District Magistrate taking cognizance of the case, as, though the law prevents a person being tried twice over for the same offence, there is no provision that if cognizance is taken by two different Magistrates at different times the trial can be before one of them only. [p. 935, col. 1.]

Criminal Revision against an order of the District Magistrate, Howrah, dated the 10th October 1922.

Babu Manmatha Nath Mukherjee, for the Petitioners.

Messrs. B. L. Mitter, Standing Counsel, and S. Sen, Counsel, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

Newbould, J.—The two petitioners have been committed for trial on the charge of conspiring to commit the offence of cheating punishable under section 120 B and section 420, Indian Penal Code. The Rule is to show cause why that commitment should not be quashed on the ground that the offence of conspiracy having already been taken cognizance of by Mr. B. N. Mukherjee, Deputy Magistrate, no other Magistrate had jurisdiction to take cognizance of it again so long as Mr. B. N. Mukherjee was in seisin of the case, therefore, the proceedings before the learned District Magistrate have been wholly ultra vires and are fit to be set aside.

It appears that on three separate Police reports Mr. B. N. Mukherjee took action against the petitioners and others in respect of this conspiracy and required them to give bail to answer the charge. The cases before Mr. B. N. Mukherjee remained pending and no evidence was taken up to the 28th June. On the 28th June a formal complaint was laid before the District Magistrate by the Police charging the petitioners and other persons with being members of this conspiracy and on that complaint the District Magistrate took proceedings which ended in the commitment of these petitioners to the Court of Session. On the day when the District Magistrate took cognizance of this complaint Mr. B. N. Mukherjee passed an order which amounted to a discharge of the persons who were appearing before him in the cases of which he had taken cognizance in connection with this conspiracy.

MAQSUD HUSAIN v. EMPEROR.

We are unable to hold that there is any illegality in the District Magistrate taking cognizance of the case which would justify us in quashing this commitment on a point of law. In the first place, it must be remembered that no prejudice against the petitioners has been alleged and it would appear that it was rather to their benefit that the case against them should be dealt with in one single proceeding rather than before the Deputy Magistrate in three separate proceedings. We have not been shown there is any provision of the Criminal Procedure Code which prevented the Magistrate from taking cognizance of the offence because another Magistrate had previously taken cognizance. The law prevents a person being tried twice for the same offence. But there is no provision that if, as in this case, cognizance is taken by two different Magistrates at different times the trial can be before one of them only. There seems to be no reason why the trial should not proceed before either of the Magistrates who have taken cognizance irrespective of the one having taken cognizance before or after the other. The only section of the Code which in any way renders duplicate proceedings illegal is section 403 which has no application whatever to the present case. But multiplicity of trials can be always prevented by the sections providing for the transfer of cases. But here is no question of multiplicity of trials. There has been only one trial, and unless the District Magistrate's action in taking cognizance was in itself illegal there was no illegality in that trial. I hold that there was no illegality in the part of the District Magistrate in taking cognizance of the case and, therefore, there is no ground for quashing the commitment. The Rule is discharged.

Suhrawardy, J.—I agree in the order proposed to be passed. I wish to add that I am not convinced that the complaint which was subsequently filed before the District Magistrate was for all practical purposes the same as that which was filed and taken cognizance of by the Deputy Magistrate.

W. C. A.

Rule discharged.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 56 OF 1923.

April 11, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ryves.

MAQSUD HUSAIN AND ANOTHER—ACCUSED—APPLICANTS

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 297—Trespass in place of worship—Trespass, meaning of—Sexual intercourse in mosque—Offence.

The word 'trespass' in section 297 of the Penal Code does not mean criminal trespass as defined in other parts of the Code. In this section it must be taken to have been used in its original meaning as covering any injury or offence done coupled with entry upon property. [p. 936, col. 1.] Queen-Empress v. Subhan, 18 A. 395; A. W. N. (1896) 119; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 969, Ram Prasad v. Emperor, 12 Ind. Cas. 300; 33 A. 773; 8 A. L. J. 927; 12 Cr. L. J. 532, In re Ratna Mudali, 10 M. 126; 1 Weir 256; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 839 relied on.

Where a man and a woman enter a mosque and have sexual intercourse in it they are guilty of an offence under section 297 of the Penal Code.

Criminal revision against an order of the Sessions Judge, Moradabad, dated the 22nd December 1922.

Mr. G. W. Dillon, for the Applicants.

The Assistant Government Advocate, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.—Maqsud Hussain and Musammat Allahbandi were convicted by a

DARAJUDDIN AKANDA V. EMPEROR.

Magistrate of the First Class under section 297 of the Indian Penal Code. Their appeal was rejected by the learned Sessions Judge and they have come here in revision. The facts found are as follows:—

In Muhalla Kal, in the town of Sambhal, there is a mosque, somewhat dilapidated, which was built by the father of Khan Bahadur Khan, the chief witness in the case. On the night of 11th October last which was the chehlum, there were illuminations in this Muhalla. Khan Bahadur Khan was one of the persons who had organised these illuminations and at about 11 o'clock that night he was about to enter the mosque to say his evening prayers when, in consequence of information given to him by some boys, he went back to the illuminations and fetched three other Muhammadans and entered the mosque. There they found Maqsud Hussain and Musammal Aliahbandi lying on a cot having sexual connection. The witnesses ran up and seized them both and dragged them outside. A number of Muhammadans at once came up and were so horrified at the desecration of the mosque that they handled the accused somewhat roughly. These are the facts found and they are amply borne out by the evidence. The learned Counsel for the applicants raises two points (1) that no trespass has been proved against the accused within the meaning of the section.

He argues that the word "trespass" in that section must have the same meaning as criminal trespass in other parts of the Code. As long ago as 1896 it was held by a learned Judge of this Court in Queen-Empress v. Subhan (1) that the word trespass in the section must be taken in its original meaning and as a word which covered any injury or offence done and to couple it with entry upon property. That decision has remained unchallenged for 27 years. It was quoted with approval in Ram Prasad v. Emperor (2) by a Divisional Bench of this Court and the same view seems to have been taken by a Bench of the Madras High Court in In re Ratna Mudali (3). In my opinion this argument, therefore, fails.

(1) 18 A. 395; 1 A. W. N. (1896) 119; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 969.

(2) 12 Ind. Cas. 300; 33 A. 773; 8 A. L. J. 927; 12 Cr. L. J. 532.

(3) 10 M. 126; 1 Weir 256; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 839.

The second argument put forward is that what really happened was that the accused and the woman had gone into the mosque solely with the intention of looking at the illuminations and had taken the cot with them merely to sit on it when under a moment of impulse they misconducted themselves, and that, therefore, there was no intent within the meaning of the section. I do not propose even to consider this argument because it is based only on the ingenuity of Counsel and is not supported by any evidence and is in fact flatly contradicted by the statements of the accused themselves and their evidence. According to them they were not inside the mosque at all. There was no cot and there was no misconduct. The conviction, therefore, in my opinion, was right and the sentence appropriate. I reject the application.

Z. K.

Application rejected.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 1123 of 1922.

February 21, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Newbould and Mr. Justice Sukrawardy.

DARAJUDDIN AKANDA AND ANOTHER
—PETITIONERS

versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 363—Kidnapping—Muhammadan minor wife—Custody of husband—Lawful custody—Removal of wife—Offence.

The husband of a Muhammadan girl who has not attained puberty is not the lawful guardian of her person under the Muhammadan Law, and in the absence of proof that he was lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of the minor so as to make the explanation to section 361 of the Penal Code applicable, the forcible removal of such a girl from his custody is not an offence punishable under section 363 of that Code. [p. 937, col. 1.]

Criminal revision against an order of the Sessions Judge, Dinajpur, dated the 25th November 1922, affirming that of the Deputy Magistrate, Dinajpur, dated the 14th August 1922.

KANSHI RAM v. EMPEROR.

Babu Bimal Chandra Das Gupta, with him Babu Debendra Narain Bhattacharjee, for the Petitioners.

JUDGMENT.—The petitioners have been convicted of kidnapping a girl named Sahya Khatun from lawful guardianship and sentenced under section 363, Indian Penal Code, to two months' rigorous imprisonment each. The girl in question is a Muhammadan girl whose age according to the case for the prosecution is 8 or 9 and according to defence about two years less.

This Rule was granted on the ground that the husband of the girl from whose care she was taken was not her lawful guardian under the Muhammadan Law, nor was he proved to have been lawfully entrusted with the care or custody of the minor so as to make the explanation of section 361, Indian Penal Code, applicable. We hold that the Rule must be made absolute on this ground. The husband of a Muhammadan girl who has not attained puberty is not the lawful guardian of her person under the Muhammadan Law. The lawful guardian of such a person is ordinarily her mother, and in the present case, since the mother is dead the lawful guardian is the mother's mother who is also the mother of the petitioner Darajuddin. The learned Magistrate in his explanation states that the minor girl was in temporary guardianship of her husband on behalf of his maternal grandmother who was the lawful guardian. But there is no finding in either of the judgments nor do the facts seem to support the view that the maternal grandmother entrusted the girl's husband with the care or custody of the minor.

That being so, we make this Rule absolute. We set aside the conviction of and the sentence passed on the petitioners, we acquit them of the charge under section 363, Indian Penal Code, and direct that their bail-bonds be discharged.

W. C. A.

Rule made absolute.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION NO. 635
OF 1922.

November 21, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Moti Sagar.

KANSHI RAM—PETITIONER

versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 517, 520—Application for restoration of property—Limitation—Power of Court.

No period of limitation is prescribed for an application under section 517 or 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and such an application can always be made within a reasonable time of the termination of the proceedings in which the property in dispute was produced. [p. 938, col. 1.]

The words "make any further orders that may be just" in section 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code are intended to enable superior Courts to pass proper orders in cases where property has been erroneously disposed of under section 517 of the Code. [p. 938, col. 2.]

During the investigation into a case of theft, certain currency notes were produced before the Police by the petitioner. One T. was eventually convicted of criminal misappropriation in respect of the notes and the notes were made over to the complainant under the orders of the Magistrate. The petitioner was subsequently tried and convicted of an offence under section 411 of the Penal Code in respect of the notes, but was acquitted by the Sessions Judge on appeal. Nearly six months after his acquittal he applied to the Sessions Judge for restoration of the notes to him. The Sessions Judge rejected the application on the ground that it was barred by limitation:

Held, (1) that the application was in no sense an appeal against the order of the Magistrate making over the notes to the complainant but an independent application to the Sessions Judge himself with a view to his taking action under section 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code; [p. 938, col. 1.]

(2) that as such, no period of limitation was applicable to it; [p. 938, col. 1.]

(3) that under section 520 of the Code the Sessions Judge was possessed of very wide powers and could pass any order that he deemed just. [p. 938, col. 2.]

Petition, under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code for revision of the order of the Sessions Judge, Karnal, dated the 11th February 1922.

Lala Anant Ram Khosla, for Mr. Raj Krishna, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Ram Lal, for the Government Advocate, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application in revision against an order passed by the Sessions Judge of Karnal under section 520, Criminal Procedure Code.

BHABANI PROSAD MOITRA V. HARI CHARAN BHATTACHARJEE.

The facts are briefly these:—

One Rahim Bakhsh, a Lambardar, lost a large sum of money in currency-notes in January 1920. In May, the Police received information that the notes were in the possession of one Thana, a Kumhar of Ramgarh. As a result of this information, Thana was prosecuted and convicted of criminal misappropriation.

During the investigation, Thana informed the Police that he had given notes for Rs. 500 to Kanshi Ram, the present petitioner, who was one of his creditors. Kanshi Ram is alleged to have admitted his guilt before the Police and to have given up Rs. 400 in cash. Proceedings were taken against him, and he was convicted by an Honorary Magistrate under section 411, Indian Penal Code, of the offence of dishonestly receiving stolen property knowing the same to be stolen property. On appeal to the Sessions Judge the conviction was set aside, and the petitioner was acquitted. No orders were passed by the Trial Court or by the Sessions Judge with respect to Rs. 400 which had been recovered from him by the Police in the course of the investigation and made over to the complainant by the order of the Magistrate on the conviction of Thana in June 1920.

In January 1922, about six months after his acquittal, Kanshi Ram made an application to the Sessions Judge for the restoration of this money. The Sessions Judge rejected the application on the ground that it was barred by limitation.

In my opinion the order of the learned Sessions Judge is erroneous and must be set aside. The application for the return of Rs. 400 made by the petitioner was in no sense an application by way of an appeal against the orders of the Trying Magistrate directing return of the money to the complainant but an independent application to the Sessions Judge himself with a view to his taking action under sections 517 and 520, Criminal Procedure Code. No period of limitation is prescribed for such an application and it could, in my opinion, always be made within a reasonable time of the date that an accused person is acquitted of the crime with which he is charged. It appears that the learned Sessions Judge has entirely overlooked the provisions of section 520, Criminal Procedure Code, under which he is possessed of very wide powers to pass any orders that might be just. The words "and make any further orders that may be just" in section 520 are obviously intended to cover cases of this nature and to enable superior Courts to pass proper orders in cases where property has been erroneously disposed of under section 517, Criminal Procedure Code.

I would reverse the orders of the Sessions Judge and return the case with directions that he should hear the application and decide the same according to law after giving notice to the complainant.

Z. K.

*Orders reversed;
Case returned.*

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION NO. 289
OF 1923.

April 20, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Buckland and Mr. Justice Cuming.

BHABANI PROSAD MOITRA alias
DOMAN CHANDRA MOITRA—
PETITIONER

versus

HARI CHARAN BHATTACHARJEE—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 367—Judgment in criminal case, contents of—Failure to consider essential points.

Accused was convicted of offences under sections 426 and 447 of the Penal Code. It did not appear from the judgment that the Magistrate had considered the knowledge or the intention with which the accused had done the act complained of as constituting mischief, or that he had come to any conclusion as to whether the accused entered into or upon property in the possession of the complainant or what his intention was, if he did so:

Held, that the judgment was bad and could not be allowed to stand. [p. 939, col. 1.]

Though a Magistrate is at liberty to refer to the evidence in a criminal proceeding in a manner equally appropriate to civil proceedings he should not lose sight of the fact that he is dealing with a criminal matter and should ultimately dispose of the case purely from the standpoint of the Criminal law. [p. 939, col. 1.]

TEJA SINGH v. EMPEROR.

Babus Dasarathi Sanyal and Lalit Mohan Sanyal, for the Petitioner.

JUDGMENT.

Buckland, J.—The Judgment of the Trying Magistrate in this case is most unsatisfactory. He has not considered in his judgment the knowledge or the intention with which the accused caused the bamboofencing to be removed. Nor does it appear from his judgment that he came to the conclusion that the accused entered into or upon property in the possession of the complainant, or what his intention was in trespassing, if he did so. The result is that it is extremely difficult from the judgment to ascertain what was in the mind of the Magistrate when he convicted the accused under sections 447 and 426 of the Indian Penal Code. He seems to have discussed the case as if it was of a civil nature. Having done so, he had to deal with it as a criminal trial which in fact it was. It would have been much better if the Magistrate had considered whether or not the case was of a civil nature and if he came to the conclusion that only a civil wrong had been committed he should have said so and dealt with the case accordingly. If, on the other hand, he was of opinion that a criminal offence had been committed, though he might refer to the evidence in a manner equally appropriate to civil proceedings, he should not have lost sight of this fact that he was dealing with a criminal prosecution and ultimately he should have disposed of the case purely from the stand-point of the Criminal law. This judgment of the learned Magistrate, in my opinion, is neither the one nor the other.

The judgment and order of the Deputy Magistrate of Berhampore, dated the 6th December 1922, must be set aside. The case is a petty one, but, even so, in the circumstances, there must be re-trial. The case is, therefore, remanded in order that it may be tried by some other Magistrate and we leave it to the District Magistrate to nominate such Magistrate.

The sums ordered to be paid, if paid, will be refunded.

Cuming, J.—I agree with the order.

z. k.

*Order set aside;
Case remanded.*

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL NO. 1084 OF 1922.

January 29, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Harrison.

TEJA SINGH AND OTHERS—APPELLANTS
versus

EMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 403—Trial in Native State—Trial for same offence in British India, legality of.

A dacoity was committed in British India and the accused were shortly after caught in a Native State with the stolen property. They were tried and convicted by the State Court of an offence under section 411 of the Penal Code. After serving out their sentence they were tried in British India on a charge under section 395 of the Penal Code, but the evidence only established an offence under section 411 of the Code against them.

Held, that their trial by the State Court barred their trial by the Court in British India on the same facts and for the same offence, by virtue of the provisions of section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Criminal appeal from the order of the Magistrate, First Class, with section 30 powers, at Jullundur, dated the 31st October 1922.

Diwan Ram Lal, for the Appellants.

Mr. M. Saleem, for the Government Advocate, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—A dacoity is said to have been committed in Mauza Kotla Heran, in the Jullundur District, on the night between the 14th and 15th March, two head of cattle being removed. On the following day three men were captured in the adjoining State of Kapurthala and were sent up for trial in the Kapurthala State on a charge under section 394, Indian Penal Code. The Sessions Judge of Kapurthala discharged them under section 394, but convicted them under section 411 and sentenced them to undergo two years' rigorous imprisonment. On appeal the High Court of Kapurthala reduced the sentence to one year, which they have undergone. On being released from Jail they were once more sent up for trial in the Jullundur District on a charge under section 395, Indian Penal Code, and have been convicted and sentenced to undergo imprisonment for a further period of five years. They appeal, urging that section 403, Criminal Procedure Code, bars the present trial and I have heard arguments at length on the question of whether the Kapurthala Sessions Judge had jurisdiction to try the case for an offence alleged to have been committed in British India. It is by no means clear whether the accused are the subjects of His Highness the Maharaja of Kapurthala or of the King-Emperor, there being one passage in the Magistrate's judgment in which they are apparently considered to be State subjects while on the other hand they are described as residents of a village in the Amritsar District. It is, I find, unnecessary to go into this point as the evidence on which they have now been convicted as opposed to the evidence on which they were convicted of receiving stolen property is neither convincing nor sufficient. It consists of the statement of one witness, a youth of 17 named Banta Singh (P. W. No. 2) who says that the six men broke into the enclosure on a dark night and removed the cattle, that he followed and saw them, that they then came back and tied him up. After they had been arrested with the stolen property he is said to have identified them. Agreeing with the Sessions Judge of Kapurthala and being by no means satisfied with this evidence I find that the only offence established against these men is under section 411, Indian Penal Code, of receiving stolen property. It is not contended that the Kapurthala Courts had not jurisdiction to try these men, whether they were British subjects or not for the offence committed in Kapurthala where they were caught with the stolen property. The only remaining point urged by Counsel for the Crown is that the Magistrate has rightly held that the Sessions Judge was not a competent Court inasmuch as there had been no committal proceedings and that this was very serious irregularity. In the judgment of the High Court this point was noticed but it was held that it did not vitiate the proceedings. This being so, I think the Magistrate was going beyond his province in questioning the jurisdiction of the Sessions Judge.

NITYANANDA KOER v. RAKHAHARI MISRA.

The accused, therefore, having once been tried and convicted and having undergone a sentence for the offence, they could not be tried again. I, therefore, accept the appeal and acquit them.

Appeal accepted.

CALCUTTA HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION NO. 272

OF 1923.

April 24, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice C. C. Ghose and Mr. Justice Cuming.

NITYANANDA KOER—PETITIONER

versus

RAKHAHARI MISRA—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 247—Acquittal—Revival of proceedings—Jurisdiction of Magistrate.

An order of acquittal passed under section 247 of the Criminal Procedure Code, so long as it is not set aside by a competent Court is a bar to fresh proceedings in respect of the same offence.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to revise proceedings in a case which has terminated in an order of acquittal under section 247 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Rule against the District Magistrate, Burdwan.

Babu Panchanon Chowdhury, for the Petitioner.

Babu Jyotis Chunder Sarcar, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This Rule was issued calling upon the District Magistrate of Burdwan and on the complainant to show cause why the conviction of the petitioner and the sentence passed on him should not be set aside on the ground that a previous order of his acquittal which had been passed under section 247 of the Code of Criminal Procedure on the 8th August 1922, not having been set aside by a competent authority, the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to try and convict the petitioner for the same offences in respect of which the order of acquittal had been passed.

The facts which have given rise to the application on which this Rule was issued, shortly stated, are as follows:—The petitioner was summoned under sections 426 and 447 of the Indian Penal Code (both summons-cases) to appear on 24th July 1922. On that date a warrant was issued against the accused and the 8th August 1922 was fixed for the next hearing of the case. On the 8th August the Sub-Divisional Magistrate before whom the case was pending was absent and another Magistrate, Babu S. Ghose, was acting in his place and was in charge of the criminal business of the Sub-Division in accordance with the standing orders of the District

KALIAPERUMAL NAIDU v. BAVAJI SAHIB.

Magistrate. When the case against the accused was put up before the last mentioned Magistrate, the complainant was found to be absent. Thereupon an order under section 247 acquitting the accused was passed. It appears that on the same date after the order of acquittal had been passed an application for the revival of the proceedings was presented to the Magistrate. On the 11th August 1922, the learned Magistrate revived the proceedings against the accused which had come to an end on the 8th August. Thereafter, the case was transferred to the file of another Magistrate, Maulvi Ezahar Hossain, and this last mentioned Magistrate tried the accused under sections 447 and 426 and convicted him on the 28th November 1922, and sentenced him to pay a fine of Rs. 50 and in default to undergo a rigorous imprisonment for six weeks.

It appears from the record of the case which is now before us that on the 8th August 1922, an order of acquittal under section 247 was passed by Babu S. Ghose. Now that order under section 247 was one which could only have been set aside by this Court if an application had been made for setting aside the same. No such application was made to this Court and it, therefore, follows that no competent authority has set aside the order of acquittal which had been passed on the 8th August 1922. Under these circumstances, the question arises, "was it open to the Magistrate to pass the order for revival of the proceedings on the 11th August 1922." We are of opinion that the Magistrate had no jurisdiction to set aside the order of acquittal passed under section 247 and revive the proceedings against the accused on the 11th August 1922. The order of acquittal was in existence on the 11th August 1922 and the order of acquittal not having been set aside by a competent authority is still in existence and it follows, therefore, that it operated as a bar on the 11th August 1922, and on all subsequent dates to a fresh trial of the accused under the sections mentioned above.

The Rule is, therefore, made absolute. The conviction and sentence are set aside and the fines, if paid, will be refunded.

Z. K.

*Rule made absolute.MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE No. 374 OF 1922.

(CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION No. 323 OF 1921.)

January 31, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Venkatasubba Rao.
KALIAPERUMAL NAIDU—PETITIONER
versus

BAVAJI SAHIB—ACCUSED—RESPONDENT.
Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 250—Complaint, vexatious, to Village Magistrate—Compensation.

A person who makes a complaint to a Village Magistrate of a bailable offence, knowing that the latter must, in the ordinary course of his duty, report the substance of the complaint to the Police, gives information to a Police Officer within the meaning of section 250 of the Criminal Procedure Code just as effectively as if he went in person to the Police Station, and where the complaint is ultimately found to be frivolous or vexatious, an order directing the complainant to pay compensation is perfectly legal. [p. 942, col. 2.]

Nachimuthu Chetty v. Muthuswami Chetty, 24 Ind. Cas. 167; 39 M. 1006; (1914) M. W. N. 804; 27 M. L. J. 37; 15 Cr. L. J. 431, Margasahaya Chetty v. Gandala Nadiabba, 36 Ind. Cas. 843; 32 M. L. J. 78; 18 Cr. L. J. 11; (1917) M. W. N. 86; 5 L. W. 290 and Thonohadavai Awalla v. Anniaman Mannil Kuttiah, 36 Ind. Cas. 471; (1917) M. W. N. 155; 4 L. W. 73; 17 Cr. L. J. 503, followed.

King-Emperor v. Thammana Reddi, 25 M. 667; 2 Weir 318, In re Arulanantham Pillai, 13 Ind. Cas. 221; 22 M. L. J. 138; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 558; 10 M. L. T. 550; 13 Cr. L. J. 29, followed.

Petition, under sections 435 and 439 of the Code of the Criminal Procedure, 1898, praying the High Court to revise an order of the Court of the Additional District Magistrate, Tanjore, dated the 11th January 1922, in Criminal Revision Case No. 21 and Criminal Appeal No. 24 of 1921, preferred against an order of the Court of the Stationary Second Class Magistrate, Tanjore, in C. C. No. 392 of 1921.

Dr. S. Swaminathan, for the Petitioner.
Mr. V. L. Ethiraj, Amicus Curie, for the Accused.

ORDER.—The Second Class Magistrate of Tanjore directed P. W. No. 4 to pay to the accused a sum of Rs. 35 as compensation under section 250 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and the District Magistrate confirmed the order.

The facts are these: P. W. No. 1 lost a bull, P. W. No. 1 and P. W. No. 4 who were residents of a village called Ramsapatti, thereupon went to Ammapet, the village where the accused was living, and P. W. No. 4 gave information to P. W. No. 2 the Village Magistrate of Ammapet to the effect that a bull of P. W. No. 1 was stolen and that the accused was the thief. Before taking any action P. W. No. 2 desired to have a report from the Village Magistrate of Ramsapatti, who accordingly forwarded to him Exhibit A which confirmed the information given by P. W. No. 4. On the receipt of this report P. W. No. 2 communicated with the Police who charged the accused with theft or, in the alternative, receiving stolen property. It must be added that the Police, subsequent to the receipt of the communication from the Village Magistrate of Ammapet, but before charging the accused with the offence mentioned above, received from P. W. No. 1, the owner of the bull, information under section 153, Criminal Procedure Code. The lower Courts found that the accused was not guilty and directed P. W. No. 4 to pay compensation to the accused.

KALIAPERUMAL NAIDU v. BAVAJI SAHIB.

On behalf of P. W. No. 4 it is contended that the order directing him to pay compensation is, in the circumstances, illegal.

The final contention is that a Village Magistrate is not a Police Officer under section 250 and that as P. W. No. 4 gave information only to a Village Magistrate, an order could not be made directing him to pay compensation. Reliance is placed on King-Emperor v. Thammana Reddi (1) and In re Arulanantham Pillai (2) and these cases, no doubt, support the contention aforesaid. But a different view was taken in three later cases, Nachimuthu Chetty v. Muthusami Chetty (3), Margasahaya Chetty v. Gandala Nadabba (4) and Thonokadavath Awalla v. Amman Mamthal Kuttiall (5). The principle underlying these decisions is tersely stated in the following passage in the judgment of Ayling, J., in Nachimuthu Chetty v. Muthusami Chetty (3): "In other words, a man who complains to a Village Magistrate of a bailable offence knowing that the latter must, in the ordinary course of his duty, report the substance of the complaint to the Police gives information to the Police just as effectively as if he went in person to the Police Station."

My own view coincides with that taken in the aforesaid three cases and I, therefore, hold that the information, though given to a Village Magistrate, comes within the terms of section 250.

Dr. Swaminathan has also argued that P. W. No. 2 before acting on the information of P. W. No. 4 obtained confirmation from the Village Magistrate of Ramsapatti and that this fact distinguishes the present case from the cases referred to above. I fail to see how P. W. No. 4's responsibility is in any manner affected by reason of the fact that P. W. No. 2 was cautious enough to obtain a report from a responsible person who might be supposed to give, as far as possible, a correct account of the occurrence.

It is next contended that, as P. W. No. 1, the owner of the bull, gave information under section 154, the order in question directing P. W. No. 4 to pay compensation is illegal. This argument again is untenable. The First Information to the authorities was that given by P. W. No. 4 and it led to the initiation of the proceedings. The subsequent information given by P. W. No. 1 is of no significance in deciding the question under consideration.

It is unnecessary to consider whether on the facts an order could also have been made against P. W. No. 1; but so far as P. W. No. 4 is concerned, he is liable, and I see no reason to interfere with the order passed.

As the accused is unrepresented in this Court, Mr. V. L. Ethiraj has at my instance argued the case on his behalf and brought to my notice the decisions referred to above and I desire to express my indebtedness to the learned Counsel.

V. N. V.

. Petition dismissed.

(1) 25 M. 667; 2 Weir 318.
 (2) 13 Ind. Cas. 221; 22 M. L. J. 138; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 558; 10 M. L. T. 550; 13 Cr. L. J. 29.
 (3) 24 Ind. Cas. 167; 39 M. 1006; (1914) M. W. N. 804; 27 M. L. J. 37; 15 Cr. L. J. 431.
 (4) 38 Ind. Cas. 843; 32 M. L. J. 78; 18 Cr. L. J. 11; (1917) M. W. N. 86; 5 L. W. 290.
 (5) 36 Ind. Cas. 471; (1917) M. W. N. 155; 4 L. W. 73; 17 Cr. L. J. 503.

PANCHAM v. EMPEROR.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REFERENCE NO. 173 OF 1923.

March 22, 1923.

Present :—Mr. Justice Walsh.

PANCHAM

versus

EMPEROR THROUGH BACHHA AND OTHERS.

*Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 250—
Frivolous and vexatious prosecution—Compensation —Formal notice to show cause, whether essential.*

Section 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not require that in the case of a complaint being found frivolous or vexatious, the complainant must be 'called upon to show cause' why he should not be made to pay compensation; it only requires any objection which is urged to be recorded and considered. The section is not intended to multiply the proceedings but to be applied in a summary manner.

A party who has the right to make a formal objection and have it recorded can waive that right by his acquiescence.

Gulzar Lal v. Gunga Ram, 14 Ind. Cas. 652; 9 A. L. J. 170; 13 Cr. L. J. 268, distinguished.

Pandurang Narayan v. Laxman Babaji, 3 Bom. L. R. 777 and Suchandi Kolitani v. Dom Kolita, 5 C. W. N. 214, not followed.

Criminal Reference made by the Sessions Judge, Cawnpore.

FACTS.—The Trial Court, having come to the conclusion that the prosecution story was entirely false, and the complaint a vexatious one, acquitted the accused and ordered the complainant to pay Rs. 20 to each of the three accused. At the time the order of acquittal and compensation was passed the accused raised no objection and the Court did not specifically ask them to raise any objections or show cause why the order of compensation should not be passed against them. In revision to the Sessions Judge it was contended that the provision in section 250, Criminal Procedure Code, which lays down that 'before making any direction for payment of compensation the Magistrate shall record and consider any objection which the complainant may urge against the making of such direction' was imperative and the Magistrate was bound to call upon the complainant to show cause why he should not be ordered to pay compensation. The following rulings were cited in support of this contention:—Pandurang Narayan v. Laxman Babaji (1), Suchandi Kolitani v. Dom Kolita (2) and Gulzar Lal v. Gunga Ram (3).

The Sessions Judge was of opinion that the contention was well-founded. Hence the reference.

JUDGMENT.—In my view the learned Sessions Judge has taken too technical a view of this matter which, if it is sound, is likely to defeat the ends aimed at by the section. He would have done better to examine the section rather than the cases. He has fallen into a trap in adopting the phraseology that the Magistrate should have "called upon the complainant to show cause." The section does not require anything of the kind and, if any body has said that he ought to go through any special formality of that kind, I beg respectfully to differ. In these Provinces there is too much "calling upon to show cause" about every trivial question. The section enables the Magistrate to compensate in the case of a frivolous or vexatious accusation, "by the order of discharge." It only requires any objection which is urged to be recorded and considered. It is clear that this section was not intended to multiply the proceedings but to be applied in a summary manner. If the complainant has no real objection to urge there is nothing to record, as the Joint Magistrate justly remarks. Multiplication of proceedings only adds unnecessarily to the burden upon the parties and in a small matter of this kind where the compensation is Rs. 20 each it would be obviously a remedy worse than the disease to issue formal notice. A party, moreover, who has the right to make a formal objection and have it recorded can waive that right by his acquiescence. As the District Magistrate says, unless the complainant in this case was dumb or imbecile there was nothing to prevent his objecting. I am not concerned to consider the decisions in other Provinces in a small matter of this sort. The authority quoted by the learned Sessions Judge from the Allahabad Law Journal is inapplicable because the order which was held to be bad was made in the absence of and behind the back of the party against

(2) 5 C. W. N. 214.

(3) 14 Ind. Cas. 652; 9 A. L. J. 170; 13 Cr. L. J. 268.

(1) 3 Bom. L. R. 777.

MADDU VENKAYYA v. MADOU PAIDAMMA.

(whom it was made. The order for compensation must stand. Let the record be returned to the lower Court.

M. A. A.

Record returned.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE NO. 91 OF 1923.

(CASE REFERRED NO. 17 OF 1923.)

March 12, 1923.

Present:—Justice Sir William Ayling, Kt., and Mr. Justice Odgers.

MADDU VENKAYYA—PETITIONER

versus

MADOU PAIDAMMA alias KAMIREDDI

PAIDAMMA AND ANOTHER—COUNTER

PETITIONERS.

*Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 488—
Order of maintenance—Subsequent civil suit nega-tiving relationship—Stay of maintenance order.*

Where the relationship, on which a maintenance order under section 488, Criminal Procedure Code, is based, has been declared by the final decree of a competent Civil Court not to exist, the person adversely affected is entitled to ask the Magistrate to abstain from giving any further effect to his order of maintenance.

Mahomed Abid Ali Kumar Kadar v. Ludden Sahiba, 14 C. 276; 11 Ind. Jur. 296; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 183; Illath Narayanan Moosad v. Kathil Itticherry Amma, 42 Ind. Cas. 331; 33 M. L. J. 449; 22 M. L. T. 293; 6 L. W. 536; 18 Cr. L. J. 971; (1918) M. W. N. 65, followed.

Case referred for the orders of the High Court, under section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code, by the District Magistrate, Vizagapatam, in R. C. No. 4052-22-C-2, dated the 6th November 1922.

Mr. P. R. Srinivasa Aiyangar, for the Petitioner.

The Public Prosecutor, for the Crown.
ORDER.—The petitioner in this case was directed by the Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Narasapatam, under section 488 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to pay maintenance at the rate of Rs. 3 a month for his illegitimate child.

He subsequently brought a suit in the District Munsif's Court of Yellamanchelli and succeeded in securing a final decision on appeal to the Subordinate Judge of Vizagapatam to the effect that the child was not his. On this he applied to the Sub-Divisional Magistrate drawing his attention to the decision of the Subordinate Judge and making the following prayer: "Your petitioner, therefore, prays your Honourable Court to abstain from giving further effect to the order dated May 21st 1918, the order awarding maintenance, in view of the decree and judgment of the Additional Subordinate Judge declaring that the second counter-petitioner was not born to the petitioner and that the petitioner is not bound to maintain her." This petition has been returned with the following endorsement: "The petitioner is free to seek whatever remedy he likes against the order of this Court which cannot be re-considered." The order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate is obviously based on a misconception. There is no question of re-considering the order of maintenance for which no provision is made in the Code, but where the relationship on which the maintenance order is based has been declared by the final decree of a competent Civil Court not to exist, it is open to the person adversely affected thereby to ask the Magistrate to abstain from giving any further effect to his order of maintenance. This has been laid down in Mahomed Abid Ali Kumar Kadar v. Ludden Sahiba (1) and it is in accordance with the view of the law taken by a Bench of this Court in Illath Narayanan Moosad v. Kathil Itticherry Amma (2), although in that case the learned Judges were dealing with a maintenance order passed after the decision of the Civil Court.

The order of the Sub-Divisional Magistrate is, therefore, set aside and he is directed to restore the petition to file and dispose of it in the light of the above remarks.

V. N. V.

Order set aside.

(1) 14 C. 276; 11 Ind. Jur. 296; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 183.

(2) 42 Ind. Cas. 331; 33 M. L. J. 449; 22 M. L. T. 293; 6 L. W. 536; 18 Cr. L. J. 971; (1918) M. W. N. 65.

RAM SEWAK RAI V. SHEO NAIK RAI.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 800 OF 1921.

February 15, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ryves and Mr.
Justice Gokul Prasad.RAM SEWAK RAI AND OTHERS—DE-FENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

SHEO NAIK RAI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS
—RESPONDENTS.*Transfer of Property Act (I V of 1882), s. 68—Compromise in execution of decree—Mortgage, usufructuary, created—Registration, absence of—Long recognition of mortgage by parties—Estoppel
—Hindu Law—Mortgage—Destruction of security —Substitution—Government revenue paid by mortgagee—Recovery from mortgagor—Covenant, implied.*

In 1869, the parties to a money-decree came to an agreement in execution of the decree, which was embodied in an application made to the Court. According to the agreement it was acknowledged that a certain sum was due to the plaintiff, and he was put in possession of certain plots of land belonging to the defendant, it being agreed that he should take the usufruct in lieu of the interest due on the debt, and that the defendant could redeem the land on payment of the amount of the debt. It was further agreed that if the plaintiff was dispossessed he should then proceed with the execution of the decree. The Court accepted the compromise and plaintiff obtained possession of the land. In 1920 the land was submerged by the action of a river and the plaintiff sued under section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act, requiring the defendant to give an equivalent security to the plaintiff for the land or to pay up the amount of the debt together with a certain sum paid by the plaintiff as Government revenue :

Held, (1) that even though the due formalities had not been complied with no objection to the validity of the mortgage could be taken after it had been acted upon by the parties for fifty years; [p. 946, col. 1.]

Abid Husain v. Asghar Husain, 19 Ind. Cas. 445; 11 A.L.J. 506, Salamat-uz-zamani Begam v. Masha Allah Khan 43 Ind. Cas. 645; 40 A. 187; 16 A. L. J. 98, followed.

(2) that even if section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act was not applicable to the case owing to the fact that the mortgage had been created before the passing of that Act, the principles of Hindu Law, by which the parties were governed, applicable to such a case were exactly the same as those embodied in section 68; [p. 945, col. 1.]

(3) that the plaintiff having been compelled to pay the Government revenue owing to the inability of the defendant to do so; and in order to avoid being dispossessed from the land, the defendant was liable to pay the amount to the plaintiff; [p. 946, col. 1.]

(4) that the condition contained in the compromise that in the event of dispossession the remedy of the plaintiff was to execute his decree could not apply to a case of diluvion; [p. 946, col. 2.]

(5) that, therefore, the plaintiff's suit must be decreed. [p. 946, col. 2.]

In every contract of usufructuary mortgage there is at least an implied contract for quiet possession and this implies a contract to pay the Government revenue in order to avoid dispossession for non-payment. [p. 946, col. 2.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Ghazipur, dated the 4th April 1921.

Mr. U. S. Bajpai, for the Appellants.

Mr. Iqbal Ahmad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In the year 1869 the predecessors of the plaintiffs put in execution a simple money-decree which they had obtained against one of the defendants and the predecessor-in-title of the others. In those proceedings the parties came to an agreement which was embodied in an application made to Court. According to that agreement it was acknowledged that the sum due to the plaintiffs was Rs. 301, and certain plots of land measuring 3 bighas 12 biswas belonging to the defendants were put into possession of the plaintiffs and it was agreed that they should take the usufruct in lieu of the interest due on the debt and that the defendant could redeem on payment of Rs. 301. It was further agreed that if the plaintiffs were dispossessed they should then proceed with the execution of the decree. The Court passed orders in terms of this compromise and the plaintiffs obtained possession. They remained in possession of the whole land until the year 1884, when, during the settlement, the area in their possession was reduced to 2 bighas 2 biswas and 13 biswansis. In the year 1916 that area was further reduced owing to diluvion and in 1920 the whole of it was submerged by the river. This suit was brought under section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act requiring the defendants to give an equivalent security to the plaintiffs for the land which had disappeared or to pay up the Rs. 301 plus Rs. 78 for damages and Rs. 185 for Government Revenue and interest said to have been paid by the plaintiffs for the defendants since the year 1877. The defendants resisted the suit on many grounds. They denied that the document created a mortgage at all, it not being stamped or registered or attested. They further said that section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act had no application because the mortgage, if any, was executed long before the Act came into force. But the two main grounds on which the suit was resisted were that according to the terms of the compromise the plaintiffs' only remedy was to execute the decree and if they attempted to execute the decree the application would be barred by limitation because their cause of action arose in 1916 and this suit was filed in 1920. Furthermore, if the proceedings in execution were taken out then the items for Government Revenue and interest could not be added. The second main ground is, that there was no contract between the parties by which the plaintiffs could recover the Government Revenue. The Trial Court in an excellent judgment decreed the suit and that decree has been upheld by the lower Appellate Court. The defendants come here in second appeal, and reiterate the pleas taken in the Court below. In our opinion they have no force. All the arguments as to want of stamp, registration and so forth in the document of 1869 are set at rest by the principles laid down in the case of Abid Husain v. Asghar Husain (1) which was confirmed by their Lordships of the Privy Council on appeal, and in Salamat-uz-zamani Begam v. Masha Allah Khan (2). Assuming that all due formalities had not been complied with, it is far too late in the year 1920 to challenge a mortgage which has in fact been given effect to for over 50 years. As to the argument that section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act does not apply to mortgages executed before the Transfer of Property Act, it is enough to say that even if it does not the Hindu Law is exactly to the same effect and that admittedly governs the parties. With regard to the Government Revenue it has been found by both Courts and the finding is conclusive in second appeal that in the year 1877 the mortgagors themselves, that is, the defendants, applied to the Taksildar stating that they were no longer able to pay the revenue of this land and in consequence revenue was collected from the plaintiffs. As to the argument that there was no contract originally for the payment of the Government revenue we think this is not correct. In every contract of usufructuary mortgage there is at least an implied contract for quiet possession and this implies a contract to pay the Government revenue. If the plaintiffs had not paid the Government revenue they would have been dispossessed from the land. The only other argument which it is necessary to consider is that the only remedy of the plaintiffs was in the execution department. The simple answer to this would be that the parties never contemplated the total destruction of the land by diluvion. If the land had remained the same and if dispossession had been caused by the defendants, there might have been some force in this argument, but as the facts are found, we think that the proper remedy of the plaintiffs was by a suit and that the suit has been rightly decided. We, therefore, dismiss this appeal with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

BOLIMATI MURIGADU v. NALLA BAPADU:

Z. K.

*Appeal dismissed.MADRAS HIGH COURT.CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 128
OF 1922.

February 28, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Krishnan.BOLIMATI MURIGADU AND OTHERS—PETITIONERS versus*NALLA BAPADU AND OTHERS—
RESPONDENTS.Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIII, r. 5 (d)—Pauper petition—Cause of action—Extraneous evidence, admissibility of.*

In an application for permission to sue in formal pauperis, in order to ascertain if the plaint discloses a cause of action under O. XXXIII, r. 5, of the Civil Procedure Code, it is not competent to the Court to go beyond the allegations in the plaint

(1) 19 Ind. Cas. 445; 11 A. L. J. 506.

(2) 43 Ind. Cas. 645; 40 A. L. J. 187; 16 A. L. J. 98.

GHISWA V. DEO NARAIN.

and on extraneous evidence to find whether the plaintiff is likely to succeed on the cause of action alleged.

Govindasami Pillai v. Municipal Council, Kumbakonam, 45 Ind. Cas. 95; 41 M. 620; 34 M. L. J. 399, followed.

Petition, under section 115 of Act V of 1908, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Principal District Munsif, Rajahmundry, dated the 1st of September 1921, dismissing the Original Petition No. 5 of 1921 (Petition under O. XXXIII, r. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code).

Mr. T. Ramachandra Rao, for the Petitioners.

Mr. T. S. Raghunatha Rao, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The order of the District Munsif is clearly opposed to the ruling in Govindasami Pillai v. Municipal Council, Kumbakonam (1). The learned Munsif has found that the petitioners are paupers but has travelled beyond the four corners of the plaint and relied on evidence to hold that the petitioners have "no cause of action." The plaint certainly discloses a cause of action and it was not open to the Court to go beyond it and come to a finding which, in reality, is a finding that the petitioners are not likely to succeed on the cause of action alleged. The civil revision petition is allowed and the order of the lower Court is set aside and the petitioners are given leave to sue in forma pauperis. Costs will abide and follow the result of the suit.

V. N. V.

Petition accepted.

(1) 45 Ind. Cas. 95; 41 M. 620; 34 M. L. J. 399.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL, NO. 1659 OF 1921.

April 18, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Daniels.

GHISWA—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

DEO NARAIN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), ss. 95, 167—Suit for declaration that defendant is sub-tenant of plaintiff—Civil Courts, jurisdiction of.

A suit for a declaration that the defendant is a sub-tenant of the plaintiff, is a suit which comes under section 95 of the Agra Tenancy Act, and the Civil Court has no jurisdiction to try it. [p. 948, col. 2.]

Jagar Nath v. Ajudhya Singh, 17 Ind. Cas. 376; 35 A. 14; 10 A. L. J. 408 and Kanhi Ram v. Durga Prasad, 27 Ind. Cas. 913; 37 A. 223; 13 A. L. J. 278, distinguished.

Second appeal against the decree of the First Additional District Judge, Aligarh, dated the 28th June 1921.

Messrs. B. K. Mukerji and N. C. Vaish, for the Appellant.

Dr. S. N. Sen, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal and cross-objection arise out of a suit brought in the Munsif's Court for a declaration. The plaintiff-respondent, Deo Narain, filed with his plaint two lie to, list A and list B. As regards the plots in list A he alleged that he and certain pro forma defendants were the sole occupancy tenants of, and were in possession of, these plots, and he asked for a declaration that the answering defendant, Ghiswa, the appellant in this Court, had no concern with or right in those plots. As regards the plots in list B of which Ghiswa was admittedly in possession, he asked for a declaration that Ghiswa was his sub-tenant. The Trial Court dismissed the suit as not cognizable by the Civil Court. As regards the list B plots the learned District Judge agreed with the Trial Court. As regards the other plots he held that the suit was not barred, and on the merits that the plaintiff was, and the defendant was not, the occupancy tenant of these plots. He accordingly decreed the suit as regards the list A plots. The defendant appeals in regard to the list A plots and the plaintiff files a cross-objection as regards the list B plots. The appellants learned Counsel has urged three objections:

First, he says, that the suit is in substance one for the division of a holding which is barred by section 32 of the Tenancy Act. This objection is based solely on a loose use of the word "holding" at one place in the District Judge's judgment. As a matter of fact, the lands are not one holding. On the contrary, as the plaint shows, they are distributed over nine different mahals held by different sets of proprietors.

The second plea is, that it was not open to the Court, as Counsel puts it, "to split up the suit," i.e., to hold that it was cognizable by the Civil Court as regards part of the subject-matter and not as regards the remainder. The reliefs claimed in regard to the list A and list B plots respectively being quite different there is no ground whatever why the Court should not hold that one part of the suit was cognizable by the Civil Court and not the other.

SATYANARAYANA V. NARASIMMA.

The third plea is also based on one sentence in the District Judge's judgment. The District Judge held that the whole of the documentary evidence was in favour of the plaintiff and that, except as regards the list B plots, the defendant Ghiswa had never been recorded as in possession in any capacity but he does not see why because the defendant "has apparently been for a long time practically in the position of an occupancy tenant as regards about 1/5th or 1/4th of the original holding to assume that he is a sharer to the extent of 1/3rd in the whole." The learned Counsel wishes me to interpret this as a finding that the appellant has been practically in the position of an occupancy tenant with regard to part of the list A plots. Reading the sentence with its context the meaning is clear. The reference is to the list B plots of which the Judge finds the defendant to be in possession and which constitute between 1/5th and 1/4th of the area of the list A plots. There is, therefore, no force in any of the pleas urged in support of the appeal.

The cross-objection is to the effect that the suit is one between rival claimants to an occupancy tenancy which, under the rulings of this Court in Jagar Nath v. Ajadhya Singh (1) and Kanki Ram v. Durga Prasad (2), is cognizable by a Civil Court. Neither of these suits is on all fours with the present case. The first was a suit for a declaration that the plaintiffs were occupancy tenants and that the defendants were trespassers. The second suit was a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff was the occupancy tenant of a holding from which the Revenue Court had ejected him as a sub-tenant, and if necessary, for possession. I may note that doubt has been thrown on this latter case by the subsequent decision in Baljit v. Mahtpat (3) in which it was pointed out that no reference was made in the judgment to the provisions of section 167 of the Tenancy Act. Putting aside rulings and looking at the actual law the suit as regards the list B plots is a suit exactly of the nature which is contemplated by section 95 of the Tenancy Act, being specifically a suit for a declaration that the defendant is the sub-tenant of the plaintiff in respect of these plots. It has been argued that a restricted meaning should be given to the word, "landholder" in the section. Landholder, however, has been defined in clause (5) of section 4 of the Act as being the person to whom rent is payable, and in reference to a sub-tenant the landholder is the occupancy tenant from whom he holds. The same view is taken by Mr. Agarwala on page 308 of his Commentary on the Tenancy Act, 7th Edition. The result is that the appeal and the cross-objection both fail and both are hereby dismissed with costs including in this Court-fees on the higher scale.

M. A. A.

Appeal and Cross-objection dismissed.

(3) 49 Ind. Cas. 118; 17 A. L. J. 60; 41 A. 203.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST ORDER No. 359 OF 1922.

March 2, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Oldfield and Mr. Justice Venkatasubba Rao.

Sri Rajah BOMMADEVASA SATYANARAYANA VARAPRASADA RAO
BAHADUR, ZAMINDAR GARU—

PETITIONER—APPELLANT

versus

Sri Rajah BOMMADEVARA VENKATA LAKSHMI NARASIMMA BAHADUR, ZAMINDAR GARU—DEFENDANT—

RESPONDENT.

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890).

(1) 17 Ind. Cas. 376; 35 A. L. J. 10 A. L. J. 408.
(2) 27 Ind. Cas. 913; 37 A. 223; 33 A. L. J. 378.

SATYANARAYANA v. NARASIMMA.

s. 25—Custody of infant—Father and mother; rights of—Arrangement transferring custody of child, whether revocable.

A father is entitled to the custody of his child as against the mother even though the child is only four years old and is likely to be better looked after by the mother, unless it is shown that he is unfit to have the custody of the child. [p. 950, col. 1.]

Where there is nothing established against the father except that he and the mother have, during the past, been on bad terms and have been engaged in litigation, the father ought not to be deprived of the right to the custody of the child. [p. 950, col. 1.]

An arrangement by which a father abandons a child's custody to the mother is not irrevocable. [p. 949, col. 2.]

Mrs. Annie Besant v. Narayaniah, 24 Ind. Cas. 290; 38 M. 807 at p. 808; 27 M. L. J. 30; 18 C. W. N. 1089; 1 L. W. 520; (1914) M. W. N. 585; 16 M. L. T. 165; 20 C. L. J. 253; 16 Bom. L. R. 625; 12 A. L. J. 1125; 41 I. A. 314 (P. C.), followed.

Appeal against the order of the District Court of Kistna, at Masulipatam, dated 22nd September 1922, in Original Petition No. 96 of 1922.

Messrs. E. L. Thornton, A. Krishnaswamy Aiyar and N. Rama Rao, for the Appellant.

Messrs. V. Ramadoss and V. Krishna Mohan, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal against the order of the District Judge of Kistna dismissing a petition by the zemindar of South Vallur, headed as under the Guardians and Wards Act. It is not clear what was the particular provision of the Act the petitioner desired to proceed under, nor is it clear why the learned District Judge said the petitioner was proceeding under section 7 of that Act. The first prayer in the petition is that the petitioner or some other fit and proper person shall be appointed guardian of the infant and the second which is at present material is that the infant shall be removed from the custody of the respondent and placed in charge of a guardian to be appointed. It does not seem to have been recognised by those concerned that the relief which a father can appropriately claim is under section 7, or under section 25 not under section 19, which has also been referred to before us. The two first mentioned deal with the appointment of or declaration of a guardian, but the last applies only to persons other than the father, who, however, can apply only in case they show that the father is unfit for the guardianship.

We accordingly consider the petition directly with reference to the second prayer above referred to and section 25 of the Act. It may at once be said that we intend remanding the petition to the lower Court; and it may then be worth while for the petitioner to consider whether his prayers or averments need amendment in any way.

Turning to the lower Court's judgment, we regret that we are unable to understand on what ground exactly it dismissed the petition. There is, first, some reference to the relations between the petitioner and his wife, in whose custody the minor at present is and to the fact that under a compromise, Exhibit A, the petitioner acquiesced in the retention of the custody of the minor by the respondent. No doubt something has been said of this here on behalf of the respondent, the suggestion being that the arrangement was not revocable. A sufficient answer to that is a reference to the dictum of the Judicial Committee in Mrs. Annie Besant v. Narayaniah (1) that the authority delegated by a natural guardian to any other person will be revocable, subject to an exception which the lower Court has not considered and which may be held not to have been established in the present case. There is, therefore, nothing found by the lower Court or on record before us to show that the petitioner's abandonment of the minor to the respondent's custody is not revocable. It is suggested that it makes some difference that Exhibit A has been embodied in a decree. To speak strictly, however, it has not been shown us that the portion of Exhibit A now material was embodied in any decree. Exhibit A is headed as presented in a partition suit which was pending and it does not appear that it was or indeed could have been treated as the basis for an order in the guardianship petition, which also was pending. The learned Judge then states, "the sole question for consideration under section 7 of the Act is the welfare of the minor," and next says that he does not rely on certain photographs, which indeed have not been pressed on us here. He next refers to a statement in an affidavit of the petitioner in the other proceedings that "so long as his wife chooses to keep away from him he will act as he pleases." We are not clear as to the meaning of that or that it entails anything more than that he may marry a second wife, not that he will conduct himself in a manner disqualifying him for the custody of his child. That is followed by the mention of the failure of the petitioner to go into the box. We must presume that he had the chance of going into the box and that the respondent's Vakil had indicated his wish to cross-examine him, but that he did not offer himself for cross-examination, although it is fair to say that this is disputed here on the petitioner's behalf. It, however, goes a very little way towards supporting the petitioner's case. There is then a finding that there is nothing against the respondent's character. There is, lastly, the definite and admissible ground mentioned in the lower Court's order that the age of the minor is about four and the fact that he may properly be looked after by his mother for the present. We do not, however, think that this is sufficient to justify the District Judge in refusing to give the child to the custody of his father. Each case must, of course, stand or fall with reference to its particular circumstances. But when there is nothing established against the father, the petitioner, except that he and the respondent have during the past been on bad terms and have been engaged in litigation, that is not, in our opinion, sufficient.

(1) 24 Ind. Cas. 290; 38 M. 807 at p. 808; 27 M. L. J. 30; 18 C. W. N. 1089; 1 L. W. 520; (1914) M. W. N. 585; 16 M. L. T. 165; 20 C. L. J. 253; 16 Bom. L. R. 625; 12 A. L. J. 1125; 41 I. A. 314 (P. C.).

MUHAMMAD IFTIKHARULLAH v. BANKE LAL.

That, however, was considered sufficient by the lower Court and it is, we recognise, possible that on that account the respondent did not produce anything in support of her allegations that the petitioner was unfit to have the custody of the child. In these circumstances, we think it right to set aside the order of the lower Court and remand the petition for re-hearing in the light of the foregoing, after the respondent has been given an opportunity to produce any evidence which she may desire to produce in support of her allegations, a similar opportunity being of course given to the petitioner.

Costs to date in this Court and in the lower Court will follow the result and will be provided for in the order to be passed.

V. N. V.

Order set aside.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 303 OF 1922.

May 14, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Walsh and Mr. Justice Kanhaiya Lal.

MUHAMMAD IFTIKHARULLAH—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—APPELLANT
versus

BANKE LAL—DECREE-HOLDER
—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, rr. 4, 10—Mortgage suit—Preliminary decree—Costs in appeal, whether recoverable personally—Practice.

In an appeal against a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit, it is open to the Appellate Court to direct that costs awarded against the unsuccessful appellant be recovered from him personally. But in the absence of such express direction the costs sanctioned by O. XXXIV, rr. 4 and 10, Civil Procedure Code, are added to the mortgage-money and are in the first instance recoverable from the mortgaged property after the decree is made final. [p. 951, col. 1.]

Damber Singh v. Kalyan Singh, 43 Ind. Cas. 557, 40 A. 109; 15 A. L. J. 914 and Sadiq Husain Khan v. Ummatul Fatima Begum, 48 Ind. Cas. 329, followed.

Amina Bibi v. Rama Shankar Misar, 50 Ind. Cas. 730; 17 A. L. J. 582; 41 A. 473, distinguished.

Execution first appeal from a decree of the Subordinate Judge, Moradabad, dated the 13th May 1922.

Dr. K. N. Katju and Mr. M. N. Raina, for the Appellant.

Mr. P. L. Banerji, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of an application made by the decree-holder-respondent for the recovery of certain costs awarded to him by an appellate decree of this Court from the person of the judgment-debtors. It appears that the decree-holder obtained a preliminary decree for the sale of certain property against the present judgment-debtors and other persons which provided that, in the case of non-payment of the decretal money, including the costs awarded by the Trial Court, the mortgaged property was to be sold. From that decree some of the heirs of the original mortgagor appealed to this Court. Their appeal was unsuccessful, and was dismissed excepting so far that the time for the payment of the money was extended; and the decree-holder-respondent was awarded his costs as against them. The effect of the dismissal of the appeal with the modification mentioned above was that the decree of the Trial Court, as amended, merged into the decree of this Court, and until it was made final it could not be executed against the mortgaged property. The decree-holder sought in the present proceedings to recover the costs awarded to him by the decree of the Appellate Court, but O. XXXIV, r. 10, of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that in finally adjusting the amount to be paid to a mortgagee in case of a foreclosure or sale or redemption, the Court shall, unless the conduct of the mortgagee has been such as to disentitle him to costs, add to the mortgage-money such costs of the suit as have been properly incurred by him since the decree for foreclosure or sale or redemption up to the time of actual payment. It is open to a Court of Appeal to direct that such costs as it may award against the unsuccessful appellant may be recoverable from him personally, but if there is no such express direction the costs are, as a matter of ordinary practice, sanctioned by O. XXXIV, rr. 2-4 and 10, of the Code of Civil Procedure, added to the mortgage money and are, in the first instance, recoverable from the mortgaged property after the decree is made final. That view has been recognised in the case of Damber Singh v. Kalyan Singh (1) and Sadiq Husain Khan v. Ummatul Fatima Begum (2). The Court below has relied on the decision in the case of Amina Bibi v. Rama Shankar Misar (3), but in that case the decree sought to be executed was a final decree in a mortgage-suit which provided for the extension of the time for payment by the mortgagor for another six months from the date thereof and went on to direct the appellant to pay the respondents a certain sum of money. A final decree stands, however, on a different footing from a preliminary decree for sale. A preliminary decree is supposed to direct the taking of accounts of what would be due on the mortgage including the costs of the suit in the manner provided by O. XXXIV, rr. 2, 4 and 10 of the Code of Civil Procedure. A final decree is intended to give the result of the account as it would stand on the date of that decree, showing the money due on the mortgage including the costs recoverable from the mortgaged property, and if that final decree contains a separate direction for the payment of costs by a certain party to another, the situation becomes entirely different. In that particular case the costs in question were the costs of an unsuccessful appeal brought in the High Court by one only of several mortgagors against the final decree. In the present case no final decree has yet been prepared. The preliminary decree merely directed the taking of accounts and the payment of a certain sum of money including costs within a certain period, with a proviso that if the said amount was not so paid, the mortgaged property shall be liable to be sold. That decree merged in the appellate decree of this Court. The latter is the only decree capable of being made final, and the two decrees must be read together in order to determine the rights of the parties and the remedies at present available to them. We do not at any moment suggest that the right of the decree-holder to recover the costs from the person of the then successful appellant is altogether excluded. The remedy of the decree-holder at the present stage is to get a final decree prepared, showing the money due on the mortgage inclusive of the costs of the suit and the costs incurred subsequent to the preliminary decree for sale and when such a decree has been obtained he can execute the decree against the mortgaged property and then pursue such remedy as may be available to him after the mortgaged property has been sold for the recovery of the rest of the money due to him on account of the decree. In that view of the matter, this appeal must be allowed and the

MUHAMMAD IFTIKHARULLAH V. BANKE LAL.

(1) 43 Ind. Cas. 557; 40 A. 109; 15 A. L. J. 914.

(2) 48 Ind. Cas. 329.

(3) 50 Ind. Cas. 730; 17 A. L. J. 582; 41 A. 473.

MUTHUKUMARA MUDALIAR v. CHOCKALINGA MUDALIAR; order of the Court below set aside, the result being that the application of the decree-holder will stand dismissed with costs here and hitherto including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

M. A. A.

Appeal allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL, No. 52 OF 1921.

January 29, 1923.

Present—Mr. Justice Spencer and
Mr. Justice Krishnan.

MUTHUKUMARA MUDALIAR

—DEFENDANT No. 2—APPELLANT

versus

CHOCKALINGA MUDALIAR—

PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 19—Statement admitting execution of mortgage-bond—Acknowledgment of liability.

A mere statement by a person that he executed a mortgage-bond for the balance of the sale price due under a sale-deed does not amount to an acknowledgment under section 19 of the Limitation Act of a liability subsisting at the time when the statement was made.

Kandasami Reddi v. Suppammal, 70 Ind. Cas. 576; 45 M. 443; 15 L. W. 325; 42 M. L. J. 268; (1922) M. W. N. 168; (1922) A. I. R. (M) 104; 32 M. L. T. 166, Ittappan Kuthiravattat Nayer v. Manu Sastri, 26 M. 34; 12 M. L. J. 101 and Venkata v. Parthasaradhi, 16 M. 220; 3 M. L. J. 35; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 860, followed.

Subramania Iyer v. Veerabadra Pillai, 70 Ind. Cas. 593; 14 L. W. 148; (1921) M. W. N. 475; 41 M. L. J. 217, doubted.

Second appeal against a decree of the District Court, Tanjore, in A. S. No. III of 1919, preferred against a decree of the Court of the District Munsif, Tiruturapundi, in O. S. No. 60 of 1917.

Messrs. K. Subramania Pillai and S. Mulhiah Mudaliar, for the Appellant.

Mr. C. V. Ananthakrishna Aiyar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The statement which the Courts below have taken to be an acknowledgment of liability sufficient to save limitation, is the statement made by the present 2nd defendant, who was 3rd defendant in Original Suit No. 28 of 1911, when examined as 2nd witness for plaintiff, when he said, "I am the 3rd defendant. I and the 2nd defendant purchased some land from the 1st defendant. For the balance of price due to her, Exhibit A was executed."

We are unable to accept the view that this was an acknowledgment of a liability subsisting at the date when the witness deposed.

The witness did not speak of the price as being still due to the 1st defendant at the time.

We hold, following Kandasami Reddi v. Suppammal (1), Ittappan Kuthiravattat Nayer v. Manu Sastri (2) and Venkata v. Parthasaradhi (3), that no implied acknowledgment of liability can be spelt out of the mere statement that the witness on some prior date executed a mortgage-bond.

The witness was 3rd defendant in Original Suit No. 28 of 1911 but did not defend that suit. At the time of giving evidence he had no necessity to mention anything about his liability.

For the respondent reliance has been placed on Subramania Iyer v. Veerabadra Pillai (4). In that case there were certain endorsements on the promissory-note in question and the defendant stated as a witness in a criminal case when the promissory-note was shown to him that he executed it and that the contents of it were correct.

We are inclined to doubt whether that case was correctly decided but it is unnecessary to say more as the words in which the supposed admissions were made are different from the words used in this case.

We allow the second appeal and set aside the direction that plaintiff may have a personal remedy against appellant, with costs in the lower Appellate Court and here.

V. N. V.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 70 Ind. Cas. 576; 45 M. 443; 15 L. W. 325; 42 M. L. J. 268; (1922) M. W. N. 168; (1922) A. I. R. (M) 104; 32 M. L. T. 166.

(2) 26 M. 34; 12 M. L. J. 101.

(3) 16 M. 220; 3 M. L. J. 35; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 860.

(4) 70 Ind. Cas. 593; 14 L. W. 148; (1921) M. W. N. 475; 41 M. L. J. 217.

KALI DIN v. RAMAPAT.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1635 OF 1921
AND

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 62 OF 1922.

March 12, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Lindsay and
Mr. Justice Daniels.

KALI DIN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT.

versus

RAMAPAT AND ANOTHER—PLAINTIFFS.

—RESPONDENTS.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 202—Suit for cancellation of lease granted by Lambardar—Plea that lease was granted by consent of co-sharers—Procedure.

A co-sharer brought a suit in the Civil Court for the cancellation of a perpetual lease granted by the Lambardar, on the ground that it was beyond the powers of the Lambardar to grant it. The defence set up by the lessee was that the lease was executed by the Lambardar with the consent of all the co-sharers:

Held, (1) that the defence amounted in substance to a plea that the defendant was a tenant of the whole proprietary body including the plaintiff;

(2) that, under the circumstances of the case, the procedure laid down in section 202 of the Agra Tenancy Act was applicable; and the defendant should have been directed to file a suit in the Revenue Court within three months to establish the tenancy which he had set up.

Raghunath v. Ganesh, 54 Ind. Cas. 381; 18 A. L. J. 214; 2 U. P. L. R. (A) 79; 42 A. 222. and Bhaunt v. Ram Dayal, 64 Ind. Cas. 426; 19 A. L. J. 850, followed.

Second appeal from a decree of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Cawnpore, dated the 30th of May 1921.

Mr. K. C. Mital, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—These are two connected appeals arising out of the same judgment. The plaintiff is a co-sharer in the village. The first defendant was the Lambardar. The first defendant granted a perpetual lease of 20 bighas of land to the second defendant Kali Din, who is the appellant before us. The plaintiff brought a suit in the Civil Court for the cancellation of this lease on the ground that it was beyond the powers of the Lambardar to execute. He also sued for the ejectment of the defendant from 5 bighas of land which he, the plaintiff, claimed as his khudkasht. The defendant pleaded that the lease was a good and valid lease. His contention was that not only was it within the power of the Lambardar but that it was executed with the consent of all the co-sharers. This was in substance a plea that the defendant was the tenant of the whole proprietary body including the plaintiff. Under these circumstances, the Trial Court could have, under section 202 of the Tenancy Act, directed the defendant to file a suit in the Revenue Court within three months to establish the tenancy which he set up. It is true that no plea to this effect was taken in the written statement, the defendant contending instead that the whole suit should have been filed in the Revenue Court. This contention was found against him and the suit was decreed except in regard to the 5 bighas of land of which the plaintiff claimed actual possession. Both parties appealed and the lower Appellate Court dismissed the defendant's appeal and allowed that of the plaintiff and decreed the suit in full. From this decree the defendant, Kali Din, appeals. The sole ground pressed is that the Courts below should have acted under section 202 of the Tenancy Act. There are two rulings of this Court both of which are in his favour, Raghunath v. Ganesh (1) and Bhaunt v. Ram Dayal (2). We are reluctant to disturb the decree of the Court below for, apart from urging that his plea that the lease was executed with the consent of all the co-sharers, which the First Court decided against him, has not been decided by the Court below, the appellant has made no attempt to show us that the decision as to the validity of the lease was wrong on the merits. On the other hand, we find it impossible to distinguish the case from the two decisions already referred to. We, therefore, adopt the course which was adopted in those cases and, setting aside the decisions of both the Courts below, remand the case through the lower Appellate Court to the Court of first instance with directions to restore it to the file and to dispose of it in accordance with the procedure prescribed in section 202 of the Tenancy Act. Costs here and hitherto will abide the result.

Z. K.

Case remanded.

(1) 54 Ind. Cas. 381; 18 A. L. J. 214; 2 U. P. L. R. (A) 79; 42 A. 222.

(2) 64 Ind. Cas. 426; 19 A. L. J. 850.

PARTHASARATHY REDDIAR v. KANDASWAMI MUDALIAR.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

ORIGINAL, SIDE APPEALS Nos. 118, 119
AND 120 OF 1921.

February 12, 1923.

Present:—Sir Walter S. Schwabe, Kt., Chief Justice and Mr. Justice Coutts-Trotter.

PARTHASARATHY REDDIAR

—DEFENDANT No. 4—APPELLANT

versus

KANDASWAMI MUDALIAR AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Widow—Adoption after death of adult son—Consent of Sapindas—Estoppel—Wrongdoer, whether can set up his own wrong—Person claiming through wrong-doer, position of.

An adoption by a Hindu widow subsequent to the death of her unmarried adult son is legal and valid if made with the consent of her deceased husband or of his sapindas: [p. 954, col. 2.]

Tripuramba v. Venkataratnam, 72 Ind.
Cas. 278; 44 M. L. J. 349; 46 M. 423, followed.

The onus of proving that in the case of an adoption by a Hindu widow the consent of the sapindas was procured by a bribe is strongly on the person who alleges it and the mere fact of a promise of payment of money is not conclusive on the question of the consent having been obtained corruptly. [p. 954, col. 2.]

A party who claims under a wrong-doer cannot be in a better position than the wrong-doer himself. [p. 955, col. 1.]

A person who can only claim through another is estopped from challenging an adoption made by a widow with the consent of the latter on the ground that his judgment, in giving consent to the adoption, was vitiated by the acceptance of a corrupt consideration. [p. 954,
col. 2.]

The principle contained in the maxim nemo allegans suam turpitudinem est audiendus, that no one alleging his own wrong is to be heard, is applicable to this country. [p. 955, col. 1.]

Where it is necessary for a party who wishes to establish a certain state of things to set up his own wrong, he will not be allowed to do so. [p. 955, col. 1.]

Doe v. Roberts, (1819) 2 B. & Ald. 368; 106
E. R. 401; 20 R. R. 477, Prote v. Wiggins, (1836) 3 Bing. (N. S.) 230; 3 Scott. 601; 2 Hodges 204; 6 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 21; 132 E. R. 398; 43
R. R. 621, Voddina Kamayya v. Gudisa Mamayya, 43 Ind. Cas. 352; 32 M. L. J. 484, Sidlingappa v. Hirasa 31 B. 405; 9 Bom. L. R. 542, followed and applied.

Appeals against the judgment and decree of Mr. Justice Phillips, passed in the exercise of the Ordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of the High Court in O.
S. No. 212 of 1919.

Messrs. T. R. Ramachandra Aiyar & Srinivasa Aiyar and A. Narasimhachari.
for the Appellants.

Messrs. K. Narasimha Ayyar and V. N.
Ramanatha Rao, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Schwabe, C. J.—In this case a widow who had a son who attained the age of 18 and subsequently died unmarried, adopted the appellant who was the son of her daughter. The first question that arises is, whether such an adoption with the consent of her deceased husband or with the consent of the sapindas is legal.
This question came before this Court a short time ago in Tripuramba v.
Venkataratnam (1), and Wallace, J.; and I decided that it was legal. I see no reason for departing from that judgment.

The consent of the sapindas, one Kumaraswami Mudali, whose consent was necessary, it is alleged in this case, was obtained by a promise given by the mother of the adopted boy to pay him a sum of Rs. 200. The onus of establishing that was strongly on the respondents. I am not satisfied that he was bribed at all, from which it follows, in my view, that the onus was not discharged.

Another interesting point was raised, namely, whether if the promise of payment was made in connection with obtaining that consent that fact is conclusive to prevent the adoption being good. It would be very strong evidence that the consent was obtained corruptly, but it is not clear on the authorities that the mere fact of the promise of payment standing alone would be conclusive. In this case the adoption of this particular boy was obviously reasonable. He was the grandson of the deceased through a daughter. I think it is enough to say in this case that the point does not directly arise; but I would add that I should want to be satisfied that there was something more than a promise of payment relied upon. The respondent in this case is the adopted son of Kumaraswami Mudali, whose consent, it is alleged, was corruptly given and the question arises whether the respondent who claims through Kumaraswami Mudali is estopped from

(1) 72 Ind. Cas. 278; 44 M. L. J. 349; 46 M. 423.

PARTHASARATHY REDDIAR v. KANDASWAMI MUDALIAR.

denying the fact that his adoptive father did consent. The first point as to that is whether the mere fact that the adopted son has changed his status by entering into the new family is sufficient to bring that principle of estoppel into operation. On the view I take of the facts of this case, it is unnecessary now to express any opinion on that interesting and somewhat difficult point. But a further question of estoppel also arises. It is a principle of law adopted from the Roman Law that no one alleging his own wrong is to be heard. Nemo allegans suam turpitudinem est audiendus. That principle is applied in England and is to be found clearly stated in the case of Doe v. Roberts (2) and that that principle is applied in this country is clear from the recent decision of this Court by Wallis, C. J., and Coutts Trotter, J., in Voddina Kamayya v. Gudisa Mamayya (3) and it is also very clearly stated by Jenkins, C. J., in Siddlingappa v. Hivasa (4) and it comes to this :—that where it is necessary for a party who wishes to establish a certain state of things, in order to do so, to set up his own wrong doing, he will not be allowed to do so. In this matter, the respondent, who merely takes from the late wrong-doer Kumaraswami Mudali, can be in no better position than Kumaraswami Mudali himself and, applying that principle, it is quite impossible for him to set up that the consent that his adoptive father gave was obtained from him by a promise of corrupt payment. In the view I take of this part of the case, it is unnecessary for me to consider the question whether the subsequent release given by Kumaraswami of any rights he might have possessed was a valid release or not.

Appeal No. 120 of 1921 must be allowed and the suit dismissed with costs throughout. Appeals Nos. 118 and 119 will be allowed with costs here and below.

Courts-Trotter, J.—I am of the same opinion and only add a few words because we are differing from the learned Trial Judge among other things, on a question of fact. The question is, whether there was evidence before the learned Judge on which he ought to have come to the conclusion that the reasonable inference from the facts was that Kumaraswami was influenced by corrupt motives to give his consent as a sapinda to the adoption. Looking at the facts as found, it appears to me that they cannot reasonably give rise to more than at best a suspicion, and having regard to the dates, namely, that the consent was in July 1909 and the alleged promise of payment was in the following October, it seems quite consistent with the facts to hold that Kumaraswami, having given his consent from perfectly proper motives, afterwards thought that he could make something out of it. Therefore, I agree with my Lord that, on the facts as we know them, the question of corruption in the exercise of the choice and discretion by Kumaraswami as to giving his consent as a sapinda does not arise.

There are certain points of great interest argued in this case, but I do not think that they are necessary for our decision and I do not propose to discuss them. I respectfully agree with the decision of my Lord and my brother Wallace, J., to which reference has been made.

The only other thing about which I wish to say a few words is, with regard to the question of estoppel. I do not think that the learned Trial Judge had a fair opportunity of dealing with that question, because he says in his judgment, at p. 24, "the question of estoppel raised by the 1st defendant which is the subject-matter of Issue No. 3 had not been pressed, and the issue must be found for the plaintiff."

I take that to mean not that the learned Judge decided that question, but that his attention was not fairly drawn to it so as to enable him to deal with it. That I take to be the doctrine of estoppel proper with which my Lord has dealt. But I do not see that there was even mention made to the learned Judge of another ground of defence which is perhaps the strongest that we have to deal with, namely, that based on the maxim nemo allegans suam turpitudinem est audiendus. That maxim belongs to Civil Law and is taken from the Institutes; it re-appears in the Common

(2) (1819) 2 B. & Ald. 368; 106 E. R. 401 20 R. R. 477.

(3) 43 Ind. Cas. 352; 32 M. L. J. 484.

(4) 31 B. 405; 9 Bom. L. R. 542.

DUKHI S. DHANNI MISIR.

Law in England for example in the two cases to which my Lord has referred to Boe v. Roberts (2) and Prole v. Wiggins (5). The question is whether in this Court that salutary principle of law is to be applied. There is authority both in this Court in the case to which my Lord has referred and in Bombay Sidlingappa v. Hiras (4) for applying such maxim and I am entirely in concurrence with the view that we should refuse to allow the respondent in this case, who can only claim through Kumaraswami, to set up the case that the person through whom he claims had his judgment vitiated by the acceptance of a corrupt consideration. I agree that these appeals must be allowed with costs.

V. N. V.

Appeals allowed.

Z. K. & N. H.

(5) (1836) 3 Bing. (N. S.) 230; 3 Scott 601; 2 Hodges 204; 6 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 2; 132 E. R. 398; 43 R. R. 621.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION NO. 13 OF 1923.

March, 19, 1923.

Present—Mr. Justice Rafique.

DUKHI AND ANOTHER—PETITIONERS

versus

DHANNI MISIR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, Art. 35, cls. (i) (ii)—Wrongful removal of trees—Suit for compensation—Jurisdiction.

Cutting down of trees belonging to other persons and misappropriating them is an offence against property punishable under Chapter XVII of the Penal Code and a claim for compensation for trees so cut is not maintainable in a Small Cause Court.

Civil revision from an order of the Judge, of the Court of Small Causes at Deoria, dated the 16th November 1922.

Mr. G. S. Apte, for the Applicants.

Mr. K. C. Mital, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application in revision from a decree of the Small Cause Court Judge of Deoria. It appears that the plaintiff opposite party sued the applicants for the recovery of Rs. 50 on the allegation that they had unlawfully cut down the trees belonging to the plaintiff opposite party. The claim was resisted on various grounds and the title of the plaintiff opposite party was denied. It was further objected that the suit was not maintainable in the Court of the Judge of Small Causes. The learned Judge, however, disallowing all the pleas for the defence decreed the claim for Rs. 5. In revision it is urged that Art. 35, clauses (i), (ii) of the Schedule to the Small Cause Courts Act prohibits the entertainment of such a suit by a Judge of the Small Cause Court. The clause relied upon is as follows:—

MUTHUKARUPPA CHETTY v. PANJA KAVUNDAN.

“For an act which is, or, save for the provisions of Chapter IV of the Indian Penal Code, would be, an offence punishable under Chapter XVII of the said Code.”

The cutting down of trees belonging to other persons and misappropriating them is an offence against property punishable under Chapter XVII of the Indian Penal Code. The claim was, therefore, not maintainable in the Small Cause Court.

I set aside the decree of the lower Court and direct that the plaint be returned to the plaintiff for presentation to the proper Court. No order as to costs.

N. H.

*Decree set aside.MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST APPELLATE ORDER

No. 113 OF 1921

TREATED AS CIVIL REVISION PETITION

No. 200 OF 1923.

February 16, 1923.

Present—Mr. Justice Oldfield and

Mr. Justice Venkatasubba Rao.

MUTHUKARUPPA CHETTY

RESPONDENT—APPELLANT

versus

PANJA KAVUNDAN—PETITIONER

---RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 37 (b), 115—Execution of decree—Transfer of area of residence of judgment-debtor—Jurisdiction to execute decree—Appellate Court erroneously deciding lower Court had no jurisdiction—Revision.

MUTHUKARUPPA CHETTY v. PANJA KAVUNDAN.

Where the area in which a judgment-debtor lives is transferred from the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree to that of another Court, the latter Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for execution of the decree, and there is no necessity in such a case to obtain a transfer of the decree from the former Court to the latter Court.

Seeni Nadan v. Muthuswamy Pillai, 53 Ind. Cas. 213; 42 M. 821; 37 M. L. J. 284; 26 M. L. T. 223; (1919) M. W. N. 640; 11 L. W. 63, followed.

Subbiah Nalcker v. Ramanathan Chettiar, 22 Ind. Cas. 899; 37 M. 462; 26 M. L. J. 189; (1914) M. W. N. 205; 1 L. W. 251, referred to.

An erroneous order by an Appellate Court dismissing an execution application on the ground that it was made to a Court not having jurisdiction amounts to a refusal to exercise jurisdiction within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, and is open to revision by the High Court.

Appeal against a decree of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Salem, in A. S. No. 307 of 1920, preferred against the order of the Court of the District Munsif, Namakkal, dated the 7th October 1920 (S. C. No. 2676 of 1916, Principal District Munsif's Court, Salem).

Mr. K. Sankara Sastri, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. Sitarama Rao, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal by a decree-holder against the decision of the lower Appellate Court passed at the instance of the judgment-debtor, here respondent; and setting aside the decision of the District Munsif of Namakkal that he had jurisdiction to execute the decree.

The decree was passed on the Small Cause Side and it is urged, first, that no second appeal lies. That objection must be sustained. But we have been asked to treat the appeal as an application in revision. We think that we are entitled to do so. It is contended that the lower Appellate Court did not decline jurisdiction or assume jurisdiction which it had not but simply made a mistake in a question of law relating to jurisdiction. That view is not in our opinion, correct. The lower Appellate Court held that the District Munsif has no jurisdiction to allow execution and it has dismissed the execution application on the ground that it was made to a Court not having jurisdiction. We think that, in doing so, it declined jurisdiction within the meaning of section 115.

On the merits, the question arises from the transfer of the area in which the judgment debtor lives, from the jurisdiction of the principal District Munsif of Salem, who passed the decree sought to be executed, to that of the District Munsif of Namakkal, in whose Court the application for execution has now been made. It is urged that only the former Court has ever had jurisdiction to execute the decree and that the decree-holder's proper course is to apply for a transfer of the decree to Namakkal. That contention is inconsistent with the decision in Seeni Nadan v. Muthuswamy Pillai (1). We are asked to distinguish that decision on the ground that it relates to the execution of a decree for sale of immoveable property. But we can find nothing in the language used in the judgments there to show that such a distinction was in the minds of the learned Judges or that they were considering the question except as it was referred to them, perfectly generally. It may be noted that the previous case in connection with which the reference was made, Subbiah Nalcker v. Ramanathan Chettiar (2) related to a money-decree; and if this distinction had been thought material, it is difficult to believe that nothing would have been said regarding it. We are not able, on principle, to see why it should be material and we do not think it necessary to add anything on the question of principle to the judgment of the Full Bench or in particular to the very clear statement of law contained in the judgment of Ayling, J.

The result is that the appeal against the appellate order is allowed with costs here and in the lower Appellate Court, the District Munsif's order including the portion relating to costs before him being restored. He will proceed with the execution according to law.

V. N. V.

Order set aside.

Z. K.

(1) 53 Ind. Cas. 213; 42 M. 821; 37 M. L. J. 284; 26 M. L. T. 223; (1919) M. W. N. 640; 11 L. W. 63.
(2) 22 Ind. Cas. 899; 37 M. 462; 26 M. L. J. 189; (1914) M. W. N. 205; 1 L. W. 251.

JAGARNATH SINGH v. MOTI LAL:

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST APPEAL FROM ORDER No. 159 OF 1922.

March 12, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Walsh and Mr. Justice Ryves.

JAGARNATH SINGH—JUDGMENT—
DEBTOR—APPELLANT

versus

MOTI LAL AND OTHERS—DECREE-HOLDERS—RESPONDENTS.

*Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 53—
Hindu Law—Joint family—Survivorship—Nephew, whether liable for debts of uncle.*

Under the Hindu Law there is no obligation upon any co-parcener, except a son or a grandson who has acquired rights by survivorship, to pay the debts of a deceased co-parcener.

It is only a son or a lineal descendant who comes within the scope of section 53 of the Civil Procedure Code.

A nephew who has succeeded to the property of his uncle by survivorship, is not a "descendant" of his uncle in whose hands the property is liable for the debts of the deceased uncle within the meaning of section 53 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Chunnilal Harilal v. Bai Mani, 46 Ind. Cas. 745; 42 B. 504; 20 Bom. L. R. 660, relied on.

First appeal from an order of the Subordinate Judge of Jaunpur, dated the 28th June 1922.

Mr. K.K. Varma, for Mr. Kamuda Prasad, for the Appellant.

Mr. N.P. Upadhiya, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Moti Lal and others, plaintiffs, obtained a simple money-decree against Jatan Singh. He died, and the plaintiffs decree-holders applied to attach certain property in the possession of Jagannath Singh claiming that Jatan Singh was the uncle of Jagannath Singh and that they formed a joint Hindu family. Various objections were taken by Jagannath Singh under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code. The Trial Court held that Jatan Singh was the uncle of Jagannath Singh but said that as the decree was clearly a personal decree and was not passed against Jatan as the karta of a joint family, there was no obligation on Jagannath Singh to pay Jatan Singh's debt, and that the property was not liable to attachment and sale. The decree-holders appealed and the learned Subordinate Judge held that, under section 53 of the Civil Procedure Code, the words "or their descendant" included a nephew and, therefore, reversed the finding of the Trial Court and remanded the case for trial of the other issues.

Jagannath Singh comes here in appeal against the order of remand. The point turns on the interpretation to be put on section 53 of the Code of Civil Procedure. This section was introduced into the Code by Act V of 1908. It says that, for the purpose of section 50, property in the hands of a son or other descendant which is liable under the Hindu Law for the payment of debt of the deceased ancestor in respect of which a decree has been passed shall be deemed to be the property of the deceased which had come into the hands of the son or other descendant as his legal representative. It is noteworthy that the son or other descendant can only be charged if the property is liable under Hindu Law for the payment of debt of a deceased ancestor.

Sir Earnest Trevelyan in the second Edition of his Hindu Law, at page 323, sums up the law in the following words:

"Apart from the obligation of a son or grandson to pay the debts of his father or grandfather out of co-parcenary property, the Hindu Law, like other systems of Law, requires the person who succeeds to the property of another as heir or devisee to pay the legal debts of such other person, whatever may be the purpose of such debts to the extent of the assets received by him. There is no obligation upon any other co-parcener who has acquired rights by survivorship to pay the debts of the deceased co-parcener."

It seems, therefore, that under section 53 it is only the son or lineal descendant who comes within the scope of the section. We are fortified in this view by the decision of the case of Chunnilal Harilal v. Bai Mani (1). In this view the appeal succeeds and the order of remand must be set aside and the decree of the First Court restored with costs in all Courts including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

Z. K.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 46 Ind. Cas. 745; 42 B. 504; 20 Bom. L. R. 660.

RAHMAT BI v. BHURI BI.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL, No. 232 OF 1922.
April 5, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Baker, J. C.

RAHMAT BI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT
versus

BHURI BI—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Muhammadan Law—Succession—Suit by heir against widow for share—Dower-debt, payment of—C. P. Land Revenue Act (II of 1917), s. 212—Raiyatwari lands whether heritable.

The liability of the heirs of a deceased Muhammadan to pay the dower of his widow is not personal, and an heir who sues the widow for possession of his share of the estate of the deceased is liable only to pay a proportionate part of the dower-debt. [p. 960, cols. 1 & 2.]

Muhammad Karim Ullah Khan v. Amani Begam, 17 A. 93; A. W. N. (1895) 16; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 385, Hamira Bibi v. Zubaida Bibi, 7 Ind. Cas. 497; 33 A. 182; 7 A. L. J. 1025, relied on.

Section 212 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act makes it clear that the right of a raiya to hold raiya land devolves as if it were land. [p. 959, col. 2; p. 960, col. 1.]

There is a presumption that when such land passes from father to son and from the son to his widow it passes by heirship. Where raiya land forms part of the estate of a deceased person it is liable to the claim of his heirs along with the rest of his property. [p. 960, col. 1.]

Gulabrao v. Sitaram, 8 C. P. L. R. 11, distinguished.

Under clause (3) of section 212 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act, raiya land is not liable to partition except with the consent of the Deputy Commissioner, but all heirs of a deceased raiya are entitled to share in the produce of the land, and any of them may, if so advised, apply to the Deputy Commissioner for partition. [p. 960, col. 1.]

Appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Nimar, in Civil Appeal No. 120 of 1922, dated the 10th January 1922.

Mr. M. Y. Shareef, for the Appellant.

Mr. Fida Hussain, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff sued to recover her share in the estate of her deceased father and brother under the Muhammadan Law from defendant No. 1, her brother's widow, who was in possession. The Sub-Judge of Khandwa found that plaintiff was entitled to 323/720 in the property mentioned in the decree on payment of her proportionate shares of the dower (Rs. 1,000) of defendant No. 1 and of Rs. 385 the funeral expenses of Kamdar Khan, her brother, husband of defendant No. 1.

On appeal by defendant the District Judge of Nimar modified the decree of the First Court by directing that the Raiyatwari Survey Numbers should be excluded from division and that plaintiff should pay Rs. 1,000 dower of defendant No. 1 and her share of the funeral expenses of Kamdar Khan. The plaintiff makes a second appeal against this decree on the grounds stated in the memorandum of appeal.

The amount of plaintiff's share as found by the First Court is admitted. The first point taken in second appeal is as to the exclusion of the raiya lands from partition. It is admitted that the raiya lands formed part of the estate of Amir Khan, the plaintiff's deceased father, and after him of Kamdar Khan, his son, the husband of defendant No. 1. The reasoning of the learned District Judge on this point will be found in parat graph 11 of his judgment. He holds that the lands are left by Amir Khan but they depend on a lease individually between the Government and the tenant. Even for Survey Numbers the law is that the right devolves as if it were land (section 212, C. P. Land Revenue Code). This is just the same as for occupancy tenant right. Hence there is no distinction to be drawn between items Nos. 1—4 'the occupancy tenancy lands' and items Nos. 5—9 'the raiya fields'. It appears from Exhibit D-1 that defendant No. 1 got the Survey Numbers transferred to her name on her husband's death. And when one member of a family obtains a lease it does not mean that all other members become tenants-in-common [Gulabrao v. Sitaram (1).] Therefore, so long as the raiya patta remains in the name of defendant No. 1 only, the plaintiff cannot claim a share. For these reasons the learned District Judge cluded the raiya numbers. I am of opinion that the lower Appellate Court has approached this part of the case from a wrong point of view. The question to be considered is whether the raiya lands form part of the estate of the deceased Amir Khan and Kamdar Khan. Undoubtedly they did, as the District Judge himself finds. If so, they would be liable to the claim of the heirs along with the rest of the property, unless specially excluded by law. Section 212 of the Land Revenue Code makes it clear that the right of a raiya to hold raiya land devolves as if it were land. The case quoted, Gulabrao v. Sitaram (1), is on a different point. It deals with one member of a joint Hindu family taking land on lease from a landlord. The present is not a case of the defendant No. 1 taking land on lease but of the devolution of the right to hold raiya land. There is a presumption that when such land passes from father to son, and from the son to the widow, it passes by heirship, and in the present case there is a distinct issue and finding on the point by the First Court which has not been dissented from by the lower Appellate Court. Issue No. 7 and the finding in paragraph 15 shows that the First Court held on the evidence of the Revenue Inspector that the defendants Nos. 1 to 3 got the items Nos. 5-9 as heirs of Kamadar Khan and they were not acquired by them. P. W. No. 5, the Revenue Inspector, says that in the case of raiya lands the heir's name is entered, if he is in possession. The fact that defendant No. 1 executed the usual kabuliyat to Government makes no difference. I am, therefore, of opinion that the raiya fields also form part of the estate which is liable to the claim of the heirs. Under clause (3) of section 212 of the Land Revenue Code, they are not liable to partition except with the consent of the Deputy Commissioner, but the plaintiff is entitled to her share in the produce, and she may, if so advised, apply to the Deputy Commissioner for partition.

(1) 8 C. P. L. R. 11.

RAHMAT BI V. BHURI BI

Next, as to the dower. The amount is admitted and it is now admitted by the learned Counsel for appellant that defendant No. 1 is entitled to interest on her unpaid dower. It is here contended that the lower Appellate Court was wrong in ordering the plaintiff to pay the whole of the dower before taking her share of the estate. It is argued that the heirs take their shares after the dower is paid and their shares are thus proportionately reduced. If the plaintiff is made to pay the whole dower, the other heirs will get their shares undiminished. He relies on Hamira Bibi v. Zubaida Bibi (2) where it was held that the liability of the heirs of the husband not being personal, the heir who sues the widow for possession of his share is only liable to pay the proportionate part of the dower-debt. The learned Pleader for the respondent has relied on certain observations in Amir Ali's Muhammadden Law, 4th Edition, Vol II, page 507. In Muhammad Karim Ullah Khan v. Amani Begam (3) which is one of the cases quoted in Amir Ali, it was held that the heir had failed to prove his right to partition without the payment of his proportionate share of the dower. In the present case the share of the plaintiff in the estate of Kamdar Khan (which alone is liable to the dower) is only 19/144, and it would be inequitable to make her pay the whole of the dower. I hold, therefore, that plaintiff should pay only her proportionate share of the dower, that is, 19/144 of Rs. 1,000, i.e. Rs. 131-15-1.

The only remaining point is as to the share of the funeral expenses of Kamdar Khan, amounting to Rs. 385 which plaintiff has been required to pay. It is contended by the learned Counsel for appellant that the defendant No. 1 has adduced no evidence that she paid this amount out of her own pocket, nor has she led evidence to show that she borrowed it. She has no means apart from the estate and it must, therefore, be assumed that she paid it out of the estate. The plaintiff, therefore, will take her share of the estate proportionately diminished by this payment, and it is inequitable that she should pay twice over. In this connection I may note that in paragraph 14 of the lower Court's judgment it is remarked that as any debts paid by Kamdar Khan must obviously have been paid out of the family property there is no call for further contribution as plaintiff's share is automatically reduced by the payments. In the absence of any evidence as to how Kamdar Khan's funeral expenses could have been paid except out of the estate, the same reasoning will apply.

The result is, that the appeal succeeds and the decree of the lower Appellate Court must be modified by including the raiya numbers in the property in which the plaintiff is entitled to get a share. Her claim to get 19/144 is subject to the payment of Rs. 131-15-1 as her proportionate share of the dower debt. The respondent will bear the costs of this appeal.

Z. K.

Appeal accepted.

MARIMUTHU, In re.MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CRIMINAL APPEAL No. 63 OF 1923.

AND

CRIMINAL REVISION CASE No. 858 OF 1922.

(TAKEN UP No. 50 OF 1922.)

February 15, 1923.

Present.—Just ce Sir William Ayling, Kt., and Mr. Justice Odgers.In re MARIMUTHU alias MARI—ACCUSED.Penal Code (Act XL V of 1860), ss. 302, 304—Death caused by violent kick—Intention—Offence.

Accused taxed his wife with consorting and flirting with other men and she replied "what does it matter;" he, thereupon, struck her on the cheek and she fell down abusing him. The accused then gave a forcible kick on the prostrate body of the woman on her side which caused her immediate death:

Held, though the accused could be exonerated from the intention or knowledge requisite for an offence falling under section 302 of the Penal Code, the circumstances fully justified the inference that in kicking the deceased, accused knew he was likely to cause death so as to render him guilty of an offence under the latter part of section 304 of the Code. [p. 963, col. 1.]

Empress of India v. Lau Beg, 3 A. 776; A. W. N. (1881) 132; 6 Ind. Jur. 264; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 697, distinguished.

Appeal under section 417 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, against the acquittal of the aforesaid accused on the charge under section 302, Indian Penal Code, by the Sessions Judge, Trichinopoly, in Sessions Case No. 38 of 1922, on his file and case taken up by the High Court after notice to the accused to show cause why he should not be convicted under section 304, Indian Penal Code.

Mr. P. Markandeyulu, for the Accused.
The Public Prosecutor, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

Ayling, J.—The accused in this case was tried before the Sessions Judge of Trichinopoly on charges under sections 302, 304, 323 and 325, Indian Penal Code, in connection with the death of his wife. The Sessions Judge convicted him for an offence under section 323 and sentenced him to one year's rigorous imprisonment but acquitted him on the other charges. Against this acquittal Government had appealed under section 417, Code of Criminal Procedure, and in the same connection the case was taken up in revision under the orders of a learned Judge of this Court.

The case against accused, as disclosed in the prosecution evidence, is as follows:—Deceased, a young woman of 19, was on bad terms with her husband, accused, and had on several occasions returned to her parents' house complaining of his ill-treatment. She was last brought back from there within a week of her disappearance. On the 9th July, she was sent for to visit her sick mother and accused agreed to let her go but before starting for the latter's village went with her to a Muniyanar temple situated just outside a Reserve Forest. She wanted to worship there, and he wanted to cut a ploughshare in the adjacent reserve. They were seen together by two witnesses (P. Ws. Nos. 2 and 3) near the temple and just inside the Reserve Forest before sunset that evening. The woman was never seen again alive but a female skeleton was found some days later in the Reserve Forest, which was suspected to be that of the deceased. Accused was arrested on suspicion and produced all the woman's jewels including her tali.

He subsequently made a confessional statement (Exhibit J1 to J3) which he repeated in the Committing Magistrate's Court (Exhibit K) though he retracted it before the Sessions Judge. In this he stated that he and his wife had a quarrel in the Forest and that he first slapped and then kicked her and so unintentionally caused her death.

The Sessions Judge found the confession to have been freely and voluntarily made, and attached no importance to accused's allegations of ill-treatment or his retraction before the Sessions Court. He accepted it as a true version of what occurred and in this view of the facts held that no intention to kill or cause a grievous hurt could be attributed to accused and accordingly convicted him only of voluntarily causing simple hurt.

It will be seen from the above that, apart from the confessional statement, there is quite a strong case against accused for conviction under the more serious sections 302 and 304, Indian Penal Code. The statement is incriminatory, in so far as it shows that accused caused his wife's death, but it is exculpatory so far as it tends to palliate accused's action by reference to the manner and circumstances attendant and the intention to be ascribed to accused. It is in the latter aspect that it has most practical importance.

MARIMUTHU, In re.

The medical evidence throws no light on the cause of death. None of the bones of the skeleton were found to be fractured and although the skull was separated from the trunk, this may well have been the work of wild animals. The Sessions Judge has deduced from this that accused could not have used his axe in killing his wife and having further regard to the absence of any very deadly ill-feeling has accepted in its entirety the version of the occurrence put forward by accused in Exhibits J1 to J3, and K.

I cannot help feeling considerable doubt as to whether these statements contain the whole truth, and whether accused has not at any rate considerably minimised the violence he used to cause his wife's death. A slap on the cheek and a kick (or even kicks) on the side are not likely to have caused the immediate death of a healthy young woman of 19. However, in all the circumstances of the case and particularly as the matter came before us by way of revision and appeal against acquittal, I am loth to say that the Sessions Judge was not justified in accepting the accused's version of what occurred. I shall, therefore, proceed on the assumption that it is correct, and only consider whether, accepting it, accused should have been convicted of a more serious offence than causing simple hurt. This is the story in accused's own words as given in Exhibit I: "I got angry and beat my wife on her cheek with my hand. She fell down saying 'be ruined, be damned.' Saying 'has it come to this with you because I keep you in the house as a Muhammadan woman and supply you with all necessaries in the house.' I gave a kick forcibly. It struck on the side of my wife. I stopped for a while and observed. There was no breathing or talking."

Now, the "slap" on the cheek could have done little harm, though it would seem to have been forcible enough to knock her down; but the kick (or kicks) on the side would seem to have caused practically instant death. There is nothing to suggest that she was suffering from any disease, and I think we may fairly infer that he must have kicked the woman with tremendous force to produce such an effect and that a man who so kicks a prostrate woman on the side must be credited with the knowledge that he is likely thereby to cause her death even if he be exonerated from the more definite intention or knowledge required by section 302, Indian Penal Code. It is beside the point to say, as the Sessions Judge does, "that ill-feelings between accused and his wife were certainly not such as to make the accused wish for the death of his wife." In cold blood, accused probably entertained no such desire. But he says that just before this he had taxed her with consorting, or at any rate, flirting with other men and she had in effect replied "what does it matter?" ("on account of their coming and going what is lost?") He then struck her on the cheek and she fell down absuving him. In such circumstances he may well have felt considerable anger, and it is wrong to argue that he could not have meant to kill his wife because he had no sufficient motive to do so.

The learned Vakil who argued the case for the accused before us has relied on the judgment of Straight, J., in Empress of India v. Idu Beg (1) to show that at the worst accused can only be convicted of causing grievous hurt (section 325, Indian Penal Code) and not of murder or culpable homicide. I do not think it supports any such conclusion, the learned Judge in that case was at great pains to explain the scope of section 304A, Indian Penal Code, and in particular to show that it did not cover "cases of direct violence-wilfully inflicted." It is only in the latter part of his judgment that he deals with the question of what intent, or knowledge should be ascribed to the accused on the facts of the particular case before him. And he says, "I should certainly not have distrusted the order of the Judge had he convicted of culpable homicide not amounting to murder on the ground that there must have been knowledge that death would be a likely result. At the same time, I am willing to accept his conclusion that there was no such knowledge, though further than this

(1) 3 A. 776; A. W. N. (1881) 132; 6 Ind. Jur., 264; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 697.

MADAN GURU v. EMPEROR.

I cannot adopt his view." In other words, he accepted, though apparently not without some doubt, the lower Court's finding that the accused in that case did not know that death was a likely consequence of his act. Such a decision can hardly in this respect be any guide to another Court dealing with another case.

For myself, I think that in the present case a conviction for causing grievous hurt would be illogical as well as inadequate to the facts. The only category of section 320, Indian Penal Code, which could possibly be applied is the eighth "any hurt which endangers life," and I do not think this phrase was intended to apply to a case in which life was not merely "endangered" but actually taken away. But, however this may be, the circumstances seem to me to fully justify the inference that in kicking deceased, accused knew that he was likely to cause death and I hold him guilty of an offence under section 304, Indian Penal Code, (latter portion). His subsequent conduct in stripping his dead wife of her jewels and even cloth and leaving her naked body in the jungle are incompatible with any very light sentence and I would, therefore, impose a sentence of five years' rigorous imprisonment.

Odgers, J.—I agree that, under the circumstances, we should accept the finding of the Sessions Judge that the confession of the accused is a true statement of the facts which occurred. According to this, the accused and his wife had a quarrel and he taxed her with intimacy with other men. He got angry, slapped his wife with such force that she fell down. She cursed him in so doing and he "gave a kick forcibly on her side." She died immediately. There is no evidence or even plea of the existence of a disease. The question is what, on these facts, is the intention to be imputed to the accused? Section 299 defines (last clause) culpable homicide as causing death with the knowledge that he is likely to cause death.

The only kind of grievous hurt (section 320) which could by any possibility be applicable to this case is the eighth, viz., any hurt which endangers life.

Here the accused "kicked forcibly." The confession says only one kick, but there may well have been more, at any rate, the violence of the single kick must have been very severe. In Empress of India v. Idu Beg (1), which was brought to our notice and strongly relied on for the accused, the blow was a single one and the learned Judge (Straight, J.) said he would not have disturbed the order of the District Judge had he found the accused guilty of culpable homicide not amounting to murder on the ground that there must have been knowledge that death would be likely result. That was a case of section 304—and all it actually decided was that cases of direct violence wilfully inflicted do not fall within that section. In the present case the kick not only endangered life but on accused's own showing caused immediate death and it appears to me that it was administered with such violence that the accused must be taken to have known that it was likely to cause death, there being no evidence of any other contributory cause.

I, therefore, agree with the judgment of my learned brother and with the sentence proposed by him.

V. N. V.

Z. K.

Accused convicted.

PATNA HIGH COURT.

DEATH REFERENCE NO. 4 OF 1918.
CRIMINAL APPEALS NOS. 63 AND 65
OF 1918.

April 25, 1918.

Present:—Justice Sir B. K. Mullick, Kt., and Mr. Justice Thornhill.

MADAN GURU AND ANOTHER—ACCUSED
—APPELLANTS
versus

EMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1893), s. 164—Statements by accused before trial, record of—Magistrate, power of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 9, 11, 21, 133—Statements by accused before trial, admissibility of—Accomplice, statement of—Corroboration.

There is nothing in section 164 or any other sections of the Criminal Procedure Code which forbids a Magistrate from recording a statement if the accused chooses to make one before he is placed on his trial. Such a statement, if proved to be voluntary, is not only admissible but is of the greatest value as a fact relevant to the probability or improbability of his guilt. [p. 969, col. 2.]

MADAN GURU v. EMPEROR.

Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chunder Chuckerbutty, 2 C. W. N. 702 and Queen-Empress v. Viran, 9 M. 224; 2 Weir 125; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 553, dissented from.

Empress v. Kangal Mali, 26 Ind. Cas. 161; 41 C. 601; 15 Cr. L. J. 713, cited.

Sections 9 and 11, read with section 21, of the Evidence Act amply justify a Court in admitting into evidence all previous statements made by an accused which have a bearing upon the question of his guilt and whether the previous statement is made to a Police Officer, to a Judicial Officer, or to a third party is immaterial, if the statement is relevant to the fact in issue, namely, the accused's guilt. [p. 969, col. 2.]

Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chunder Chuckerbutty, 2 C. W. N. 702, explained.

Under section 133 of the Evidence Act the evidence of an accomplice by itself would be sufficient for the purpose of a conviction; but it is a rule of practice founded on experience that in every case where an accomplice has given evidence the Court must raise a presumption that he is unworthy of credit unless corroborated in material particulars. Failure to raise that presumption is an error of law. [p. 970, col. 2.]

Phillip Jacobs, 1 Cr. App. R. 215, noticed.

Reference made, under section 374 of the Criminal Procedure Code, by the Sessions Judge of Sambalpur.

Messrs. Gour Chandra Pal and Gajendra Prasad Das, for the Appellants.

Mr. Sultan Ahmad, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.

Mullick, J.—The appellant, Madan Guru, has been convicted under section 302 of the Indian Penal Code of murder by causing the death of a young woman named Anuchaya on the night of the 8th of December 1917, and has been sentenced to death. The case now comes before us on a reference made by the Sessions Judge of Sambalpur for confirmation of the sentence. The appellant, Basudeo, who has preferred Appeal No. 65 of 1918, was a servant of Madan Guru and has been convicted also of the same offence and sentenced to transportation for life. It appears that three other persons, namely, Ganda Gour (also a servant of Madan Guru), a man named Sankri Keot and his wife Kheri Keotni were also placed upon their trial before the Committing Magistrate jointly with the two appellants before us. Of these the two last named, Sankri and his wife, were discharged by the Magistrate on the ground that there was no sufficient evidence against them, and in the Court of Session they were the principal witnesses for the Crown. As to Ganda he was committed for trial to the Court of Session together with the two appellants but he has been acquitted by the learned Sessions Judge agreeing with the two assessors. With regard to the two appellants, one of the assessors was for acquitting both; while the other, although not very clear in the opening part of his opinion, finally came to the conclusion that the evidence was sufficient. The learned Sessions Judge, agreeing with the last named assessor and disagreeing with the first named, has convicted the two appellants and has sentenced them as stated above.

Now, before the events of the night of the alleged murder are recited, it is necessary to note that the deceased Anuchaya was living in the village of Lapanga in the same homestead with her father Babuna, her brother Sitaram, and her brother's wife Sita Kultani. She occupied a hut of her own, separate from that of the others. Some three years previously she was divorced by her husband, who is now living in another house in the same village. Although ostensibly supporting herself by the sale of dried fish, she had been since then Madan's mistress. Madan was in the habit of visiting her and sometimes spending the whole night in her house; while she also was in the habit of going over to Madan's house, in the company of Basudeo.

Now it is alleged, and in my opinion proved, that sometime in the afternoon of the 8th December last, the accused Basudeo came to the house of Babuna and asked the deceased to go with him to Madan's house. The evidence of Sita Kultani, the sister-in-law of the deceased, leaves no room for doubt that Madan had been in the habit of sending for the deceased, that he had frequently made presents to her and that some of the deceased's ornaments were at that time in Madan's custody. Sita states that she saw Basudeo departing with the deceased on the afternoon of that Saturday. She is corroborated by Babuna and by a very disinterested witness named Nidhi Satpati, a Postal Peon, who happened to go to the house of the deceased on that day for the purpose of buying vegetables from the deceased. This Postman deposes that the deceased appeared to be in a hurry and said that she could not attend to him because a man had come to take her to Gurupali, which is the village in which Madan resides. The evidence of Sita Kultani has been very strongly attacked by the learned Vakil, who appears on behalf of the appellant, Madan, before us and it has been repeatedly asserted that she is a maliciously false witness, who has been tutored by the Police for the purpose of implicating Madan in this very serious charge. We agree with the learned Sessions Judge that this witness, in spite of contradictions here and there, has on the whole given a straightforward story and that she saw the deceased depart with Basudeo on afternoon of Saturday the 8th of December. With regard to Nidhi Satpathi no reason has been assigned for disbelieving him and the evidence shows that he came forward so early as the 11th of December to tell the Sub-Inspector who was investigating into the case that he had seen Basudeo departing with the deceased on the previous Saturday. Then there is the evidence of a boy named Khedu Gond, who tells us that he saw the deceased with Basudeo on the road between Lapanga and Gurupali. A similar statement is made by a witness named Chabila Keot, and, in my opinion, there can be no doubt that he and Khedu are actuated by no malice towards the appellants and that though not examined by the Police till the 16th of December, they have spoken the truth at the trial.

MADAN GURU V. EMPEROR.

The scene next shifts to the village of Gurupali, three miles from the home of the deceased. If we do not believe Sankri Keot and his wife Kheri Keotni, there is no direct evidence as to where the deceased was during the night of the 8th. If, on the other hand, we believe them then their evidence shows that she was at the house of Madan on the night of the 8th of December; that she was thence accompanied by Madan, Basudeo, Ganda, Sankri, and Kheri as far as a streamlet named Gangajal Jore, which is about half way between the house of Madan and her own house, and that there she was killed by the two appellants with a tangi, which is an instrument resembling an axe. Apparently the absence of the deceased did not in any material degree excite the suspicion or the anxieties of her relatives and no action appears to have been taken on the 9th of December. But on Monday the 10th of December Babuna discovered a number of bones and some ornaments and clothing belonging to his daughter in the bed of Gangajal Jore and he then appeared at 2 P.M. before the Sub-Inspector, Bhakta Hari, who was the officer in charge of Katarbaga Police Station, and happened, it is alleged, to be staying in the village Gurupali for the purpose of doing his rounds. Babuna lodged an information stating that he had been early in the morning to Basudeo and that Basudeo had told him to enquire of Madan what had become of the deceased; that he had asked Madan also and that Madan had replied that the deceased had probably gone home by a round about way. Although no direct charge of complicity in the death of the deceased was laid in this information either against Basudeo or Madan, its general trend is to hint that they had a hand in the disappearance of the girl. The Sub-Inspector thereupon arrived at the place where the remains were lying and commenced his investigation.

The Sub-Inspector, who was, at the time when the information was recorded, staying in the house of Madan and who has been charged freely with improperly favouring him does not appear to have taken any action against Madan or Basudeo on 10th or the 11th. It appears, however, that on the 12th at about midday, Basudeo and Ganda, who were not under any Police restraint, made a very important statement to the Sub-Inspector. We have no details of that statement on the record. As it was a statement which was in no sense a confession, I think, the learned Sessions Judge ought to have got that statement proved by the Sub-Inspector and made it a part of the evidence in the case. The omission to do so was, in our opinion, serious. But this much we do know that Basudeo and Ganda implicated Sankri and his wife and that upon the strength of their statement these two persons were arrested at 6-30 P. M. and despatched to Sambalpur, the Head-Quarters of the District, the following morning, that they reached Sambalpur that day and that on the 14th of December, their statements, purporting to be statements under section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, were recorded by Deputy Magistrate Maulvi Wasiq Ali. Meanwhile, the Sub-Inspector (it is not known whether he was still staying at the house of Madan or not), was carrying on his enquiry and on the 14th of December in consequence of further statements made about 2 P. M. by Basudeo and Ganda he arrested Madan, Basudeo and Ganda on the charge of murder. It has been suggested by the learned Sessions Judge that the Sub-Inspector's action was quickened by the knowledge that the Deputy Superintendent of Police being dissatisfied with the progress made in the investigation, was himself proceeding to Lapanga. As a matter of fact, the Deputy Superintendent did arrive some time on the night of the 14th of December and brought with him one or more Sub-Inspectors to assist in the investigation. On the 15th of December Sankri and his wife were brought back in custody from Sambalpur to the place of occurrence where they were confronted with Madan, Basudeo and Ganda who were still in Police custody; and in consequence of certain statements made by Sankri a purse containing Rs. 7-2-6 was recovered by the Police from the young son of Sankri. The matter of this purse has an important bearing in the case because it is alleged that on the 12th of December, immediately after her arrest, the wife of Sankri gave up the purse to the Sub-Inspector, Bakhta Hari, stating that the accused, Madan, had given her Rs. 8 as hush money immediately after the murder of Anuchaya and that she had spent annas 13 pies 6 out of the Rs. 8 and that the balance was in that purse. I will refer later to the Sub-Inspector's conduct in reference to this matter but at this stage it is only necessary to say that it is the case of the prosecution that the Sub-Inspector has either negligently or intentionally omitted to record in his diary this very important statement by Kheri. On the 15th, 16th, and 17th some witnesses were examined and on the last mentioned date the five accused, namely, Madan, his two servants (Basudeo and Ganda) Sankri and his wife were despatched to Sambalpur. On arrival there, Basudeo and Ganda both made statements before the Deputy Magistrate, Maulvi Wasiq Ali, which were recorded under section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Madan refused to make any statement, with regard to his connection with the alleged crime.

MADAN GURU v. EMPEROR.

At this stage it will be convenient to consider the submission which has been so forcibly made before us by the learned Vakil appearing on behalf of the appellant, Madan, that it has not been established that any murder took place. Now the evidence upon this point is this: The medical evidence in the case shows that the skull and other bones found in the Gangajal Jore by the Police are the remains of a human being the sex whereof it is impossible to determine. The ornaments found strewn about the place have been identified as those which Anuchaya had been wearing. They are ordinary ornaments, such as are in common use and do not bear any special marks of identification but, nevertheless, the witness Sita being a person living in the same house with the deceased would be in a position to identify them. The evidence given by her establishes that these are ornaments similar to those which Anuchaya was wearing when she left the house in the afternoon of the 8th of December. Then a silk sari and a wrapper was also found at the place. Evidence has been given by two dhobis, a man and a woman, which shows that this sari was that of the deceased and that the wrapper was one which was used by the deceased and by various members of the deceased's family. There is also the evidence of a tailor who deposed that he once cut this wrapper and sewed up the ends. It is contended that the whole of this evidence as to the identification of the sari and the wrapper is false. It is true that the sari and the wrapper bore no identification marks but it cannot be said that the persons who had washed them were not in a position to identify them nor that the tailor who had cut the wrapper was incapable of identifying it when called upon to do so. The medical evidence also shows that human blood was found upon both these pieces of cloth. The case for the prosecution is that the body of the deceased was left in the bed of the stream from the night of the 8th till the morning of the 10th December and that wild birds and animals having preyed upon the remains, there was nothing left from which the features of the deceased could be identified. Having regard to the conditions which prevail in this country it is impossible to reject this theory. There is, further, direct evidence to show that on the 9th of December the body of the deceased was found in a state capable of identification by at least three witnesses. The first of these is the boy Khedu to whom reference has already been made. He states that he saw the body of Anuchaya lying at the place with the throat cut and that he fetched his master Ainthia and showed him the corpse. There is also the witness Sankri Padhan, who states that while going to market on the 9th in the afternoon he saw the body being eaten by vultures. It is remarkable that none of these witnesses who profess to have recognised Anuchaya, gave any information that day to the members of her family. It appears that Khedu was examined by the Police on the 16th, Ainthia was also examined on the same date while Sankri was examined on the 17th and the only explanation offered by these witnesses for not giving immediate information was that they were overcome with fear that they might be implicated in the case. Having regard to the conditions prevailing in the tract from which this case comes and to the general ignorance of the class of persons to which these witnesses belong, the explanation does not seem to me to be at all an improbable one. With reference to the witness Khedu there is a further fact which requires to be considered. He states that he met Sitaram, the brother of the deceased, on the morning of Monday the 10th, and that he told Sitaram that he had seen the body on the previous day. Now Sitaram was examined by the Police on the 11th and he made no mention of the fact that Khedu had told him that he had seen the body on the 9th. It was not till the 15th of December that Sitaram told the Police that Khedu had seen the body on the 9th. This is undoubtedly a point against the prosecution but having regard to the weight of evidence to the contrary, I think it is established that Khedu and the other two witnesses are speaking the truth.

MADAN GURU v. EMPEROR.

In these circumstances, the only conclusion which can be drawn from the facts is that the deceased met her death by violence.

The next question is: who caused her death? Suspicion naturally fell upon Basudeo. When first questioned by Babuna he declined to give any information of the girl's whereabouts. It is suggested that the deceased might have gone on her business, which was that of selling fish and met her death at the hands of some person or persons unknown. In this connection our attention has been drawn to an inconsistency between the information lodged by Babuna and the evidence given by him at the trial. In the information he stated that the deceased left with a basket of fish, whereas at the trial he has made rigorous attempts to deny that he made any such statement at all. Now the reason for this denial is quite apparent. He is afraid of making any admission which will favour the theory that the murder was committed by some unknown person. Whether the basket was a mere pretext or whether she did intend to do some selling that day there is no evidence to show, but that she did go with Basudeo is, in my opinion, conclusively established.

The onus, therefore, lies heavily on Basudeo to account for her subsequent movements. His denial that he went to the girl's house at all raises an inference of guilt though not by any means a conclusive one but the importance of her being last seen in his company is that it furnishes corroboration of the evidence of the two accomplices Sankri and Kheri. But before I proceed to deal with their evidence, it is necessary to refer to one part of the case about which there is considerable controversy. Both of them state that they went on the 8th of December to Madan's house at his request for the purpose of discovering ways and means of procuring an abortion upon the deceased. The case for the prosecution is that the deceased was three months' pregnant and that the accused, Madan, was responsible for her condition. On behalf of the defence there is a complete denial of the pregnancy although the intimacy is admitted. It is argued that the whole story about Sankri and his wife having gone to the house of Madan on that night is a concoction from beginning to end. Now the two witnesses who give direct evidence as to the condition of pregnancy are Sita, the sister-in-law of the deceased, and a woman named Tara. With regard to Tara the learned Sessions Judge, we think rightly, has preferred to class her as a somewhat doubtful witness. She states that she was in the habit of accompanying the deceased to the house of Madan and that one night, while the deceased and Madan were sleeping in one of the apartments while she (the witness) was in another apartment she overheard a conversation between Madan and the deceased in which the deceased threatened Madan with exposure on the day of his daughter's wedding. We think it is doubtful whether this witness could have overheard the whole conversation under the conditions which she relates and as the learned Sessions Judge has, after observing her demeanour in the witness-box, declined to accept her as a witness of truth, we think we must also form the same estimate of her testimony. But with regard to Sita, there can be no doubt that she was in a position to notice the symptoms which she describes. Her evidence, therefore, also corroborates the story told by the accomplices as to the object of their visit to the house of Madan on the night of the 8th. It has been pointed out to us that neither in her statement as recorded by the Police nor in her statement before the Committing Magistrate was any mention made by her of the symptoms which she now describes. The omission on the part of the Sub-Inspector may be due to neglect or, as is suggested by the prosecution, to a desire to shield Madan, and from the circumstances that he made the same kind of omission in regard to Sankri's wife raises strong suspicions against his honesty. As to the statement before the Committing Magistrate which is very brief it is not known whether the witness was ever questioned upon this point. If she had been and if she had then denied the fact of pregnancy, there may have been good ground for suspecting the evidence of the accomplices upon this question, but in the absence of any direct evidence to show that the statement made by Sita in the Sessions Court is false, I think her account of the symptoms observed in the deceased must be accepted as correct.

MADAN GURU V. EMPEROR.

There is one other point in this connection which has been brought to our notice to-day by the learned Vakil for the appellant, Madan. The learned Vakil points out that in the surat hal report drawn up on the 10th of December there is mention of a kaupina cloth which has been translated in the report as "undercloth" and which is said to have been found near the remains in the Ganga-jal Jore. It is suggested that a kaupina cloth is generally worn by women during the period of menstruation and that the finding of such a cloth completely demolishes the theory as to the deceased's condition. Now, whether a kaupina is a cloth such as is suggested by the learned Vakil for the appellant or not has not been established by any evidence. My own impression, on reading the report was that it was a kind of under-skirt worn usually by women under their outer sari but even if it be such a cloth as is now suggested it is, in my opinion, not inconsistent with the theory of pregnancy; for it is a well-known fact that even during that condition menstruation sometimes continues for several months.

The accomplices having been corroborated so far, let us proceed to test the rest of their evidence. It has been contended by the learned Vakil who appears for the appellant, Madan, that the statements of Sankri and his wife before Maulvi Wasiq Ali on the 14th of December 1917 are wholly inadmissible in evidence. The learned Sessions Judge has made no reference to these statements and I think that he was wrong in omitting to do so. If they had previously made any inconsistent statements then surely the accused were entitled to the benefit of the doubt arising from such inconsistencies. It appears that the learned Deputy Magistrate caused the exact words of Sankri and his wife to be recorded in Uriya by a clerk acquainted with that language while he himself recorded a note in English. We have before us a translation of the vernacular statement and we find that at that early stage Sankri stated before the Deputy Magistrate that he and his wife had been taken to the house of Madan by Basudeo and that he was asked by Madan's mother to procure an abortion, that he replied that he could not perform the puja because he was not in a condition to do so on that day and that he would perform it 4 or 5 days later. It is necessary to note here that according to the evidence Sankri is believed to be an exorciser of evil spirits and that he and his wife are the priest and priestess of the temple of Kali close to the scene of occurrence. The statement proceeds to recite that at Madan's request they accompanied Madan, Basudeo, Ganda and Anuchaya, who was brought out of a hut called the Chanri house, as far as the Gangajal Jore, that when they had reached the bank of the streamlet, Madan and Anuchaya went on ahead while the other four remained behind, that shortly afterwards Madan called out to Ganda and Basudeo, that Ganda and Basudeo then went forward; that Basudeo handed a tangi to Madan, that Madan struck Anuchaya with the tangi, that thereupon Basudeo also struck her and that in answer to Anuchaya's entreaties for mercy, Madan replied that she would not escape death. Kheri's statement, though a much shorter one, is to the same effect. There is, however, one curious point in it which required to be noticed. She asserts that Anuchaya cried out and begged for mercy exclaiming that she would not stay in Madan's house. In explanation of this it is suggested by the prosecution that Anuchaya had threatened to stay in Madan's house against his will in order to shame him and to force him to make some provision for her.

MADAN GURU V. EMPEROR.

The learned Vakil for the appellant, relying upon the case of Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chunder Chuckerbutty (1), contends that both these statements recorded by Maulvi Wasiq Ali are without jurisdiction and are not, therefore, admissible either to corroborate or contradict Sankri and his wife. Now it is true that one of the learned Judges in the case just cited, namely, Mr. Justice Banerjee, clearly expressed the opinion that a Magistrate acting under section 164 of the Code of Criminal Procedure has only jurisdiction to record the statements of witnesses and the confessions of accused persons and that if an accused person makes a statement which falls short of a confession there is no jurisdiction to record that statement and if recorded it is inadmissible as evidence at any subsequent stage of the case. The learned Judge is of opinion that the sections of the Indian Evidence Act are controlled by sections 164, 342 and 364 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and he relies upon a decision of the Madras High Court in Queen-Empress v. Viran (2). The other learned Judge who formed the Bench did not, however, go so far, but on the facts of that particular case preferred to hold that the statement was inadmissible on the ground that it had not been shown that it was made voluntarily. With the greatest respect, I venture to differ from the view of the former learned Judge. In my opinion there is nothing in section 164 or any other sections of the Criminal Procedure Code which forbids a Magistrate from recording a statement if the accused chooses to make one before he is placed on his trial. Such a statement, if proved to be voluntary, is not only admissible but is of the greatest value as a fact relevant to the probability or improbability of his guilt. It has been held in Emperor v. Kangal Mall (3) that statements made before the Police at any stage before the examination of the accused in Court for the purpose of explaining the evidence recorded against him are admissible for the purpose of adjudicating upon his guilt, and, that being so, I entirely fail to see why statements to a Magistrate under conditions which are much more reliable than those under which statements before the Police are recorded should not also be admissible. Sections 9 and 11, read with section 21, of the Evidence Act, in my opinion, amply justify a Court in admitting into evidence all previous statements made by the accused which have a bearing upon the question of his guilt and whether the previous statement is made to a Police Officer to a Judicial Officer, or to a third party is immaterial if the statement is relevant to the fact in issue, namely, the accused's guilt. It is true that the rule of their Lordships' decision in Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chunder Chuckerbutty (1) has been followed in other cases in regard to statements made in the course of what are known as verification proceedings in the presence of the police, but whatever might be said with regard to the value of those statements, I do not think that these cases lay down any

(2) 9 M. 224; 2 Weir 125; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 553.

(3) 26 Ind. Cas. 161, 41 C. 601; 15 Cr. L. J. 713.

(1) 2 C. W. N. 702.

MADAN GURU V. EMPEROR.

general proposition of law, that it is not competent to the prosecution to prove as against an accused statements made by him at a stage previous to his examination in Court. Holding, therefore, that the statements made by the two accomplices in this case before the Deputy Magistrate under section 164 are admissible, the question is whether or not they corroborate the statements made in the Court of Session. There does not seem to be any material discrepancy and they are, in my opinion, acceptable as corroborating, under section 157 of the Evidence Act, their testimony in the Sessions Court. Then, as to the statements made by these witnesses on the 19th December before the Committing Magistrate, there is no material variation except as to the respective parts played by Madan, Basudeo and Ganda in inflicting the injuries upon the deceased. In the view I take of the complicity of Madan his two servants and Sankri and his wife in the murder, the actual part played by each in the attack is a matter of comparatively minor significance, but if anything is to be gathered from the variations as to the part played by each in the attack, it is that there was an inclination to protect Madan and Ganda at the later stages of the case and to ascribe the fatal blow to Basudeo. Holding that these variations are of minor importance I am satisfied that the evidence of Sankri and his wife has been materially corroborated.

Now the learned Counsel who appears for the Crown and who has argued the case with great fairness has attempted to suggest that Sankri and Khori were not accomplices in the legal sense of the word, and that though they may have been present it has not been shown that they were privy to the conspiracy to murder. It is impossible, having regard to the ordinary course of human affairs, to accept the suggestion that although they arrived in the middle of the night at the house of Madan, and although they were asked to engage in a nefarious operation upon the deceased, and although they consented to go with the deceased and Madan and his two servants to the bed of the stream, they had no intention of joining in the attack which put an end to her life. In my opinion they were fully cognizant of the purpose for which they were taking the deceased, and having regard to all the circumstances I have no doubt that they were party to a conspiracy for the purpose of causing the death of the deceased. No doubt, under section 133 of the Indian Evidence Act, their evidence by itself would be sufficient for the purpose of a conviction but it is a rule of practice founded on experience that in every case where an accomplice has given evidence the Court must raise a presumption that he is unworthy of credit unless corroborated in material particulars. Failure to raise this presumption is an error of law, but the degree of weight to be attached to the presumption is a matter to be judged on the facts of each case and it is for the Court to say upon the evidence adduced before it whether that presumption has been adequately rebutted. The learned Counsel for the prosecution has drawn our notice to the case of Phillip Jacobs (4). In that case the accused were charged with dishonestly retaining stolen property and the only corroboration was a denial on his part of his intimacy with the actual burglar. The Court held that the denial itself was sufficient corroboration. Now, in this case what is the position? I have already said that it has been established that Basudeo went to the house of the deceased and brought her away saying that she was required at Gurupali. Basudeo has not explained where he took the deceased. It is established that Basudeo is the servant of Madan; and that he sleeps in the house of Madan at night, that there is no reason for suspecting him of any intimacy with the deceased, that Madan, on the other hand, had been the paramour of the deceased for three years, that he was in the habit of sending Basudeo to fetch her, and that Basudeo had on previous occasions fetched her. Is it not a reasonable inference to draw, in these circumstances, that on this day too she was fetched by Basudeo not for his own purposes but for Madan's purposes? Then we have the events which took place in the early part of the evening. The evidence of Sarthak Gond shows that he, early in the evening, went with Ganda to fetch Sankri to Madan's house and that Sankri at first refused to come. Then there is the evidence of Palan Kulta, another servant, and the boy Lochan, also a servant of Madan, who was sleeping in the house that night and who states that Sarthak came to the room in which Basudeo was sleeping and asked Basudeo to go to his master. There is also the evidence of these witnesses to the effect that later on they saw Madan leave the house with Basudeo and Ganda and that Basudeo did not return till a very late hour of night. I see no reason for disbelieving these witnesses. The learned Sessions Judge and one of the assessors have seen these witnesses and believed them and I see no reason for doubting the correctness of their finding. Finally, there is the evidence of Sankri's little boy Kangalu Keot who states that Madan, Basudeo and Ganda came and took his father and mother with them that night. It has been suggested that it is very unlikely that these two accomplices would have left the young boy in the house alone. Then it is suggested that it is extremely unlikely that if Madan was desirous of procuring an abortion upon the deceased his mother who comes of a respectable family would have interviewed Sankri and his wife and discussed the matter with them. In my opinion, the direct evidence in this case is such that it is impossible to reject it on the ground of its improbability.

(4) 1 Cr. App. R. 215.

MADAN GURU V. EMPEROR.

Therefore, in my opinion, taking the evidence as a whole, there is material corroboration of the statements of the accomplices and the guilt of the accused, Madan, is established beyond doubt. For the same reason the guilt of Basudeo is established with equal certainty.

One other matter remains to be considered and that is the question of motive. It is clear that Basudeo had no direct motive in killing the deceased. He joined the conspiracy merely at the instigation of his master. With regard to Madan it has been contended that he was fond of the deceased who was a young woman of 24 or 25 years of age; that he is a comparatively wealthy man, that his father had done creditable service under Government and was a Rai Sahib, and that a man of his position could have afforded to keep Anuchaya as his concubine. It is impossible in every case to find the motive for the crime, but it has been suggested that Madan may have considered it more convenient to get rid of Anuchaya as she was likely to become troublesome and we can only say that such a theory is not inconsistent with the evidence which has been laid before us. There is also a suggestion that the attack and the killing took the form of a sacrifice to the goddess Kali. There is no evidence to support this suggestion except a statement made by Basudeo, but the presence of the priest and priestess of the temple and the undoubted visit of Madan to the temple immediately after the visit for the purpose of invoking the assistance of the goddess does suggest that there may have been a religious element in the crime. The priest and the priestess had no particular motive in joining the conspiracy and this part of the case must, I fear, be left in obscurity. There is, however, one feature in the statement made by them which is as curious and unintelligible as it is extraordinary. They state that before the attack the remaining members of the party hung back while Madan and the deceased went forward in the direction of some bushes and Madan had sexual intercourse with the deceased. It is not a late invention. We find it in Sankri's statement on the 14th of December before the Deputy Magistrate and since that date all subsequent statements, whether made by Sankri or Kheri or Basudeo, or Ganda make mention of this fact. What the relevancy of this act is to the crime I am unable to say.

Finally, there is one other point which requires to be noticed, namely, the finding of the purse containing Rs. 7-2-6. The Sub-Inspector did not record the fact that Sankri's wife had stated on the 12th December, that the money had been given to her by Madan. The evidence of Jubraj and Sidheswar Tripathy establishes that this statement was in fact made by Kheri and Kheri's deposition in Court is that this money represents the balance of the Rs. 8 which were given to her as hush money. Madan has declined to make any statement as to this. A written statement was filed on his behalf which is quite valueless and ought not to have been received, and in which he gives no explanation of the various circumstances established against him. Although it was not obligatory upon him to make a statement, he ought, if innocent, to have been in a position to explain these circumstances.

KALOO KHAN v. M. A. RAHIM.

In these circumstances, the conviction for murder with regard to him, as also with regard to Basudeo must be upheld.

As regards the question of sentence, where five persons join together in a conspiracy to kill another the actual part taken by each in the furtherance of the common object of that conspiracy is immaterial, but, nevertheless, I think that there are circumstances in this case which make it unnecessary that we should confirm the sentence of death passed upon Madan. It is difficult to say from whose brain came the instigation to murder. It may have been the priest and the priestess who suggested it as it is in evidence that it was the 9th day of the moon on which day sacrifices are made to the goddess Kali; or it may be, though this is only conjecture, that the mother of the accused, Madan, was responsible; or it may be that the accused, Madan, himself was responsible; but in view of this uncertainty I think that it would be more prudent to set aside the sentence of death passed upon Madan and substitute therefor the sentence of transportation for life.

It is accordingly ordered that the conviction of the appellant, Madan, be, and is hereby, confirmed. The sentence of death passed upon him is set aside and in lieu thereof he is sentenced to transportation for life.

The conviction and the sentence of transportation for life passed upon the appellant, Basudeo, are confirmed and his appeal is dismissed.

In conclusion, we have to express our appreciation of the fair and able manner in which this case has been argued before us both by the learned Vakil for the appellant and by the learned Counsel for the Crown and of the assistance they have rendered to us in the discharge of our difficult task.

Thornhill, J.—I concur.

M. D. J. & N. H.

*Appeal dismissed;
Sentence varied.*

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION No. 366-B OF 1921.

April 10, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Maung Kin.

KALOO KHAN—PETITIONER

versus

M. A. RAHIM, SECRETARY, MYAUNGMYA

MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE

—RESPONDENT.

Burma Municipal Act (III of 1898), ss. 92 (4), 180—Walls, whether building—Walls built without sanction—Committee, right of, to demolish.

Walls built to enable the occupier of a house to use the enclosed area as part of his habitation are buildings within the meaning of the Burma Municipal Act, and the erection of such walls without the sanction of a Committee, would justify the Committee in directing their demolition. [p. 974, col. 1.]

Criminal revision against the conviction under section 180, Municipal Act.

Mr. S. S. Halder, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Maung Gye & Co., for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The Municipal Committee of Myaungmya issued a notice in writing under section 92 (4), Burma Municipal Act, calling upon the accused to dismantle an unauthorized brick walling 34½ feet by 24½ feet at the back of the house, being contrary to the plan approved by the Municipal Committee. The accused duly received the notice but refused to obey it. The Municipal Committee, therefore, charged him with having committed an offence under section 180 of the Burma Municipal Act, and the Magistrate fined him Rs. 10.

The defence was that the notice in question was illegal and ultra vires because the walling which the accused was called upon to dismantle is not a building within the meaning of the Burma Municipal Act and the bye-laws thereunder.

The walling consists of two walls one at right angles to the other and these were at the back of the house, the plan for which was approved. The house faces north, and of the two walls one is a continuation of the eastern wall of the house, and the other is at right angles to the southern end of it and to the eastern wall which belongs to the next adjoining house on the west. So that the two walls in question and the third wall just referred to make a sort of backyard to the house. The western wall measured from inside is 9 feet 3 inches and goes up to the eaves of the kitchen which is part of the house. The height of the same measured from outside is 10 feet 3 inches, the height of the eastern wall which is not one of the walls in question, and the southern wall measured from inside is 8 feet each and from outside 9 feet each. From the description given in the additional evidence, it appears to me that the roof of the kitchen is not a continuation of the roof of the main house, and the wall between the eastern wall in question in this case which juts out beyond that kitchen to the south and the main house is somewhat lower, because the measurements of that intervening wall are 8 feet and 9 feet from inside and outside, respectively. The question then is: Do the two walls built as explained above constitute a building within the meaning of the Burma Municipal Act.

KALOO KHAN V. M. A. RAHIM.

There is no definition of the word "building" either in the Act or the bye-laws thereunder but I think the question must be decided with reference to the mischief aimed at by the Act.

In Lavy v. London County Council (1) the question was whether a wall was a building, structure or erection within the meaning of section 75 of the Metropolis Management Act, 1862. It was held that it would depend upon the height of the wall and the purpose for which it was built. The house in question in that case had a forecourt. On the site nearest to the street the forecourt was bounded by a dwarf wall between 2 and 3 feet high with iron railings on it. The owner of the house pulled it down and built on its site a wall 11 feet high which was intended to be used as a screen on which to exhibit advertisements and also to serve as a boundary to the forecourt. The most important fact was that the new wall extended beyond the general line of building in the street and was erected without the consent of the London County Council. It was held that the dwarf wall is not a "building" within the meaning of the said section of the said Act, but that the substituted wall was a "building" within the section. The object of the section is to prevent a structure from being built beyond the general line of buildings without the consent of the London County Council. Lindley, L. J., said, "In one sense every wall, everything erected, is a 'building,' structure or erection: but that section must be construed reasonably and with reference to the object for which it is passed. That is apparent from the case of Ellis v. Plumstead Board of Works (2)... where it was said, and I have no doubt correctly said, that if a man merely puts up a fence to mark off his boundary and preserve his rights as the owner, although in one sense it may be a building, structure, or erection, it is not necessarily a building, structure, or erection which falls within the mischief aimed at by the Act and avoided by section 75. We must look at this case, and not at the effect of other cases. In this case we must ask ourselves, as men of the world, whether such a new wall as this is not a 'building,' structure or erection, within the mischief of section 75." The learned Judge then proceeded to say that it was merely an attempt to throw dust in the eyes of the Court to say that the wall in question was only a boundary wall. Lopes, L. J., said, "When we have to determine that question, it seems to me to be all important to bear in mind what the object of these provisions is. The object of these provisions is this—to maintain in new streets a uniform line of frontage. It cannot I presume be said for one moment that any walls, whether high or low, are not 'buildings,' structures or erections. They obviously are such, but there are walls and walls. There is a wall of a certain height—2 or 3 feet high—which would not in any way, I take it, disturb the uniformity of a street; then there are walls of a greater height—12 or 14 feet, or even more—which would absolutely destroy the uniformity of that frontage, and absolutely defeat the purposes of these provisions. The question in every case is a question of fact,.... whether the wall in question is such a wall as to be a building, structure or erection within the meaning of this Act—within the mischief of this Act.... It is a question of degree, and I think that is very well stated by Lord Coleridge in the case of Ellis v. Plumstead Board of Works (2) where he says:

(1) (1895) 2 Q. B. 577; 64 L. J. M. C. 262; 14 R. 634; 73 L. T. 106; 43 W. R. 677; 59 J. F. 630.

(2) (1893) 68 L. T. 291; 5 R. 237; 41 W. R. 496; 57 J. F. 359.

JOITA BECHAR v. PARSHOTTAM SANKALCHAND.

"I think, however, that the particular thing shown to us in the photographs and plans in this case is such an erection as the section applies to. In saying that, I am not prepared to go the length of saying that every possible 'building, structure, or erection' which a man might put up for the purpose merely of ascertaining and bounding his own property from the public road would necessarily come within the section." Rigby, L. J., said, "Ordinary boundary walls may be outside section 75, and I think in practice they have been treated as being so: it is a question of degree in every case."

From the observations of the learned Judges above quoted it will appear that it will serve no useful purpose in referring to any dictionary at all. We must ascertain what is the mischief the Burma Municipal Act aimed at removing whether the Act does avoid such mischief, and then say whether the walls in question built in the way described above, must be held to be within the meaning of "building" under the Act. I do not think that these walls can be regarded merely as boundary walls. I think they are built so as to enable the occupier of the main house to use the enclosed area as part of his habitation. As merely boundary walls, it is not necessary to have walls of the height in question. The eastern wall in question is a continuation of the eastern wall of the main house, and the southern wall connects the southern end of the eastern wall of the adjoining property. I think we must use our common sense, and I do not think that, having regard to the provisions of the Burma Municipal Act and the bye-laws thereunder in regard to habitation, any man would say that these walls were mere fence or boundary walls. If they were mere fences or boundary walls the accused could not be punished for having them erected. In my opinion the walls in question are "buildings" within the meaning of the Burma Municipal Act and that the Municipal Committee were justified in directing the accused to dismantle them.

The conviction of the accused by the Magistrate must be upheld.

W. C. A.

*Application dismissed.BOMBAY HIGH COURT.CRIMINAL APPLICATION FOR REVISION
No. 87 OF 1923.

April 5, 1923.

Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt.,
Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.
JOITA BECHAR—APPLICANT

versus

PARSHOTTAM SANKALCHAND—
OPPOSITE PARTY.Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 439—Acquittal—Revision.

Per Macleod, C. J.—If the Local Government do not exercise their right of asking the High Court to admit an appeal from an order of acquittal passed by a Sessions Judge sitting with assessors, it is difficult to imagine any circumstances which would justify the High Court in interfering with the order in revision at the instance of the complainant. [p. 975, col. 1.]

Ahmedabad Municipality v. Maganlal, 9 Bom. L. R. 156; 5 Cr. L. J. 171; referred to.

Per Crump, J.—After a regular trial in the Sessions Court, it would be only in the most exceptional cases that the High Court would be justified in interfering, under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code, with an order of acquittal, when there is no appeal by the Local Government under section 417 of the Code. [p. 975, col. 1.]

Criminal application for revision against an order of acquittal passed by the Second Additional Sessions Judge, Ahmedabad, in Sessions Case No. 13 of 1923.

Mr. A. G. Desai, for the Applicant.

JUDGMENT.

Macleod, C. J.—The four accused were charged before the Additional Sessions Judge of Ahmedabad, viz., the third with an offence under section 494, Indian Penal Code, and the other three accused with abetting that offence. The Sessions Judge agreeing with the assessors acquitted all the accused.

This is an application by the complainant to the High Court to interfere under its revisional powers. We have been referred to a decision in Ahmedabad Municipality v. Maganlal (1) in which Mr. Justice Batty said:—

"Although this Court does not ordinarily interfere with orders of acquittal in revision, yet it cannot be expected that it would hesitate to do so, where the acquittal is based not upon an appreciation of doubtful evidence, but upon a manifest error in law appearing on the face of the judgment."

PAN ZYAW v. EMPEROR.

The order of acquittal in that case was passed by a First Class Honorary Magistrate, and it constitutes a material difference that the present case was tried by a Sessions Judge sitting with assessors. Speaking for myself, if in such a case Government do not exercise their right of asking us to admit an appeal from the order of acquittal, I find it difficult to imagine any circumstances which would justify this Court in interfering in revision at the instance of the complainant.

Crump, J.—I agree. This is not a case in which we ought to interfere in the exercise of our powers in revision. It would, perhaps, in my opinion, be difficult to lay down any general rule, but it is, I think, at all events, safe to say that after a regular trial in the Sessions Court, it would be only in the most exceptional cases that this Court would be justified in interfering under section 439 when there is no appeal by the Local Government under section 417, Criminal Procedure Code.

Z. K.

*Application rejected.RADHEY v. EMPEROR.

Reference made under section 438 of the Criminal Procedure Code by the Sessions Judge, Bassein, in his Criminal Revision No. 325 of 1922 on 30th October 1922.

REFERENCE.—The Sub-Divisional Magistrate of Kyonpyaw has ordered the accused, Mg. Pan Zyaw, to enter into a bond with sureties for his good behaviour under section 118 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and has, at the same time, passed an order of restriction against the accused under section 7 of Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act. This double order is clearly illegal under proviso (a) of section 7 of the Habitual Offenders Restriction Act. The proceedings are, therefore, submitted to the Chief Court with a recommendation that the order of restriction be set aside.

ORDER.—As the learned Sessions Judge points out, the double order under section 118, Criminal Procedure Code, and section 7 of the Habitual Offenders Restriction Act is illegal. See section 7 (a) of the latter Act. Section 3 of the Act authorises joint proceedings in the enquiry but double order is forbidden. I, therefore, set aside the order of restriction passed under section 7 of the Act. The Sub-Divisional Magistrate is requested to cancel the order and to inform those concerned.

W. C. A.

*Order set aside.LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION No. 653 OF 1922.

November 7, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Macgregor.PAN ZYAW—APPLICANTversusEMPEROR—RESPONDENT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 118—Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act (II of 1919), s. 7—Surety-bond plus restriction order, legality of.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to direct an accused person to furnish securities for good behaviour under section 118 of the Criminal Procedure Code and at the same time to pass an order under section 7 of the Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act, restricting the movement of the accused.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT

CRIMINAL REVISION PETITION No. 85 OF 1923.

March 7, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ryves.RADHEY AND OTHERS—APPLICANTSversusEMPEROR—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 99—Right of private defence, extent of.

When exercising the right of private defence, it is difficult to expect the person to weigh with golden scales" what maximum amount of force is necessary to keep within that right.

GURA v. DISTRICT JUDGE, AKYAB.

Criminal revision from an order of the Additional Sessions Judge, Allahabad, dated the 11th of December 1922.

Mr. L. M. Roy, for the Applicants.

The Assistant Government-Advocate, for the Crown.

JUDGMENT.—In this case five persons were convicted by the Trial Court under section 323 of the Indian Penal Code and sentenced to pay fine.

They appealed. The learned Sessions Judge found categorically that these five persons had been attacked and that they had a right of private defence of property and were perfectly entitled to take the cattle which were trespassing on and damaging their field to the pound, and that they were entitled, if resisted, to use sufficient force to prevent the rescue of the cattle. The Appellate Court goes on to find that, inasmuch as "twelve injuries were inflicted upon Bindra, I do not think that it would be right to hold that the accused kept within their right." The Appellate Court has not found which accused exceeded the right of private defence, but having regard to his finding that "Bindra was an obstinate fellow" it probably required all the blows which he received and which cause only simple hurt to enable the accused to effect their purpose. At any rate, when once the Court has found that a right of private defence exists it is very difficult to expect the accused to weigh "with golden scales" what maximum amount of force is necessary to keep within that right.

In my opinion, on his own finding, the learned Judge should have allowed the appeal.

I, therefore, allow this application, set aside the conviction and acquit the applicants. The fines, if paid, will be refunded.

M. A. A.

Application allowed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

CIVIL REVISION No. 46 OF 1912.

July 13, 1922.

Present.—Mr. Justice Maung Kin.

GURA—PETITIONER

versus

THE DISTRICT JUDGE, AKYAB—RESPONDENT.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 476, proceeding under—Notice, whether necessary.

In a proceeding under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code, it is not invariably necessary that the person to be proceeded against should receive notice to show cause against the proposed action against him.

Mr. J. E. Lambert, for the Petitioner.

ORDER.—The applicant's affidavit has been reported by the Township Judge to be false in certain particulars.

It was filed in support of his appeal.

I do not think that it was necessary to issue notice to the applicant to show cause against the proposed action against him. Such notice is not invariably necessary. It depends upon the circumstances of the particular case whether it is necessary or not. Action was taken under section 476 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, which does not provide for notice to the respondent of the intention of the Court to take action against him. The circumstances of the case do not seem to me to be such as require the issue of such a notice.

If the Township Judge is believed, the applicant's affidavit will be held to be false.

There seems to be no reason for interfering with the District Judge's order.

The application is dismissed.

W. C. A. & N. H.

Application dismissed.

KANEEZ FATIMA BEGUM v. RAM NANDAN DHAR DUBE.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

EXECUTION SECOND APPEAL NO. 1105 OF 1922.

February 8, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Ryves and Mr. Justice Daniels.

Musammât KANEEZ FATIMA BEGUM

—JUDGMENT-DEBTOR—APPELLANT

versus

RAM NANDA DHAR DUBE AND OTHERS

—DECREE-HOLDERS—RESPONDENTS.

Muhammadian Law—Widow—Dower-debt—Inherited property—Creditor of husband, rights of—Suit by widow for dower-debt—Subsequent suit by creditor of husband—Widow, whether can claim remaining portion of dower—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. II, r. 2.

Under the Muhammadan Law a dower-debt is not a secured debt but a simple debt ranking equally with other debts due from the estate of the husband. [p. 978, col. 1.]

The widow's lien for dower, under the Muhammadan Law, is the right which she has, where she has taken peaceable possession of her husband's estate, to hold that estate as against the heirs of her husband until they satisfy her claim to dower. It has no application to the share which she holds in her own right as heir of her husband, still less can it give her a right to prevent another creditor against her husband's estate from recovering the amount which is due to him by proceeding against the share of the estate which the widow has inherited. [p. 978, col. 1.]

A Muhammadan widow sued the other heirs of her husband to recover her dower-debt, but she deducted from her claim a sum proportionate to the share which she had inherited from her husband as his heir. Subsequently, a creditor of the husband who had obtained a decree against his estate sought to sell in execution of the decree the share which the widow had inherited from her husband. The widow objected that she had a charge on that share to the extent of the amount of the dower which she had excluded from her claim against the other heirs in the previous suit:

• Held, (1) that the dower-debt was not a secured debt and could not, therefore, operate as a charge; [p. 978, col. 1.]

(2) that the widow's claim to the portion of the dower-debt which she did not include in her suit against the other heirs was barred by the provision contained in O. II, r. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code. [p. 978, col. 1.]

Inayat Ali v. Jattun Bibi, 32 Ind. Cas. 362; 18 O. C. 263; 2 O. L. J. 579, relied on.

Execution Second Appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Gorakhpur, dated the 18th April 1922.

Mr. Haribans Sahai, for the Appellant.

Mr. Sankar Sarai, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal in execution-proceedings. The respondent, Ram Nandan Dhar Dube, held a simple money-decree against the assets of Muhammad Ghulam Muhi-ud-din Ashraf Bakshi Khan who is said to have died in 1903. In execution of that decree a share of 1-anna 7-pies and a fraction in Mauza Bhupgarh, alleged to have been inherited by Musammât Kaneez Fatima Begum, the widow of the deceased, was attached and sold. Musammât Kaneez Fatima had a claim for dower against the estate of the deceased. It is now common ground that the share which she inherited in this village from her husband was $7\frac{1}{2}$ pies only, and on her objection the sale has been set aside except as regards this $7\frac{1}{2}$ pies as to which it has been maintained. The remainder of the share owned by the deceased in this village passed to the other heirs of the deceased. Musammât Kaneez Fatima Begum instituted a suit to recover her dower-debt and, in execution of the decree which she obtained, the whole share of the deceased in the village except the share in her possession was brought to sale and purchased by her in the year 1918. She took objection to the sale held under the respondent's decree on the ground that she inherited only $7\frac{1}{2}$ -pies share in this village, and that out of this share she had made a gift in the year 1908 of $2\frac{1}{2}$ pies to one Musammât Amna Bai. Her case was that only 5-pies share was liable to sale under the respondents' decree and that even this share was subject to a charge of Rs. 27,000 in respect of the unpaid portion of her dower-debt. In a suit for dower which she filed she had not claimed the entire dower-debt but had deducted a sum proportionate to the share which she had inherited and it is in respect of this sum that she now claims a charge.

The Courts below have held that only the $7\frac{1}{2}$ -pies share which she inherited can be brought to sale but have disallowed her claim to a charge and to the deduction of $2\frac{1}{2}$ -pies share on account of the gift. In this appeal she again presses the two objections which have been rejected by the Courts below. As regards the $2\frac{1}{2}$ -pies share which she gave away it has been found that on the same day she received from the donee a life-interest in a much larger share, viz., a share of 9 pies, in this very village, therefore, the share of $7\frac{1}{2}$ pies which she inherited had not really been diminished in any way and the entire share is liable to be sold. We can find no valid answer to this reasoning and none has been shown to us.

GOVIND CHINTAMAN BHAT V. KACHUBHAI GULABCHAND.

The claim to a charge is also untenable. It is well established that a dower-debt is not a secured debt but a simple debt ranking equally with other debts due from the estate. The widow's lien for dower is the right which she has, where she has taken peaceable possession of her husband's estate, to hold that estate as against the heirs of her husband until they satisfy her claim to dower. It has no application to the share which she holds in her own right as heir of her husband, still less can it give her a right to prevent another creditor against her husband's estate from recovering the amount which is due to him. It is argued in the alternative that even as a simple creditor she is entitled to realise the amount of dower still due to her from the portion of the estate in her hands as heir equally with the respondent. The plea was not taken in the grounds of appeal and it is untenable. In the first place, the dower fell due on her husband's death in 1903 and as a simple debt has long since been time-barred. In the second place, as she elected to sue for only a portion of the dower-debt, O. II, r. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code would prevent her claiming any amount which she had chosen to forego. A similar contention was put forward in a case before the Judicial Commissioner of Oudh reported as Inayat Ali v. Jaitun Bibi (1) and was rejected. It is only as a secured creditor that she could claim to treat the amount for which she did not sue as being a charge on the share in her hands by inheritance, and the authorities are clear, and indeed it is not disputed, that a widow is not a secured creditor in respect of her claim for dower.

The appeal, therefore, fails. As the amount in respect of which the sale has been upheld is not sufficient to satisfy the respondent's claim, the learned District Judge has directed that the respondent shall be at liberty to realise the remainder of his decree from the objector's share in other villages which he has already attached. The appellant wishes it made clear and we declare by our decree that the District Judge's order will not prevent the appellant from putting forward any legitimate objection she may have to the sale of the estate of those shares. Subject to this, the appeal is dismissed with costs including fees on the higher scale.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 211 OF 1921.

February 16, 1923.

Present:—Sir. Norman Macleod, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

GOVIND CHINTAMAN BHAT—

PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

KACHUBHAI GULABCHAND—

DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Arts. 57, 59, 60—Loan and deposit, distinction between—Burden of proof.

A plaintiff relying upon Art. 60 of Schedule C to the Limitation Act must prove that something took place between the parties at the time the money passed which would constitute the handing over of the money "a deposit" and not "a loan." That might arise from a direct agreement or might be implied from the circumstances in which the money came to the hands of the borrower. [p. 979, col. 2.]

Ordinarily, when one person hands over money to another on the understanding that it is not a gift, but has to be repaid when de asked, that would be considered in law "a loan"; and if the lender seeks to prove that the money so handed over was a "deposit," the onus would lie upon him to prove that there were additional circumstances which turned the "loan" into a "deposit." [p. 979, col. 2.]

Munche ji Bomanji Panthaki v. Dorab i Jehangir Randiva, 19 B. 775; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 520 and Subramanian Chettiar v. Kadiresan Chettiar, 32 Ind. Cas. 965; 39 M. 1081; 3 L. W. 168; 30 M. L. J. 245; 19 M. L. T. 129; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 86, referred to.

First Appeal from the decision of the First Class Subordinate Judge, Poona, in Suit No. 665 of 1919.

(1) 32 Ind. Cas. 362; 18 O. C. 263; 2 O. L. J. 579.

GOVIND CHINTAMAN BHAT v. KACHUBHAI GULABCHAND.

Messrs. H. C. Coyajee (with him Y. V. Bhandarkar); for the Appellant.

Mr. K. N. Koyajee, for Respondent No. 1.

Mr. V. D. Limaye, for Respondents Nos. 2 and 3.

JUDGMENT.—On September 16, 1900, Rs. 10,000 passed from the firm of Chhaganlal-Vakhatchand to the firm of Kachubhai-Gulabchand; and in the accounts of Chhaganlal-Vakhatchand it is shown that Rs. 10,000 were credited to Kachubhai. Interest at three per cent. was credited up to the 3rd of Asv of the Samvat year 1957, and the total of principal and interest was carried on into the account of the year 1958, and it would appear that the account continued, interest at three per cent. being added at the end of each year, till 1908. Nothing further happened until in November 1918 in execution of a decree against Nagindas, the only son of the original depositor Chhaganlal-Vakhatchand, the debt due by the firm of Kachubhai-Gulabchand was put up for sale and brought by one Krishnaji Bhat for Rs. 120. In October 1919, Krishnaji assigned his right to the debt to one Narain Krishna for Rs. 1,000 and the present plaintiff bought it from Narain Krishna for Rs. 1,100 on November 4, 1919. On November 7, he gave notice to Kachubhai-Gulabchand to pay the amount. Certain other defendants besides the shop of Kachubhai-Gulabchand were added on the ground that they were bhaubands of Kachubhai-Gulabchand. But there does not appear any reason why these defendants should have been added as parties.

The first defendant alleged in his written statement that he had borrowed Rs. 10,000 at three per cent. from the alleged depositor that it was not a deposit and that the alleged claim was time-barred. He also alleged payment.

The Trial Judge dismissed the plaintiff's suit on the ground that the suit was for money lent, therefore, time began to run from the date of the loan.

It has been urged before us in appeal that the suit was one for money deposited on an agreement that it should be payable on demand, and, therefore, the suit came within Art. 60 of the Second Schedule of the Indian Limitation Act, and time began to run against the plaintiff from November 7, 1919, when the demand was made. No oral evidence was adduced at the trial, nor has it been suggested before us that there was any evidence available as to the circumstances in which the money was first handed over to the first defendant's firm in 1900. There is, therefore, a good deal of difficulty in ascertaining whether the suit comes within Art. 60. It is not clear what the Legislature meant by the word "deposited" in Art. 60 but there must be some difference between "money lent," and "money deposited," and one can only assume that a plaintiff relying upon Art. 60 must prove that something took place between the parties at the time the money passed which would constitute the handing over of the money "a deposit", and not "a loan". It has been suggested that the difference in "a loan" and "a deposit" is, that the borrower who takes money on deposit stands in a fiduciary relationship to the lender. That might either arise from a direct agreement, or might be implied from the circumstances in which the money came to the hands of the borrower. Ordinarily, when A hands over money to B on the understanding that it is not a gift but has to be repaid when demanded, that would be considered in law "a loan" and when the plaintiff seeks to prove that the money so handed over was "a deposit", the onus would lie upon him to prove that there were additional circumstances which turned the "loan" into a "deposit".

The case of Muncherji Bomanji Panthaki v. Dorabji Jehangir Randiva (1) has been relied upon by the appellant. The learned Chief Justice said (page 776):—

"This case raises the question as to the distinction between a loan and a deposit which has frequently come before this Court, and which is generally difficult to decide. Ordinarily, money paid into a banking account is regarded as a loan. . . It is pretty clear that the sum of Rs. 650, which was the foundation of the account between the defendant and Vrbaij, was really paid to him by her as belonging to her son. The child was only a year old, and it is difficult to believe that the defendant did not know that this money paid over to him in the child's name was the child's property and paid over to him (the defendant) as a deposit. When a mother pays her son's money into his grandfather's firm, as was done in this case, the intention must be that it is to be kept as a deposit for her son and to be ultimately given to him when he demands it, unless indeed in the meantime it has already been applied in some way or other for his use and profit."

(1) 19 B. 775; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 520.

GOVIND CHINTAMAN BHAT V. KACHUBHAI GULAB CHAND.

Mr. Justice Tyabji said:—

"There are several circumstances which show that the ... transaction was of a fiduciary character."

That case, however, must stand on its own facts and can be of little use in solving the problem whether any general principles can be laid down to enable the Courts to distinguish between "a loan" and "a deposit."

In Subramanian Chettiar v. Kadiresan Chettiar (2) it was held that money left in the hands of a trader who was not a banker would be a deposit in circumstances such as would make it money of a customer where the deposit is a banker.

But it seems to us that any reference now to the relationship between a banker and a customer would be of little assistance in answering the question we have to decide. Previous to the amendment of Art. 60 by adding the words "including money of a customer in the hands of his banker so payable," it would have been considered that money paid in the ordinary course by a customer to his bank was not money deposited, and it is only by virtue of that amendment that a customer's money in the hands of a banker is now treated as a deposit. But that amendment only defines a particular instance as coming within the class of deposits. It cannot be suggested that there is anything uncommon between a loan taken by a trader for the purposes of his business, and money taken by the bank from its customers to be held either on deposit or on current account. If, whenever money is left in the hands of a trader, who is not a banker, it is to be considered that there is a deposit of such money, then it is difficult to see what distinction there is between "a loan" and "a deposit".

It seems to us, so far as this case is concerned, that the plaintiff would have to show that when these Rs. 10,000 were paid to the first defendant's firm, some arrangement was made by which the first defendant's firm agreed to hold it as a deposit instead of as a loan. It will be seen that there is no distinction in the Act between money lent and money deposited with regard to the agreement to repay. So that it is not the agreement that the money should be payable on demand that distinguishes a deposit from a loan. There must be something further proved and it is not possible to define exactly what that something further must be. It has sometimes been suggested that facts must be proved which create a sort of fiduciary relationship between the lender and the borrower, but we are not prepared to say that is always necessary. However, in this case we cannot see that the plaintiff has proved anything to distinguish the debt which was incurred by the first defendant's firm in 1900 as a debt for money deposited and not for money lent. As the onus clearly lay upon him to satisfy the Court that there was that distinction, and he did not discharge it, then he is bound to fail, as the suit then comes within Art. 59 or 57, and is clearly barred. The appeal, therefore, must be dismissed.

In the Trial Court the first defendant had been ordered to pay plaintiff's costs, although the suit was dismissed. The first defendant has appealed against that order (F. A. No. 218 of 1921). The learned Judge seems to have been impressed by the fact that, although the first defendant had notice under the Civil Procedure Code when the claim was attached and sold by the Court, he did not appear and plead time-bar and satisfaction, and did not reply to the plaintiff's notice. We do not know that the first defendant was under any obligation to appear when he had received notice that the claim had been attached. He was entitled to stand upon his rights and wait until he was sued to plead that the suit brought against him was time-barred. But certainly he should have replied to the notice and it is also against him that he pleaded payment. That would be a ground for depriving him of his costs, even although he succeeded in getting the plaintiff's suit dismissed.

(2) 32 Ind. Cas 965; 39 M. 1081; 3 L. W. 168; 30 M. L. J. 245; 19 M. L. T. 129; (1916) 1. M. W. N. 86.

DHARAMAN V. SUKHI.

But that is no ground for making him pay the costs of the unsuccessful plaintiff. So the orders will be that First Appeal No. 211 of 1921 is dismissed with costs. Two sets of costs; and First Appeal No. 218 of 1921 is allowed with costs in favour of defendant No. 1.

Z. K.

*Appeal dismissed.ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1502 OF 1921.

March 9, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Lindsay.

DHARAMAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT

versus

SUKHI AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), ss. 25, 29—Occupancy tenant—Sub-lease unregistered, for more than one year, validity of—Rent, whether can be recovered.

All agreements which are contrary to the law are void and unenforceable and no party to such agreements can obtain any relief from the Courts in respect of any portion of the agreements.

An occupancy tenant cannot recover rent from a sub-lessee holding under a sub-lease made in contravention of the terms of section 23 of the Agra Tenancy Act.

Section 29 of the Agra Tenancy Act does not say that where there has been a sub-letting in contravention of the terms of the Act, the sub-lease is valid and enforceable. All it says is that when there has been such a sub-letting and where the interest of the tenant becomes extinguished before the period of the sub-lease has expired, the landlord has a right or option to treat the sub-lessee as his principal tenant, and may enforce against him any of the covenants which he entered into with the tenant at the time the sub-lease was made.

Second appeal against the decree of the First Additional District Judge, Aligarh, dated the 25th of August 1921.

Mr. Panna Lal, for the Appellant.

Mr. B. K. Mukherji, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—In my opinion the judgment of the lower Appellate Court in this case is wrong and must be set aside.

The suit was brought by the plaintiffs to recover rent for the years 1325 and 1326 from the defendant on the ground that he had been cultivating 10 bighas 5 biswas land during that period at an annual rent of Rs. 88.

The plaintiffs are admittedly occupancy tenants and the claim was, therefore, brought against the defendant in his capacity as a sub-tenant.

The Assistant Collector dismissed the claim on the ground that no sub-letting had been proved.

The learned District Judge has found that, as a matter of fact, the defendant cultivated these lands during both the years in suit and that the rent had not been paid either wholly or in part.

So far as this part of the case is concerned, these findings are findings of fact and cannot be disputed.

A point of law, however, was raised before the learned District Judge to the effect that, inasmuch as the defendant had been shown to occupy the land for two successive years the sub-letting by the plaintiffs was in violation of the law as laid down in section 25 of the Agra Tenancy Act. It was pleaded, therefore, that inasmuch as the sub-lease was void under the terms of that section the plaintiffs could not get any relief from the Courts. The learned Judge, however, repelled this argument referring to the provisions of section 29 which, according to his interpretation, indicated that although a sub-lease might be at variance with the law as laid down in section 25, it was nevertheless enforceable.

I do not think the learned Judge has read section 29 of the Act correctly. That section does not say that where there has been a sub-letting in contravention of the terms of the Act, the sub-lease is valid and enforceable. All it says is that when there has been such a sub-letting and where the interest of the tenant becomes extinguished before the period of the sub-lease has expired the landlord has a right or option to treat the sub-lessee as his principal tenant and may enforce against him any of the covenants which he entered into with the tenant at the time the sub-lease was made.

The law in my opinion is perfectly clear. All agreements which are contrary to the law are void and unenforceable and no party to such an agreement can obtain any relief from the Courts. It follows, therefore, that here we have a case of a sub-lease made in contravention of the terms of the Act inasmuch as there was no registered instrument, and, that being so, the plaintiffs are not entitled to recover. The fact that the landlord has not chosen to enforce his option to eject the plaintiffs for having made a sub-lease in contravention of the terms of the Act cannot, as between the parties to the sub-lease itself, make that valid which is otherwise void under the law.

VISWANATHA ASARI v. SAMI ASARI.

It has been argued before me that in any case the defendant ought to be made liable for the first year, i.e., 1325 Fasli, on the ground that a sub-lease for one year does not require registration. I am not disposed to accede to this argument. It is found clearly that the arrangement of the sub-tenancy was an arrangement made in defiance of the terms of section 25 and I do not think the plaintiffs can fall back upon the plea that although the agreement for a sub-lease is in its entirety void nevertheless some portion of it is good so as to entitle the plaintiffs to claim one year's rent. The proper view is that the whole contract is void and the plaintiffs cannot recover. The result is that I allow this appeal, set aside the decree of the Court below and restore the decree of the Court of first instance. The appellant is entitled to his costs both here and in the Court below, and in this Court costs will include fees on the higher scale.

Z. K.

*Appeal allowed.MADRAS HIGH COURT.CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 783
OF 1921.

February 23, 1923.

Present—Mr. Justice Odgers.

VISWANATHA ASARI—PETITIONER—

PLAINTIFF

Versus

SAMI ASARI alias MAGHASAYA ASARI

—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XVII, rr. 2, 3—Dismissal of suit in presence of plaintiff's Pleadings—Order, nature of—Remedy—Appeal—Revision.

Where on the day of hearing of a suit the plaintiff is represented by a Pleadings who asks for an adjournment which is refused, the Court cannot dismiss the suit for default under O. XVII, r. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code but must proceed to dispose of it on the merits under r. 3 of that Order.

Obiter—The remedy of the aggrieved party in such a case is by way of appeal against the decree and not by way of revision against an order refusing restoration of the suit.

Patinhare Tarkatt Rama Mannadi v. Vellur Krishnan Menon, 26 M. 267, Vaiguntthammal v. Valliammal Ammal, 41 Ind. Cas. 719; 41 M. 256; 6 L. W. 337; (1917) M. W. N. 743, followed.

Petition, under section 25 of Act IX of 1887, praying the High Court to revise the order of the Court of the Sub-Judge, Chinglepet, in M. P. No. 5 of 1921 in S. C. S. No. 543 of 1920.

Messrs. S. Rangaswamy Aiyengar and S. Subhan Mania Aiyar, for the Petitioner.

Mr. D. W. Neelamegha Charlar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—In this case it is contended that the order of the Sub-Judge is wrong in that it disposed of the suit on the merits whereas, as the plaintiff was absent, he ought to have proceeded under O. XVII, r. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, in dismissing the case for default instead of under O. XVII, r. 3. As against this, it appears that the plaintiff was not absent but was represented by the Pleadings who asked for an adjournment which was refused. Patinhare Tarkatt Rama Mannadi v. Vellur Krishnan Menon (1) is authority for the proposition that in such a case the suit cannot be dismissed for default but a judgment must be written and the case disposed of. No authority is cited to the contrary. It is further contended that no revision lies, as this is not an ex parte decree, but the remedy of the petitioner is to proceed by way of appeal from the decree against him. The petition cannot, therefore, be brought against the order refusing restoration of the suit on the ground that the suit was dismissed for want of evidence and was not dismissed ex parte.

(1) 26 M. 267.

HAJIRA KHATUN v. AMINA KHATUN.

As I must hold that the plaintiff was present by his Pleader in this case, Vaiguntathammal v. Valliammal Ammal (2) is the authority for holding that O. XVII, r. 3, is applicable and the learned Subordinate Judge was right in the order he made. I am inclined to think that the other point taken for the respondent on the authority of Gundan v. Rama Chetti (3) is also sound but in view of my finding on the other point, it is not necessary to say anything more with regard to that.

Assuming a revision petition will lie, I hold the order of the Subordinate Judge was correct and there is no ground to interfere with it.

This civil revision petition is dismissed with costs.

V. N. V.

Petition dismissed.

N. H.

(2) 41 Ind. Cas. 719; 41 M. 256; 6 L. W. 337 (1917) M. W. N. 743.

(3) 33 Ind. Cas. 660; 3 L. W. 524.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1807 OF 1921.

April 26, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Daniels.

Musammat HAJIRA KHATUN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus

Musammat AMINA KHATUN—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 112—Legitimacy, rule of—Rule, applicability of, to Muhammadans.

The rule as to legitimacy contained in section 112 of the Evidence Act is a rule of procedure and not of substantive law, and as such is applicable to Muhammadans. [p. 984, col. 1.]

Muhammad Allahdad Khan v. Muhammad Ismail Khan, 10 A. 289; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 193, referred to.

Mazhar Ali v. Budh Singh, 7 A. 297; A. W. N. (1884) 333; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 422 (F. B.) and Mairaj Fatima v. Abdul Waheed, 63 Ind. Cas. 286; 43 A. 673; 19 A. L. J. 713, relied on.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Budaun, dated the 29th July 1921.

Mr. Harmandan Prasad, for the Appellant.

Mr. Iqbal Ahmad, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The question in this appeal is, whether the defendant Musammat Hajiran Khatun is the legitimate daughter of Iftikhar-ud-Din. Iftikhar-ud-Din had two wives, Musammat Rukaiyut-un-nissa and Musammat Hasan Jan alias Bivi Jan. The plaintiff is the daughter of the former, the defendant of the latter. Iftikhar-ud-Din has at different times quarrelled with and divorced both his wives. At one time, he denied the paternity of the defendant, at another time he acknowledged her.

It is admitted by both parties that the defendant was born on 19th September 1912. It was the case of the plaintiff that Bibi Jan was divorced in the year 1911 before the defendant was born or even conceived. The learned District Judge has rejected this case and has found as a fact that Musammat Bibi Jan was not divorced until after the birth of the defendant; apparently in December 1912. His finding, therefore, is, that the defendant was born during the continuance of a valid marriage between her mother and Iftikhar-ud-Din. He has also found that Iftikhar-ud-Din visited the defendant's mother at a time when conception could have taken place. It, therefore, follows that if the case is governed by section 112 of the Evidence Act there was a conclusive presumption in favour of the defendant's legitimacy and the suit should have been dismissed. The learned District Judge has ignored the provisions of this section and has gone on to discuss the case on the letters and declarations of Iftikhar-ud-Din about this time. He notices various letters and post-cards of Iftikhar-ud-Din returned during the months preceding the defendant's birth and he notes that though Iftikhar-ud-Din was on bad terms with his wife and was complaining of her temper, etc., in none of them did he disclaim the paternity of the child who was about to be born. He holds, however, that Iftikhar-ud-Din's conduct in divorcing his wife so soon after the birth of the defendant was an indication that he believed himself not to be the father and on this ground he has decreed the suit. The reasoning of the District Judge is difficult to understand, and in any case he has entirely ignored the conclusive presumption which he was bound under section 112 of the Evidence Act to draw from the facts which he had found.

HAJIRA KHATUN v. AMINA KHATUN.

It has been argued, however, on behalf of the respondent that section 112 of the Evidence Act does not govern the case and reference has been made to a doubt expressed in Sir Roland Wilson's Anglo-Muhammadan Law, 5th Edition, paragraph 83, page 161, as to whether section 112 is not really a rule of substantive law rather than a rule of evidence and, therefore, inapplicable to Muhammadans so far as it conflicts with the presumption of Muhammadan Law. The presumption raised by Muhammadan Law is that a child born within two years of the termination of a lawful marriage is legitimate, but the point relied on by the respondent is that this is a rebuttable presumption and that the District Judge must be taken to have found as a fact that the presumption has been rebutted. The remarks of Sir Roland Wilson on the subject are based originally on certain observations of Mr. Justice Mahmood in Muhammad Allahdad Khan v. Muhammad Ismail Khan (1). Mahmood, J., did not express any definite opinion on the subject but he observed that it may some day be a question of great difficulty to determine how far the provisions of the section are to be taken as trenching upon Muhammadan Law. There is no direct authority on the point, but a similar controversy has been raised as to the presumption contained in section 108 of the Evidence Act and it was held by a Full Bench of the High Court in Mazhar Ali v. Budh Singh (2), that this was a provision of the Law of Evidence and was applicable to Muhammadans. The same view has been taken in Mairaj Fatima v. Abdul Waheed (3).

On the face of it, there appears no justification for the doubt suggested in Sir Roland Wilson's Commentary. The Evidence Act applies to all classes and to all judicial proceedings before any Court. The rule contained in section 112 is in fact a rule of exclusion of evidence. Its position in Part III of the Evidence Act, which deals with the production and effect of evidence, shows that it was intended to be so regarded. It is a rule that on certain facts being established no evidence to contradict the conclusion of legitimate descent shall be admitted except evidence of non-access. On the necessary facts being proved in a judicial proceeding such as the present suit the Court was bound to apply section 112 of the Evidence Act and to draw a conclusion in favour of the defendant's legitimacy. Sir Roland Wilson would apparently treat it as a provision containing an artificial definition of legitimate descent as including all persons born during the continuance of lawful wedlock or within a certain time after its termination. Even from this point of view the difficulty arises that the supposed rule is not absolute. Evidence, though evidence of one particular kind only, is admissible to disprove paternity. As to Sir Roland Wilson's concluding remark that the enactments which provide that in matters of status Muhammadans shall be governed by Muhammadan Law are later in date than the Evidence Act, it is sufficient to say that if it had been intended in these enactments to repeal a provision of the Evidence Act as applicable to Muhammadans this would have been done directly and not left to be inferred by a remote and precarious inference. I may note further that two learned Muhammadan Commentators, Mr. Mulla and Mr. Justice Tyabji, have differed from the view suggested by Sir Roland Wilson. The latter, in the second Edition of his Principles of Muhammadan Law, page 267, expresses the opinion that the section was probably drafted without giving a thought to the context in which it should have been set if it is to displace the Muhammadan Law on the point but goes on to say, that the oversight can hardly be a ground for disregarding its provisions. I agree with the view taken by these writers that section 112 of the Evidence Act applies. The result is that the appeal must succeed and I accordingly allow it with costs in all Courts including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

M. A. A.

Appeal allowed.

(1) 10 A. 289; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 193.

(2) 7 A. 297; A. W. N. (1884) 333; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 422 (F. B.).

(3) 63 Ind. Cas. 286; 43 A. 673 19 A. L. J. 713.

CHHAMMU LAL, v. BHAJAN LAL.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 636 OF 1921.

May 28, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ryves and
Mr. Justice Daniels.

CHHAMMU LAL, AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

BHAJAN LAL, AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS
—RESPONDENTS.Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 72—Repairs by mortgagee—Improvements to suit particular tenant.

Putting iron bars into a window of a house usufructuarily mortgaged, in order to suit a particular tenant, for doing which the mortgagee has received increased rent, is not repairs within the meaning of section 72 of the Transfer of Property Act; and no compensation can be claimed for the same at the time of redemption.

Rupan Singh v. Champa Lal, 26 Ind. Cas. 521; 37 A. 81 at p. 86; 13 A. L. J. 14, followed.

Second appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Farrukhabad, dated the 22nd January 1921.

Mr. Durga Prasad, for the Appellants.

Dr. K. N. Katju, Messrs. G. Agarwala and Vishnu Nath, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit for redemption of a usufructuary mortgage of some shops executed in 1843 by the predecessors in title of the plaintiffs. The plaintiffs claim that the principal and interest had been more than paid up by the usufruct. Various defences were raised in the suit, but it is now only necessary to consider two points. The Trial Court held that the plaintiffs must pay Rs. 1,099-0-9 plus interest at 9 per cent. per annum to the defendants for necessary repairs made by them in the premises they held under the terms of the mortgage-deed. It further held that Chhammu Lal and Ram Narain who had obtained possession of two of the shops had made certain improvements in their shops which had cost them about Rs. 109 each, and directed the plaintiffs to pay this amount to Chhammu Lal and Ram Narain with interest at 9 per cent. per annum. On appeal the lower Appellate Court held that the defendants were not entitled to interest on the sum of Rs. 1,099 spent by them in repairs, on the ground that they had already received increased rent in consequence of these repairs which was equivalent to interest. It seems to us that this really is a finding of fact.

MUHAMMAD GHOUSE v. MOHIDDEEN.

On the second point it held that there was no evidence to show that Ram Narain had made any improvements at all, and, therefore, nothing was due to him; and as regards Chhammu Lal it found, that what he had done was to put in some iron bars into a window in order to suit a particular tenant, and that he had received increased rent accordingly. In any case, it seems to us that improvements of this kind do not fall within section 72 of the Transfer of Property Act; and in this respect we agree with the concluding remarks in the case reported in Rupan Singh v. Champa Lal (1). The result is that the appeal fails and is dismissed with costs including fees in this Court on the higher scale.

M. A. A.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 26 Ind. Cas. 521; 37 A. 81 at p. 86; 13 A. L. J. 14.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 158 OF 1923.

March 1, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Krishnan.

Daroga MUHAMMAD GHOUSE SAHIB

—PETITIONER

versus

Shaik MOHIDEEN SAHIB—

RESPONDENT.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 48—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 98—Execution of ejectment decree—Removal of obstruction—Small Cause Court, power of.

Under section 48 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, a Small Cause Court has jurisdiction in execution of a decree in ejectment, to act under O. XXI, r. 98 of the Civil Procedure Code and remove any improper obstruction to the carrying out of its own order.

Baggiammal v. Appadurai Gramany, 6 Ind. Cas. 722; 7 M. L. T. 385, followed.

Petition, under section 115 of Act V of 1908 and section 107 of the Government of India Act, praying the High Court to revise an order of the Court of Small Causes, Madras, dated the 11th January 1923, in K. I. RAILWAY COMPANY V. KISHIN LAL.

Miscellaneous Petition No. 211 of 1922 in Ejectment Suit No. 210 of 1922.

Messrs. Muhammad Ibrahim Sahib and G. Ramakrishna Iyer, for the Petitioner.
Messrs. K. Narasimha Iyer, A. Raghunatha Rao and P. V. Subramanyam, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—It is argued that the Presidency Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to remove the obstruction by the petitioner. I am unable to accept this argument. It is clear section 48 of the Small Cause Courts Act applies the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure to proceedings under Chapter VII and the language of it is wide enough to include a power to act under O. XXI, r. 98, Civil Procedure Code. A similar view was taken in the case reported as Baggiammal v. Appadurai Gramany (1). To hold otherwise would lead to the extraordinary result that, though the Small Cause Court can pass an order in ejectment against a tenant, its order could be defeated by the tenant giving over possession to a third party a day previous to the date fixed for ejectment. The Small Cause Court has power to remove any improper obstruction to the carrying out of its own order.

It was next contended that this was not a proper case to direct removal of obstruction as petitioner claims a title to the property. He has, according to his own case, no title at present but only a right to enforce specific performance of a contract which, it may be mentioned, the respondent denies, and he has taken possession from Karim, the respondent's tenant, against whom the order in ejectment was made. The order of the lower Court removing obstruction was clearly right in the circumstances.

The civil revision petition is dismissed with costs.

V. N. V. Petition dismissed.
(1) 6 Ind. Cas. 722; 7 M. L. T. 385.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION No. 23 OF 1923.

April 13, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Daniels.

EAST INDIAN RAILWAY COMPANY —DEFENDANT—APPLICANT

versus

FIRM KISHIN LAL TIRKHAMAL—PLAINTIFF—OPPOSITE PARTY.

Railway Company—Risk Note Form B—Suit for damages for short delivery—'Loss,' meaning of—Burden of proving loss—"Robbery" and "theft," meaning of.

In a suit for damages for non-delivery of goods against a Railway Company where the plaintiff has not alleged loss of the consignment, it is for the Railway Company to prove the loss before seeking protection under the Risk Note, Form B; and it is only after it has proved this that the plaintiff can be required to prove that the loss was due to a cause for which the Railway Company was liable. [p. 987, col. 1.]

Ghelabhai Pansi v. East Indian Railway Company, 63 Ind. Cas. 241; 45 B. 1201; 23 Bom. L. R. 525 and Secretary of State for India in Council v. Firm Jiwan and Abdullah, 71 Ind. Cas. 609; 21 A. L. J. 220, relied on.

East Indian Railway Co. v. Nathmall, 39 Ind. Cas. 130; 39 A. 418; 15 A. L. J. 321 and Smith, Limited v. Great Western Railway Co., (1922) 1 A. C. 178; 91 L. J. K. B. 423; 27 Com. Cas. 247; 38 T. L. R. 359, distinguished.

The word 'loss' in Risk Note, Form B, means loss to the Railway Company and not loss to the plaintiff. [p. 987, col. 2.]

Secretary of State for India in Council v. Firm Jiwan and Abdullah, 71 Ind. Cas. 609; 21 A. L. J. 220, followed.

Hill, Sawyres & Co. v. Secretary of State, 61 Ind. Cas. 926; 2 L. 133; 3 L. L. J. 297, dissented from.

The terms, "robbery" and "theft" in Risk Note, Form B, have the same meaning in the case of theft from a running train. [p. 987, col. 1.]

Great Indian Peninsular Railway Co. v. Bhola Nath-Debi Das, 70 Ind. Cas. 854; 45 A. 56; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 79, relied on.

Civil revision from an order of the Judge of the Court of Small Causes, Ghaziabad, dated the 9th December 1922.

Mr. L. P. Zutshi, for the Applicant.

Mr. N. C. Valsh, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.—This revision raises a question of the liability of a Railway Company in respect of goods consigned under Risk Note B. In this Form of Risk Note the consignor, in view of reduced rate of freight, agrees to hold the Railway "harmless and free from all responsibility for any loss, destruction or deterioration or damage to the said consignment from any cause whatever except for the loss of a complete consignment or of one or more complete packages . . . due either to the wilful neglect of the Railway Administration or to theft by, or to the wilful neglect of its servants . . . (with a further proviso) that wilful neglect shall not be held to include fire, robbery from a running train or any other unforeseen event or accident."

E. I. RAILWAY COMPANY v. KISHIN LAL.

One hundred and twenty-six bags of sugar were consigned to the plaintiff under a Risk Note in this form. On taking delivery the number was found to be short by three bags. The plaintiff alleges that, in consequence of this short delivery, the plaintiffs have suffered loss to the amount claimed. In defence, the Railway Company set up the Risk Note and they further alleged that in this case the loss of the bags was due to theft from a running train. It has been held that, in this connection, the terms "robbery" and "theft" are equivalent [Great Indian Peninsular Railway Co. v. Bhola Nath-Debi Das (1)]. The case was tried in the Small Cause Court. The view by the learned Judge of the Court below was that as the plaintiff did not allege in his plaint that the goods were lost but merely that he had not received them, it lay on the defendants to prove loss of the goods, and it was only after they had proved this that the plaintiff could be required to prove that the loss was due to a cause for which the Railway Company would be liable. In support of this view the learned Judge relies on the case of Ghelabhai Punsi v. East Indian Railway Company (2), though the learned Judge prefers to cite the case from some volume of private reports. The same view was taken by Lindsay, J. in Secretary of State for India in Council v. Firm Jivan & Abdullah (3), in a case in which a consignment of food had rotted owing to delay in transit and the plaintiff had suffered loss in consequence. The delay was found to be due to the wilful neglect of the Railway Company. The goods were consigned under Risk Note B, as in the present case. The Risk Note gave the Railway absolute protection in respect of damage to the goods. It did not protect them against loss if the loss was due to the wilful neglect of their servants. The learned Judge held that, "loss" meant loss by the Railway Company and not loss to the plaintiff. On this view the plaintiff is entitled to a decree in the present case. In that case the plaintiffs were suing for something which was prima facie within the protection afforded by the Risk Note, namely, damage to the goods. Therefore, in the absence of proof of loss the suit failed. Here the plaintiffs are suing for something which was prima facie within the protection afforded by the Risk Note, namely, damage to the goods. Therefore, in the absence of proof of loss the suit failed. Here the plaintiffs are suing for something which is prima facie outside the protection afforded by the Note, namely, breach of the contract to deliver. In the absence of evidence of loss the plaintiff is entitled to succeed. No doubt, a different view has been taken by the Punjab High Court in Hill, Sawyers & Co. v. Secretary of State (4), but the Subordinate Judge was bound to follow the rulings of this Court.

Reliance is placed by the respondent on East Indian Railway Co. v. Nathmall (5) and Smith, Limited v. Great Western Railway Co. (6). In both these cases the loss of the goods was admitted by the plaintiffs. In the former case the goods were missing on the arrival of the train at its destination. In the English case it is specifically stated in the last paragraph of Lord Wrenbury's judgment that the plaintiff alleged the loss of the goods. The argument turned on whether wilful negligence could be assumed from the mere fact of non-delivery. Moreover, the protection given to the Railway was in wider terms and included delay or detention.

For the above reasons I am unable to accept this revision, which I accordingly dismiss with costs.

M. A. A. Application dismissed.

(1) 70 Ind. Cas. 854; 45 A. 56; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 79.

(2) 63 Ind. Cas. 241; 45 B. 1201; 23 Bom. L. R. 525.

(3) 71 Ind. Cas. 609; 21 A. L. J. 220.

(4) 61 Ind. Cas. 926; 2 L. 133; 3 L. L. J. 297 (F. B.).

(5) 39 Ind. Cas. 130; 39 A. 418; 15 A. L. J. 321.

(6) (1922) 1 A. C. 178; 91 L. J. K. B. 423; 27 Com. Cas. 247; 38 T. L. R. 359.

KALA V. MAM CHAND.

LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 3078 OF 1922.

April 19, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Martineau and
Mr. Justice Moti Sagar.

KALA AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—

APPELLANTS

versus

MAM CHAND AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—RESPONDENTS.

Custom—Ancestral property—Alienation—Sonless proprietor of Rohtak Tahsil, District Rohtak.
A sonless proprietor of the Rohtak Tahsil of the Rohtak District has unrestricted powers of alienation in respect of ancestral land.

Giant v. Teh Chand, 64 Ind. Cas. 549; 11 P. L. R. 1922; (1922) A. I. R. (L) 69; 4 L. 111 and Uggar Sain v. Telu, 71 Ind. Cas. 829; (1923) A. I. R. (L) 193; 4 L. 113, followed.

Budal v. Kirpa, 23 Ind. Cas. 211; 76 P. R. 1914; 148 P. L. R. 1914; 131 P. W. R. 1914, dis-sented from.

Beg v. Allah Ditta, 38 Ind. Cas. 354; 45 P. R. 1917; 12 P. W. R. 1917; 21 M. L. T. 310; 32 M. L. J. 615; 19 Bom. L. R. 388; 15 A. L. J. 525; 21 C. W. N. 842; 44 C. 749; 26 C. L. J. 175; 44 I. A. 89 (P. C.), referred to.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Delhi, dated the 15th March 1922, reversing that of the Munsif, First Class, Rohtak, dated the 7th July 1921.

Mr. Shamair Chand, for the Appellants.

Mr. Bhajan Lal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The land in suit, which was the ancestral property of Hira, a Gujar of the Rohtak Tahsil, was sold by him to defendants Nos. 1 and 2. Some of his collaterals sue for possession of the land, contending that the sale is invalid for want of necessity. The lower Appellate Court has dismissed the suit, holding that Hira had an unrestricted power of alienation, and the only question in this second appeal is whether that decision is correct.

The late Mr. Clifford, Divisional Judge of Delhi, in a number of cases took the view that in the Rohtak District a proprietor had wide powers of alienation and that the onus of proving that his power of alienating ancestral property was restricted lay on the person alleging it. This view was followed in the Chief Court in several cases to which the learned District Judge has referred. The entry in the Riwaj-i-am of 1879 was to the effect that reversioners could not object to alienations and in the current Riwaj-i-am complied by Mr. Joseph it was definitely stated that a sonless proprietor has full power to alienate his property even without necessity. The appellants rely on Budal v. Kirpa (1) in which it was held by a Division Bench that it was not proved that by custom an agricultural proprietor of the Rohtak District can dispose at pleasure of his ancestral land. But the previous rulings to the contrary were not considered in that case, and the decision has not been followed in more recent judgments, namely, Giant v. Teh Chand (2), and Uggar Sain v. Telu (3). In Uggar Sain v. Telu (3) Campbell, J., pointed out that Budal v. Kirpa (1) dealt with land in another Tahsil, and also that in that case the riwaj-i-am was not before the Court, and he observed that that judgment must be read subject to what was laid down regarding the riwaj-i-am by the Privy Council in Beg v. Allah Ditta (4). He decided, therefore, that a sonless proprietor of the Rohtak Tahsil of the Rohtak District had unrestricted powers of alienation in respect of ancestral land. An appeal from his decree under the Letters Patent was dismissed, the Division Bench agreeing with his conclusions. This finally sets the matter at rest, and we accordingly agree with the decision of the lower Appellate Court and dismiss this appeal with costs.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 211; 76 P. R. 1914; 148 P. L. R. 1914; 131 P. W. R. 1914.

(2) 64 Ind. Cas. 549; 11 P. L. R. 1922; (1922) A. I. R. (L) 69; 4 L. 111.

(3) 71 Ind. Cas. 829; (1923) A. I. R. (L) 193; 4 L. 113.

(4) 38 Ind. Cas. 354; 45 P. R. 1917; 12 P. W. R. 1917; 21 M. L. T. 310; 32 M. L. J. 615; 19 Bom. L. R. 388; 15 A. L. J. 525; 21 C. W. N. 842; 44 C. 749; 26 C. L. J. 175; 44 I. A. 89 (P. C.).

BOODHA v. SUKHRAM SINGH.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1396 OF 1921.

February 22, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Gokal Prasad.

Haji Shaikh BOODHA—DEFENDANT—

APPELLANT.

versus

Babu SUKHRAM SINGH AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 90—Old document—Executant's signature through scribe—Authority to scribe—Presumption.

In the case of a document more than 30 years old produced from proper custody, the legal presumption is that it was executed by the person who purports to execute it; but if it is signed by the scribe on behalf of the executant, there is no presumption that the scribe had authority from the executant to sign.

Gokul Singh v. Saheb Singh, 38 Ind. Cas. 162; 15 A. I. J. 121 and Lokman Das v. Ganga Sahai, 60 Ind. Cas. 96, followed.

Yar Ali v. Hashmat Bibi, A. W. N. (1897) 90, distinguished.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Ghazipur, dated the 17th September 1921.

Messrs. Iqbal Ahmad and Mukhtar Ahmad, for the Appellant.

Dr. M. L. Agarwala, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This second appeal arises under the following circumstances. The plaintiffs brought the present suit for possession of two plots of land on removal of certain construction made by the defendant on these plots. The plaintiffs' allegation was that they were the zemindars and the defendant was the raiyyat and as such had no right to construct on the two plots in dispute. The defendant contended that he was the owner of the plots by virtue of two sale-deeds executed about 60 years ago by the predecessors-in-title of the plaintiffs in favour of the predecessor-in-title of the defendant. The two sale-deeds relied upon by the defendant were filed, they were of the years 1841 and 1843. The Munsif mainly relied on these two sale-deeds although the plaintiffs objected to them on the ground that they did not bear the signatures of the vendors although one of them was literate. The Munsif, however, found on the evidence in favour of the defendant and dismissed the claim. On appeal by the plaintiffs the lower Appellate Court found that the plaintiffs were the owners and has decreed the suit. It has given no effect to the sale-deeds referred to above on the ground that although the sale-deeds were more than 50 years old and the presumption of law was that they were executed by the persons who purported to execute them, there was no presumption that the scribe who signed these documents for the executants had authority from the executants to do so. I hold this view which is in consonance with the view taken by this Court in the cases of Gokul Singh v. Saheb Singh (1) and Lokman Das v. Ganga Sahai (2) is correct. The present appeal has been filed because the learned Judge of the lower Appellate Court has loosely used the words "are not admissible in evidence" when talking of these sale-deeds. He has not rejected them from the evidence but they still form part of the record. As I have said above, all that the learned Judge could have meant and did mean was that the sale-deeds relied upon by the defendant were of no avail to him because there was no presumption that the vendors really executed them as they admittedly do not bear the signatures of the vendors and there was no evidence that the vendors authorised the scribe to execute these deeds. Reliance is placed on the case of Yar Ali v. Hashmat Bibi (3). That case is of no help to the defendant-appellant inasmuch as in the present case these documents were not admitted without objection. I hold that the lower Appellate Court was justified in ignoring these documents as evidence of the defendant's title. The finding that the plaintiffs are the owners of the plots in dispute is a finding of fact. I, therefore, dismiss this appeal with costs.

M. A. A. Appeal dismissed.

(1) 38 Ind. Cas. 162; 15 A. I. J. 121.

(2) 60 Ind. Cas. 96.

(3) A. W. N. (1897) 90.

RAM ADHAR SINGH v. RAM MANOHAR SINGH.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 585 OF 1922.

May 7, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ryves and Mr. Justice Dicks.

RAM ADHAR SINGH AND ANOTHER—
PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

Babu RAM MANOHAR SINGH AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Widow—Gift of estate to next reversioner—Acceleration—Provision for widow's maintenance.

A gift of the entire estate by a Hindu widow in possession, in favour of the next reversioner, which operates as an acceleration of the estate to the latter, is not vitiated by its containing a provision for the maintenance of the widow. [p. 991, col. 1.]

Rangasami Gounden v. Nachiappa Gounden, 50 Ind. Cas. 498; 42 M. 523; 36 M. L. J. 493; 17 A. L. J. 536; 29 C. L. J. 539; 21 Bom. L. R. 640; 23 C. W. N. 777; (1919) M. W. N. 262; 26 M. L. T. 5; 10 L. W. 105; 46 I. A. 72 (P. C.) and Angamuthu Chetti v. Varatharajulu Chetti, 53 Ind. Cas. 386; 42 M. 854; 37 M. L. J. 384; 26 M. L. T. 301; (1919) M. W. N. 716; 11 L. W. 11 (F. B.), followed.

Bhagwat Koer v. Dhanukdari Prashad Singh, 53 Ind. Cas. 347; 46 I. A. 259; 47 C. 466; 37 M. L. J. 513; 17 A. L. J. 1036; (1919) M. W. N. 860; 1 P. L. T. 1; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 27; 22 Bom. L. R. 477; 24 C. W. N. 274; 12 L. W. 105 (P. C.) and Sureshwar Misser v. Maheshwari Misra, 57 Ind. Cas. 325; 47 I. A. 233; 48 C. 100; (1920) M. W. N. 472; 39 M. L. J. 161; 28 M. L. T. 154; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 128; 12 L. W. 461; 18 A. L. J. 1069; 25 C. W. N. 194 (P. C.), relied on.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Benares, dated the 26th of January 1922.

Mr. Mushtaq Ahmad, for Mr. Iqbal Ahmad, for the Appellants.

Dr. S. N. Sen and Mr. Harnandan Prasad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The point for decision in this appeal is, whether a gift of an estate by a widow in possession in favour of the next reversioner, which operates as an acceleration of the estate to the latter, is vitiated by its containing a provision for the maintenance of the widow. In this case Musammatt Sumera Kunwar was in possession of the estate of her husband, Ramweshar Singh, as a Hindu widow. On the 22nd April 1909 she made a gift of the entire estate to the sole surviving daughter, Musammatt Ramkali Kunwar. Musammatt Ramkali obtained possession, and after her death, the estate has been taken possession of by her two sons, the respondents. The original plaintiff, Jai Mangal Singh, now represented by his sons was the son of another daughter of Rameshar Singh who was dead at the time of the gift to Musammatt Ramkali. The succession having opened on the death of the latter, he claims his one-third share in the property as reversioner jointly with the defendants. His claim was decreed by the Trial Court which found that the deed in favour of Musammatt Ramkali operated as an acceleration and that, on her death the plaintiffs and the defendants were jointly entitled. The deed was attacked in both the Courts below on three grounds,

(1) That Musammatt Parbati Kunwar was alive at the time of the gift.

(2) That the entire property was not included in the deed of gift.

(3) That the deed contained a provision for the maintenance of Musammatt Sumera.

The Trial Judge rejected all three objections.

The learned District Judge agreed with him on the first two points, but held that the provision for maintenance vitiated the deed and that Musammatt Sumera being still alive, the succession would only open on her death. It may be noted here that it has never been contended that the provision for maintenance was in any way excessive. The argument is that the mere fact of a provision for maintenance being made operates to prevent there being a surrender of the entire estate and ipso facto invalidates the deed.

The matter appears to us to be settled by two recent decisions of the Privy Council. The principle that an acceleration to be valid must be of the entire estate was laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in Rangasami Gounden v. Nachiappa Gounden (1). The lower Court, following a decision of the Bombay High Court, has held that any provision for maintenance is inconsistent with this principle. The Privy Council has, however,

(1) 50 Ind. Cas. 498; 42 M. 523; 36 M. L. J. 493; 17 A. L. J. 536; 29 C. L. J. 539; 21 Bom. L. R. 640; 23 C. W. N. 777; (1919) M. W. N. 262; 26 M. L. T. 5; 10 L. W. 105; 46 I. A. 72 (P. C.).

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

itself laid down that this is not the case. In Bhagwat Koer v. Dhanukdari Prashad Singh (2) an agreement by the widow renouncing the estate and accepting maintenance for her life was held to operate as a valid surrender and to come within the rule laid down in Rangasami's case (1). The same view was taken in the case of Sureshwar Misser v. Maheshrami Misra (3), where the widow surrendered the estate to the next reversioner, but the reversioner at the same time conveyed a small portion of it back to the widow as a provision for her maintenance. The former decision was relied on by the Madras High Court in the Full Bench ruling in Angamuthu Chetti v. Varatharajulu Chetti (4) in which they also have held that a reasonable provision for the widow's maintenance does not affect the validity of surrender by her husband's death to the nearest reversioner. Even apart from authority, this is, we think, a reasonable view to take. The widow, so long as she is alive, is entitled to be fed and clothed and some provision for her support must be made by the persons in possession of the estate. The matter appears to us to be concluded by the Privy Council rulings to which we have already referred. We accordingly allow the appeal, set aside the decree of the lower Appellate Court and restore that of the Trial Court with costs throughout including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

M. A. A.

Appeal allowed.

(2) 53 Ind. Cas. 347; 46 I. A. 259; 47 C. 466; 37 M. L. J. 513; 17 A. L. J. 1036; (1919) M. W. N. 860; 1 P. L. T. 1; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 27; 22 Bom. L. R. 477; 24 C. W. N. 274; 12 L. W. 103 (P. C.).

(3) 57 Ind. Cas. 325; 47 I. A. 233; 48 C. 100; (1920) M. W. N. 472; 39 M. L. J. 161; 28 M. L. T. 154; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 128; 12 L. W. 461; 18 A. L. J. 1069; 25 C. W. N. 194 (P. C.).

(4) 53 Ind. Cas. 386; 42 M. 854; 37 M. L. J. 384; 26 M. L. T. 301; (1919) M. W. N. 716; 11 L. W. 11 (F. B.).

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

CIVIL APPEAL NO. 301 OF 1921.

October 5, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and

Mr. Justice Devadas.

Sri GADICHERLA VENKAT NARASIMHA RAO GARU—DEFENDANT—

APPELLANT

versus

NYAPATHY SUBBA RAO PANTULU

GARU AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS

—RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 92—Scheme suit—Trustee, non-existence of, effect of—Person in possession, whether proper party—Construction of document—Will—Bequest for spread of Sanskrit language, validity of—Bequest for spread of Hindu religion, validity of—Alternative objects, bequest for—One object void—Whole gift, whether bad—Hindu Law—Adoption by widow in pursuance of authority to adopt in Will—Adopted son, whether entitled to repudiate dispositions of ancestral property in same Will.

Where there is a trust created by a Will for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, a suit will lie under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure for settling a scheme if the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of such trust, whether or not there is a de facto or de jure trustee in existence on the date of suit. The heir at law in possession of the property has an interest in it and is a proper party to such a suit. [p. 993, col. 1.]

Nett Rama Jogiah v. Venkatachalu, 26 M. 450 and Budh Singh Dudhuria v. Niradbaran Roy, 2 C. L. J. 431, followed.

Ashraf Ali v. Mahammad Nurajjama, 49 Ind. Cas. 355; 23 C. W. N. 115, Annavaarapu Nacharamma v. Malladi Venkatapayya, 70 Ind. Cas. 903; 31 M. L. T. 63; 16 L. W. 922 and Official Assignee v. Abdul Hussein, 28 Ind. Cas. 116, distinguished.

A bequest for the spread of the Hindu religion is void for uncertainty. [p. 994, col. 2.]

Scott v. Brownrigg, (1881) 9 L. R. Ir. 246, Dunne v. Byrne, (1912) A. C. 407; 81 L. J. P. C. 202; 106 L. T. 394; 56 S. J. 324; 28 T. L. R. 257, Chandi Charan Mitra v. Haribola Das, 51 Ind. Cas. 215; 46 C. 951; 29 C. L. J. 366; 23 C. W. N. 645, followed.

A bequest for the spread of the Sanskrit language is a valid charitable bequest. [p. 995, col. 1.]

Whicker v. Hume, (1858) 7 H. L. C. 124; 28 L. J. Ch. 396; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 933; 11 E.R. 50; 31 L. T. (O. S.) 319; 6 W. N. 813; 115 R.R. 70 and Attorney-General v. Flood, (1816), Hay & J. App. xxi; Hayes 61r, followed.

In the case of a bequest for alternative objects, where the trustees have been given an absolute discretion to spend the whole fund on one or other object or on both, if one of the objects is void for uncertainty, the whole gift is bad, for the testator having left the application of the fund. entirely to the trustees, it would be open to that body to apply the whole amount to the uncertain object, leaving nothing for the other. [p. 995, col. 2.]

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

In re Macduff, Macduff v. Macduff, (1896) 2 Ch. 451; 65 L. J. Ch. 700; 74 L. T. 706; 45 W. R. 154. Houston v. Burns, (1918) App. Cas. 337; 87 L. J. P. C. 99; 118 L. T. 462; 34 T. L. R. 219. Blair v. Duncan, (1902) A. C. 37; 71 L. J. P. C. 22; 50 W. R. 369; 86 L. T. 157; 18 T. L. R. 194 and Leavers v. Clayton, (1878) 8 Ch. D. 584; 47 L. J. Ch. 675; 39 L. T. 89; 26 W. R. 907, relied on.

A person who has been adopted by a widow on the authority of her husband contained in a Will is not entitled to repudiate the other dispositions of property in the same Will. [p. 995, col. 2; p. 996, col. 1.]

Ganapathi Ayyan v. Savithri Ammal, 21 M. 10; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 364, followed.

Bhyri Appamma v. Byri Chinnammi, 58 Ind. Cas. 511; 12 L. W. 17 and Balkrishna Motiram Gujar v. Shri Uttar Narayandev, 50 Ind. Cas. 912; 43 B. 542; 21 Bom. L. R. 225, distinguished.

Per Spencer, J.—Where a testator's meaning is so vague that the execution of his purpose would practically amount to making a new Will for him, the Court will not recognise the trust as one capable of execution. [p. 993, col. 1.]

Muthukrishna Naicken v. Ramchandra Naicken, 47 Ind. Cas. 611; 37 M. L. J. 489. Blair v. Duncan, (1902) A. C. 37; 71 L. J. P. C. 22; 50 W. R. 369; 86 L. T. 157; 18 T. L. R. 193 and Grimon d. v. Grimon d., (1905) A. C. 124; 74 L. J. P. C. 35; 92 L. T. 477; 21 T. L. R. 323, followed.

In construing a Will, it is open to the Courts to take into account the sympathies of the testator with certain objects and his connection with certain institutions. [p. 994, col. 1.]

Clode v. Andrews, (1907) 97 L. T. 130 and Attorney-General v. Stepney, (1804) 32 E. R. 751; 10 Ves. 22; 7 R. R. 325, followed.

Per Devadoss, J.—A Court will uphold a bequest if its purpose is definite though the objects of the charity are not definite. [p. 1008, col. 2.]

Gordhan Das v. Chunni Lal, 30 A. 111 at p. 114; 5 A. L. J. 23; A. W. N. (1908) 34, relied on.

Appeal against a decree of the Court of the Additional Subordinate Judge, Rajahmundry, in O. S. No. 31 of 1920, (O. S. No. 25 of 1919 of the District Court, Godavari).

Messrs. P. R. Ganapathi Aiyar and A. Venkatachalam, for the Appellants.

Messrs. D. Appa Rao, G. Lakshmanna and N. Rama Rao, for the Respondents.

This appeal, and the Memorandum of Objections filed by respondents Nos. 1 and 2, coming on for hearing on the 8th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th September 1922, and having stood over for consideration till this day, the Court delivered the following

JUDGMENT.

Spencer, J.—This suit was instituted by three plaintiffs styling themselves members and trustees of the Godavari Hindu Samaj, with the sanction of the Advocate-General under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code, for the purpose of getting a scheme framed by the Court for carrying out the trust contained in clauses 11 and 12 of the Will of the late Rajah Gadicherla Seethayya of Rajahmundry who executed it on April 4th and died on April 15th 1909. By the same Will the testator gave authority to his widow to adopt a son which she did on June 4th, 1911, by adopting the present appellant.

Clauses 11 and 12 of the Will run as follows:—

"11. A sum of Rs. 400 should be spent every year out of my estate, either for the spread (Abhivriti) of the Sanskrit language, or for the spread of the Hindu religion, or for both. The said sum must be a charge on my estate. The executors must make the arrangements necessary therefor to have the same conducted as the then existing trustees of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samaj may deem fit."

"12. Further, it is my desire that the Vedas relating to my Sakha (branch) should be encouraged. And for that purpose it is my desire that chiefly a general Sanskrit or Vedic or Oriental Library should be established at Rajahmundry in my name. The executors must make the arrangements necessary therefor."

The Will names three executors, one of whom is the first plaintiff. They all declined office and the appellant who came of age on November 1st, 1917, has taken over the estate from the hands of his adoptive mother.

The first objection argued at the hearing of the appeal related to the maintainability of the suit. It was urged that the defendant, not being a trustee either by appointment or de son tort, could not be sued under section 92 merely because he was in possession of the estate, that for every suit under that section there must necessarily be a trustee [see observations in Ashraf Ali v. Mahammad Nurajjama (1)] but here there was none, and that the proper course for the plaintiffs to adopt was to bring a suit for administration in order to get the terms of the Will carried out. I do not consider that any of these are fatal objections to the present suit.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

If a trust has been "created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature" a suit will lie for settling a scheme "where the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of such trust" [vide Neti Rama Jogiah v. Venkatacharlu (2)] and the person who is the heir-at-law and in possession of the property which is impressed with the character of trust property has an interest, and is a proper party to such a suit. Mr. Ganapathy Aiyar then cited Annava-rapu Nacharamma Malladi v. Venkatapayya (3) and Official Assignee v. Abdul Hussein (4) in support of his argument that the present suit was premature as there was no definite fund for the trustee to administer and that the trust was thus incomplete. But the circumstances of those cases appear to be distinguishable. In the latter there was no fund ear-marked to be impressed with the trust, and in the former there was no appropriation of assets and the trust fund was yet to be ascertained. Here the Will definitely assigns a sum of Rs. 400 to trust purposes to be spent every year out of the testator's estate and makes it a charge on the estate. Whatever may be thought of clause 12, there is a definite fund set apart for the purposes mentioned in clause 11. As noticed by the learned Subordinate Judge, when there is a Will in existence section 6 of the Indian Trusts Act makes it unnecessary that there should be a transfer of the trust property to the trustees. The suit is, in my opinion, maintainable.

I pass now to a consideration of the more serious question whether the trust is void owing to uncertainty as to its objects.

(1) 49 Ind. Cas. 355; 23 C. W. N. 115.

(2) 26 M. 450.

(3) 70 Ind. Cas. 903; 31 M. L. T. 631 15 L. W. 922.

(4) 28 Ind. Cas. 116.

If it is possible to ascertain with any degree of certainty the intentions of the testator, the Court will give effect to them. If, however, the trust fails on account of uncertainty of the objects, the trustee cannot repudiate it but holds it for the benefit of the testator's heir as a resulting trust [vide Briggs v. Penny (5)]. If the testator's meaning is so extremely vague that the execution of his purposes practically amounts to some one else making a Will for him, then the Court will not lend its assistance or recognise the trust as one capable of execution. See Blair v. Duncan (6) and Grimond v. Grimond (7). This is the principle followed by Seshagiri Aiyar, J., in Muthukrishna Naicken v. Ramachandra Naicken (8) though the learned Judge does not refer to those English cases. He says at page 497* "The primary rule is to ascertain whether the object aimed at by the testator could be carried out without making a new Will for him." The objects of the trust as disclosed by clause 11 of the Will, namely, the spread of the Sanskrit language or the spread of Hindu religion appear to be partly for the benefit of one branch of human knowledge, viz., the Sanskrit language and partly religious. In this country religious objects are not necessarily charitable objects, and learning is not quite synonymous with education. But it is unnecessary to embark on a disquisition upon the question whether a religious purpose is also a charitable purpose, which formed the main consideration in Baker v. Sutton (9), in Townsend v. Carus (10) and in In re White, White v. White (11) as section 92, Civil Procedure Code, speaks of "any express or constructive trust created for public purposes of a

(5) (1851) 3 Mac. & G. 546; 21 L. J. Ch. 265; 16 Jur. 93; 87 R. R. 192; 42 E. R. 371.

(6) (1902) A. C. 37; 71 L. J. P. C. 22; 50 W. R. 369; 86 L. T. 157; 18 T. L. R. 194.

(7) (1905) A. C. 124; 74 L. J. P. C. 35; 92 L. T. 477; 21 T. L. R. 323.

(8) 47 Ind. Cas. 611; 37 M. L. J. 489.

(9) (1836) 48 E. R. 292; 1 Keen 224; 5 L. J. (N. S.) Ch. 264; 44 R. R. 65.

(10) (1844) 67 E. R. 378; 3 Hare 257; 13 L. J. Ch. 169; 8 Jur. 104; 64 R. R. 284.

(11) (1893) 2 Ch. 41; 62 L. J. Ch. 342; 2 R. 380; 68 L. T. 187; 41 W. R. 683.

*Page of 37 M. L. J.—[Ed.]

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

charitable or religious nature." It does not signify whether it is of a charitable nature or of a religious nature provided that it is one of these two and also that it is a public purpose.

In order to understand the real intentions of the testator I am willing to read clause 12 of his Will along with clause 11 and not to treat clause 12 by itself as creating a precatory trust.

I think we should also take notice of the reference in clause 11 to the Rajahmundry Hindu Samaj as an aid to discovering what the testator meant. It was also material to take into consideration, as the learned Subordinate Judge has done in paragraph 10 of his judgment, the evidence of P. W. No. 1 that the testator was a member of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samaj almost from its inception and was keenly interested in the working of this society. In Clode v. Andrews (12) use was made of the knowledge that a certain Dr. Maclean was engaged for many years in the work of Christian Missions to interpret a reference to Missionary objects connected with his name in a Will, and in Attorney-General v. Stepney (13) the known objects of the Welch Circulating Charity Schools were referred to in order to understand the meaning of a Will which had as its object the improvement of Christian knowledge coupled with a mention of those schools. But I am unable to agree with the Subordinate Judge that the objects of the Hindu Samaj set out in clause 2 of their Rules, exhibited as Exhibit C, are almost exactly the same as the purposes indicated by the testator in his Will. The teaching of Sanskrit is not one of the professed objects of the Association. A library is mentioned as one of the means of carrying out its objects but it is not clear what kind of library is intended. On this point the Will which speaks of a general Sanskrit, Vedic or Oriental Library is more specific. Again, the Association aims at the diffusion of the principles of Hinduism, the study of Hindu civilization and the advancement of the Hindu Community. The testator desired to see the spread of the Hindu religion with special attention to the Vedas relating to his branch (Sakha), he being a Yagnavalkya Brahmin. If the testator had absolute confidence in the Managing Committee of the Hindu Samaj, he might have made an outright bequest in their favour and left the spending of the money entirely in their hands without directing his executors to make arrangements to have the trust conducted according to the discretion of the trustees of the Hindu Samaj. In Grimond v. Grimond (7) Lord Moncreiff, whose judgment was adopted by the House of Lords, observes, that the trustee's own religious views do not affect the question when the trustees have been left with unlimited discretion as to what religious institutions are to be selected for being benefited. So here, if one of the objects of the trust is the spread of Hinduism generally, then, in my opinion, the object is too wide and indefinite to be carried into effect. The scheme framed in the lower Court provides for the submission to the Court by the trustees of a programme for the utilization of the annual grant of Rs. 400 and for the Court sanctioning the same with such modifications as may be found necessary. How is any Christian, Hindu or Muhammadan Judge to decide whether the proposal so submitted will advance the Hindu religion in the manner contemplated by the testator? If, on the other hand, we hold that the scheme should be directed to the best means for inculcating the peculiar sectarian doctrines of the testator's own branch of the Hindu faith, then it may reasonably be doubted whether this purpose is such a public one as section 92 of the Code was intended to cover. The learned Subordinate Judge, who was in favour of upholding the trust as a good one, has been driven after considering clause 12 to the conclusion in paragraph 19 of his judgment that the object is not clear enough and he has been obliged to treat this clause as merely recommendatory. To my mind, the trust is even more vague and indefinite, if clause 12 is omitted from consideration. The words "for the spread of the Hindu religion" are no more definite than the words "for Missionary purposes" which were held in Scott v. Brownrigg (14) to be too vague and uncer-

(12) (1907) 97 L. T. 130.

(13) (1804) 32 E. R. 751; 10 Ves. 22; 7 R. R. 325.

(14) (1881) 9 L. R. Ir. 246.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

tain to create an executable trust, or than the words "most conducive to the good of religion in this diocese" in Dunne v. Byrne (15). It is not enough that in those cases there could be no doubt that the settler was thinking of the Christian religion when he spoke of Missionary or religious purposes, or that in the present case the Hindu religion is designated by name. God is worshipped in many forms by Hindus. A general endowment for the worship of God without specifying the deity for whose benefit the endowment is to take effect is void for uncertainty. Vide Chandi Charan Mitra v. Haribola Das (16).

On the other hand, I am inclined to regard the promotion of the knowledge of the Sanskrit language as a valid charitable bequest. In Whicker v. Hume (17) a fund given to be applied by trustees according to their discretion "for the advancement and propagation of education and learning all over the world" was held to be not too vague; and in Attorney-General v. Flood (18) a gift for promoting education in the Irish language was upheld. See also Halsbury's Laws of England, Volume 4, Art. 174. Here the word "spread" denotes that the testator was thinking of education. The Sanskrit language could only be spread by teaching persons hitherto ignorant of it. It would not be spread by rewarding those who are already learned.

If the object is definite enough the Court will find suitable modes for carrying out the wishes of the testator. See Gordhan Das v. Chunni Lal (19). Of course, it is necessary that if a Sanskrit Library is to be founded it should be one open to the public (unlike the Hindu Samaj's Library which is limited to Hindus who pay a certain subscription and are grouped in two classes); if Sanskrit Schools are to be formed they must be schools which can be freely attended by the public. Otherwise this will not be a trust for public puposes falling under section 92, Civil Procedure Code.

The trust for the spread of Hinduism being too vague, and that for the spread of the Sanskrit language being valid, we must next take note of the fact that the trustees of the Hindu Samaj have been given an absolute discretion to spend the whole sum of Rs. 400 on one or the other object, or on both. In such a case where one object is void for uncertainty the whole gift is void, since, owing to the use of the disjunctive "or," there is no indication as to what proportion is to be devoted to the charitable purpose of advancing education: vide In re Macduff, Macduff v. Macduff (20), Blair v. Duncan (6), Houston v. Burns (7) and Theobald's Law of Wills (7th Edition) page 369. So in the present case the testator having left the application of the fund entirely to the discretion of the trustees of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samaj, it would be open to that body to apply the whole amount to the vague purpose of spreading the Hindu religion, leaving nothing for the encouragement of Sanskrit learning.

But on the principle of the above English cases the whole bequest thus is bad and unexecutable. The trustees under the Will in such a case cannot exercise their discretion and allot the whole to charity. [In re Jarman's Estate, Leavers v. Clayton (22)].

I am, therefore, of opinion on the 2nd and 3rd issues that no enforceable trust is created in clause 11 or 12 of the Will, and I would allow the appeal and dismiss the plaintiffs' suit with costs throughout.

A third point which is the subject of the 5th issue has been raised, namely, whether the adopted son who takes by survivorship can repudiate dispositions of a portion of the ancestral property made by his adoptive father without its being proved that his natural father was aware of the contents of the Will at the time of the adoption. Mr. Ganapthy Aiyer quotes Balkrishna Motiram Gujar v. Shri Uttar Narayan Dev (23) in (15) (1912) A. C. 407; 81 L. J. P. C. 202; 106 L. T. 394; 56 S. J. 324; 28 T. L. R. 257.

(16) 51 Ind. Cas. 215; 46 C. 951; 29 C. L. J. 366; 23 C. W. N. 645.

(17) (1858) 7 H. L. C. 124; 28 L. J. Ch. 396; 4 Jur. (N. S.) 933; 11 E. R. 50; 31 L. T. (O. S.) 319; 6 W. R. 813; 115 R. R. 70.

(18) (1816) Hay & J. App. xxi; Hayes 611.

(19) 39 A. 111 at p. 114; 5 A. L. J. 23; A. W. N. (1908) 34.

(20) (1896) 2 Ch. 451; 65 L. J. Ch. 700; 74 L. T. 706; 45 W. R. 154.

(21) (1918) App. Cas. 337; 87 L. J. P. C. 99; 118 L. T. 462; 34 T. L. R. 219.

(22) (1878) 8 Ch. D. 584; 47 L. J. Ch. 675; 39 L. T. 89; 26 W. R. 907.

(23) 50 Ind. Cas. 912; 43 B. 542; 21 Bom. L. R. 225.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO v. SUBBA RAO.

support of his arguments that he can. In the present case the testator was childless when he made his Will and was free to make an absolute gift. Following Ganapath Ayyan v. Savithri Aymal (24), I feel clear that the adopted son cannot, while approbating the provisions of the Will under which his adoption was made, reprobate other provisions of the same Will. It is unnecessary, in view of my finding on Issues Nos. 2 and 3, to pursue this point further. It has also become unnecessary to discuss the objections and the cross-objections to the scheme framed by the Court. The decree of the lower Court is set aside and the suit is dismissed with costs. The Memorandum of Objections is dismissed.

Devadoss, J.—I have had the advantage of perusing the judgment prepared by my learned brother and I agree with his conclusions on the points argued before us. Inasmuch as this appeal was argued at great length very ably on both sides and as the points involved are of considerable importance, I wish to add, in my own words, the reasons for agreeing with my learned brother.

The plaintiffs are the members and trustees of the Godavari Hindu Samajam, commonly known as the Hindu Samajam, located at Rajahmundry; and they have brought this suit for the settlement of a scheme for carrying out the intentions and directions contained in clauses 11 and 12 of the Will of Sri Gadicherla Chinna Seethayya Garu, who died on the 15th April 1909 possessed of Zemindari villages and other properties yielding an annual income of Rs. 4,000. The defendant is the adopted son of the said Seethayya Garu. The Additional Subordinate Judge of Rajahmundry has granted a decree in plaintiffs' favour and the defendant has preferred this appeal.

The main contentions raised on behalf of the appellant are (1) the suit is not maintainable under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code inasmuch as there is no trustee in charge of the alleged trust estate; (2) the terms of the Will are so vague that the bequest must fail on account of uncertainty; and (3) the defendant being the adopted son of the testator is entitled to repudiate the bequest made by the Will as he succeeded to the whole of the testator's property by right of survivorship.

The first contention, that there is no trustee in charge of the trust estate and, therefore, a suit under section 92 is incompetent, is an untenable one. Section 92 was enacted for the purpose of safeguarding public trusts of a charitable or religious nature. The section says: "In the case of any alleged breach of any express or constructive trust created for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, or where the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of any such trust,....two or more persons having an interest in the trust....can sue after fulfilling certain formalities." It is quite plain that the section is applicable to cases where the direction of a Court is deemed necessary for the administration of any trust, and it is nowhere said that the suit could only be against trustees de facto or de jure. When the Court is put in possession of facts from which it can infer that there is a public trust of a charitable or religious nature and that for its proper administration the direction of the Court is necessary, the Court has jurisdiction to frame a scheme for the proper administration of the trust. The appellant relies on a number of cases in which it was held that section 92 did not apply to suits against trespassers. A trespasser claims adversely to the trust and in order to evict him or to claim damages from him no scheme is necessary and the intervention of the Court under section 92 is uncalled for. It is the duty in such cases of a trustee or trustees to seek the proper remedy against the trespasser or against the person holding the property adversely to the trust.

In Gholam Mowlah v. Ali Hafiz (25) the suit was against the purchaser of the trust property. The Court held that, the defendant being an alienee of the trust property, section 92 had no application.

In Arunachella Chetti v. Muthu Chettiar (26) the suit was by a trustee against a (24) 21 (M) 10; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 364.

(25) 47 Ind. Cas. 111; 28 C. L. J. 4.

(26) 17 Ind. Cas. 586; 23 M. L. J. 347.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

trespasser. The suit was decided under the Civil Procedure Code of 1877 in July 1880. It was held that section 539 had no application to the case.

In Budree Das Mukim v. Chooni Lal (27) Woodroffe, J., held that suits brought not to establish a public right but to remedy a particular infringement of an individual right were not within the section and that, as against strangers, such as alienees from the trustee and mere trespassers holding adversely to the trust, that section did not apply.

In Bapuji Jagannath v. Govindlal Kasandass (28) it was held that section 92 had no application where the remedy asked for was not for the infringement of a public right but for a private right. In that case one executor sued another executor for accounts and for an injunction against further management. The Court held that the suit was not bad for want of sanction under section 92, Civil Procedure Code.

In Subbayya v. Krishna (29) the Full Bench held that a trustee could be removed though section 539 did not expressly give the power of the Court.

In Ashraf Ali v. Mahammad Nurajjama (1) the Court held that to a suit against the lessee in which the trustee was a party section 92 had no application as no scheme was asked for, the suit being for a declaration that the lease was invalid and that possession should be handed over to the plaintiffs.

Strong reliance was placed by the appellant on a decision of the Madras High Court reported as Annavaarapu Nacharamma Malladi v. Venkatapayya (3). There the late Chief Justice and Kumaraswami Sastri, J., held that a suit under section 92, Civil Procedure Code, for enforcing the terms of a Will which contained provisions for the administration of public trusts was not maintainable. On a careful reading of the judgment I think the decision does not support the appellant's contention. All that was decided in that case was that it was not competent for persons to invoke the provisions of section 92 for the purpose of administering the estate of a deceased person with a view to compel the executors to give effect to charitable bequests. What was found on the evidence in that case was that there was no fund from which the charity could be maintained. The learned Judges held that, in the absence of a specific finding that a trust had been created, a suit of that nature would not lie. But the facts of this case are different. Here the amount to be spent on the charity is charged on the whole estate. The estate is worth Rs. 4,000 a year and the amount of the charitable bequest is only Rs. 400 a year. Funds for the trust have been provided by pointing out the source of the funds and by making the whole of the property bear the charge for the trust. Where it is quite clear that a trust has been properly constituted by Will, it is not necessary that there should first be an administration suit before the trust could be the subject of a suit under section 92. In the Mofassil, administration suits are almost unknown, and, if it is considered that an administration suit is essential preliminary to a suit under section 92, the question would arise as to who should bring the administration suit. The heirs of the testator may be quite unwilling to bring the administration suit and anybody who would ordinarily be entitled to bring an administration suit might be found unwilling to do so. I do not think that the case supports any wide proposition as is contended for by the appellant. Where it is doubtful whether there would be funds for the purpose of satisfying the bequest for charity, there it might be necessary to have an administration suit in order to fix the amount that might be available for charitable purposes after meeting the legitimate demands of creditors and specific legatees.

The contention that there must be trustees in charge of the funds in order to entitle persons to sue under section 92 is an obvious fallacy. One can conceive of cases where all the trustees die or refuse to act. It is in such cases the interference of the Court would be deemed most necessary and beneficial and it is to prevent charities lapsing for want of proper management that sec-

(27) 33 C. 789; 10 C. W. N. 581.

(28) 34 Ind. Cas. 167; 40 B. 439; 18 Bom. L. R. 335.

(29) 14 M. 186; 1 M. L. J. 95; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 132.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

tion 92, Civil Procedure Code, was enacted on the lines of Lord Romilly's Act.

In Neti Rama Jogiah v. Venkatacharlu (2) the suit was brought under section 539 of the Civil Procedure Code for a declaration that the defendants were not Dharmakarthas of certain temples, and to have trustees appointed for the due administration of those temples. The learned Judges observe at page 452 as follows:—"The substantial question, therefore, for determination in the case is whether the defendants are the lawful trustees of the temple as claimed by them. If they are so, there is an end of the suit, but, if they are not, then there is a vacancy in the office of one or both of the trusteeships, and the plaintiffs, as persons interested in the institution, prayed for an order of Court directing the appointment of new trustees for the due administration of trusts of the temple. In our opinion such a suit is comprised in the words of the section, namely, that 'when-ever the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of such trust,' and the suit, therefore, falls under section 539 (a) of the Civil Procedure Code. In support of this view we may refer to the opinion of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in Bishen Chand v. Nadir Hossein (30), in which Sir Barnes Peacock in delivering the judgment of the Committee stated, 'If there had been any objection that he (i.e., the plaintiff) was illegally substituted as trustee, an application might have been made by any person interested in the performance of the trusts to have him removed and a new trustee appointed by the Court under the Code of 1877. As pointed reference is made to the Code of 1877 in which for the first time section 539 was introduced, there having been no section corresponding to it in the Code of 1859, it is quite clear that the provision referred to by the Privy Council is section 539." In cases where there are no trustees or where all the trustees choose to claim adversely to the trust, the interference of the Court is necessary for the protection of the trust.

In Raghubar Didi v. Kesho Ramanuj Das (31) the four defendants between them by an endowment created a trust in respect of the temple of Janaki Ballabji and of the idol contained therein, which endowment consisted of 5 biswas of land, the income of which was to be devoted to the expenses of the temple. The plaintiff alleged that, since November 1894, the donors changed their minds and had stopped the payment for expenses. Straight, J., observes at page 22: "Now it is not necessary, if I read that section aright, that there should have been any breach of trust; but it is sufficient if there be a public religious trust, and the direction of the Court is considered necessary for the administration of such trust. This view has been adopted by the learned Judges of the Calcutta High Court in Latifunnissa Bibi v. Nazirun Bibi (32). Therefore, this may be fairly regarded as a suit, to put it in its narrowest form, in which the plaintiff asks to have the trust administered by the Court. That being so, it seems to me that the sanction of the Collector or such officer as the local Government might appoint was necessary, for the purpose of empowering the plaintiff to bring such a suit."

That the defendant need not be a trustee, nor need he admit the existence of a trust in order to enable the plaintiffs to sue under section 92, is made clear by the judgment of the Calcutta High Court in Budh Singh Dudhuria v. Niradbaran Roy (33). Mookerjee, J., observes at page 437: "The case is no authority for the proposition that the Court is ousted of the jurisdiction it possesses under section 539, Civil Procedure Code, by the bare denial on the part of the defendant of the existence of the trust alleged by the plaintiffs. If the view urged by the appellants were well-founded, every case of a public charity might be excluded from the jurisdiction of the Court by reason of the most groundless allegation on the part of the defendant that there is no public trust. But, it is an elementary principle that when the jurisdiction of a Court to take cognizance of a suit instituted before it, is disputed, (30) 15 L. A. 1 at p. 10; 15 C. 329; 12 Ind. Jur. 170; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 113; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 803 (P. C.).

(31) 11 A. 18; A. W. N. (1888) 276; 13 Ind. Jur. 148; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 439 (P. C.).

(32) 11 C. 33; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 779.

(33) 2 C. L. J. 45.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

the Court must adjudicate upon the question. I must hold accordingly that if in a suit instituted under section 539, Civil Procedure Code, the defendant disputes the jurisdiction of the Court to make any decree under that section on the ground that the trust alleged by the plaintiffs does not exist, the Court is not ousted of its jurisdiction but must determine the question upon the evidence."

The same principle was laid down in Jafarkhan v. Daudshah (34). Batchelor, J., who delivered the judgment of the Court observes at page 53*: "We think that no difficulty is caused by the use of the words 'any alleged breach of any trust' occurring in section 539, for we do not read those words as equivalent to any alleged breach of any admitted trust. The construction which we put upon the section in this respect has, so far as we are aware, been consistently followed in these Courts and the case of Chintaman Bajaji Dev v. Dhondo Ganesh Dev (35) is an illustration of that. Reference being made to page 616 of the report, it will be seen that the defendants there pleaded that the Savasthan was not a public, religious or charitable institution and that they were not the trustees but owners of the property in that suit."

It is quite apparent from these decisions that the jurisdiction of the Court is not ousted by the defendant pleading that he is not a trustee or that there is no trust for which a scheme could be framed. In this case the defendant claims to repudiate the provisions of the Will as the adopted son of the testator. His interests are, no doubt, adverse to that of the plaintiffs, who want to maintain that there is a trust. But in the case of a suit under section 92, it is not necessary that there should be any active contest as to any breach of trust by a trustee. If the circumstances are such that the intervention of the Court is deemed necessary for the purpose of framing a scheme for any trust which is proved to exist, the Court has jurisdiction to frame a scheme. No doubt, the defendant in this suit could not be made to pay amounts due or to surrender the property, if any, belonging to the trust, he being a stranger to the trust. On the framing of a scheme and on the appointment of trustees, he should be proceeded against by the trustees for such reliefs as they may deem fit. In that sense, no doubt, the suit against the defendant is unsustainable, but the suit is perfectly competent for the purpose of enabling the Court to frame a scheme in respect of the charitable bequest contained in the Will, provided the bequest fulfills other conditions.

The second point is one of more difficulty. The contention that the bequest is void for uncertainty should be considered in the light of the provisions of the Will relating to the bequest. Paragraph 11 of the Will runs thus:—

"A sum of Rs. 400 should be spent every year out of my estate, either for the spread of the Sanskrit language or for the spread of the Hindu religion or for both. The said sum must be a charge on my estate. The executors must make the arrangements necessary therefor to have the same conducted as the then existing trustees of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samajam might deem fit." The next clause runs thus: "Further, it is my desire that the Vedas relating to my Sakha should be encouraged; and for that purpose, it is my desire chiefly a general Sanskrit or Vedic or Oriental Library should be established at Rajahmundry in my name. The executors must make the arrangements necessary therefor." Clause 12 does not present much difficulty. It is what I may call a precatory trust. There is no definiteness about the trust. The amount to be spent for establishing the Sanskrit or Vedic or Oriental Library is not mentioned and the direction to found a general Sanskrit or Vedic or Oriental Library is very vague. What sort of Sanskrit books should be in the Library or what sort of Vedic books should be collected or what sort of Oriental Library it should be, there is no indication in the Will. I do not think it is necessary to consider this matter further. I hold that, in the first place, it is precatory and, in the second place, that it is so vague that it cannot be given effect to. Clause 11 contains a bequest of a sum of Rs. 400 to be spent annually for the

(34) 9 Ind. Cas. 358; 13 Bom. L. R. 49.

(35) 15 B. 612; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 413.

*Page of 13 Bom. L. R.—[Ed.]

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

spread of the Sanskrit language or the spread of Hindu religion or for both, and the executors should make the arrangements necessary therefor and should conduct as the then existing trustees of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samajam might deem fit. Here, again, the testator's directions are so vague that it will not be possible for any Court of Law to decide what is necessary for the spread of the Sanskrit language or for the spread of the Hindu religion and the executors are asked to make 'such arrangements as the trustees of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samajam might deem fit.' The trustees of the Samajam may change and the objects of the Samajam are as vague and as comprehensive as they can be. The objects of the Samajam are the diffusion of the principles of Hinduism, the study of Hindu civilisation and, in general, the advancement of the Hindu community. Some of the objects of the Association could not be considered charitable or religious under section 92. The bequest may be a good one if it is to the Samajam; but where a trust is indicated and the Court is asked to frame a scheme under section 92, the provisions of that section should be complied with before the Court can be induced to act. In the first place, the trust should be for a public purpose, and, in the second place, it should be of a charitable or religious nature. There are many public purposes which are neither charitable nor religious. There are many purposes which are charitable or religious but not of a public nature. The discretion is given to the executors to make arrangements for the spread of the Sanskrit language. The expression 'spread of the Sanskrit language' is not capable of any clear definition. It may be spread in the sense of intensive culture or of culture benefiting a large number of people. The expression 'for the spread of the Hindu religion' is also vague. It is very difficult for people belonging to various sects to agree as to what the Hindu religion is. Without in any way being disrespectful to the Hindu religion, or in any way disparaging the religion, the words Hindu religion do not connote anything specific. It may be the Vedantic religion or the religion of a particular sect and it is not within the province of a Civil Court to say that the Hindu religion is and what should be done to spread it. The trustees of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samajam may all cease to promote the particular form of Hindu religion which for a time the same trustees were prepared to promote, and the Court will then be called upon to frame another scheme by which the trustee of this particular estate may be left to manage things without reference to the trustees of the Rajahmundry Hindu Samajam. These are some of the difficulties which will face any Court which is called upon to frame a scheme for the purpose of carrying out the intentions of the testator. It is a well established principle of law that, where the intention of the testator is so vague the Court cannot give effect to it. The Court can only interpret the Will of a testator, but it cannot be called upon to make a Will for the testator. It is sometimes thought that a charitable bequest should not be allowed to lapse, and, therefore, some sort of scheme should be framed in respect of it. But, with all respect to that view, I think the Court is bound to follow certain principles which have guided the Courts of Chancery for a very long time. The idea of making charitable bequests by Will is new to this country, and it would not be right to throw aside altogether the principles which have guided the Courts of Chancery in England, in interpreting Wills containing bequests for charitable and religious purposes.

I shall proceed to examine the English cases that have been cited to us, but before entering upon the mazes of the decisions of the Chancery Courts, it is but right that one should remember that the Law of Trusts in England is subject to certain peculiar restrictions. In the first place, the laws of mortmain prevent bequests of land being made to Associations and Corporations, and, in the second place, realty cannot be disposed of in perpetuity by Will and only personalty can be disposed of for a charitable or religious purpose, and even in the case of personalty there is a difference between impure and pure personalty. It was by 51 and 52 Vic., Chap. 42, the law relating to mortmain and the dispositions of land for charitable purposes was consolidated. By 43 Eliz., Chap. 4, charitable bequests were validated. It has been the attempt of Chancery Lawyers to bring bequests within the purview of 43 Eliz. and that is the reason why we find that in the earlier cases the Court of Chancery gave a wide interpretation to the word 'charity'.

VEENATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

I shall first deal with the cases relied upon for the respondent in support of the validity of the bequest.

The earliest case relied on is Attorney-General v. Stepney (13). There a bequest of the residue of personal estate for the use of the Welch Circulating Charity Schools as long as they should continue, and the increase and improvement of Christian knowledge and promoting religion, and to purchase Bibles and other religious books, pamphlets, and tracts, as the trustees should think fit, to go to the same uses with those already bought, and to be kept in a house, devised for that purpose, was held good. The Lord Chancellor (Eldon) in the course of his judgment, after referring to the case of Browne v. Yeall (36) observes:—"Lord Thurlow's opinion was that the testator, not having given this Court more of specific direction as to the nature of the books to be purchased and circulated, than that they were to be such as may have a tendency to promote the interests of virtue and religion, and the happiness of mankind, had not given direction enough: and, therefore, Lord Thurlow held the next-of-kin entitled. If this was that very case, I should certainly feel myself bound to follow that decision. But this, independent of the peculiarities belonging to it, is very different; and if that Will had specified Bibles and Testaments, the Court could not have refused to execute that purpose. If, therefore, there was nothing more in this Will, I should be bound to say that whether there is more or less objection to the words 'other religious books and tracts', there is a denotation of a religious purpose, to which the fund may be applied; with an option, how it should be applied; and I must execute one term of that option."

The next case is that of Milford v. Reynolds (37). In this case the testator's Will contained a bequest in the following terms "I will, devise, give, and bequeath the remainder of my property...to the Government of Bengal, for the express purpose of that Government applying the amount to charitable, beneficial, and public works at and in the City of Dacca in Bengal, the intent of such bequest and donation being that the amount shall be applied exclusively to the benefit of the native inhabitants, in the manner they and the Government may regard to be most conducive to that end." The Lord Chancellor (Lyndhurst) construed it as valid and observed: "According to the construction which I put upon the words of this bequest taken altogether, it is a bequest of money to be applied in the construction or establishment of some works for the general benefit of the native inhabitants of Dacca, for the poor as well as for the rich; and I think that comes within the principle of the cases I have stated, and constitutes, under the Statute of Elizabeth a good charitable bequest."

(36) (1802) 7 Ves. 502, 32 E. R. 19.

(37) (1842) 41 E. R. 602; 1 Ph. 185; 12 L. J. Ch. 40; 80 R. R. 27.

In Whicker v. Hume (17) a bequest to trustees of funds to be applied by them according to their discretion for the advance and propagation of education and learning all over the world was held to be a good charitable bequest and was not void for uncertainty. The discussion in that case turned mainly upon the meaning of the word 'learning'. If 'learning' had stood alone the Court would have held the bequest bad for uncertainty, but inasmuch as the word 'education' was in front of the word 'learning' the Court upheld the bequest. Lord Chelmsford, in delivering the judgment, stated as follows: "Now the question is, in what sense did the testator use this expression? I apprehend that if there are two meanings of a word, one of which will effectuate and the other will defeat a testator's object, the Court is bound to select that meaning of the word which will carry out the intentions and objects of the testator; and I think that your Lordships are not without aid in giving the particular limited interpretation (if I may use the expression) to the word 'learning' which is required for the purpose of establishing the validity of this bequest, because when you find that the testator associates with that word 'learning' the word

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

'education' I think, that from the society itself in which you find the word, Your Lordships may gather, the meaning which it is necessary to put upon it, and that he means the word 'learning' in the sense of imparting knowledge by instruction or teaching. Well, if this construction be correct, then I apprehend there is no difficulty whatever, because it will range itself pretty much within the meaning of the word 'education' although not precisely synonymous with it, and it is admitted in the argument that if the word 'education' had stood alone, the bequest would have been valid." Lord Wensleydale said, 'learning' in this case, I consider as equivalent to teaching; learning, as part of education. No portion of the charitable fund could be devoted by the trustees for the purpose of rewarding learned men unconnected with education."

Now, applying this case to the case before us, can it be said that the trustees are bound to spend the money in educating people in the Sanskrit language? If they choose to give the whole of the amount to a person well versed in Sanskrit so that he may improve his knowledge of the language or as a reward for his past labours, can it be said that they aid a public charitable purpose? This makes it quite clear that the bequest can be good only if education is the object.

The next case relied on by the respondent is a case under the Income-Tax Act. In Commissioners for Special Purposes of Income-Tax v. Pemsel (38) the House of Lords had to consider whether certain allowances in respect of the income-tax imposed by Schedule A are to be granted by the Commissioners for Special Purposes of Income-tax. The words 'charitable purpose,' they held, as used in the Income-Tax Act, were not restricted to the meaning of relief from poverty, but must be construed according to the legal and technical meaning given to these words by English Law. Lord Macnaughten, in the course of his judgment (at page 580), observes, "That according to the Law of England a technical meaning is attached to the word 'charity' and to the word 'charitable' in such expressions as 'charitable uses,' 'charitable trusts,' or 'charitable purposes' cannot, I think, be denied. The Court of Chancery has always regarded with peculiar favour those trusts of a public nature which, according to the doctrine of the Court derived from the piety of early times, are considered to be charitable. Charitable uses or trusts form a distinct head of equity. Their distinctive position is made the more conspicuous by the circumstance that, owing to their nature, they are not obnoxious to the rule against perpetuities, while a gift in perpetuity not being a charity is void." This case does not throw any light on the question what are charitable bequests and what are not.

In In re White, White v. White (11) the Court of Appeal held that a bequest to a religious institution or for a religious purpose is prima facie a bequest for a 'charitable' purpose. "The testator gave his property to the following religious societies to be divided in equal shares among them." The testator did not give a list of the religious societies among whom he wished the properties to be divided. Lord Lindley, in the course of his judgment, observes, "the gift is for religious purposes; and, secondly, that being for religious purposes, it must be treated as a gift for 'charitable' purposes unless the contrary can be shown. If once this conclusion is arrived at, the rest is plain. A charitable bequest never fails for uncertainty: Mills v. Farmer (39) settles that point. Lord Eldon was clearly of opinion that the nomination of particular objects is only the mode and not the substance of a gift to 'charity.'" In England charity must be of a public nature, but in India it is not so. There can be bequests for charity for private purposes and there can be a bequest for a religious purpose of a private nature. There can be a good bequest in favour of an idol or for the performance of shradh. As I have stated above, section 92 is only concerned with trusts for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature and so the reasoning of the learned Lord Justice cannot apply in its entirety to bequests in Hindu Wills.

In Baker v. Sutton (9) a bequest of the residue of personal estate for such religious and charitable institutions and purposes within the Kingdom of England as in the opinion of the testator's trustees should be deemed fit and proper was held to be a good charitable bequest. In the case before us the question is not whether the bequest is a good bequest, but whether the Court should be called upon to administer the funds given for a particular purpose. If the bequest was to the Hindu Samajam at Rajahmundry, it would be a good bequest. But the real difficulty is in finding out the intention of the testator and in controlling the discretion of the trustees who are to administer the trust. The case of Mills v. Farmer (39) is relied upon as showing that a charitable bequest never fails. Lord Eldon, in the course of his judgment, laid down the law thus: "I am fully satisfied as to all the principles which have been laid down in the course of this argument, and accede to them all. There is no question that the Court has not the power to make a Will for the testator but only to carry into execution that which he has made himself; and this it can do only by giving to it such a construction as former precedents have established to be the right construction in every particular instance. Neither is there any doubt that the same words in a Will, when applied to the case of individuals, may require a very different rule of construction from that which would govern them if applied to the case of charity. If I give my property to such person as I shall hereafter name to be my executor, and afterwards appoint no executor; or, if having appointed an executor he dies in my lifetime and I appoint no other to supply his place, in either of these cases, as to individuals, the testator must be held intestate and his next-of-kin will take the estate. But, to give effect to a bequest in favour of charity, the Court will, in both instances, supply the place of an executor and carry into effect that which, in the case of individuals, must have failed altogether. This distinction has proceeded partly, perhaps, on principles in the Roman Law which we do not at this time perfectly comprehend; and partly, no doubt, on the religious notions which formerly obtained in this country, according to which it fell to the Ordinary's province to distribute, in case of intestacy. A third principle, which it is now too late to call in question, is that, in all cases in which the testator has expressed an intention to give to charitable purposes, if that intention is declared absolutely and nothing is left uncertain but the mode in which it is to be carried into effect, the intention will be carried into execution by this Court, which will then supply the mode which alone was left deficient."

(38) (1891) A. C. 531; 61 L. J. Q. B. 265; 65 L. T. 621; 55 J. P. 805.

(39) (1815) 1 Mer. 55; 19 Ves. 483; 13 R. R. 247; 35 E. R. 597.

VENKATANARSIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

In Cocks v. Manners (40) it was held by Sir John Wickers, V. C., that the bequest to the Dominican Convent at C was neither within the letter nor the spirit of 43 Eliz. Chap. 4. At page 585, he observes: "A voluntary association of women for the purpose of working out their own salvation by religious exercises and self-denial seems to me to have none of the requisites of a charitable institution, whether the word 'charitable' is used in its popular sense or in its legal sense. It is said, in some of the cases, that religious purposes are charitable but that can only be true as to religious services tending directly or indirectly towards the instruction or the edification of the public, an annuity to an individual; so long as he spent his time in retirement and constant devotion, would not be charitable, nor would a gift to ten persons, so long as they lived together in retirement and performed acts of devotion, be charitable. Therefore, the gift to the Dominican Convent is not in my opinion, a gift on a charitable trust."

In this case it has been very vehemently urged that, inasmuch as the trustees have the choice of spreading the Hindu religion, therefore, the bequest is for a religious purpose and could not fail for uncertainty. Cocks v. Manners (40) is an answer to that. As I said above, the trustees may take into their heads to promote the Hindu religion or to contribute to the spread of the Hindu religion by giving the whole of the amount to one person or to a particular Mutt, a religious purpose, which in England should necessarily be a public purpose in order to validate a bequest need not be so in India.

In Townsend v. Carus (10) Wigram, V.C., held that a gift to be applied to promote the spiritual welfare of God's creatures was (40) (1871) 12 Eq. 574; 40 L. J. Ch. 640; 24 L. T. 869; 19 W. R. 1055.

VENKAT-NARSIMHA RAO v. SUBBA RAO.

for religious and, therefore, charitable purposes.

It is contended that a general bequest for the spread of Sanskrit language is good on the authority of Attorney-General v. Flood (18). In that case a bequest was given to the Trinity College, Dublin, for the study of Irish language. There can be no objection at all to a bequest to the University or to a College, or even to the Rajahmundry Hindu Samajam being held good if it is for the study of Sanskrit or any other language. Where the bequest is not to a Society but to trustees who are asked to do certain things, and where the Court is not in a position to control the discretion of the trustees, there the Court has to see whether the intention of the testator is specific enough to control the discretion of the trustees. In In re Scowcroft, Ormrod v. Wilkinson (41) bequest to the Vicar of a parish for the time being of a building used as a Village Club and readingroom 'to be maintained for the furtherance of Conservative principles and religious and mental improvement and to be kept free from intoxicants and 'dancing' was held good. In this case the intention is clear and the object is of a charitable and of a public nature.

In Clode v. Andrews (12) the testatrix directed her trustees to pay trust monies to M to be applied by him 'for such Missionary object or objects at home, abroad or in the Colonies as he shall in his absolute discretion select.' M was known by the testatrix to have been engaged in assisting the Christian Mission in Foreign Countries and abroad. Warrington, J., held the bequest to be good. He said: "It is suggested that the words of the gift are too vague, as the words 'Missionary objects' are not necessarily confined to Christian Missions. But there is a widely spread use of the word 'Missionary' as one engaged in the work of religious and particularly Christian Missions. I think that I am entitled to consider who Dr. Maclean was, and that he was engaged for many years in the work of Christian Missions, and that he and his work were known to the testatrix. I think that the testatrix used the word 'Missionary' in its ordinary and popular sense, and I hold that the gift was a valid charitable gift." In the course of the arguments the Irish case of Scott v. Brownrigg (14) was quoted to show that the word Missionary was not capable of any definite meaning. Warrington, J., as the report shows, declined to follow it.

In Morice v. Bishop of Durham (42) a bequest in trust for such objects of benevolence and liberality as the trustee in his own discretion shall most approve, was not held to be a charitable legacy. The Lord Chancellor (Eldon) in meeting the contention that it was a charitable bequest and that the trustee might devote every shilling to charitable use, observed as follows: "But the true question is, whether if, upon the one hand he might have devoted the whole to purposes, in this sense charitable, he might not equally according to the intention have devoted the whole to purposes benevolent and liberal, and yet not within the meaning of charitable purposes, as this Court construes those words; and if, according to the intention it was competent to him to do so, I do not apprehend, that under any authority upon such words the Court could have charged him with maladministration, if he had applied the whole to purposes, which according to the meaning of the testator, are benevolent and liberal: though not acts of that species of benevolence and liberality, which this Court in the construction of a Will calls charitable acts. But the question is whether, according to the ordinary sense, not the sense of the passages and authors alluded to, treating upon the great and extensive sense of the word 'charity' in the Christian religion, this testatrix meant by these words to confine the defendant to such acts of charity or charitable purposes as this Court would have enforced by decree, and reference to a Master. I do not think that was the intention; and, if not, the intention is too indefinite to create a trust. But it was the intention to create a trust; and the object being too indefinite, has failed."

In the present case if the trustees choose to apply the whole of the amount to a religious purpose which is not of a public character, could the Court say that it is not within the discretion of the trustees to do so? If the trustees be held to have a discretion under the Will to do so, then the Court would be powerless to control that discretion; and, applying the principle of the case of Morice v. Bishop of Durham (42), I must hold that the discretion is too wide to be controlled by a Court, and, therefore, the bequest is bad.

(41) (1898) 2 Ch. 638; 67 L. J. Ch. 697.

(42) (1805) 10 Ves. (Jun.) 522; 32 E. R. 947; 7 R. R. 232.

VENKATANARSIMHA RAO v. SUBBA RAO.

In In re Macduff, Macduff v. Macduff (20) a bequest of money for some one or more charitable purposes philanthropic or was held not bad simply by reason of the existence of the..... (blank), but should be treated as one for the purpose of charitable or philanthropic purposes. Such a bequest is not a good charitable bequest as there are philanthropic purposes which are not charitable. Lord Lindley, after referring to Lord Eldon's dictum in Morice v. Bishop of Durham (42), observes at page 463: "Therefore, when we are dealing with general words, we must consider whether there is such an indication of purpose or of trust that the Court, if called upon to execute it, can see what it has to do can see the limits of its own powers. The words here are 'purposes charitable or philanthropic.' 'Charitable,' I suppose, is there used in the popular sense. Then what is the meaning of the word 'philanthropic?' * * * The Attorney-General says, 'What philanthropic purpose is not charitable.' My answer is, you are dealing with two words of so vague a meaning that it is extremely difficult to say, but we can suggest purposes which might be philanthropic and not charitable—purposes indicating good will to rich men to the exclusion of poor men. Such purposes would be philanthropic in the ordinary acceptance of the word that is to say, in the wide, loose sense of indicating good will towards mankind or a great portion of them; but I do not think they would be charitable. I am quite aware that a trust may be charitable though not confined to the poor; but I doubt very much whether a trust would be declared to be charitable which excluded the poor." He refers to the judgment of Lord Macnaghten in Commissioners for Special Purposes of Income-Tax v. Pemsel (39) and observes, "Now Sir Samuel Romilly did not mean, and I am certain Lord Macnaghten did not mean, to say that every object of public general utility must necessarily be a charity. Some may be, and some may not be. In Kendall v. Granger (43) where the language was 'for encouraging undertakings of general utility,' Lord Langdale came to the conclusion that that was not a charity, and I am not aware that his decision has ever been overruled or questioned. Now, what Lord Macnaghten said is obviously a paraphrase of the words of Sir Samuel Romilly which I have just read: "Charity" in its legal sense comprises four principal divisions: trusts for the relief of poverty, trusts for the advancement of education, trusts for the advancement of religion and trusts for other purposes beneficial to the community not falling under any of the preceding heads, leaving out those somewhat significant words of Sir Samuel Romilly as to the fourth head, 'which is the most difficult' which showed perfectly plainly that Sir Samuel Romilly saw, and I do not doubt that Lord Macnaghten saw also, that there might be some purposes of public general utility which might be charitable and some which might not. In deciding the case we must fall back upon the Statute of Elizabeth, not upon the strict or narrow words of it, but upon what has been called the spirit of it, or the intention of it. As Lord Eldon says, this Court has taken great liberties with charities, but the liberty is always restricted by falling back or professing to fall back upon the Statute of Elizabeth."

I may observe that the high water-mark of liberal interpretation as regards the intention of a testator was reached when the House of Lords held that a bequest that a Hospital be established at Dundee to accommodate 100 boys was a good bequest. In Magistrates of Dundee v. Morris (44) the Lord Chancellor observed at page 156: "It is said on the part of the respondents that the mere wish to establish a Hospital for a ... number of boys is so indefinite and uncertain that it is impossible to carry it out without the danger of defeating instead of effectuating the testator's intention. That it is at the best but the indication of a mere floating desire, not of any former and settled determination. But the expression of a wish by a testator that his property should be applied to a particular object amounts to a bequest for that object; and the language of this Will appears to convey with sufficient certainty what the testator desired should be carried into effect. The words 'establish an Hospital' must, I think, be taken to express an intention that a building should be provided which seems to have been assumed as the meaning of the word 'establish' in the case of the Attorney-General v. Williams (45). He held "that the testator having intimated his wish to devote his property to the establishing an Hospital, every subsequent writing of the testator, upon the same half sheet of paper, is to a certain extent a confirmation of the previous charitable bequest. It amounts to a declaration that the fund which he had appropriated to that purpose is to be subject to a reduction to the amount of the legacies, and the first of them, after those which relate to the Hospital, had an express reference to this appropriation of his property by its commencing with the words, 'I further wish,'"

(43) (1842) 5 Beav. 300; 11 L. J. Ch. 405; 6 Jur. 919; 59 R. R. 507; 49 E. R. 593.

(44) (1858) 3 Macq. 134; 149 R. R. 233.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBEA RAO.

The later decisions of the Court of Chancery in England are for a narrower construction, not only of the word 'Charity' but also of the terms of the Will regarding the intention of the testator. In Dunne v. Byrne (15) the Privy Council held that a residuary bequest to "the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Brisbane, and his successors to be used and expended wholly or in part as such Archbishop may judge most conducive to the good of religion in this diocese" is not a good charitable bequest and is void. The words of the Will are, "I will and bequeath....that the residue of my estate should be handed to the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Brisbane and his successors to be used and expended wholly or in part as such Archbishop may judge most conducive to the good of religion in this diocese." Lord Macnaghten, who delivered the judgment of their Lordships of the Privy Council, observes, at page 411, "the language of the bequest (to use Lord Langdale's words) would be 'open to such latitude of construction as to raise no trust which a Court of Equity could carry into execution.' Baker v. Sutton (9). If the property as Sir William Grant said in James v. Allen (46) 'might consistently with the Will be applied to other than strictly charitable purposes, the trust is too indefinite for the Court to execute.' " In this case the bequest was to the Archbishop of Brisbane and his successors to be used in a way most conducive to the good of the religion. It may be taken for granted that the Archbishop of Brisbane would not use the income of the property bequeathed to any other purpose than for the good of religion in his diocese. But inasmuch as a discretion was given him to use the amount wholly or in part for such a purpose, the bequest was held void, because the discretion of the Archbishop could not be controlled by the Court.

Can it be said in this case that if the trustees choose in conjunction with the trustees of the Hindu Samajam at Rajahmundry to use the funds for a religious purpose which is not of a public character or a purpose which is not strictly religious as the Courts understand, the Court could pull them up or charge them with maladministration? When such a thing cannot be done, and when the trustees could always plead a discretion under the Will to waive the control of the Court, the bequest cannot be held to be a valid bequest.

In Blair v. Duncan (6), where a testatrix by codicil in her own handwriting directed her trustee that, in the events which happened, one-half of the residue of estate should be applied for 'such charitable or public purposes as my trustee thinks proper,' the House of Lords held that the direction was void for uncertainty. Lord Halsbury in the course of his judgment observes: "It appears to me that it would be equally the Law of England as it would be the Law of Scotland that the disposition here given to A. B. to determine what particular public purposes should be the object of the trust is too vague and uncertain for any Court either in England or Scotland to administer." Lord Robertson says at page 49, "the Courts have, I think, as matter of historical fact, reflected more or less consciously or unconsciously the bias which disposes everyone favourably towards charity: and this never appeared more plainly or was avowed more frankly, than in the decision of your Lordship's House in the Morgan case Magistrates of Dundee v. Morris (44). To this favour for charity I ascribe the decision in favour of the validity of a bequest for such charitable purposes as a trustee may select. Accordingly, when I am asked to apply, by analogy, to public purposes decisions about charitable purposes, I decline to do so. The proper inference from those cases is, not that the law that the testator must select a particular class or particular classes of objects before he can leave it to a trustee to select the object of the bequest is relaxed, but merely that it is settled that charitable purposes form such a particular class."

(45) (1794) 2 Cox 387; 4 Bro. C. C. 526; 30 E. R. 178.

(46) (1817) 3 Mer. 17; 17 R. R. 41 36 E. R. 7.

VANKATANARASIMHA RAO v. SUBBA RAO.

As I have said above, the House of Lords adopted a very liberal interpretation, as Lord Robertson says, in the case of Magistrates of Dundee v. Morris (44). The most important case, in my opinion, which bears upon this question is the case of Grimond v. Grimond (7). There a testator directed his trustees to divide a portion of the residue of his estate to and among such charitable or religious institutions and societies, as they might select. The House of Lords held that the bequest was void for uncertainty. The dissenting judgment of Lord Moncreiff applies with great force to the conditions prevailing in India. Speaking of religious purposes, he says (page 608*): "It is said, that the term 'religious purposes' is more restricted and definite than 'public purposes.' This may be true, but it does not follow that the term 'religious purposes' is sufficiently specific to be enforced. Indeed there may be as much doubt and dispute as to its interpretation and limits as in regard to 'public purposes.'" This view was upheld by the House of Lords. If there is so much difficulty in understanding the words 'religious purposes' in a place like Scotland, where there are not many religions, in India, the difficulty will be all the greater, where it is not possible to postulate definitely what the Hindu religion is. No two persons will give the same answer to the question "what is Hindu religion." The popular expression "Hindu religion" includes in its ambit the highest aspirations of the human soul and the noblest ethics as well as the lowest and debased forms of animal and demon worship. Lord Halsbury says, (at page 126), "In my opinion, the testator here has not given a class from which he allowed his trustees to select individually, but he has left his directions so vague that it is in effect giving some one else power to make a Will for him instead of making a Will for himself, which I conceive to be the objection always entertained where the directions are so extremely vague that you cannot say what it is that the testator meant. In this case the testator has not made any Will himself; he has allowed some one else to make a Will for him after his death, and that the law will not allow." Lord James said "I concur for the reasons which have been given by Lord Moncreiff in his judgment."

What the respondent wants us to do here is to make a Will for the testator. He says, if the objects are not plain the Court should frame a scheme and make the objects plain. That is not the function of the Court and as Lord Halsbury has laid down no Court can make a Will for any testator.

In Kendall v. Granger (43), a bequest of personality to trustees to be applied for the relief of domestic distress assisting indigent but deserving individuals, or encouraging undertakings of general utility was held void as a charitable bequest. Lord Langdale laid down the law thus: "Now, a charitable purpose may very well, I conceive, be a purpose of general utility; but the question, which seems to me to arise in this case, as in the case of a gift to benevolent purposes, is, are all purposes of general utility necessarily such purposes as this Court deems to be charitable? I own, that, in my opinion, according to the decisions which have taken place in this Court, they are not. The words 'general utility' are so large, that they comprehend purposes which are not charitable and comprising purposes which are not charitable, the trustees have an option to apply them to purposes which are not charitable, and consequently to divert the trust fund from those purposes which this Court is in the habit of considering charitable."

*Page of 1905 A. C.—[Ed.]

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO v. SUBBA RAO.

•I will now consider briefly the Indian Cases on the point. In Chandi Charan Mitra v. Haribola Das (16), it was held that under the Hindu system of Law a general endowment for the expenses of worship of God without giving the name of the deity for whose benefit the endowment is to take effect, was void for uncertainty. This case follows the case in Phundan Lal v. Arya Pritinedhi Sabha (47), where it was held, that a dedication not to any particular deity which was subsequently to be installed in a temple but to Thakurji in a Thakurdwara without mentioning the particular Thakurji to whom the property was dedicated was void for uncertainty. Richards and Banerjee, JJ., held that "it was not a dedication to any particular deity which was subsequently to be installed in a temple. It was a dedication to the Thakurji in his thakurdwara without mentioning the Thakurji to whom the property was dedicated. As we have already said, there was no Thakurji and no Thakurdwara, therefore, the dedication was bad on the ground of uncertainty."

In Parbati Bibee v. Ram Barun Upadhyaya (48) the residuary clause of the Will of a Hindu governed by the Mitakshara School of Hindu Law was as follows: "As to the rest and residue of my estate I give and devise the same to my executor in trust to spend and give away the whole thereof in charity in such manner and to such religious and charitable purposes as he may in his discretion think proper." The bequest of the residuary estate was held to be a valid and charitable bequest. Henderson, J., observes at page 899: "In my opinion, however, the direction to spend and give away the whole of the residue in charity governs the words that immediately follow and, therefore, the purposes for which the fund is to be spent must be charitable though they may at the same time be religious. Upon this construction, the executor will not be justified in applying the subject of the trust to objects which are not charitable. In that view I declare the bequest of the residuary estate of the testator to be a valid charitable bequest."

If the objects of the charity are not definite but if the purpose is definite the Court will uphold the bequest. In Gordhan Das v. Chunhi Lal (19) it was held that a settlement of the income of seven villages to the extent of Rs. 500 a month to be applied to charitable purposes at a Dharmasala, which he had founded was held to be a good bequest. The learned Judges observe at page 114: "The dedication in the case before us is for charitable purposes and for charitable purposes alone. A trust for such purposes, that is, for charity generally, will always be carried out notwithstanding that the objects of the charity are not specifically defined. The Court can, if necessary, in such a case, settle a scheme for its proper administration."

In the present case also, if the whole amount is to be spent for only a charitable purpose, it will be competent for the Court to indicate the objects of the charity.

In the light of these decisions I must hold, that the bequest contained in clause 11 of the Will is void for uncertainty.

The next point urged is that the defendant is not bound to give effect to the terms of the Will as he, by right of survivorship, is entitled to the whole of the property. It is urged that unless at the time of the adoption it was made a condition, that the bequest should not be disturbed by the adopted son and unless the natural father had agreed to such a condition, the adopted son could repudiate the terms of the Will making a bequest in favour of charity. Before I consider the law on the point, it is necessary to notice a few facts. The testator died in 1909. The adoption was not made till 1911. The widow was in possession of the property and carried out the terms of the Will. The testator was a well-known man in the place. The widow made the adoption by virtue of the power given in clause 6 of the Will. The Will is a registered Will. It cannot be contended, that the natural father was unaware of the terms of the Will and did not tacitly acquiesce in the terms of the Will. The appellant urges that the plaintiffs should have specifically pleaded that there was such a consent on the part of the natural

(47) 11 Ind. Cas. 260; 33 A. 793; 8 A. L. J. 944.
(48) 31 C. 895; 8 C. W. N. 653.

VENKATANARASIMHA RAO V. SUBBA RAO.

father. I do not think that, in the circumstances, it was incumbent on the plaintiff to plead that. The Court is entitled to draw an inference of tacit consent from the evidence in the case. It is unnecessary to discuss this point at length on account of my decision on point (2).

The appellant relies upon Balkrishna Motiram Gujar v. Shri Uttar Narayan Dev (23), Bhyri Appamma v. Bhyri Chinnamm (49), Lakshmi v. Subramanya (50). In Balkrishna Motiram Gujar v. Shri Uttar Narayan Dev (23) a Hindu, who was in possession of ancestral property executed, when he took the defendant in adoption, a Vyavastapatra with the consent of the natural father of the defendant whereby he directed payment of an annual sum for the purpose of lighting lamps in a specified temple. The Court held, that the grant in favour of the temple was invalid as not having been recognised by custom to be appropriate at the time of adoption or binding upon the adopted son in modification of the strict rules of Hindu Law. The learned Judges observe at page 549*: "It would appear to have been established by these decisions that agreements for reasonable provision for widows ought to be upheld as valid according to general custom modifying the strict terms of Hindu Law. But no authorities have been quoted before us in favour of any other persons in such connection or in support of a general extension of the modification so as to include, as here claimed, reservations in favour of charities and religious endowments. The burden of establishing any such extension would lie upon the person seeking to prove such modifications of the strict rules of the Hindu Law. That burden has here not been discharged." A Hindu can settle a portion of his ancestral property upon anybody he likes and then take a boy in adoption. The adopted boy could not under such circumstances impeach an alienation made before the date of his adoption. The Court would view with suspicion only such arrangements as are unreasonable and subversive of the interests of the adopted son.

The case Bhyri Appamma v. Bhyri Chinnamm (49) decided that, in the absence of any agreement with the natural father at the time of adoption, if there is a bequest in favour of the widow in the Will of the testator the adopted son could repudiate the bequest. A widow can, at the time when she makes the adoption with the consent of sapins, stipulate for the maintenance of herself in cases of disputes arising between her and her adopted son and such an arrangement is reasonable. The Courts would uphold such an arrangement, but where a widow makes an adoption by virtue of the power given under the Will of her husband then, unless the natural father was aware of the provisions of the Will, it might be contended that if the father was aware of the provisions he would not have given his boy in adoption and, therefore, the adopted son is not bound. In Ganapati Ayyan v. Savithri Ammal (24), Subrahmaniam Ayyar, J., observes as follows: "If, from the hypothetical case, we turn to the actual facts of the case before us, there is no doubt that the title of the adopted son could not affect the right of the charity, for the latter right had vested long before the adopted son's right arose. The second defendant's rights must, therefore, be held to be subject to that created in favour of the charity by the oral devise, and it is hardly necessary to point out that Exhibit A does not evidence an alienation by the widows, but is a mere formal declaration executed by the persons appointed by the testator to bring into existence such written evidence of his disposition and who held possession of the property devised till they transferred the same to the duly constituted manager of the charity only as the trustees for the charity. Compare Baskar Purshotam v. Sarasvatibai (51)."

In the present case the widow acted in conformity with the Will and it cannot, on the evidence before us, be said that the natural father was unaware of the terms of the Will. The adopted son cannot approbate and reprobate the Will at the same time. He owes his existence to the Will and, in the circumstances of the case, (49) 58 Ind. Cas. 511; 12 L. W. 17.

(50) 12 M. 493; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 691.

*Page of 43 B.—[Ed.].

(51) 17 B. 486; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 316.

BANDHU RAM V. RAM KISHUN SONAR.

the onus lies heavily upon him to show that his father was unaware of the provisions in the Will and he has not discharged the burden. I find this point against the appellant. The question of arrears need not be considered, as I hold that the defendant cannot be directed in this suit, even if it were held that the suit is maintainable, to pay up any amount due to the trust.

The appeal, therefore, should be allowed. As regards costs, the three executors appointed by the testator declined to act and all the trouble has evidently arisen on account of their unwillingness to act. One of the executors is the second plaintiff. In these circumstances, I think, the plaintiff ought to be made to bear the costs of the appellant both in this Court and in the lower Court.

The appeal is allowed with costs throughout, and the Memorandum of Objections is dismissed without costs.

V. N. V. Appeal allowed:
Z. K. & H. B. Memo. of objections dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1865 TO 1868
OF 1921.

March 16, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Rafique and Mr. Justice Lindsay.

BANDHU RAM AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

RAM KISHUN SONAR AND ANOTHER PLAINTIFFS AND JANGALI SONAR—
DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Hindu law—Alienation by father—Legal necessity—Justification—Immediate necessity.

In order to justify an alienation made by a Hindu father it is not sufficient in law to show that at the time of the alienation debts binding upon the family were outstanding. It must further be shown that the alienation had to be undertaken under the pressure of present necessity for the discharge of the debts. [p. 1011, col. 1]

Where, therefore, a Hindu father sold the joint family property in order to pay off debts including a mortgage-debt which formed the bulk of the consideration but which was not to fall due till two years and some months subsequent to the date of the sale, and the scheme adopted for the liquidation of the debts by the father was not a prudent one:

Held, that the sale could not be held to have been made for a legal necessity and was liable to be set aside. [p. 1011, col. 2.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Gorakhpur, dated the 25th May 1921.

Mr. E. A. Howard and Dr. K. N. Kalju, for the Appellants.

Mr. J. M. Banerji, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs in the four suits which have given rise to these appeals are the sons of Jangli Sonar who was impleaded as the third defendant. The suits were brought to set aside four transactions of sale carried out by Jangli in favour of the other defendants to the suits on the allegation, among others, that there was no legal necessity for them.

The Court of first instance decreed the claims subject to payment of certain sums which in its opinion were binding debts for which the plaintiffs were liable. The lower Appellate Court, though differing from the First Court in respect of some of its findings, affirmed the decrees in all four suits. It is argued in second appeal that on the findings arrived at by the District Judge he ought to have held that all four transfers were for legal necessity and ought, in consequence, to have dismissed the suits.

The four sale-deeds were for a total consideration of Rs. 4,799-15-0, made up of the following items:—

(a) Rs. 4,100 left for payment to one Sheo Saran Sahu on account of his mortgage dated the 14th August 1915;

(b) Rs. 249-15-0 due in respect of a promissory-note of the 15th August 1917.

(c) Rs. 50 paid in cash to the vendor prior to registration; and

(d) Rs. 400 paid to one Bilas for repairs of a house belonging to the family.

The learned Judge has found that all these sums except the item (c) of Rs. 50 represent debts which were properly incurred and were binding upon the joint family. But he has, notwithstanding, upheld the judgment of the First Court on the ground that although there were in existence at the time of the sales now complained of these debts which bound the family estate, the sales should not be allowed to stand because the vendor was careless and did not take due precautions with regard to the terms of the sales. He refers to the following facts: first, that a sum of Rs. 4,100 was allowed to remain in the hands of the purchasers although the debt could not be called in by the mortgagee till the 30th August 1920 (the sale took place in 1918) the result of this according to the learned Judge, was to cause loss to the family represented by the interest which might have accrued to them, had the money been handed over to Jangli at the time of the sales. In the second place, he found Jangli guilty of negligence in not providing that the purchasers should combine in order to offer the mortgage-money in a lump sum and in not making an arrangement with the mortgagee for the acceptance of the mortgage-money before the due date. The Judge thought that these omissions were calculated to involve the family in expensive litigation. He concludes by saying that the deeds "were entirely apart" from the pecuniary interest of the family, meaning presumably that the sale transactions instead of being beneficial were prejudicial to the family.

VISHNU NAGAPPA VENKATESH BHAT v. NARASINHA PANDURANG.

The reasoning of the Judge is not altogether clear but we take it that he meant to find that, although there were binding debts, the scheme which Jangli adopted for their liquidation was not a prudent one.

It is argued, however, that the sales ought to have been upheld on the ground that the Judge had found that the whole consideration, except the sum of Rs. 50, was applied or to be applied to the discharge of debts which were legally binding.

But in order to justify an alienation made by the father it is not sufficient in law to show that at the time of the alienation debts binding upon the family were outstanding. It must further be shown that the alienation had to be undertaken under the pressure of a present necessity for the discharge of the debts. As was pointed out in the well-known case of Hannuman Prasad Pande, the power of a limited owner to charge the estate can only be exercised rightly in case of need or for the benefit of the estate.

The actual pressure on the estate, the danger to be averted or the benefit to be conferred upon it in the particular instance is the thing to be regarded. These observations which were made in regard to a case of mortgage apply with equal, if not greater, force to a case of sale.

As the learned Counsel for the respondents points out there is nothing whatever to show that there was any immediate pressure upon Jangli at the time he executed these sale-deeds. The mortgage debt which forms the bulk of the consideration was not to fall due till the 30th August 1920, that is, two years and some months subsequent to the date of the sales, and the mortgagee could not have been insisting upon payment of his debt then for he had no right to do so.

In the absence then of proof of any compelling necessity for these transfers by sale, it must be held that they were not alienations which could be justified under the Hindu Law. There is also the further consideration that the Court below finds that the sales cannot be held to have been made for the benefit of the joint family. We hold, therefore, that no ground has been established for interference with the lower Court's judgment and we dismiss these appeals with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

M. D. J.

*Appeals dismissed.BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 174 OF 1923.

April 3, 1923.

Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt.,
Chief Justice.VISHNU NAGAPPA VENKATESH
BHAT—DECREE-HOLDER—APPELLANT*versus*

NARASINHA PANDURANG PRABHU.

—RESPONDENT.

*Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182
(5)—Execution of decree—Application for postponement, whether step-in-aid of execution.*

An application made by the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor to the Executing Court to postpone the execution proceedings with a view, to a compromise being arrived at between the parties, does not constitute a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of clause (5) of Art. 182 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

PARSOTAM V. GANPAT RAM.

Abdul Kadir Rowther v. Krishna Malamal Nair, 23 Ind. Cas. 533; 38 M. 695; 1 L. W. 271; (1914) M. W. N. 563; 26 M. L. J. 433; 15 M. L. T. 305, relied on.

In order to be regarded as a step-in-aid of execution, an application must ask the Court to do something which would assist the decree-holder in furthering the execution of the decree.

An application for postponement of the proceedings with a view to a compromise being arrived at is not intended as a step towards execution but as a step which, if successful, would avoid the necessity for execution.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge, Kanara, in Appeal No. 153 of 1921, confirming the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge, Honavar, in Darkhast No. 178 of 1921.

Mr. G. P. Murdeshwar, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application made by the decree-holder for execution of his decree, the application having been made on June 15, 1921. The previous application for execution was presented on May 25, 1918, and it is conceded that the present application must be time-barred unless between these two dates something has been done which would set a new period of limitation running. The appellant relied upon an application made by both the parties to the Court to postpone the application in the Darkhast of May 25, 1918, with a view to a compromise being arrived at between the parties. It is difficult to see how such an application can be considered as a step-in-aid of execution. There was no application made to the Court to do something which would assist the decree-holder in furthering the execution of the decree. On the other hand, the application was similar to the application in Abdul Kadir Rowther v. Krishna Malamal Nair (1) which was called an application to get an order in retardation, which would not in the ordinary course be considered as a step-in-aid of execution. We think the learned Judge was right in saying that this application was not intended as a step towards execution, but it was intended as a step which, if successful, would avoid the necessity for execution. If the suggestion for a compromise failed, then it was necessary for the decree-holder within three years from the date of the Darkhast, to file another Darkhast. The appeal, therefore, is dismissed.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1153 OF 1921.

April 17, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Gokul Prasad.

PARSOTAM—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

GANPAT RAM—DEFENDANT—

RESPONDENT.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 79—Dispossession by stranger with zemindar's permission—Suit for recovery of possession—Limitation.

Where a tenant is dispossessed from a portion of his holding by a person who takes possession of it with the permission of the zemindar, the dispossession must be deemed to be a dispossession by the zemindar, and a suit for recovery of possession will be barred by limitation if brought more than six months after the dispossession.

Ram Lal v. Chunni Lal, 27 A. 372; 2 A. L. J. 69; A. W. N. (1904) 281, Balbhaddar Chaubey v. Somaroo Rai, 27 Ind. Cas. 914; 13 A. L. J. 295; followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Ghazipur, dated the 29th of April 1921.

Mr. U. S. Bajpai, for the Appellant.

Mr. K. Varma, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is a plaintiff's appeal arising out of a suit for possession of a portion of a fixed rate tenancy and removal of a house built upon it by the defendant. The defendant pleaded in reply that the construction was not on plaintiff's land, that the plaintiff had not been in possession of the land within 12 years, that he built on the land with the permission of the zemindar who was in possession, and that in any event the plaintiff's right, if any, on the land had become extinct because of dispossession by the zemindar for more than six months. The Courts

(1) 23 Ind. Cas. 533; 38 M. 695; 1 L. W. 271; (1914) M. W. N. 563; 26 M. L. J. 433; 15 M. L. T. 305.

GENDA RAM V. RAM CHANDER.

below have concurred in dismissing the plaintiff's claim. The First Court expressly held that the suit was barred by six months' rule of limitation. It also found that the defendant had, as a matter of fact, encroached upon a part of the plaintiff's land. These findings have been confirmed on appeal and the plaintiff comes here in second appeal. It is not necessary now to refer to the findings on the issues referred by me as the case has been argued by the appellant on the ground of limitation only. On the facts found, namely, that a part of the building in dispute stands on the plaintiff's fixed rate tenancy and further that the zemindar was responsible for the plaintiff's dispossession I have no hesitation in coming to the conclusion that the decision of the Courts below on the question of limitation is right (see Ram Lal v. Chunni Lal (1) and Balbhaddar Chaubey v. Somaroo Rai (2)). The plaintiff's suit was, therefore, rightly dismissed. The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

M. A. A.

Appeal dismissed.

(1) 27 A. 372; 2 A. L. J. 69; A. W. N. (1904) 281.

(2) 27 Ind. Cas. 914; 13 A. L. J. 295.

• LAHORE HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 2508 OF 1922.

May 25, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Moti Sagar.

GENDA RAM AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS

—APPELLANTS

versus

RAM CHANDER—PLAINTIFF—AND

ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 16 (sixthly).
—Pre-emption—Sale of different shares in house
—Owner of house contiguous to some shares; whether can pre-empt—Registration Act (XV of 1908), s. 17 (2) (v)—Sale of immoveable property—Receipt for earnest-money, whether compulsorily registrable—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 23—Specific performance—Discretion of Court.

Three co-owners of a house sold the respective portions of the house owned by them to the same person on different dates by separate sale-deeds and for varying considerations, Plaintiff, who owned a house which was contiguous to two of the portions sold, brought a suit to pre-empt the sale of all the portions sold;

Held, that the mere fact that all three portions sold were at one time parts of a single house was not sufficient in law to enable the plaintiff to claim pre-emption in respect of that portion which was not independently subject to his right of pre-emption. [p. 1015, col. 1.]

A document which merely evidences the receipt of earnest-money in respect of a sale of immoveable property of the value of more than Rs. 100 and does not in any way create or declare any rights in the property, but recites that another document would subsequently be executed which would serve as a document of title in respect of the property agreed to be sold falls within the purview of section 17 (2) (v) of the Registration Act and is not compulsorily registrable. [p. 1015, col. 1.]

Courts have an absolute discretion to decree specific performance or not. [p. 1015, col. 2.]

Specific performance should be refused where it is likely to prove a source of constant trouble and friction between the parties and would not result in an appreciable advantage to the plaintiff, or where the decree for specific performance is likely to prove nugatory owing to the exercise by a subsequent vendee of a superior right of pre-emption. [p. 1015, col. 2.]

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Karnal, dated the 11th July 1922, modifying that of the Munsif, First Class, Karnal, dated the 14th November 1921.

Lala Shamair Chand, for the Appellants;

Lala Jagann Nath, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT—Civil Appeals Nos. 2508

2509 and 2510 of 1922 are connected and may conveniently be disposed of by one judgment. The plaintiff in all these three cases is one Ram Chander, and the suits relate to three different portions of a house in ruins at Karnal, possession of which is claimed by him by right of pre-emption. With respect to the portion which is the subject-matter of dispute in Suit No. 77, there is a further allegation that the defendant-vendor had agreed to sell it to the plaintiff for Rs. 180 prior to its sale to Gaiinda Ram and Ladli Parshad, defendants-vendees, and that the plaintiff was consequently entitled to claim specific performance of the contract in respect thereof, irrespective of his claim, on the ground of pre-emption. It was further alleged that the plaintiff had paid a sum of Rs. 50 to the defendant-vendor by way of earnest-money and that in any case he was entitled to its refund and to damages which he assessed at Rs. 130. The property sold was owned by the defendants in the following shares:—

GENDA RAM V. RAM CHANDER.

(1) Asa Ram, one-half, and (2) Har Sarup and Ram Sarup, one-half in equal shares.

It will be convenient for the sake of reference to designate these shares by the names of A, B and C.

On the 6th of January 1920 Har Sarup and Ram Sarup vendors sold to the defendants, Gaiinda Ram and Ladli Parshad, the portion A for a sum of Rs. 200. The sale-deed was registered on the 27th of January 1920. This is the sale which forms the subject-matter of attack in suit No. 78.

On the 28th of January 1920 Asa Ram sold the portion B to the same vendees for a sum of Rs. 300, and had the sale-deed registered on the next day, i.e., the 29th of January 1920. It is with reference to this portion that specific performance of this contract is claimed by the plaintiff in the first instance and a decree for possession by pre-emption in the alternative. This sale is attacked in Suit No. 77.

On the 29th of January 1920 another sale-deed was executed by Har Sarup and Ram Sarup in respect of the portion C in favour of the same vendees for Rs. 300 and registered on the 30th of January. It is in Suit No. 79 that this sale is attacked by the plaintiff. The plaintiff claimed pre-emption in respect of A and C on payment of Rs. 100 each and in respect of B on payment of Rs. 130. In this suit it was further prayed that in case it was found that the plaintiff was entitled neither to the specific performance of the contract nor to a decree for pre-emption, he should be given a decree for return of the earnest-money and damages.

The Trial Court dismissed the plaintiff's suit in respect of the portion A on the ground that the property by virtue of which pre-emption was being claimed was not contiguous to the property sold, and that, therefore, the plaintiff had no right of pre-emption superior to that of the defendant-vendees. The suit in respect of the portion C was decreed on payment of Rs. 200. As to the suit relating to the portion B it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to the specific performance of the contract but that he should be given a decree for pre-emption subject to the payment of Rs. 200. The plaintiff was also given a decree for Rs. 50 against the vendor which had been paid to the latter by the former by way of earnest-money. No appeal was preferred by Asa Ram, vendor, against the decree directing him to pay Rs. 50 to the plaintiff. The vendees, however, appealed in the two suits, Nos. 77 and 79, relating to portions B and C which had been decided against them by the Trial Court. The plaintiff Ram Chander filed cross-objections in these suits on the question of costs and on the issue relating to the specific performance of the contract which had been decided against him. He also appealed against the dismissal of Suit No. 78 relating to the portion A. The Appellate Court reversed the judgment of the First Court in Suit No. 78 on the ground that the three plots sold were all parts of a single house which was contiguous to the plaintiff's house, and that, therefore, it did not very much matter if the particular portion A was situated at some distance and not actually touching the house of the plaintiff. The decree of the Trial Court in Suit No. 79 relating to portion C was maintained by the Appellate Court, and the vendee's appeal dismissed. As to Suit No. 77 relating to the portion B the finding of the Trial Court that the plaintiff was not entitled to claim specific performance of the contract as also the finding that the plaintiff be given a decree for pre-emption was upheld but the pre-emption money was raised from Rs. 200 to Rs. 300.

Against these decisions three appeals have been preferred to this Court by the defendants-vendees, and the points for determination are:—

(1) whether the plaintiff is entitled to claim pre-emption in respect of portions A and C;

(2) whether the plaintiff is entitled to claim specific performance of the contract in respect of portion B;

(3) if not, whether he is entitled to claim pre-emption in respect of this portion, and

(4) if the plaintiff is entitled neither to the specific performance of the contract nor to a decree for pre-emption, whether he is entitled to any damages, and, if so, to what extent.

GENDA RAM V. RAM CHANDER.

On the first question I have no hesitation in holding that the plaintiff has no case and that the decree for possession by pre-emption granted to him by the Court below should be set aside. It is indisputable that the house was owned by different co-sharers and sold by means of different sale-deeds. The sale-deeds were executed and registered on different dates and the prices fixed for the shares sold were also not exactly the same. The plaintiff's house, by virtue of which he is claiming pre-emption, adjoins at the back the portions B and C only. It is admitted that the portion A is situated at a distance of about 11 feet and that it does not adjoin the plaintiff's house. The mere fact that all three portions sold were at one time parts of a single house is not sufficient in law to enable the plaintiff to claim pre-emption in respect of any particular portion if the latter is not independently subject to that right. In the present case pre-emption was claimed on the ground of contiguity and contiguity alone. The plaintiff having failed to establish the ground upon which the suit was based, the suit ought to have been dismissed, and I hold accordingly.

On the second question the plaintiff relies upon a document, dated the 22nd of January 1920, under which a sum of Rs. 50 was paid to the defendant-vendor by way of earnest-money and the latter agreed to sell the portion B to the plaintiff for a sum of Rs. 180. Both the Courts below have concurrently found that this document is inadmissible in evidence for want of registration. This finding, in my opinion, is obviously wrong. The document merely evidenced the receipt of the earnest-money and did not in any way create or declare any rights in immoveable property of the value of more than Rs. 100. The receipt clearly recited that another document would subsequently be executed, which would serve as a document of title in respect of the portion agreed to be sold under that receipt. The document clearly falls within the purview of section 17 (2) (v) which provides, that a document not itself creating, declaring, assigning, limiting or extinguishing any right, title or interest of the value of one hundred rupees and upwards to or in immoveable property, but merely creating a right to obtain another document which will, when executed, create, declare, assign, limit or extinguish any such right, title or interest is not compulsorily registrable. In my opinion this document did not require registration and both the Courts below were wrong in excluding it from evidence. The execution of the document is admitted by the defendant-vendor, and I fail to understand why he should not be held bound by it. The question for consideration is, whether, under the special circumstances of this case, specific performance of the contract should or should not be decreed in favour of the plaintiff. On this question the first point to be taken into consideration is, whether the defendants-vendees are purchasers in good faith without notice. None of the Courts below have given any finding upon this point but it is unnecessary to remand the case for the purpose as, in my opinion, this is not a case in which specific performance should be decreed even if the finding on the question of good faith and notice is in favour of the plaintiff. It is not denied that the defendants-vendees have now become the owners of the whole house by purchase. The portion B is situated in between the two portions A and C with respect to which the plaintiff's suit for pre-emption must be dismissed. If a decree is given in favour of the plaintiff in respect of the portion B, it would be a source of constant trouble and friction between the parties and would not result in an appreciable advantage to the plaintiff. Moreover, it appears from the plan that this house and the houses A and C have a common entrance from the street, which would give the defendants-vendees a superior right of pre-emption to claim this property under section 16 (fourthly) of the Punjab Pre-emption Act. The decree for specific performance, therefore, even if allowed, would become nugatory and would not avail the plaintiff in any way whatever. It is not denied that the Courts have an absolute discretion to decree specific performance or not, and I am clearly of opinion that this is not one of those cases in which the plaintiff should be held entitled to such a decree. I accordingly dismiss the suit for specific performance of the contract.

The result of this finding is, that the suit for pre-emption in respect of this portion must also be dismissed. This portion adjoins the portion A, and having been purchased a couple of days after the defendants-vendees had become the owners of the portion A, it is clear that the plaintiff cannot have any right of pre-emption superior to that of the defendants-vendees. There is, however, no reason why a decree for damages should not be given in favour of the plaintiff. It is proved beyond doubt that a contract for the sale of the property had been entered into between the parties prior to the sale to the vendees. Specific performance has not been decreed in favour of the plaintiff for special reasons to which reference has already been made. The property was originally agreed to be sold for Rs. 180 and was sold only a few days after for Rs. 300. Under section 73 of the Indian Contract Act the plaintiff, in my opinion, was certainly entitled to claim damages which naturally arose in the usual course of things. These damages are clearly ascertainable, and I am of opinion, that the plaintiff is entitled to claim the difference between the contract price and the price at which the property was subsequently sold, namely, Rs. 120. On the finding that the plaintiff is not entitled to claim pre-emption in respect of the portions A and B it is obvious that the suit with respect to C must also be dismissed. This portion was purchased last when the defendants-vendees had already become owners of the adjoining portions. It is obvious that the defendants-vendees had as much right to purchase this portion as the plaintiff, and the defendant-vendor having exercised his right in favour of the defendants-vendees, it is not open to the plaintiff to challenge the sale merely because his house also is contiguous to the house sold.

MARIAM-UN-NISSA BIBI V. BABU RAM.

The result is, that all the three appeals are accepted and the plaintiff's suit dismissed with costs throughout. The plaintiff, however, will be given a decree for Rs. 120 against Asa Ram, defendant-vendor, in addition to Rs. 50, which have already been decreed in his favour by the Courts below.

Z. K.

Appeals accepted.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

APPLICATION FOR REVIEW OF JUDGMENT IN
SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 232 OF 1922.

March 16, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Lindsay and Mr. Justice Rafique.

Musammqi MARIAM-UN-NISSA BIBI—PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

BABU RAM AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS
—RESPONDENTS.

*Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLVII,
r. 1—Second appeal, disposal of—Discovery of fresh evidence—Review.*

An application for review based on the ground of discovery of fresh documentary evidence cannot be entertained after the disposal of a second appeal.

Nandhishore v. Anwar Hussain, 4 Ind. Cas. 809; 32 A. 71; 6 A. L. J. 979, followed.

Application for review of judgment in Second Appeal No. 232 of 1922, under O. XLVII, r. 1 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

St. C. Thompson, for the Appellant.

Messrs. P. L. Banerji, U. S. Bajpai and N. P. Upadhyaya, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application for review of judgment. The judgment sought to be reviewed is a judgment passed on the 19th May 1922; dismissing, under O. XLII r. 11, the appeal of one Mariam-un-nissa. The appeal was a second appeal.

The application made before us sets out, that certain documentary evidence has been discovered since, which if entertained would prove that the plaintiff-appellant, Mariam-un-nissa, had a good title to the property in dispute.

The application for review has been opposed on the ground that it is not competent to this Court to entertain such an application and various authorities have been cited before us. We need only refer to an authority of our own Court in Nandhishore v. Anwar Hussain (1).

It was held there following two other rulings that the High Court cannot in a second appeal entertain an application for a review of judgment based on the ground that since the disposal of the appeal documentary evidence has been discovered which;

(1) 4 Ind. Cas. 809; 32 A. 71; 6 A. L. J. 979.

VISHNU VISHVANATH NIMKAR v. RAMCHANDRA SADASEIV NIMKAR.

if sufficiently proved, would have led the Court below to come to a different finding although had such evidence been discovered before the disposal of the appeal the Court might have allowed the appellant to withdraw the appeal with a view to apply to the lower Appellate Court for a review of judgment on the ground of discovery of fresh evidence.

We have already adverted to the fact that the second appeal has already been disposed of by this Court. We can see no ground upon which the present case can be distinguished from the case to which we have just referred. It has been argued before us that the matter before this Court is not a question of fact but a question of law. We cannot agree with this. The case of the plaintiff all through was that certain Revenue Records had been wrongly prepared and that if the records had been prepared in a proper manner her title to the property would have been established. The Courts below found that the plaintiff had failed to give satisfactory proof that the record in question has been wrongly framed. The documentary evidence which has now been discovered is put forward for the purpose of showing that the record was, as a matter of fact, incorrectly framed and to induce us, therefore, to decide in favour of the plaintiff on that basis.

The question whether any particular record has been rightly or wrongly framed is certainly a question of fact and not a question of law. Following the ruling of this Court, to which we have referred above, we hold that this application is not entertainable and we, therefore, dismiss it with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

Let these papers be returned to the Collector of Moradabad.

M. D. J. Application dismissed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 286 OF 1922.

April 9, 1923.

Present.—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

VISHNU VISHVANATH NIMKAR—

AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS versus.RAMCHANDRA SADASHIV NIMKAR—AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Alienation by manager—Minor members, position of—Advantage—Necessity.

An alienation of joint family property by the manager would affect the shares of the minor co-parceners only if it is proved that the alienation was for necessity.

The manager of a joint Hindu family cannot justify the sale of family property merely on the ground that the sale at the time appeared to be advantageous.

Palaniappa Chetty v. Deivasikamony Pandara Sannadhi, 39 Ind. Cas. 722; 44 I. A. 147 at p. 156; 21 C. W. N. 729; 15 A. L. J. 485; 1 P. L. W. 697; 33 M. L. J. 1; 19 Bom. L. R. 567; 22 M. L. T. 1; (1917) M. W. N. 507; 26 C. L. J. 153; 40 M. 709; 6 L. W. 222 (P. C.), referred to.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge, Ratnagiri, in Appeal No. 95 of 1920, varying the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge, Devrukh, in Civil Suit No. 139 of 1918.

Mr. V. B. Virkar, for the Appellants.

Mr. P. V. Kane, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—We think that this appeal must succeed. Defendants Nos. 3 and 4 were minors at the time when the property was sold and the sale would only affect their share if it be proved that it was for necessity. It is going too far to say that a manager of a Hindu joint family can justify a sale of joint family property merely on the ground that the sale at the time appeared to be advantageous. The pertinent passage on the subject in Mayne on Hindu Law and Usage can be found at pages 476 and 477, last Edition. At the bottom of page 477 there is the following passage from the judgment in Palaniappa Chetty v. Deivasikamony Pandara Sannadhi (1):—

“No authority has been cited giving any countenance to the notion that a shebait

(1) 39 Ind. Cas. 722; 44 I. A. 147 at p. 156; 21 C. W. N. 729; 15 A. L. J. 485; 1 P. L. W. 697; 33 M. L. J. 1; 19 Bom. L. R. 567; 22 M. L. T. 1; (1917) M. W. N. 507; 26 C. L. J. 153; 40 M. 709; 6 L. W. 222 (P. C.).

RAGHUNATH SINGH v. SRINARAIN.

is entitled to sell debuttar lands solely for the purposes of so investing the price of it as to bring in an income larger than that derived from the probably safer and certainly more stable property, the debuttar land itself."

The Commentary says:—

"The case referred to the latitude of alienation permissible to a shebait in charge of debuttar lands. But it was argued... and decided on the footing that the same principles were applicable as those which regulate the rights of alienation passed by the manager of joint family property."

It would be going much further than any principle of Hindu law warrants to hold that because a manager of joint family considers it advantageous at the time to exchange joint family land for money, such an alienation can be treated as justified and, therefore, binding on the minor members of the family.

The decree, therefore, of the Trial Court must be restored and the appellants will be entitled to their costs throughout.

Z. K.

Appeal allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1672 OF 1921.

February 22, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Ryves and Mr. Justice Daniels.

Sahu RAGHUNATH SINGH AND OTHERS
—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

Seth SRINARAIN AND ANOTHER—

PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Hundi executed by manager—Liability of co-parceners—Unsecured debt—Liability of estate—Debt by manager—Presumption—High rate of interest—Necessity—Burden of proof.

A hundi executed and signed by the manager of a Hindu joint family as such for family necessity is binding on the entire co-parcenary body. [p. 1018, col. 2; p. 1019, col. 1.]

Krishnanand Nath Khare v. Raja Ram Singh, 66 Ind. Cas. 150; 20 A. L. J. 233; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 116; 44 A. 393, followed.

The manager of a Hindu joint family can incur simple debts in his capacity as such manager and on behalf of the family. [p. 1019, col. 2.]

Dhiraj Singh v. Manga Ram, 19 A. 300; A. W. N. (1897) 69; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 196 and Kallu v. Fayaz Ali Khan, 30 A. 394; 5 A. L. J. 367; A. W. N. (1908) 173, distinguished.

There is no presumption that a debt incurred by the head of a Hindu joint family is one incurred on behalf of the family. The person who asserts that a particular debt of the manager is binding on the family must prove it. [p. 1019, col. 2.]

Soiru Padmanabh Rangappa v. Narayanrao, 18 B. 520; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 855, relied upon.

Where the rate of interest of a loan taken by the manager of a Hindu joint family is unduly high, the creditor in order to bind the family estate must prove not only the necessity for the loan but also the necessity to borrow it at so extravagant a rate. [p. 1019, col. 2; p. 1020, col. 1.]

Nawab Nazir Begam v. Rao Raghunath, 50 Ind. Cas. 434; 46 I. A. 145; 36 M. L. J. 521; 17 A. L. J. 591; 23 C. W. N. 700; 21 Bom. L. R. 484; 26 M. L. T. 44; 30 C. L. J. 86; (1919) M. W. N. 498; 1 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 49, followed.

Second appeal from a decree of the District Judge, Budaun, dated the 30th of August 1921.

Dr. K. N. Katju, for the Appellants.

Mr. Harnandan Prasad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—These appeals arise out of four suits based on four hundis executed in November 1914 by Harnam Singh deceased. The defendants-appellants are nephews of Harnam Singh and formed a joint family with him. It has been found by both the Courts below that the debts were incurred in connection with the marriage of one of the appellants, Sahu Raghunath Singh, and that the amount borrowed for the purpose of the marriage was not excessive in view of the status of the family. On this finding it necessarily follows, and it has been held by the Court below that the debts were incurred for legal necessity.

Two pleas have been urged in appeal. The first is that, inasmuch as a hundi is a negotiable instrument within the meaning of the Negotiable Instruments Act, it could not be enforced against the appellants whether it was incurred on behalf of the joint family or not. This point, as the learned Advocate for the appellants, admits, has been definitely decided against him in the recent case of Krishnanand Nath Khare v. Raja Ram Singh (1).

(1) 66 Ind. Cas. 150; 20 A. L. J. 233; (1922) A. I. R. (A) 116; 44 A. 393.

RAGHUNATH SINGH v. SRINARAIN.

It is sufficient for us to say that we agree entirely with the judgment in that case and that we propose to follow it.

The second point taken is that, because the debts were simple debts not secured on the joint family property, they must be treated as personal debts of the manager and are not binding on the other members of the joint family. The learned Counsel for the appellants goes so far as to argue that even where there is a distinct finding that the debts were incurred by the manager as such and on behalf of the joint family, no liability is incurred except a personal liability on the part of the manager.

In Appeals Nos. 1671 and 1672, no such plea was taken in either of the Courts below, and if these had been the only two appeals before us we should have been disposed to dismiss the plea on the simple ground that the appellants were setting up a new case in second appeal, which they are not entitled to do. In the other two Appeals Nos. 294 and 295 of 1922, the point was raised and it has been expressly found by both Courts that the debts were incurred by the manager as such and on behalf of the joint family.

The only semblance of authority which the learned Counsel has been able to adduce for the argument he advances consists of two cases, Dhiraj Singh v. Manga Ram (2) and Kallu v. Faiyaz Ali Khan (3), in which, it was held, that, where a widow in possession of her husband's estate has incurred simple debts the creditors cannot after her death enforce those debts by sale of the family estate against the reversioners even though the purpose for which the debts were incurred might have been one for which the widow would have been justified in charging the property. It is suggested that the position of the widow and the position of the manager of a joint family are identical. This is not the case. There are no doubt certain resemblances between the two and that the purposes for which they are entitled to charge the joint family property are, generally speaking, the same. The widow, however, has never to act on behalf of other co-owners. The very fact that the estate has come into her hands shows that the co-parcenary body has ceased to exist. The widow has not, as a manager has, to incur debts and enter into all sorts of transactions in the ordinary course of administration of the estate on behalf of the co-parcenary body of which he is the head. The proposition that a manager can incur simple debts in his capacity as such and on behalf of the family never seems to have been doubted. There are a large number of cases in which it has been held that there is no presumption that any such debt was incurred by the manager on behalf of the family, and some of these cases such as Soiru Padmanabh Rangappa v. Narayanrao (4) are cases of simple debts. It is laid down that the person who asserts that a particular debt is binding on the family must prove it, but all these cases clearly assume that, if it is proved the members of the joint family will be liable. The case of Krishnanand Nath Khare v. Raja Ram Singh (1) referred to above is also an authority on this point. The case is very similar to the one before us. In that case a hundi executed by a manager of the joint family for family purposes, was held to be binding on the entire co-parcenary body. For these reasons we reject both the pleas advanced on behalf of the appellants.

In Appeal No. 1672 a cross-objection is put forward by the respondents as to the rate of interest allowed. The hundi carried interest at 18 per cent. per annum. The Courts below have held that, although the debt was incurred for family necessity, there was no necessity to borrow the money at such a high rate of interest. There is the authority of the Privy Council in Nawab Nazir Begam v. Rao Raghunath (5), that, where the rate of interest is unduly high a creditor in order to bind the

(2) 19 A. 300; A. W. N. (1897) 69; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 196.

(3) 30 A. 394; 5 A. L. J. 367; A. W. N. (1908) 173.

(4) 18 B. 520; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 855.

(5) 50 Ind. Cas. 434; 46 I. A. 145; 36 M. L. J. 521; 17 A. L. J. 591; 23 C. W. N. 700; 21 Bom. L. R. 484; 26 M. L. T. 40; 30 C. L. J. 86; (1919) M. W. N. 498; 1 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 49 (P. C.).

VENKATRAMAN RAMA HEGDE KANNI V. BABURAYA VENKATESH PRABHU.

estate must prove not only the necessity for the loan but the necessity to borrow it at so extravagant a rate. The point taken by the respondents is that they paid up the interest on the original loan, so far as it was then due, in 1917. They suggest, therefore, that the interest should only be reduced from that date. This contention is, in our opinion, unsound. In so far as Harnam Singh acted without legal necessity the appellants are not bound by his acts. The appellants are the nephews and not the sons of the deceased and no question of antecedent debt arises. The appellants cannot be compelled to pay an unnecessary high rate of interest merely because during the period since the loan was incurred Harnam Singh made to the creditors a payment on account.

The result is that we dismiss all four appeals with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

We also dismiss the cross-objection in Appeal No. 1672 with costs.

M. A. A.

Appeals dismissed.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 501 OF 1922.

April 6, 1923

Present.—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

VENKATRAMAN RAMA HEGDE KANNI AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

BABURAYA VENKATESH PRABHU—

PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), ss. 27, 32 (2)—Suit instituted in Court not invested with small cause powers—Trial and decision after Court invested with such powers—Appeal, whether competent.

In order to bar an appeal against a decree in a suit of the nature of a small cause it is necessary that the Judge trying the case should, before the institution of the suit, have been invested with Small Cause Court jurisdiction entitling him to hear the particular suit.

Sambhu Dhanaji v. Ram Vitlu, 28 B. 244; 5 Bom. L. R. 1008, followed.

A suit of the nature of a small cause was instituted in the Court of a Sub-Judge who was not invested with Small Cause Court powers. Before the suit came on for trial the Sub-Judge was invested with such powers, but he tried the suit as a regular suit and decided it.

Held, that an appeal lay from the decree of the Sub-Judge inasmuch as under clause (2) of section 32 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, the Sub-Judge could not have tried the suit as a small cause, his Small Cause Court powers having been conferred upon him after the suit was instituted.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge, Kanara, in Appeal No. 150 of 1921, confirming the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge, Honavar, in Civil Suit No. 226 of 1920.

Messrs. G. P. Murdeshwar and D. R. Ugrankar, for the Appellant.

Mr. Nilkant Atmaram, for Respondent No. 1.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff sued to recover Rs. 100 as balance due for Mulgeni rent in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Honavar. The Judge then presiding in that Court had no Small Cause Court powers, but when the suit came on for trial it was decided by Mr. Halbhavi who had Small Cause Court powers up to Rs. 100. The defendants filed an appeal to the District Court, when the District Judge held that there was no appeal on the ground that it was a Small Cause Court suit, and although it had been tried as a regular suit the question of appeal would depend upon the nature of the suit and not on the way in which it was described.

The attention of the District Judge does not seem to have been drawn to the decision of this Court in Sambhu Dhanaji v. Ram Vitlu (1). In that case the suit was filed for recovery of Rs. 81-4-0 in the Court of the Subordinate Judge who had only at that time Small Cause Court powers up to Rs. 50. His powers were subsequently raised to Rs. 100 before the suit came on for hearing. But the suit was decided by him as a regular suit and the claim was allowed. In appeal it was held by the District Judge that no appeal lay. In revision it was held by the High Court that under section 32 (2) of Act IX of 1887 it was necessary that the Judge should, before the institution of the suit, be invested with Small Cause Court

(1) 28 B. 244 J. 5 Bom. L. R. 1008.

LAKSHMAN V. KESHOA RAO.

Jurisdiction entitling him to hear the particular suit. In this case when the suit was filed the Judge had no Small Cause Court powers at all, and, therefore, on that circumstance depended the question whether the appeal lay to the District Court when the suit came to be ultimately decided in the Subordinate Judge's Court. This is not a second appeal, but an appeal from order, as the District Judge held that no appeal lay to his Court.

The appeal must be allowed and the case sent back to the Court of the District Judge to be disposed of according to law.

Costs to be costs in the appeal.

Z. K.

Appeal allowed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

FIRST CIVIL, APPEAL No. 49 OF 1922.

April 21, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Baker, J. C., and

Mr. Hattifax, A. J. C.

LAKSHMAN—DEFENDANT—APPELLANT
versus

KESHOA RAO—PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), ss. 14, 29 (b)—C. P. Land & Revenue Act (II of 1917), s. 169 (i) (b)—Partition proceedings—Title suit—Limitation—Suit filed in wrong Court—Exclusion of period.

Before its amendment by Act X of 1922, section 29 (b) of the Limitation Act of 1908 operated to exclude the applicability of section 14 of the Act to a suit filed in accordance with an order passed under clause (b) of section 169 (i) of the C. P. Land Revenue Act. [p. 1022, col. 1.]

Abdul Hakim v. Latifunnissa Khairun, 30 C. 533; 7 C. W. N. 550, Kalimuddin Mollah v. Sahibuddin Molla, 54 Ind. Cas. 705; 47 C. 300; 24 C. W. N. 4; 30 C. L. J. 455 and Kopparthi Lingayya v. Aravelli Chinmarayana, 44 Ind. Cas. 805; 41 M. 169; 33 M. L. J. 566; 7 L. W. 443 (F. B.), relied on.

Appeal from the decree of the First Subordinate Judge, Nagpur, dated the 1st February 1922, in Civil Suit No. 37 of 1921.

Messrs. M. R. Bobde and M. R. Indurkar, for the Appellant.

Mr. R. N. Padhye, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—The respondent in this appeal applied to the Deputy Commissioner for an imperfect partition of the village of Irsi which is the common property of himself and the two appellants, each party owning a half share in it. The parties have for some years been in separate possession of different parts of the sir and khudkasht lands in the village, the appellants holding at present 193'14 acres of sir and 144'51 acres of khudkasht and the respondent 144'91 acres of sir and only 15'60 acres of khudkasht. Before the Revenue Officer the appellants pleaded that all the sir and khudkasht lands were the exclusive property of the party in possession of them, and on the 4th of November 1920 the Revenue Officer passed an order in the following terms:—"Issues framed and explained. I require the applicant under section 169 Land Revenue Act to institute a suit in the Civil Court within 6 months for the settlement of the questions raised in the issues or to have them settled within 6 months by a lawful compromise or award. Case may be filed for the present till the case is decided." The terms of this order are those of clause (b) of section 169 (i) of the Land Revenue Act, 1917.

(2) The respondent, in accordance with the totally incomprehensible but very common habit of Indian litigants, waited till the very last day of the period of six months allowed to him and on the 4th of May 1921 filed the suit out of which the present appeal arises in the Court of the Additional District Judge, valuing his claim at exactly Rs. 10,000. On the 7th of May 1921 Mr. Dharmadhikary, the Additional District Judge, endorsed the following order on the plaint. "Plaint presented on 4th May 1921 by plaintiff's Pleader, Mr. R. N. Padhye. It is returned for presentation to proper Court as the suit is cognisable by the Court of the First Sub-Judge, Nagpur, the subject-matter of it being of the value not exceeding rupees ten thousand." The plaint bears a further endorsement, made and signed by the plaintiff's Pleader, who also appeared for him in this Court, which is as follows. "Plaint received back on 16th June 1921. Presented on 16th June 1921."

LAKSHMAN V. KESHOA RAO.

(3) In anything like strictness, it would have to be held that the plaint was returned on 7th May 1921 as it bears an endorsement by the Judge in accordance with r. 10 (2) of O. VII to that effect and the endorsement by the Pleader is unauthorised and ought not to be considered at all. It is not, however, denied by the respondent that the plaint was in fact left lying in the Court of the Additional District Judge till after the Courts closed for the vacation on the 15th of May and was actually taken back and presented in the Court of the Senior Subordinate Judge on the 16th of June, the first day after the end of the vacation. There is no indication of this having been done with the knowledge of the Judge beyond the fact that in the interval Mr. Dharmadhikary had been transferred from the Court of the Additional District Judge to that of the Senior Subordinate Judge, so that the plaint was both returned by him and presented again to him. The respondent has, however, as has been said, accepted the position that the plaint was returned and presented again on the same day, and nothing more need be said about this matter.

(4) The plea has been raised in this Court by the appellants that the suit is barred by the Law of Limitation, and the plea must undoubtedly succeed unless section 14 of the Limitation Act saves the plaintiff. That section would certainly do so under section 29 of the same Act as it now stands, but section 29 was brought into its present form by Act X of 1922 and these proceedings of 1921 must be governed by section 29 of the Limitation Act, 1908. Under clause (b) of the first part of that section nothing in the Act can affect or alter any period of limitation specially prescribed for any suit, appeal or application by any special or local law now or hereafter in force in British India. Authority does not seem to be needed for the proposition that these words exclude the operation of section 14 of the Limitation Act in respect of a suit filed in accordance with an order passed under clause (b) of section 169 (1) of the Central Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1917. It is, however, to be found in the Full Bench ruling of the Calcutta High Court in Kalimuddin Mollah v. Sahibuddin Molla (1) affirming the previous decision of the same Court in Abdul Hakim v. Latif-unnessa Khatun (2), in the judgment of the Full Bench of the Madras High Court in Kopparthi Lingayya v. Araveti Chin-narayana (3) and in that of Batten, A. J. C., in the unreported case of Balkrishna v. Bala.*

(5) For the respondent it has been urged that that order under section 169 of the Land Revenue Act cannot take away his right to get the declaration he seeks from the Civil Court within the ordinary period prescribed for such a suit. That is so, but it is obvious, in view of the provisions of clause (b) of the second sub-section of section 169 of the Land Revenue Act, that the declaration would be a brutum fulmen if he did get it; on the renewal of the still pending proceedings for partition, for which the appellants would apply if the respondent did not, the Revenue Officer would have to decide that the appellants were exclusive owners of all the sir and khud-kasht in their possession, and the matter would thereafter be res judicata in their favour and against the respondent. For these reasons it must be held that the plaintiff's suit was barred by time when it was instituted. The decree of the lower Court will accordingly be set aside and the plaintiff's suit will be dismissed. The plaintiff-respondent must pay all the costs in both Courts.

Z. K.

Decree set aside.

(1) 54 Ind. Cas. 705; 47 C. 300; 24 C. W. N. 4; 30 C. L. J. 455.

(2) 30 C. 532; 7 C. W. N. 550.

(3) 44 Ind. Cas. 805; 41 M. 169; 33 M. L. J. 566; 7 L. W. 443 (F. B.).

*Since reported as 46 Ind. Cas. 879.—[Ed.]

KAHANDAS NARAIN v. JIVAN PRAG.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 125 OF 1921.

April 11, 1923.

Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt.,
Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

KAHANDAS NARAIN AND OTHERS

—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

JIVAN PRAG AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

*Hindu Law—Adoption—Sister's son—Sudras—Leva patidars of Gujarat, whether Sudras.*The leva patidars of Gujarat are Sudras, and the adoption of a sister's son is valid among them.
[p. 1023, cols. 1 & 2.]Among Sudras there is no necessity to prove a custom permitting the adoption of a daughter's son or a sister's son. [p. 1023, col. 2.]Manchharam Bhiku v. Dattu Bhiku, 54 Ind. Cas.
110; 21 Bom. L. R. 1172; 44 B. 166, followed.First appeal from the decision of the First Class, Subordinate Judge at Broach, in Civil Suit No. 129 of 1919.Messrs. R. W. Desai and I. K. Vakil, for the Appellants.

Mr. M. B. Dave, for Respondent No. 1.

Mr. R. J. Thakore, for Respondents
Nos. 2—4.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs sued for a declaration that the adoption of the first defendant was invalid and accordingly to recover possession of the property specified in the plaint. The relationship of the parties is shown in the pedigree at page 2. The original holder of the suit property was one Parag Ranchhod who died leaving a widow Parvati and a sister Lakhi. Parvati adopted the first defendant Jivan, son of Lakhi. Plaintiffs, sons of Naran, who was the first cousin of Ranchhod, claimed that to the property in suit which was bhagdari property, paternal kinsmen succeeded in preference to female heirs, so that if the adoption of the first defendant was declared to be invalid, they would be entitled to succeed. The learned Judge held that as the property was bhagdari, the plaintiffs would succeed in preference to Lakhi, the sixth defendant. But he held also that the adoption of the first defendant was valid and accordingly dismissed the plaintiffs' suit.

The learned Judge discussed the evidence on the question whether the plaintiffs had established that they being Leva patidars of Gujarat could be considered to be Vaishyas and not Sudras, and he came to the conclusion (1) that the weight of the evidence was against the plaintiffs' plea that they were Vaishyas; (2) that there prevailed a custom in the caste to take a sister's son or daughter's son in adoption. As pointed out by Mr. Justice Shah in Manchharam Bhiku v. Dattu Bhiku (1), if the parties are Sudras, there is no necessity to prove a custom permitting the adoption of a sister's son or daughter's son. But it seems to me to be perfectly clear on the evidence that such an adoption was recognised in this community and that would, therefore, go some distance towards showing that the parties were Sudras and not Vaishyas. Now the evidence, although it may be said to be somewhat indeterminate as well as conflicting, is of very much the same character as in Manchharam Bhiku v. Dattu Bhiku (1), in which the appeal was heard by Mr. Justice Shah and myself. Mr. Justice Shah said (p. 1176*):—

"The second question is whether the lower Court is right in its conclusion that the parties are Sudras. The evidence on this point has been fully discussed on behalf of the appellants; and in view of the facts found by the lower Court as to the customs obtaining in the community to which the parties belong, it is not necessary to examine the oral evidence in detail. It is found by the lower Court that the members of the community to which the parties belong have no Vedic rites and Sanskaras prescribed for the twice-born classes among them; that they have not the chief Sanskara, Munj, which makes a man Dwij; that they wear the sacred thread only occasionally; that this occasional wearing also is probably of a recent growth; that they have all the customs which one should expect among the Sudras, viz., adoption of a daughter's son, and of sister's son, divorce, Pat marriage, widow re-marriage and non-tonsure of the widows which are all badges of an inferior or unregenerate caste as observed by the High Court in Gopal Narhar Safray v. Hanmanta Ganesh Safray (2)."

Compare that with what was said by the First Class Subordinate Judge at page 6:—

(1) 54 Ind. Cas. 110; 21 Bom. L. R. 1172; 44 B. 166.

(2) 3 B. 273; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 183.

*Page of 21 Bom. L. R.—[Ed.]

SAHEB SINGH v. GIRDHARI LAL.

"In brief, it is an established fact that Lewa Kunbis have no Vedic rights and Sanskaras prescribed for the Dwij; that they do not perform chief Upanayan Sanskara which makes a man Dwij; that they do not wear sacred thread; that they have all the customs which one should expect among the Sudras, viz., divorce and Natra marriage by widows, and also adoption of a daughter's or sister's son."

We think that on the evidence there is sufficient justification for the conclusion at which the learned Judge arrived. Again, in Maychharam Bhiku v. Dattu Bhiku (1) Shah, J., said at page 1178*—

"It is to be noted that the caste to which the parties belong, and which used to be described originally as Kunbi caste has recently been described according to the evidence as Lewa Kunbis; and it seems to me that an attempt has been made on behalf of the defendants to show, if possible, a higher status with a view to escape the liability in the present suit. The description of the caste Pajne Kunbis, which was originally given to this caste, has apparently been changed to, Lewa Kunbis during the last twenty years."

In the same way in this case, it is apparent from the evidence that there have been endeavours in the community to establish their status as Vaishyas. Some of the witnesses for the plaintiffs even admitted that they were not Vaishyas by birth, but only by deeds. Considering, therefore, the whole of the record and the opinion which was formed on that record by the First Class Subordinate Judge, a Hindu of considerable experience in Gujarat, we think that his decision was right and that, therefore, the appeal must be dismissed with costs. Defendant No. 1 is entitled to his costs in both the Courts. Cross-objections allowed as to costs. Other cross-objections are dismissed.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

* Page of 21 Bom. L. R.—[Ed.]

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 82 OF 1921.

April 30, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Lindsay and Mr. Justice Sulaiman.

Lala SAHEB SINGH AND OTHERS—
PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

Lala GIRDHARI LAL AND OTHERS—
DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS

Hindu Law—Joint family—Transfer by father—Property passing out of family—Sons' power to challenge transfer—Transfer, private—Legal necessity.

Where ancestral property has passed out of a Hindu joint family either under a conveyance executed by the father in consideration of an antecedent debt or in order to pay off an antecedent debt, or under a sale in execution of a decree for the father's debts, his sons cannot recover that property unless they show that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes, and that the purchaser had notice that they were so contracted. [p. 1025, col. 2.]

A purchaser at an auction-sale of joint family property for the father's debts, in the absence of notice that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes, is not bound to make enquiry beyond what appears on the face of the proceedings. [p. 1025, col. 2.]

Suraj Bansi Kher v. Sheo Persad Singh, 5 C. 148; 6 I. A. 88; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 1; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 589; 4 C. L. R. 226; 2 Shome L. R. 242; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 705 (P. C.), Nanomi Babuasin v. Modhum Mohun, 13 C. 21; 13 I. A. 1; 19 Ind. Jur. 151; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 682; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 510 (P. C.), Bhagbut Pershad Singh v. Gurju Kher, 15 C. 717; 15 I. A. 99; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 186; 12 Ind. Jur. 289; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1062 (P. C.), Sahu Ram Chandra v. Bhup Singh, 39 Ind. Cas. 280; 39 A. 437; 21 C. W. N. 698; 1 P. L. W. 557; 15 A. L. J. 437; 19 Bom. L. R. 498; 26 C. L. J. 1; 33 M. L. J. 14; (1917) M. W. N. 439; 22 M. L. T. 22; 6 L. W. 213; 44 I. A. 126 (P. C.) and Chandradeo Singh v. Mata Prasad, 1 Ind. Cas. 479; 31 A. 176; 6 A. L. J. 263, relied on.

It is, not, however, correct to say that in every case where joint family property has passed out of the family for satisfaction of the father's debts the sons cannot challenge it unless they show that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes. [p. 1025, col. 1.]

Where a property has been sold by the father to pay off a debt and the sons bring a suit to recover it, and the property has not been sold at public auction, it lies upon the transferee to justify the alienation of the estate, by showing that the debt was in lieu of some antecedent debt or that the alienation was for some legal necessity. [p. 1026, col. 1.]

First appeal against the decree of the Subordinate Judge, Meerut, dated the 9th of December 1920.

SAHEB SINGH V. GIRDHARI LAL.

Messrs. Nehal Chand and H. K. Mukerji,
for the Appellants.

Dr. K. N. Raiju and Mr. K. C. Mittal, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This is a plaintiffs' appeal arising out of a suit for recovery of possession of a shop by avoidance of a sale-deed, dated the 9th of August 1918, executed by the plaintiffs' father Girdhari Lal. The plaintiffs' case was that the property was ancestral and that the sale-deed was without any consideration and, further, that there was no legal necessity for it and that Girdhari Lal was a man of immoral character and habits and the debt, if any, had been tainted with immorality. On behalf of the defendants the allegations contained in the plaint were denied and it was urged that the sale was justified. The learned Subordinate Judge has rejected the evidence of the plaintiffs that Girdhari Lal was a man of immoral character and he has further held that there is no evidence whatsoever to connect the immorality alleged with the amount advanced under the deed. He has further held that the defendants-vendees have shown that in fact part of the sum was paid in lieu of an antecedent debt and that there was legal necessity for the balance.

The plaintiffs have come up in appeal to this Court and challenge the findings of the learned Subordinate Judge.

The learned Subordinate Judge was of opinion that it was the duty of the sons to show why they were not bound by their father's acts. For this view he relies on a passage in Dr. Gour's Hindu Code, at page 590, to the effect that the question of the burden of proof must depend upon whether the property has or has not passed out of the family by an alienation made by the father. If it has, then the son suing to dispossess the alienee must show why he is not bound by the father's alienation.

Reliance is placed on the authority of the earlier Privy Council cases, namely, Suraj Bansi Koer v. Sheo Persad Singh (1); Nanomi Babuasin v. Modhun Mohun (2) and Bhagbut Pershad Singh v. Girja Koer

(3). In all those cases the property had passed out of the family under an execution sale and it was after the execution sale that the sons wanted to challenge the alienation. As was pointed out in the first of these cases, it is only "where joint ancestral property has passed out of a joint family, either under a conveyance executed by a father in consideration of an antecedent debt, or in order to raise money to pay off an antecedent debt; or under a sale in execution of a decree for the father's debt, (that) his sons, by reason of their duty to pay their father's debts, cannot recover that property, unless they show that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes, and that the purchasers had notice that they were so contracted; and, secondly, that the purchasers at an execution sale, being strangers to the suit, if they have no notice that the debts were so contracted, are not bound to make enquiry beyond what appears on the face of the proceedings." There was no departure in the last two cases from the rules of law laid down in the first case. In the recent case of Sahu Ram Chandra v. Bhup Singh (4) their Lordships adhered to the interpretation put by Sir John Stanley in Chandradeo Singh v. Mata Prasad (5) on the pronouncement in the case of Suraj Bansi Koer v. Sheo Persad Singh (1), and remarked that the correct and useful statement of the law was that it was only where joint ancestral property has passed out of a joint family, either under a conveyance executed by a father in consideration of an antecedent debt, or in order to raise money to pay off an antecedent debt, or under a sale in execution of a decree for the father's debt.

It is quite clear, therefore, that it is only when the property has passed out of the family on account of an antecedent debt or where it has been sold by public auction, that the sons cannot challenge the alienation unless they show that the debt was

(1) 5 C. 148; 6 I. A. 88; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 113; 3 Suth P. C. J. 589; 4 C. L. R. 226; 2 Shome L. R. 242; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 705 (P. C.).

(2) 13 C. 21; 13 I. A. 1; 10 Ind. Jur. 151; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 682; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 510 (P. C.).

(3) 15 C. 717; 15 I. A. 99; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 186; 12 Ind. Jur. 289; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1062 (P. C.).

(4) 39 Ind. Cas. 280; 39 A. 437; 21 C. W. N. 698; 1 P. L. W. 557; 15 A. L. J. 437; 19 Bom. L. R. 498; 26 C. L. J. 133; M. L. J. 141 (1917) M. W. N. 439; 22 M. L. T. 221; 6 L. W. 213; 44 I. A. 126 (P. C.).

(5) 1 Ind. Cas. 479; 31 A. 176; 6 A. L. J. 263.

SAHEB SINGH V. GIRDHARI LAL.

tainted with immorality. It is not correct to say that in every case where the property has passed out of the family (though under a private sale not in lieu of any antecedent debt and even when the legal necessity has not been established) the sons cannot challenge it unless they show that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes. Where a property has been sold by the father and the sons bring a suit to recover it, and apparently the property has not been sold away at public auction, then it lies upon the transferee to justify the alienation of the estate by showing that the debt was in lieu of some antecedent debt or that the alienation was for some legal necessity.

In the present case the document in question was in lieu of Rs. 7,500. It consisted of two items, namely Rs. 1,237-8-0 due on a promissory note for Rs. 1,000, said to have been executed on the 2nd of January 1917, and the balance of Rs. 6,262-8-0 paid in cash before the Sub-Registrar.

As to the first item, we think there can be no doubt that it had been paid prior to the execution of the sale-deed. We have the statement of Ram Saran Das, vendee supported by an entry in the account books, that the sum of Rs. 1,000 had been borrowed on the 2nd of January 1917 by Girdhari Lal from him. The amount of the principal and interest due on it would come up to Rs. 1,237-8-0. Girdhari Lal has not gone into the witness-box to deny the passing of this part of consideration and in fact there is no evidence to contradict the vendee. We are, therefore, of opinion that this sum was due. This being a debt due personally from the father and being antecedent in time to the transaction in question and not having been secured on the property, was clearly an antecedent debt and was binding on the family. As to the balance, the defendants' case is, that Girdhari Lal was very much indebted and that there were numerous debts outstanding against him in the bazaar. Before the execution of the sale-deed the vendee was assured by Girdhari Lal that he owed a number of these debts and was in urgent necessity to pay them. Ram Saran's version is that he actually made enquiries in the bazaar and learnt from a number of people that sums of money were due to them from Girdhari Lal; that after this enquiry he agreed to advance the money to Girdhari Lal. In support of this Ram Saran Das has gone into the witness-box and he has produced some of these creditors. Mohan Lal, witness, has stated that Rs. 1,000 had been advanced by him to Girdhari Lal under a promissory-note and that there are entries in his account books. Peare Lal, another witness, has sworn that a sum of Rs. 1,150 was paid to him on account of the debt due to him. Ram Richpal Singh has stated that Rs. 880 were realised by him on the 9th August 1918 from Girdhari Lal and that there are entries in his account books to prove it. Another Ram Richpal Singh has proved that a sum of Rs. 662 was paid to him on the 28th October 1918 as part of the amount due on a promissory-note for Rs. 600 dated the 11th February 1916. We have also a statement of one Mohan Lal that on the 5th November 1918 he was paid Rs. 3,533 by Girdhari Lal. The total of these sums comes to Rs. 6,225. There is also evidence to the effect that there were other debts due from Girdhari Lal at the time the sale-deed was executed. The learned Subordinate Judge has believed the evidence of these witnesses except that of Peare Lal. The reason given by him for disbelieving this last mentioned witness is that he has not produced any bahi khata or documentary evidence in support of the alleged loan, and that it is possible that he has come to support the defendant, he being a friend of his. Peare Lal apparently is a respectable witness. He pays Rs. 500 or 600 Government revenue and about Rs. 300 income-tax. He had stated that the money advanced had belonged to his wife, and it was on that account that it was not entered in his bahi khata. We must say that we see no reason to disbelieve his statement. Peare Lal stated that he returned the document as soon as it was paid off which, of course, might have been done. In our opinion, therefore, the defendant-vendee had before taking the sale-deed made reasonable and sufficient enquiries to satisfy himself that antecedent debts were existing and that Girdhari Lal had necessity to transfer the property in order to pay off those debts, SARASPUR MANUFACTURING COMPANY v. & B. B. & C. I. RAILWAY COMPANY.

It was not absolutely necessary for Ram Saran Das to prove how the money advanced by him was actually applied, but in this particular case, we are of opinion, that he has also proved that the greater part of this money was certainly applied for the purposes mentioned.

To disprove the existence of any legal necessity the plaintiffs led evidence to show that Girdhari Lal was a man of immoral character, that he had had two mistresses one after the other and was addicted to drinking and gambling. Four witnesses named, Ashfaq Ali, Puran Devi, Ram Prasad and Shiam Sunder have been examined. Their evidence, however, is only of a general character and has been wholly rejected by the learned Subordinate Judge. We see no reason to differ from his view. Furthermore, the evidence of these witnesses does not in any way connect any of the items proved by the defendant-ven-dee to have been due from Girdhari Lal with his immorality or gambling. We are, therefore, of opinion that it is not open to the plaintiffs to challenge this alienation without proving that these debts are tainted with immorality or illegality. This they have failed to do. The result is that this appeal fails and is hereby dismissed with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

M. A. A.

*Appeal dismissed.BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

CIVIL EXTRAORDINARY APPLICATION

NO. 261 OF 1922.

April 5, 1923.

Present.—Sir Norman Macleod, K.T., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

THE SARASPUR MANUFACTURING COMPANY—PLAINTIFF—APPLICANT
versus

B. B. AND C. I. RAILWAY COMPANY—
DEFENDANT—OPONENT.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O P I r. 17, Appendix A—Suit against Railway Company—Misdescription—Amendment.

In a suit against a Railway Company the plaintiff described the defendant as "The Agent A. B. Railway Company, Ltd." The Company, however, was aware that the suit was brought against itself and not against the Agent:

Held, that the fact that the word "Agent" preceded the name of the Railway Company in the description of the defendant was merely a misdescription and little more than a clerical error which could be amended at any time without prejudice to the opposite party. [p. 1029, col. 1; p. 1028, col. 2.]

Sinehi Ram Behari Lall v. Agent, East Indian Railway Company, 64 Ind. Cas. 125; 2 P. L. T. 679, dissented from.

Per Macleod, C. J.—If it can be said that there has been a misdescription of a party in the title of a plaint the necessary amendment ought, in the interests of justice, to be allowed, if otherwise the rights of the parties would be prejudiced. [p. 1028, col. 2.]

If a Company is a party to a suit it should be described either as "The A. B. Company, Ltd., having its registered office at—" or as "A. B., a public officer of the C. D. Company." [p. 1028, col. 1.]

Civil Extraordinary Application from an order passed by the Small Cause Court Judge at Ahmedabad, in Civil Suit No. 2538 of 1921.

Mr. H. V. Divatia, for the Applicant.

Mr. Campbell, instructed by Messrs. Crawford, Bayley & Co., for the Opponent.

JUDGMENT.

Macleod, C. J.—These are four companion applications under section 25 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act. In all the four cases the plaintiffs desired to sue the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway Company to recover damages for the loss of goods. The title of the defendant was entered in each plaint as follows:—"The Agent, B. B. & C. I. Railway Company, Ltd." but the prayer was that the defendant Company should pay the amount sued for. In two of the suits the defendant Company filed their written statements pleading to the merits without taking any objection to the form of the title. In the other two suits they filed written statements not only pleading to the merits, but also objecting that the plaintiffs' suits could not lie as they were filed against the defendant's Agent. The Small Cause Court Judge dismissed all the suits on the ground that they were badly framed. He relied upon a decision of Mr. Justice Ross in Sinehi Ram Behari Lall v. Agent, East Indian Railway Company (i).

Now, it cannot be disputed that in the past there have been a very large number of suits filed by traders in this Presidency against

(i) 64 Ind. Cas. 125; 2 P. L. T. 679.

SARASPUR MANUFACTURING COMPANY v. B. B. & C. I. RAILWAY COMPANY.

Railway Companies in many of which the title of the defendant has been entered in the plaint in this form: "The Agent A. B. Railway Company, Ltd." and that hitherto no objection whatever has been taken to this description. There can be no question that the Railway Companies considered that they were the defendants in such suits, although it may be conceded that the title of the defendant was not in accordance with the forms in Appendix A, First Schedule to the Civil Procedure Code, under heading "Title of Suits."

If a Company is a party to a suit it should be described either as "The A. B. Company Ltd., having its registered office at" or as "A. B., a public officer of the C. D. Company."

Now, in the case to which I have referred the East Indian Railway Company appeared and filed a written statement pleading to the merits of the case. It was only when the case came on for hearing that the Pleader of the defendant Company took the objection that the suit was not maintainable inasmuch as the Agent of the East Indian Railway Company and not the Company had been sued. The learned Judge said (page 126):—

"This is not a case of mere misnomer, which could have been made a basis of defence. The suit was brought against the Agent of the East Indian Railway Company and the Company was not impleaded according to law. In law the Company is not a defendant to the suit and is not before the Court as defendant. The frame of the suit can only be amended by substituting the Company as defendant in place of the Agent, and it is a well-recognised principle that, however liberal the Court may be in allowing amendments in the interest of justice, an amendment will not be allowed which would prejudice the rights of the opposite party existing at the date when the proposed amendment is to be made. At this stage the East Indian Railway Company has acquired a right by virtue of the Statute of Limitation and this right should not be prejudiced by any amendment at this stage."

With all due respect, I cannot agree with this reasoning. It seems to me in the interests of justice that if it can be said that there has been a misdescription of a party in the title of a plaint the necessary amendment ought to be allowed, if otherwise the rights of the parties would be prejudiced. If the defendant Company considered as having had no notice that these suits had been brought against it by the plaintiffs then undoubtedly limitation would be considered as running up to the date when the defendant Company had notice of the claims by being made a party to the suits. But the defendant Company not only knew perfectly well that the various claims had been made against it, but also considered itself the party being sued. If the Company was not a party, no appearance should have been entered. In my opinion the fact that the word "Agent" preceded the name of the Railway Company in the description of the defendant amounted merely to a misdescription, and, therefore, the learned Small Cause Court Judge should have allowed the title to be amended. The suits must be restored to the Board to be tried on their merits.

It is desirable, however, to point out that in future parties who wish to sue a Company must follow the directions in Appendix A to the Code.

Rule will be made absolute with costs.

Crump, J.—In my opinion we should in this question look to the substance rather than to the form and if we do that I agree that we must dissent from the decision in Sinehi Ram Bihari Lall v. Agent, East Indian Railway Company (1). It seems to me that there is no doubt whatever that all the parties were perfectly well aware that the suit was against the Railway Company and that it was against the Railway Company that the relief was asked for. Though the description of the Company may not have been that which is in conformity with the Schedule A to the Code of Civil Procedure, nevertheless, the Company was substantially on the record, and it appears to me impossible to argue that if the title in the plaint were amended so as to bring it in conformity with the Schedule, the result would be to prejudice any rights acquired by the company by virtue of the Statute of Limitation. For, as I have said, the Company was in substance the defendant at the time the plaint was first filed, and it was not a case of adding a new party in which case, considerations of that kind might be relevant. It seems to me that really this is nothing more than a misdescription, and, as has been pointed out by my Lord, the Chief Justice, the practice certainly has been to describe Railway Companies in the manner which has been done in the present case. No body up to this time has ever been misled or has ever suggested that any formal amendment to the plaint was necessary. All that would be required to bring the title of the plaint in conformity with the Schedule would be to strike out the word "Agent". Therefore, it seems to me that this is little more than a clerical error which can be amended at any time without any prejudice to the opposite party.

ALIMAN BEGAM v. ALI HASAN.

Z. K.

*Rule made absolute.ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1695 OF 1922.

March 7, 1923.

Present :—Mr. Justice Rafique and Mr. Justice Lindsay.

Musammal ALIMAN BEGAM—PLAINTIFF
—APPELLANT

versus

ALI HASAN AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS
—RESPONDENTS.

Muhammadian Law—Pre-emption—Several vendees—Talab-i-istishhad, performance of.

The Muhammadan Law of Pre-emption requires that the second demand should be made either in the presence of the vendor or the vendee or on the property sought to be pre-empted. The singular words "vendor and vendee" include the plural also.

Therefore, talab-i-istishhad, if it is made in the presence of the vendee, cannot, in case there are more vendees than one, be said to be properly made, unless it is made in the presence of all the vendees.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Judge of Shahjahanpur, dated the 17th of July, 1922.

Mr. M. A. Aziz, for Dr. S. M. Sulaiman, for the Appellant.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit brought by the plaintiff-appellant on the ground of pre-emption under the Muhammadan Law. The claim was decreed by the Court of first instance. The Appellate Court, however, took a different view, and dismissed the claim. The ground upon which the Appellate Court dismissed the claim was, that the second demand, known under the Muhammadan Law as "talab-i-istishhad," was not carried out by the plaintiff-appellant as required by the Muhammadan Law. It appears that the vendees were husband and wife. The pre-emptor went to the house of the vendees and sent for the husband, who came out. In the presence of the witnesses the pre-emptor made a second demand, the husband listened to it. The wife was admittedly not present at the time when the second demand was made. The Muhammadan Law requires that the second demand should be made either in the presence of the vendor or the vendee or on the property, that is the subject of pre-emption. The singular words, "vendor and vendee" include the plural also. According to the interpretation of the Muhammadan Lawyers, if the demand is made neither in the presence of the vendor, nor on the property sought to be pre-empted, but in the presence of the vendee then in case there are more than one vendee, the demand should be made in the presence of all.

The view taken by the learned Judge of the lower Appellate Court that the second demand made by the pre-emptor was defective is quite correct.

The appeal fails and is dismissed under O. XLI, r. II, of the Code of Civil Procedure.

M. A. A.

Appeal dismissed.

GOVINDDAS V. GANPATDAS.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL NO. 282 OF 1921.

March 20, 1923.

Present.—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

GOVINDDAS RAJARAMDAS DEVI

PLAINTIFF—APPELLANT

versus

GANPATDAS NARROITAMDAS—

DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182 (5)—Execution of decree—Appeal against order in execution, whether step-in-aid of execution.

The prosecution of an appeal from an order made in the course of a proceeding in execution of a decree cannot be looked upon as an application in accordance with law to the proper Court for execution or to take some step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of clause (5) of Art. 182 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

Kristo Coomar Nag v. Mahabat Khan, 5 C. 595; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 986, Nand. Kishore v. Sipahl Singh, 26 A. 608; A. W. N. (1904) 139; 1 A. L. J. 336, relied on.

First appeal from a decision of the First Class, Subordinate Judge, Satara, in Darkhast No. 671 of 1920.

Mr. M. V. Bhal, for the Appellant.

Mr. K. N. Koyajee, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.—This is an appeal from the order of the Subordinate Judge dismissing the plaintiff's Darkhast as time-barred. The decree was a partition-decree passed on June 30, 1906. Some of the suit properties were partitioned by the Commissioner, but it seems that with regard to the house, the subject-matter of the present Darkhast, the parties thought that they might arrive at a settlement, with the result that it remained unpartitioned. The last Darkhast No. 193 of 1915 taken out by any of the parties was dismissed on September 12, 1917. That was a Darkhast by defendant No. 1, and it had nothing to do with the partition of the suit properties. The defendants' appeals to the High Court against the orders passed in that Darkhast and on plaintiff's Darkhast No. 428 of 1913 were decided on March 1, 1920. The present Darkhast was presented on October 4, 1920, and unless time can be computed from March 1, 1920, the present Darkhast is clearly time-barred.

In Nand Kishore v. Sipahl Singh (1) it was decided that the prosecution of an appeal

(1) 26 A. 608; A. W. N. (1904) 139; 1 A. L. J. 336.

SAJJAD HUSSAIN V. WALI MUHAMMAD.

from an order made in the course of a proceeding in execution of a decree could not be looked upon as an application in accordance with law to the proper Court for execution or to take some step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of Art. 179 of the Second Sch. to the Indian Limitation Act of 1877. The decision in Kristo Coomar Nag v. Mahabat Khan (2) was followed. We agree with these decisions.

It certainly cannot be said that an appeal to the High Court against an order in a Darkhast is an application in accordance with law to the proper Court for execution. The High Court is not a Court whose duty it is to execute decrees passed by the lower Courts. So the Darkhast in this case was time-barred. The plaintiff has only himself to blame that the house has not been partitioned, since the decree was passed in 1906. Now, he can either come to an arrangement with the defendant for partition of the house or he can file another suit.

The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

(2) 5 C. 595; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 986.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 1472 OF 1921.

March 6, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Gokul Prasad.

Shaikh SAJJAD HUSSAIN—PLAINTIFF

—APPELLANT

versus

Shaikh WALI MUHAMMAD AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 22—Succession to holding—"Sharing in cultivation," meaning of.

The expression "sharing in cultivation" occurring in section 22 of the Agra Tenancy Act means sharing in actual cultivation. In the case of the subletting of a holding, the tenant cannot himself be said to cultivate, and, therefore, there can be no sharing in the cultivation of such a tenancy. [p. 1032, col. 1.]

SAJJAD HUSAIN v. WALI MUHAMMAD.

Second appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Ghazipur, dated the 10th of May, 1921.

Dr. M. L. Agarwala, for the Appellant.

Mr. Iqbal Ahmad, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—It appears that one Tajammul Husain owned a one-anna-six-pie Zemindari share and was in cultivatory possession of certain plots of sir land. He made a gift of one-anna-two-pie share to Wali Muhammad, Musammam Butan Bibi and Musammam Majidan Bibi. The defendant, Tufail Ahmad, is an heir of Musammam Majidan Bibi. Later on, he sold the remaining four-pie share to Ali Kabir and thus became an ex-proprietary tenant of the plots of sir appertaining to that share. He alleged that the defendants were sub-tenants of the plots appertaining to the aforesaid share and sued for their ejection. In all, there were five suits by the plaintiff, Sajjad Husain, who claimed title as a daughter's son of the late Tajammul Husain. The suits related to various plots of sir land. The suits were Nos. 321 to 325 of 1916.

The defence pleaded was that the plaintiff was not an ex-proprietary tenant and that no relation of landlord and tenant subsisted between the parties.

The Trial Court found for the plaintiff on both the issues and decreed the claim.

The defendants in all these suits except Suit No. 323 of 1916 went up in appeal to the Commissioner. The Commissioner however, returned the memoranda of appeal for presentation to the proper Court on the 30th of August 1917 having come to a conclusion that the question of proprietary title was involved in the appeals. On the 1st of September 1917 the appeals were filed in the District Judge's Court and then the District Judge dismissed all the four appeals there being no appeal from Suit No. 323 of 1916, as I have stated above, on the ground that they were barred by limitation. There was a second appeal to this Court and this Court came to the conclusion that the learned District Judge should not have dismissed the appeals summarily but should have gone on and found as a fact whether sufficient cause had been made out for admitting the appeals after the expiry of the period of limitation.

The learned Judge of the lower Appellate Court has found that the appeals were filed before the Commissioner because of the mistaken advice of the lawyers and that the appeals were so filed bona fide, and there was sufficient cause for extending the period of limitation. He had some doubts in his own mind about the question whether the appeals really lay to him. He has, however, gone on to find on all the points raised before him and has decreed the appeals and dismissed the plaintiff's claim.

The plaintiff comes here in second appeal and raises three points, (1) that no appeal lay to the District Judge as no question of proprietary title was raised in the appeal; (2) that the plaintiff shared in the cultivation of the holding with his maternal grandfather, Tajammul Husain, and was as such competent to bring the present suit, and (3) that the appeal in the Court below was barred by the rule of res judicata inasmuch as the judgment of the Assistant Collector in Suit No. 323 of 1916 in which no appeal had been preferred to the Judge became final and concluded the defence.

As to the last point I may dispose of it shortly. There are not sufficient materials on the record to enable me to decide this question and it is too late to send for those records now.

As to the point that no appeal lay to the District Judge, it is too late now to raise this question. It would appear from ground No. 5 of the grounds of appeal before the lower Appellate Court that question of proprietary title was raised before the District Judge. The plaintiff wanted to eject the defendants on the ground that they were his sub-tenants and the defendants pleaded that they were in possession as donees, that is, in proprietary possession. This ground of appeal must also fail.

As to the remaining point, namely, if the plaintiff shared in the cultivation with his late maternal grandfather, this is a point not covered by any authority of this Court and is one of first impression. Reading the proviso as it stands and giving the words their natural meaning, it would appear that a daughter's son or a collateral could only inherit if he shared in the cultivation of the holding at the time of the tenant's death. I take those words to mean actual cultivation. In case of sub-letting the tenant himself could not be said to cultivate the plots and if the tenant was not himself in cultivation no body could be said to share it with him, and, as here, the land was admittedly let out to the sub-tenants, the plaintiff's claim on the ground that he shared in the cultivation of the holding at the time of the tenant's death must fail. The fact that the plaintiff has succeeded in a civil matter on the ground that he was the heir of his maternal grandfather is beside the question. The point before me is not that the plaintiff was the heir of his maternal grandfather, but that he was not an heir of his maternal grandfather, so far as his ex-proprietary rights were concerned. The plaintiff is consequently not an heir to the ex-proprietary tenancy and his suit on that ground must fail. The suit has been rightly dismissed, and I dismiss the appeal with costs.

GANGADAS NARAYANDAS v. JEKISONDAS MANCHARAM.

M. A. A.

*Appeal dismissed.BOMBAY HIGH COURT

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 307, OF 1921.

March 23, 1923.

Present—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt.,
Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.
GANGADAS NARAYANDAS—AND OTHERS—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus.

JEKISONDAS MANCHARAM AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Pleadings—Appeal, second—Question of fact—Wagering contract.

The question whether a contract is of a wagering nature is a pure question of fact, that is to say, the party disputing that he is liable under the contract has to show that, at the time the contract was entered into, the parties did not intend to carry out the contract, but agreed to abide by the prices ruling at the due dates, when differences would be paid or received.

Second appeal from the decision of the Acting District Judge, Surat, in Appeal No. 50 of 1920, reversing the decision passed by the First Class, Subordinate Judge at Surat, in Civil Suit No. 225 of 1918.

Mr. H. C. Coyajee, with him Mr. M. B. Dave, for the Appellants.

Messrs. G. S. Rao and P. B. Shingne, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiffs filed this suit against the defendants to recover Rs. 1,396-9-0 being differences on the suit contracts for purchase and sale of cotton seeds. The defence was that the contracts were of a wagering nature, and the onus would lie upon the defendants to prove that fact. The Trial Court held that the contracts were wagering contracts and dismissed the suit. The Appellate Court came to a different conclusion and decreed the suit in favour of the plaintiffs.

The question whether the contracts were of a wagering nature was really a pure question of fact, that is to say, the party disputing that he was liable under the contracts would have to show that at the time the contracts were entered into, the parties did not intend to carry out the contracts, but agreed to abide by the prices ruling at the due dates, when differences would be paid or received. It is unfortunate that on such a simple question it was considered necessary in the Courts below, before deciding the case, to cite so many authorities. When it is a question of fact in each case as to what was the intention of the parties, there is no necessity whatever to refer to other cases. The test to apply has long ago been definitely settled. The Appellate Judge in dealing with the oral evidence found that he could not come to a definite conclusion in favour of the defendants, and it would necessarily follow, as the defence was not made out, that the defendants could not escape from the legal consequences of the breach of the contracts. The defence having failed in the opinion of the learned Appellate Judge, the plaintiffs were entitled to a decree. As a matter of fact, no second appeal lies as no question of law arises in the appeal.

The appeal must be dismissed with costs.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

JIWANDAS V. AGENT E. I. R. COMPANY.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 317 OF 1922.

April 14, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Baker, Offg. J. C.

D. B. JIWANDAS AND ANOTHER—

PLAINTIFFS—APPLICANTS

versus

THE AGENT, E. I. RY. COMPANY—

DEFENDANT—NON-APPLICANT.

Railways Act (IX of 1890), s. 77, applicability, of—Claim based on non-delivery—Notice to Railway Company.

The provisions of section 77 of the Railways Act apply not only to claims for compensation arising out of loss, destruction or deterioration of goods, but also to claims arising out of non-delivery or wilful mis-delivery. [p. 1033, col. 2.]

Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway Company v. Haridoss Banmali Doss, 49 Ind. Cas. 69; 41 M. 871; 35 M. L. J. 35; 24 M. L. T. 38; 8 L. W. 340 and Deorao v. Great Indian Peninsular Railway Co., 14 Ind. Cas. 684; 8 N. L. R. 34, relied on.

East Indian Railway Company v. Kali Charan Ram Parshad, 69 Ind. Cas. 103; 3 P. L. T. 215; (1922), Pat. 145; (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 106, dissented from.

In the matter of requiring a notice of a claim to a Railway Company in order to enable the latter to make enquiries and, if possible, to recover the goods, there is no reason for making a distinction between cases of loss and cases of non-delivery. [p. 1034, col. 1.]

Courts ought not to import distinctions such as the above into the Railways Act unless they rest upon some basis of sound reason which would be likely to have commended itself to the Legislature. [p. 1034, col. 1.]

The provisions of the Railways Act as to notice must be strictly observed; and a person who is desirous of serving an effective notice of claim must direct it to the Manager or the Agent, as the case may be. [p. 1035, col. 1.]

Application for revision of the decree of the Judge Small Cause Court, Sohagpur, dated 27th October 1922, in Civil Suit No. 528 of 1922.

Mr. J. Sen, for the Applicants.

Mr. P. Lobo, for the Non-applicants.

ORDER.—The plaintiffs, who are a firm carrying on business at Jubbulpur, sued the defendants, E. I. Railway Co., for damages for non-delivery of goods consigned to them at Pipria, in the Small Cause Court at Sohagpur. The suit was dismissed for want of proper notice to the E. I. Railway Co. Plaintiffs apply in revision to have the decree set aside.

2. It is contended on behalf of the applicants (1) that the suit being based on non-delivery of goods and not on loss, no notice is necessary under section 77 of the Indian Railways Act; (2) that if notice was necessary, sufficient notice was given; and (3) that, in any case, the Court should have examined the parties on this point.

3. As regards point (1), the learned Pleader for applicants relies on a recent case of East Indian Railway Co. v. Kali Charan Ram Parshad (1), in which it was held by a Single Judge of the Patna High Court that no notice is necessary under section 77 of the Indian Railways Act in a case of a claim for compensation for non-delivery of goods as distinct from a case of a claim for loss, destruction or deterioration of goods.

4. A contrary view has been taken by the Madras High Court in the Madras and Southern Mahratta Railway Co. v. Haridoss Banmali Doss (2) in which a Bench of the Madras High Court held that section 77 of the Indian Railways Act applies not only to claims for compensation arising out of loss, destruction or deterioration of goods but also to claims arising out of non-delivery or wilful mis-delivery. In Deorao v. Great Indian Peninsular Railway Co. (3) which was a case of non-delivery, this Court held that the suit was bad for lack of proper notice. The question of necessity of notice does not seem to have been expressly raised. So far as I am aware, the Patna High Court case above referred to is the first case in which it has been held that there any distinction between a claim based on non-delivery and a claim based on loss or damage.

5. It has been contended by the learned Pleader for applicants that the remarks in the Madras High Court judgment are obiter dicta. This is not in my opinion correct. In that case an express issue of limitation was raised as to the suit being barred under section 77 of the Act for want of notice, and in dealing with this issue the learned Chief Justice of the Madras High Court dealt with the whole question of notice and pointed out that the liability of Railway Companies is that of a bailee under sections 152 and 161 of the Indian

(1) 69 Ind. Cas. 103; 3 P. L. T. 215; (1922) Pat. 145; (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 106.

(2) 49 Ind. Cas. 69; 41 M. 871; 35 M. L. J. 35; 24 M. L. T. 38; 8 L. W. 340.

(3) 14 Ind. Cas. 684; 8 N. L. R. 34.

JIWANDAS V. AGENT E. I. R. COMPANY.

Contract Act, the latter of which covers all cases of non-delivery and mis-delivery, and points out at page 877 * that these sections of the Contract Act, which are applied by the Indian Railways Act, purport to deal not merely with the bailee's duty of safe custody but also with the performance of the bailee's duty to deliver at the proper time. Therefore, Chapter VII of the Indian Railways Act must be taken, and was intended, to cover the whole liability of the Railway Company including among other things the responsibility of the Railway Company for mis-delivery by whatever reason caused. That being so, when section 77 required notice in any claim for compensation for the loss, destruction or deterioration of animals or goods, a notice is required in all claims which arise with reference to the liability defined in the earlier section (72) and in the specified sections of the Contract Act, sections 151 and 161, the latter of which covers all cases of non-delivery or mis-delivery. Section 9 of Act III of 1865 which is reproduced in section 76 of the Indian Railways Act, refers to loss, damage or non-delivery of goods, but in section 76 of the Indian Railways Act it was not thought necessary to reproduce the word "non-delivery," the reason being that cases of non-delivery are already sufficiently provided for by the reference to sections 152 and 161 of the Contract Act in the earlier section. In this matter of requiring notice to the Railway Company within a reasonable time in order to enable them to make enquiries, and, if possible, to recover the goods, there is really no reason for making a distinction between cases in which goods have been delivered inadvertently to the wrong person and cases such as the present, in which they were delivered to a person other than the consignee who claimed to be entitled to them but did not produce the Railway Receipt as he should have done in support of his claim. We ought not to import distinctions of this sort into the Railways Act unless they rest upon some basis of sound reason which would be likely to have commended itself to the Legislature.

6. With these observations of the learned Chief Justice of the Madras High Court I respectfully agree. The view of the Patna High Court is based principally on Arts. 30 and 31 of the Indian Limitation Act, and it is said that there is a cardinal difference between "non-delivery" and the "loss, destruction or deterioration" of goods while in charge of a carrier such as the Railway Company. In the former there is a deliberate withholding of property from the person entitled to its delivery and in the latter the loss, destruction or deterioration takes place on account of certain extraneous causes. In the latter case there is no deliberate withholding of the property though there may be wilful neglect in not taking proper care of the goods. "Section 77 requires notice of the claims arising out of loss, destruction or deterioration of goods delivered to be carried by a Railway Company to be given to the Railway Administration within six months from the date of the delivery of the goods to be carried. This is obviously with a view to enable the Railway Administration to make an enquiry and investigation as to whether the loss, destruction or deterioration was due to the plaintiff's laches or due to the wilful neglect of the Company or its servants, or due to the theft or robbery committed by the servants of the Company. Unless notice of the loss, destruction or deterioration is given promptly, the enquiry would be prejudiced and, therefore, section 77 prescribes that notice must be given within six months from the date of the delivery of the goods. But in a case of non-delivery such an enquiry will not be necessary. In this view also section 77 has no application and the Company is not entitled to a notice in a case of non-delivery. With all respect to the Patna High Court, I am unable to follow this reasoning which appears to me to be importing a distinction into the Railways Act, which is not sound. In the case of a Railway Company which carries hundreds of thousands of parcels, it appears to me that even in a case of non-delivery enquiry will be necessary to enable the Railway Company to find where the goods are. They do business in a large number of places and some time is necessarily required to trace missing goods which may be lying in any station on the system. In these circumstances, where an opposite view has been expressed by two High Courts, I prefer to follow the ruling of the Madras High Court, and I hold, therefore, that notice is necessary.

AHMED BALLU DABIR & GANESH VISHNU.

7. Turning to the second point, whether notice was, as a matter of fact, given, the plaintiff has produced a receipt for a registered letter addressed to the Manager or Agent, E. I. Ry. Co. The E. I. Ry. Co. deny receipt of the notice. The notice was addressed in the alternative by the plaintiff because he did not know whether it should be sent to the Manager or the Agent. In Deorao v. Great Indian Peninsular Railway Company (3) it was held that a notice to the Traffic Manager is not sufficient even if it comes to the knowledge of the Agent. That, however, was based upon the special circumstances of that case. I need not refer to cases which lay down that the provisions as to notice must be strictly observed, and if the plaintiff is desirous of serving an effective notice of claim the notice must be directed to the Manager or the Agent, as the case may be. These cases will be found quoted in the judgment of this Court referred to above.

8. It has been argued on behalf of the applicant that it may be presumed that the notice was received. There is no reported case in which a notice in the alternative was sent, as in the present case, the notice being addressed to the Manager might possibly have been delivered to the Traffic Manager, but there is no evidence as to whether notices received by the Traffic Manager, supposing such an officer to exist, are handed over to the Agent. In these circumstances, I think, the case must go back for enquiry into the point as to who receives letters addressed to the Manager, E. I. Ry. Co., and whether notices of this kind are handed over to the Agent. Costs will be costs in the cause.

Z. K.

Order accordingly.

BOMBAY HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 37 OF 1921.

February 19, 1923.

Present:—Sir Norman Macleod, Kt.,

Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Crump.

AHMED BALLU DABIR AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS.

versus

GANESH VISHNU PENDSE—PLAINTIFF

—RESPONDENT.

Khoti-nisbat lands—Injali trees, property in—Dunlop's Proclamation, effect of—Kabuliyat, failure of Khot to execute, effect of.

Defendants who had held certain Khoti-nisbat lands as tenants of the Khot since the introduction of the Survey Settlement, subject to certain rights in the nature of occupancy rights, claimed to be the owners of the injali trees standing on the lands. It was found that, before the introduction of the Survey Settlement, the lands used to be let out by the khot from year to year on an annual lease. The trees were originally the property of Government.

Held, that by virtue of Dunlop's Proclamation of 1824, the khot had become the owner of the trees and that, afterwards, there had been nothing to extinguish those rights or to transfer them to the defendants. [p. 1036, col. 2.]

Collector of Ratnagiri v. Vyankatrao, 8 B. H. C. R. (A. C. J.) 1, followed.

Per Crump, J.—The mere failure on the part of a vatandar khot to sign the annual kabuliyat can have this result only, that he would not be entitled for the time being to the right of management of the village. That would not, however, affect any other rights which he might have independent of that right of management, such as the right to timber growing in khoti-nisbat lands. [p. 1036, col. 2.]

Per Macleod, C. J.—There is no general rule that no vatandar khot can claim to be the owner of the soil. With regard to Khoti khasgi, and Khoti-nisbat lands he is very much in the position of an owner. [p. 1037, col. 2.]

Collector of Ratnagiri v. Vyankatrao, 8 B. H. C. R. (A. C. J.) 1, Tajubai v. Sub-Collector of Kuldaba, 3 B. H. C. R. (A. C. J.) 132 at p. 149, Nagaradas Sanbhagyadas v. Conservator of Forests, Bombay, 4 B. 264; 7 I.A. 55; 4 Sar. P.C.J. 93; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 700; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 683 (P. C.), referred to.

Second appeal from the decision of the District Judge, Thana, in Appeal No. 129 of 1919, confirming the decree passed by the Subordinate Judge at Roha, in Civil Suit No. 1159 of 1917.

Mr. N. M. Patwardhan, with him Mr. P. B. Shingne, for the Appellant.

Mr. G. S. Rao, with him Mr. P. A. Bhat, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Crump, J.—The plaintiff in this case was a vatandar khot of the village of Padh-

ARMED BALLU DABIR V. GANESH VISHNU.

van in the Mangaon Taluka of Kolaba District, and the substantial question in the suit is whether the plaintiff or the defendants were the owners of certain ingali trees standing upon lands which were in the occupation of the vendors of defendants. These vendors, it is now conceded, were not Dharekaris, but held their lands since the introduction of the Survey Settlement as tenants of the khot, subject to certain rights in the nature of rights of occupancy.

The case appears to have been approached in the lower Court on the footing that the Government were formerly owners of the trees growing upon these lands, and there seems little reason to doubt that that is the true view of the matter. The lands are Khoti-nisbat lands, and it has been held by this Court in Collector of Ratnagiri v. Vyankatray (1) that by virtue of Dunlop's Proclamation of 1824, the khets became the owners of the trees standing in such lands. That decision, if followed, is practically conclusive on the facts of the present case, and the same conclusion must follow if the particular circumstances here are considered.

There are three persons, and three only, in whom the rights to these trees are conceivably vested, viz., the Government, the khot, and the vendors of defendants, and if it is true, as appears to be the case, that trees were originally the property of Government, then whatever rights Government may have had were conceded by the Proclamation alluded to, and the person in whose favour that grant was made was the person on whose lands the trees were actually growing at the date of the Proclamation.

Now, it is proved in the present case that before the introduction of the Survey Settlement, the lands were let out from year to year by the khot on an annual lease or makia. That was the general system of the village, and there is nothing whatever to show that these Khot-nisbat lands were dealt with on any terms different from those which were applied to the generality of the khedi lands in the village. If that is so, there was, before the introduction of the Survey Settlement, no one other than the khot who can be said to have had any permanent occupation of the lands, or to have been the 'occupant' of the lands in the popular sense, which was the explanation placed on Dunlop's Proclamation in Sadashiv v. Secretary of State for India. (2). The khot's connection with the lands qua khot was continuous, and as regards the Khoti-nisbat lands he had at least quasi proprietary rights, which would suffice to make Dunlop's Proclamation operative in his favour.

Therefore, in accordance with the decision in Collector of Ratnagiri v. Vyankatray (1), the conclusion would appear to be inevitable that the khot by virtue of that Proclamation became the owner of these trees. If that is so, then there has been nothing to extinguish those rights or to transfer those rights to the present defendants.

Apart, therefore, from the question of the annual kabuliyat which as to trees governs the rights of the khot and of the Government as between themselves, it is clear that the title of the plaintiff here is established. In this view of the case, it seems unnecessary for the plaintiff to fall back upon the kabuliyat, or consider the effect of his having failed to sign that kabuliyat, owing to the difference that has arisen between himself and Government. But if it is necessary to decide that point, it seems obvious that the mere failure on the part of the plaintiff to sign the annual kabuliyat could have this result only, that he would not be entitled for the time being to the right of management of the village. That would not, however, affect any other rights which he might have independent of that right of management, such as the right to timber growing in Khot-nisbat lands. Put shortly, it is clear that the defendants have made out no right in their vendors, so that, in accordance with the decisions of this Court, the khot must be taken to be the grantee of the rights of Government, at all events as regards khoti khasgi and Khoti-nisbat lands. It follows, therefore, that defendants obtained nothing by their purchase, and the plaintiff was rightly awarded damages, and an injunction.

(1) 8 B. H. C. R. (A. C. J.) 13.

(2) 44 Ind. Cas. 872; 29 Bom. L. R. 141.

ONKARSA v. BRIDICHAND.

The decree of the lower Appellate Court must be confirmed and the appeal dismissed with costs.

Macleod, C. J.—I should like to add one word with regard to the following passage in the judgment of the lower Appellate Judge with regard to the rights of the plaintiff as a vatandar khot:—"In the absence of a sanad conferring on him the proprietorship of the village, he cannot claim to be owner of the soil." Reference was made to Tajubai v. Sub-Collector of Kulaba (3) and Nagardas Sanbhagyadas v. Conservator of Forests, Bombay (4). But the latter case does not support the proposition that a vatandar khot cannot claim to be owner of the soil in the absence of a sanad. Their Lordships of the Privy Council, in referring to Tajubai v. Sub-Collector of Kulaba (3), said (p. 271):—

"In that case the Government had resumed the khoti, had granted certain rights to the sub-tenants of the estate, and were willing to allow the plaintiff to take the khoti again upon certain conditions, namely, that she should be bound by the terms which the Government had entered into with the sub-tenants or holders of the land; and it was held that she was not entitled to have the khoti except upon those conditions. The reasons for the decision were that the khot was not the proprietor of the soil. The learned Judge who decided the case in the first instance went very fully into the matter, and held that the khot was merely an hereditary farmer of the revenue. The reasons are given in the report, and it will be unnecessary to read them. It is sufficient to say that that decision was opposed to the view taken by Captain Wingate to which reference was made from the records of the Government of India."

Their Lordships, without expressing any opinion that no khot is or can be the proprietor of the soil, thought it was sufficiently clear that the proprietorship of the soil is not vested in every khot.

(3) 3 B. H. C. R. (A. C. J.) 132 at p. 149.

(4) 4 B. 264; 7 L. A. 55; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 93; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 700; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 683 (P. C.).

It also appears that Mr. Justice Tucker dissented from the opinions expressed by Arnould and Newton, J.J., in Tajubai v. Sub-Collector of Kulaba (3).

Therefore, there is no general rule that no vatandar khot can claim to be the owner of the soil. Certainly it would appear to me that with regard to khoti khasgi and Khoti-nisbat lands, he is very much in the position of an owner. It was so held in Collector of Ratnagiri v. Vyankatray (1). I think, therefore, that the plaintiff has established his case, considering the land from which the jungle was cut was Khoti-nisbat land, and unless the defendants could satisfy the Court that they were Dharekaris, in whom the ownership of the trees might then have been vested, they were not entitled to succeed.

Z. K.

Decree confirmed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 437-B OF 1921.

April 14, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Kotval, A. J. C.

ONKARSA AND ANOTHER—

PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

BRIDICHAND AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907) ss. 2 (e), 16 (2), (6), 38—Right to receive debt, whether property—Payment of debt to insolvent, before order of adjudication, effect of.

A right to receive a debt is property within the meaning of section 2 (e) of the Provincial Insolvency Act and vests in the Receiver under section 16 (2) of the Act from the date of the application by the insolvent to be adjudged an insolvent. [p. 1039, col. 1.]

The provisions of section 16 of the Provincial Insolvency Act as to the vesting in the Receiver of the insolvent's property are controlled by those of section 38 of the Act and by virtue of the provisions of the latter section a debt vested in the Receiver may be discharged by a bona fide payment, without notice, made to the insolvent after the date of the application for being adjudged an insolvent and before the date of the adjudication order. [p. 1039, col. 1.]

ONKASRA V. BRIDICHAND:

Section 38 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is meant to protect debtors who have paid their debts to their creditors without knowledge of the latter's insolvency. [p. 1039, col. 1.]

Appeal from the decree of the District Judge, Amraoti, dated the 30th August 1921 in Civil Appeal No. 179 of 1920.

Sir Bipin Krishna Bose, Kt. and Mr. D. T. Mangalmurti, for the Appellant.

Messrs. R. R. Jainant and S. C. Dutt Chowdhury, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—An application to have the fourth defendant, Tejpal, adjudged an insolvent was made on the 15th April 1914 and Tejpal was adjudicated an insolvent on the 2nd October 1914. Tejpal was a member with defendants Nos. 1 to 3 of a Ginning Factory Combine for the year 1913-14 of which defendant No. 2 was the custodian. This Combine owed some money to Tejpal for his share of the profits. The Receiver sold by auction the debt owed by the Combine to Tejpal and the plaintiff purchased it for Rs. 85. He files the present suit to recover Rs. 963-4-1 as the principal amount due to Tejpal from the Combine and Rs. 232 interest by way of damages.

Defendant No. 2 pleaded that the total amount due from the Combine to Tejpal was Rs. 1,157-3-1 and that after deducting payments to the extent of Rs. 647-6-0 made to Tejpal and settling the accounts between the various members Rs. 509-13-1 were found due from defendant No. 1 to the Combine and the same amount due from the Combine to Tejpal. He alleged that on the 20th or 21st July 1914 Tejpal agreed to recover the amount direct from defendant No. 1 and his account with the Combine was closed as settled.

Defendant No. 1 pleaded that he paid Rs. 509-13-3 to defendant No. 4 on 22nd July 1914 by the direction of defendant No. 2.

Defendant No. 3 stated that he owed nothing to the Combine that he had received his share of the profits that defendant No. 2 was the custodian and it was the latter's duty to keep accounts and distribute the profits.

It appears that the Rs. 647-6-0 were paid to the insolvent or to the persons by his direction in four sums, namely, Rs. 195-0-6,

Rs. 200, Rs. 227-15-9 and Rs. 24-4-0. There is a difference of a few annas in one or more of these sums but it is immaterial. Of these four payments the first one is not challenged or claimed by the plaintiff, the remaining three are challenged. They were, like the payment of Rs. 509-13-1 by defendant No. 1 to Tejpal, all made after the date of the petition for adjudication but before the date of the order of adjudication.

The plaintiff denied these payments and pleaded that the settlement with Tejpal was fraudulent and did not bind the plaintiff being made after the commencement of the insolvency proceedings and, therefore, invalid.

The Trial Court found that the total amount due to Tejpal was Rs. 1,157-3-1, that payments to the extent of Rs. 647-6-0 were made to Tejpal by the Combine, that Tejpal agreed to receive the balance of Rs. 509-13-1 from defendants No. 1, that the Combine was thus discharged from liability for this amount; that defendant No. 1 paid this amount to Tejpal on the 22nd July 1914, and that there was no fraud or collusion in the matter. It dismissed the suit.

The lower Appellate Court upheld the First Court's decree. It held that there was no fraud or collusion in the matter, and that defendants Nos. 1 and 2 had no knowledge of Tejpal's insolvency when they made the payments to the insolvent. Plaintiff appeals.

A number of points are raised in the memorandum of appeal but only one was pressed at the hearing. Reference was made to clauses 6 and 2 of section 16 of the Provincial Insolvency Act and it was argued that as the adjudication order relates back to the date of the petition for adjudication and the whole of the insolvent's property vests from that date in the Receiver, the right to receive the amount of Rs. 962-2-7 vested in the Receiver on the 15th April 1914 the date of the petition. It was contended that the payments made to the insolvent after this date were not binding on the Receiver or his transferee, the plaintiff.

It is contended by the respondents that the right to receive a debt is not property within the meaning of the Insolvency Act.

MAUNG AUNG U. MAUNG SHWE LIN.

Reference is made to section 2 (e) and it is said property means tangible property. This contention has no force. Section 2 (e) does not profess to define property.

A right to recover a debt is a proprietary right; vide Salmond on Jurisprudence, section 82, page 208, 5th Edition. Under section 68 of the English Bankruptcy Act property includes things in action. The claim to the debt is an actionable claim as defined in section 3 of the Transfer of Property Act. It must be held that right to receive money due is property within the meaning of section 16 (2). By reason of relation back under section 16 (6) the right to receive the debt vested in the Receiver from the 5th April 1914. But the provisions of section 16 must be deemed to be controlled by those of section 38, the material part of which is as follows:—

"Subject to the...provisions of this Act with respect to the effect of insolvency of an execution and with respect to the avoidance of certain transfers and preferences, nothing in this Act shall invalidate in the case of an insolvency,

* * * * *

"(b) any payment or delivery to the insolvent;

"provided that any such transaction takes place before the date of the order of adjudication."

Even though the debt vested in the Receiver the payments in respect of the debt having been made bona fide, that is, without notice of the insolvency proceedings, to the insolvent before the date of the order of adjudication are not invalidated. There is no question here of the effect of the insolvency on any execution, nor is there any question of the avoidance of any transfer or preference. The payments being, so far as the defendants are concerned, valid the defendants are discharged from the debt and cannot be made to pay over again to the Receiver. Section 38 is meant to protect debtors who have paid their debts to their creditors without knowledge of the latter's insolvency and its benefit must be given to the defendants in this case. The effect of the application of section 38 in a case like this seems to be this, that a debt vested in the Receiver may be discharged by payments made under the circumstances specified in that section to the insolvent.

The appeal fails and is dismissed with costs.

Z. K.

Appeal dismissed.

LOWER BURMA CHIEF COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 225 OF 1921.

June 23, 1922.

Present:—Mr. Justice Pratt.

MAUNG AUNG AND ANOTHER—

APPELLANTS

versus

MAUNG SHWE LIN AND ANOTHER—

RESPONDENTS.

Evidence Act (I. of 1872), s. 18 (2)—Admission by vendor subsequent to sale—Purchaser, whether bound.

A purchaser is not bound by an admission made by his vendor subsequent to the purchase by him. He is not the representative-in-interest of his vendor, though he claims his title by virtue of the purchase through him. [p. 1040, col. 13.]

Second appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Henzada.

JUDGMENT.—Plaintiff sought to redeem certain land on payment of the debt for which it was temporarily handed over. The land was made over to the first defendant in consideration of a debt of Rs. 400, but there was no document drawn up.

First defendant admitted the claim; second and third defendants obtained possession from the first defendant on a money payment, but no deed of sale was drawn up.

Plaintiffs do not allege a mortgage of the land to first defendant, and there was no valid mortgage.

The District Court framed an issue as to whether plaintiffs handed over the land to defendant No. 1 for a debt, but in the judgment altered the issue to one of whether it was mortgaged, and then dismissed the suit on the ground that the mortgage was incapable of proof.

The District Court on appeal rightly remanded the case for evidence, but the only relevant issue framed was: "What was the real and actual nature of the transaction between plaintiffs and first defendant?"

BOHRA TARA CHAND V. RAYAZI BEGAM.

It was clear on the pleadings there could be no valid mortgage or sale, and plaintiffs never alleged that there was.

The District Court, nevertheless, held that the transaction was an out-right sale, which was manifestly an unwarrantable finding.

The District Court found that the first defendant admitted the mortgage by plaintiff, and that as second and third defendants derived their title from the first, they were bound by this admission.

Defendants Nos. 2 and 3 cannot be bound by an admission made by their vendor subsequent to the purchase by them. They are not the representatives-in-interest of their vendor though they claim their title by virtue of the purchase through him. It is obvious that this vendor might collude with the original owner and make an untrue admission.

It is perfectly clear, however, that on their own written statement, and the evidence adduced by them, second and third defendants have not purchased under a registered deed of sale, and that their vendor has no valid title. They allege they purchased from first defendant, but not by registered deed, which was the only possible legal mode of effecting a sale.

They did not set up that the first defendant was the ostensible owner with possession, but alleged that plaintiff assigned the land out-right to first defendant for Rs. 400.

The oral evidence adduced by them as to the assignment shows that the transaction was an oral one, and that no registered deed was executed. It is obvious, therefore, that neither the second and third defendants nor their vendor had obtained a valid title to the land.

Plaintiff is entitled to recover on payment of the debt for which the land was handed over, and that is obviously the relief sought. The expression used in the plaint is to "redeem and withdraw."

She did not sue to redeem land mortgaged, but to recover land made over as security for debt on re-payment of the debt.

The Burmese in the plaint is not worded in legal phraseology, and the word "redeem" has a wide meaning, and does not imply a mortgage necessarily, as the Courts below seem to have thought.

The conjunction of the word "redeem" and "withdraw", together with the allegations in the plaint, shows that the suit was meant to be one for recovery of land made over as security for debt on re-payment of the debt.

The decree of the lower Appellate Court was framed as a decree in a redemption suit, and the transaction was wrongly treated as a mortgage.

Plaintiff is entitled to redeem in a popular sense, but not in the legal sense of redeeming mortgaged property.

The decree of the Appellate Court will be modified and plaintiff will be granted a decree for recovery of the land on payment of Rs. 400. Plaintiff will be granted costs in the two Courts below, but in this Court each party will bear its own costs.

W. C. A.

Appeal allowed.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL NO. 877 OF 1921.

February 27, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Gokul Prasad.

BOHRA TARA CHAND AND ANOTHEER—

PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

Musammal RAYAZI BEGAM—DEFENDANT—RESPONDENT.

Easement—Privacy, right of.

The existence of the right of privacy does not depend on the caste or the creed of the person owning the building or on the fact whether or not the building is used by ladies. It is a custom of the country and is protected as such.

Gokal Prasad v. Radho, 10 A. 358; A. W. N. (1888) 135, 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 241 and Jamiludin v. Abdul Majid, 28 Ind. Cas. 674; 13 A. L. J. 361, followed.

Second appeal against the decree of the District Judge, Agra, dated the 25th of February 1921.

NEELAKHANDAN NAMUDRI v. VASUDEVAN NAMUDRI.

Mr. N. Upadhyaya, for Mr. G. Agarwala,
for the Appellants.

Mr. N. P. Asthana for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Gokul Prasad, J.—(November 30, 1922.)—This is a plaintiffs' appeal arising out of a suit brought by them for removal of a wall alleged to have been built by the defendant on the plaintiffs' land and for the closing up three windows which were alleged to interfere with the plaintiffs' right of privacy. The defence raised was that the wall stood on defendant's own land and that two of the windows were old ones, and one a new one, and that there was no interference with the plaintiffs' right of privacy. The First Court decided that the wall was on defendant's own land and that the question of right of privacy did not arise as the land was lying waste and was rasta. It dismissed the plaintiffs' claim. The plaintiffs went up in appeal and the learned Judge has come to the conclusion that the wall was on defendant's own land and that the plaintiffs could not have it removed. He further went on to hold that as there was no zenana house of the plaintiffs, there the question of the right of privacy did not arise. The existence of the right of privacy does not depend on the caste or creed of the person owning it or on the fact, viz., if it was used by the ladies. It is a custom of the country and has as such to be protected, [see Gokal Prasad v. Radho (1) and Jamilud-din v. Abdul Majid (2).]

In order to enable me to decide this appeal it is necessary to have findings on the following issues:—

(1) Is the plot of land belonging to the plaintiffs to the south of the wall A B open to the gaze of other people living in houses to the south and west thereof?

(2) Have the plaintiffs, as a matter of fact, been enjoying the right of privacy with reference to this plot?

(3) Have the Janglas put by the defendant in fact invaded the right of privacy of the plaintiffs?

The issues are to be decided on the evidence actually on the record and if necessary by another inspection of the locality. No fresh evidence will be received. On receipt of the finding the usual ten days will be allowed for objections.

Gokul Prasad, J.—(February 27, 1923.)—

The facts of the case are given at length in my order of the 30th November 1922 referring certain issues to the Court below. The findings, on all the three points referred, have been returned. They are against the appellants. These findings are findings of fact and cannot be interfered with. The appeal, therefore, fails and is dismissed with costs.

M. A. A.

Appeal dismissed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

APPEAL AGAINST APPELLATE ORDER No. 37
OF 1921.

February 9, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Justice Spencer and Mr. Justice Krishnan.

KARUTHEDATH PULAKKAI MANAK-
KAI, NEELAKHANDAN, NAMUDRI
URULIAN, OF TIRUNARAYANAPURAM DEVASWOM—APPELLANT

versus

VASUDEVAN, NAMUDRI KARNAVAN AND MANAGER AND ANOTHER—
RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V. of 1908), s. 144—Landlord and tenant—Ejectment—Possession obtained by landlord—Compensation, amount of, enhanced on appeal—Mesne profits—Interest.

A landlord obtained possession of a tenant's holding in execution of a decree for ejectment obtained by him under the provisions of the Malabar Compensation for Tenants' Improvements Act. On appeal, the amount of compensation awarded by the Trial Court was enhanced.

Held, that under the provisions of section 144 of the Civil Procedure Code, the defendant was entitled to interest at a sufficient rate on the additional sum awarded by the Appellate Court from the date on which the landlord took delivery till the date on which the defendant became aware that the landlord had deposited the additional amount, in lieu of mesne profits.

Kalyan Das v. Maqbul Ahmad, 46 Ind. Cas. 548; 35 M. L. J. 169 at p. 176; 22 C. W. N. 866; 16 A. L. J. 693; 5 P. L. W. 159; 28 C. L. J. 181; 8 L. W. 179; (1918) M. W. N. 535; 24 M. L. T. 110; 20 Bom. L. R. 864; 40 A. 397 (P. C.), Mantani v. Kuthiravattath Kettayil Ramjan

(1) 10 A. 358; A. W. N. (1838) 133; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 241.

(2) 28 Ind. Cas. 674; 13 A. L. J. 361.

FIDA ALI V. SANAI BADAR.

62 Ind. Cas. 724; 41 M. L. J. 15; 13 L. W. 449. Manakal Murihi Sankaran v. Areekara Azhakath Sankaran Nair, 66 Ind. Cas. 129; 44 M. W. N. 960; (1921) M. W. N. 470; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 347, followed.

Appeal against an order of the Court of the Subordinate Judge, Ottapalam, dated the 28th September 1920, in A. S. Nos. 52 and 56 of 1920, preferred against the order of the Court of the District Munsif, Waluvanad, dated the 18th March 1920, in Execution Petition No. 125 of 1920 in Original Suit No. 435 of 1917.

Mr. K. P. Ramakrishna Ayyar, for the Appellant.

Mr. C. Madhavan Nair, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—Following the observations of the Privy Council in the case quoted by the lower Appellate Court, Kalyan Das v. Magbul Ahmad (1), interest at a sufficient rate may be substituted for the profits which the person in possession under a mortgage-decree which was subsequently varied, enjoyed during the period between his execution of the First Court's decree and his giving notice that he had deposited the additional amount.

It was unnecessary to remand this case for ascertainment of the mesne profits. The defendants were not entitled to recover possession merely because the amount of compensation for improvements was increased; vide Manian v. Kuthiruvattath Kottayil Raman (2) and Manakal Murihi Sankaran v. Areekara Azhakath Sankaran Nair (3), but under section 144 of the Civil Procedure Code they were entitled to interest or other compensation consequential on the variation of the First Court's decree.

We set aside the Subordinate Judge's order of remand and direct that the petitioners do recover interest on the additional compensation amount awarded at 12 per cent. from 4th April 1919, when plaintiff took delivery, till 1st March 1920, when the defendants became aware that the amount had been deposited. Each party will bear their own costs in these restitution proceedings, in the lower Courts. In this Court appellant will get his costs. Appeal allowed.

V. N. V.
Z. K.

Appeal allowed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 431 OF 1922.

March 9, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Hallifax, A. J. C.

FIDA ALI—PLAINTIFF

—APPELLANT

versus

SANAI BADAR AND ANOTHER—

DEFENDANTS — RESPONDENTS.

Muhammadian Law—Divorce—Delegation of power—Agreement entitling wife to divorce on husband's expulsion from community—Public policy.

Under the Muhammadan Law marriage is purely a civil contract and an agreement that the wife should be entitled to get a divorce pronounced on the breach of certain conditions of the marriage contract is not void as being opposed to the principles or policy of that law, though a Court may not give effect to the condition if as in the case of an ordinary contract, it is unreasonable and ought not to be enforced. [p. 1044, col. 1.]

A condition in a marriage contract under the Muhammadan Law that the wife will be entitled to a divorce if the husband forsakes the faith of the community to which both the husband and wife belong or is expelled from it by its Spiritual Head is not an unreasonable condition and the wife is entitled to a divorce for a breach of the condition. [p. 1043, col. 2; p. 1044, col. 1.]

Budrunissa Bibee v. Nufseutollah, 15 W. R. 555; 7 B. L. R. 442, Meer Askruf Ali v. Meer Arshad Ali, 16 W. R. 260, Ayatunnisa Beebee v. Karam Ali, 1 Ind. Cas. 513; 36 C. 23; 12 C. W. N. 907, Maharvam Ali v. Ayessa Khatun, 31 Ind. Cas. 562; 19 C. W. N. 1226, Hamidoolla v. Faizunnissa, 8 C. 327; 10 C. L. R. 291; 6 Ind. Jur. 414; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 209, Nuruddin v. Chanurt, 3 C. L. J. 49, relied on.

Under the Muhammadan Law a husband can authorise another person to pronounce a divorce between him and his wife, and when this is done unconditionally, the person so appointed can pronounce a divorce for any reason that would

(1) 46 Ind. Cas. 548; 35 M. L. J. 169 at p. 176; 22 C. W. N. 866; 16 A. I. J. 693; 5 P. L. W. 159; 28 C. L. J. 181; 8 L. W. 179; (1918) M. W. N. 535; 24 M. J. T. 110; 20 Bom. L. R. 864; 40 A. 497; (P. C.).

(2) 62 Ind. Cas. 724; 41 M. L. J. 15; 13 L. W. 449.

(3) 66 Ind. Cas. 129; 44 M. W. N. 960; (1921) M. W. N. 470; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 347.

FIDA ALI V. SANAI BADAR.

entitle the husband himself to do so, with the exception of a mere whim or caprice of his own, a divorce by an agent for such a cause being an unreasonable and unjustifiable use of his powers. [p. 1043, col. 2.]

Appeal from the decree of the Additional District Judge, Nagpur, dated the 8th August 1922, in Civil Appeal No. 146 of 1921.

Messrs. W. G. Dillon, W. R. Purank and G. R. Pradhan, for the Appellant.

Messrs. M. K. Padhye and A. V. Vazalwar, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—The plaintiff-appellant was at one time a seceder from the Mehdi Bag or Atba-e-Malak-o-Badar community of the Daudi Bohra sect of Shiahhs founded at Nagpur about 1897, but he re-joined that community on the 18th of June 1905. On the 14th of October 1913 he married the defendant-respondent who was a member of the same community. On that day he executed an ante-nuptial agreement in favour of the defendant which is on the record as Exhibit 2 D-1. The gist of that agreement is as follows: "I am a member of the Mehdi Bag community and owe allegiance to its Spiritual Head, the Malak, and will follow the Laws of Islam as interpreted by him. Those who refuse to obey the rules of the community are to be excluded from it and will be treated as apostates from Islam. I, therefore, agree, that if I forsake the faith of the community or am expelled from it by its Spiritual Head I shall be liable to be treated as an apostate from Islam in that my wife (if she remains a member of the community) will be divorced from me by the fact of my having left it. I also accept as binding upon me the rule laid down in the Fatwa-i-Alamgiri that a man may agree on his marriage that on breach of any of the conditions of the marriage his wife shall be entitled to appoint a Vakil for him to pronounce a divorce for him. I accordingly agree that if I forsake the Malak-o-Badar community or am expelled from it by its Spiritual Head my wife may get a divorce from me pronounced by a person appointed by her on my behalf, which divorce I will accept as valid."

2. On the same day and after the marriage the plaintiff executed the vakalatnamah, which is filed as Exhibit 2 D-2, appointing Dr. Liwa-e-Haqq his Vakil Mullaqi or fully empowered agent in the matter of the divorce of his wife, authorising him to divorce her at any time and also to delegate that power to another and agreeing that such a divorce by the Vakil or his Deputy would be equivalent to one by himself. He also promised never to revoke the vakalatnamah. On the 20th of October 1918 Dr. Liwa-e-Haqq executed Exhibit 2 D-3 appointing Shamsam-e-Haqq in his place as Vakil Mullaqi for the plaintiff in the matter of the divorce of the defendant under the power given to him by Exhibit 2 D-2. On the 27th of November 1919 the plaintiff was expelled from the community under the orders of its Spiritual Head, his wife remaining in it. On the 28th of January 1920 (Exhibit 2 D-4) the defendant appointed Sheikh Saleh Hassan Bhai to be her husband's Vakil to divorce her, under the power given to her by Exhibit 2 D-1 and on the same day Sheikh Saleh pronounced a complete divorce (Talugh-ul-sunnat) executing a written instrument to that effect (Exhibit 2 D-5) which he read to her in the presence of witnesses. Three days latter, on the 31st of January 1920, Shamsam-e-Haqq pronounced a similar divorce (Exhibit 2 D-6) by virtue of the power given to Dr. Liwa-e-Haqq by Exhibit 2 D-2 and passed on to him by Exhibit 2 D-3.

3. The only objection that the learned Counsel for the plaintiff could find to the validity of either divorce was in the contention that the condition on which the defendant became entitled to claim divorce under the marriage contract (Exhibit 2 D-1) was opposed to the principles and policy of the Muhammadan Law and the contract was, therefore, void at least to that extent, under section 23 of the Contract Act. This objection will not apply at all to the divorce pronounced by Shamsam-e-Haqq, the Vakil appointed by the plaintiff himself, who could pronounce a divorce for any reason that would entitle the plaintiff himself to do so, with the exception, perhaps, of a mere whim or caprice of his own, a divorce by an agent for such a cause being an unreasonable and unjustifiable use of his powers. But the reason in this case was that the husband had forsaken the faith to which his wife still adhered and also that he had promised, even if that promise was not enforceable, to give her a divorce if he did so.

MAUNG THA DUN v. MA THEIN YIN.

4. As to the agreement that the wife should be entitled to get a divorce pronounced on the breach of a certain condition of the marriage contract by her husband, there appears to me to be no substance in the argument that that condition is void as being opposed to the principles or policy of the Muhammadan Law, as that Code treats marriage as a purely civil contract. All that can be urged is that the condition, regarded as a condition of an ordinary contract, is unreasonable and ought not to be enforced.

5. We have the following instances of conditions in exactly similar contracts which were held to be reasonable so that the breach of them entitled the wife to get a divorce pronounced by an agent appointed for her husband by herself. In Budrunissa Bibee v. Nuseutoollah (1), Meer Ashruf Ali v. Meer Arshad Ali (2), Ayat-unnessa Bibee v. Karam Ali (3) and Maharam Ali v. Ayesa Khatun (4) the condition was that the husband should not marry a second wife; in Hamidoola v. Faizun-nissa (5) one condition was that he would allow her to go to her father's house four times a year and another that if disputes arose between her and the people then living with him he would build a house for her and live in it with her. In Nuruddin v. Chenuri (6) the condition of which the breach was to entitle the wife to pronounce her own talaq was no more than that the husband was to deliver to her on her demand certain gold ornaments of which he made her the owner at the marriage. In the list of similar conditions that have been held valid and enforced, given on page 369 of Volume II of Ameer Ali's Muhammadan Law, we find, that the husband shall not remove the wife from the conjugal domicile without her consent; that the husband shall not absent himself from the conjugal domicile beyond a certain specified time; that the husband and wife shall live in a specified place; that the husband shall pay the wife a fixed maintenance; that he shall maintain the children of the wife by a former husband; that he shall not prevent her from receiving the visits of her relations whenever she likes.

6. The condition to which the plaintiff agreed in the present case is quite as reasonable as any one of these and more so than most of them. Either of the two divorces pronounced is, therefore, perfectly valid. In that view it is unnecessary to examine the other pleas put forward in this case. The defendant is not the plaintiff's wife and he cannot be given a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights. The appeal will be dismissed and the plaintiff must pay all the costs in all three Courts.

Z K.

Appeal dismissed.

RANGOON HIGH COURT.

FIRST CIVIL APPEAL No. 276 OF 1922.

January 22, 1923.

Present—Mr. Justice Heald and Mr. Justice May Oung.

MAUNG THA DUN AND OTHERS

—DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

MA THEIN YIN—

PLAINTIFF—RESPONDENT.

Buddhist Law—Burmese—Polygamy—Inheritance—"Superior" and "inferior" wives, rights of—Marriage—Presumption.

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law, polygamy is lawful, and a Burman Buddhist may have, at the same time, two or more wives, who are on an equal footing. [p. 1045, col. 2.]

Mi Me v. Mi Shive Ma, 14 Ind. Cas. 475; 1 U. B. R. (1912) 111; 11 M. L. T. 166; (1912) M. W. N. 201; 15 C. L. J. 276; 9 A. L. J. 276; 14 Bom. L. R. 204; 22 M. L. J. 360; 16 C. W. N. 529; 5 Bur. L. T. 65; 3 C. 42; 39 I. A. 61 (P. C.) and Mi Kin Gale v. Mi Kin Gyi, 8 Ind. Cas. 1169; 1 U. B. R. (1910) 42, followed.

But, for the purposes of the law of inheritance, it is necessary to examine closely the relations that subsisted between a second, or, as she is commonly termed, lesser wife and her deceased spouse in order to determine her true status. Before she

(1) 15 W. R. 555; 7 B. L. R. 442.

(2) 16 W. R. 260.

(3) 1 Ind. Cas. 513; 36 C. 23; 12 C. W. N. 907.

(4) 31 Ind. Cas. 562; 19 C. W. N. 1226.

(5) 8 C. 327; 10 C. L. R. 291; 6 Ind. Jur 414;

4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 209.

(6) 3 C. L. J. 49.

MAUNG THA DUN v. MA THEIN YIN.

can succeed to her husband's estate, she must show that her connection with the deceased was such that she may be said to have been endowed with proprietary, as well as personal, rights, and the proof required of her is more strict, where she had prior knowledge of the existence of the first wife and lived separately from, and unknown to her. [p. 1045, col. 2.]

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law, although there may not be sufficient evidence of actual giving and taking in marriage—since no ceremony of any kind is essential for the purpose of lawful wedlock—the conduct of the parties since their coming together may raise a strong presumption of marriage specially when the union has lasted for a long period. [p. 1047, col. 1.]

First appeal from the judgment of the District Court, Hanthawaddy.

Messrs. Higinbotham, Tun Phoo and Burjjez, for the Appellants.

Mr. Maung Pu, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

May Oung, J.—The plaint sets out that one U Po Tok, a Burman Buddhist, during his lifetime had two wives, namely Daw Le Me and the plaintiff; that U Po Tok and Daw Le Me died in 1918, the latter first and the former four days later; that the plaintiff was lawfully married to the said Y Po Tok in 1912, and they had ever since been living as man and wife till the death of said U Po Tok; that U Po Tok had no issue by either of his wives, and that the plaintiff claimed to inherit the whole estate of the said U Po Tok as his surviving widow.

The defendants, who are the surviving relatives of U Po Tok and Daw Le Me, denied that the plaintiff was lawfully married to the said U Po Tok and that she had ever lived with him as husband and wife; they further submitted that, even if the plaintiff had been a wife of U Po Tok, she was not such a wife as would be entitled to a share in the estate of U Po Tok according to Buddhist Law.

The cause then proceeded to trial on the following issues:—

(i) Was the plaintiff a lawful wife of the late U Po Tok?

(ii) What share, if any, is she entitled to in the estate?

If the result, the District Court held, first, on the facts that the plaintiff was lawfully married to U Po Tok; and, secondly, without any discussion of the law on the subject that, as the surviving widow, she is entitled to the entire estate of the late U Po Tok. This apparently includes the interest of U Po Tok's admitted wife Daw Le Me.

Defendants appeal and it is urged on their behalf that the plaintiff was no more than a mistress or concubine of U Po Tok and that, even if it be held that she was a wife, properly so-called, she is not entitled to more than a moiety of the estate left by U Po Tok and Daw Le Me.

The Burmese Buddhist Law relating to polygamous marriages may now be said to be settled. Polygamy is undoubtedly lawful (Mi Me v. Mi Shive Ma (1) and a Burman Buddhist may have, at the same time, two or more wives, who are on an equal footing [Mi Kln Gale v. Mi Kln Gyi (2)].

It is necessary, however, for the purposes of the law of inheritance, to examine closely the relations that subsisted between a second, or, as she is commonly termed, lesser wife, and her deceased spouse, in order to determine her true status. On the one hand, a man already married may contract a second lawful union, and the two women may occupy identical positions, both in respect of personal rights and obligations and as regards the ownership of property. On the other hand, a husband may enter into and maintain conjugal relations with a person whose position falls short of that of his first or chief wife. In the former instance, as has been held in several cases, no difficulty as regards succession and inheritance presents itself. In the latter, the second wife must, before she can succeed to her husband's estate, show that her connection with the deceased was such that she may be said to have been endowed with proprietary, as well as personal, rights; and the proof required of her is more strict where she, as in the case under consideration, had prior knowledge of the existence of the first wife and lived separately from, and unknown to, her. The Mohavicchedani Dhammathat employs the terms

(1) 14 Ind. Cas. 475; 1 U. B. R. (1912) 111; 11 M. L. T. 169; (1912) M. W. N. 201; 15 C. L. J. 276; 9 A. L. J. 276; 14 Bom. L. R. 204; 22 M. L. J. 360; 16 C. W. N. 529; 5 Bur. L. T. 65; 39 C. 492; 39 I. A. 57 (P. C.).

(2) 8 Ind. Cas. 1169; 1 U. B. R. (1910) 42.

MAUNG THA DUN v. MA THEIN YIN.

"superior" and "inferior" wife to denote the distinction between these two kinds of wives.

Now, it is common ground that U Po Tok was a wealthy land owner, residing permanently with his wife Daw Le Me at Tharawaddy; that he had a saw-mill at Let padan, which was managed for him by a relative and which he regularly visited; that he had a fairly large and furnished residence within the mill compound which he occupied on the occasions of his visits; and that he was over sixty years of age when he first became acquainted with the plaintiff. The latter was then about twenty-five years old, had been divorced from her husband and was maintaining herself and her unemployed father as a petty bazaar seller and cigar-roller on hire. Her brother obtained employment at U Po Tok's mill on a monthly pay of Rs. 30, and she sometimes went there to sell rice to the mill hands; for this purpose her brother had borrowed Rs. 70 from U Po Tok and had given it to her as capital. It was in these circumstances that U Po Tok met the plaintiff. Before this, U Po Tok possessed a mill at a place called Teinmyok and there, it seems, he "kept" a girl. Maung Po Tha (P. W. No. 6) says: "I asked him what become of the girl which (sic) he was keeping at Teinmyok mill. He said he no longer had her with him. I then asked him about the girl which (sic) he took afterwards; he said that he had her at the mill at Letpadan. We both referred to Ma Thein Yin (plaintiff) at the time." This witness claims to have been an intimate friend of U Po Tok.

According to the plaintiff, there does not appear to have been any courtship or negotiation for a marriage. One of the defence witnesses, Ma Shan Ma (D. W. No. 5), speaks to having seen the plaintiff being brought to U Po Tok at the mill on three or four occasions at night, but she is not corroborated in this, and plaintiff has denied it; I would disregard this testimony altogether.

The first indication of the projected union was a statement by plaintiff to one Maung Po Kun (P. W. No. 2) to the effect that she was in love with U Po Tok and that he wanted to marry her. She asked Maung Po Kun to speak to her father, U San Hla, about it. U San Hla says that Maung Po Kun came and told him that plaintiff said that she was in love with U Po Tok and that she wanted to marry him. Three or four days later U Po Tok is alleged to have gone to Maung Po Kun's house with three men belonging to Rangoon. U Po Tok said that he wanted to get married to plaintiff and solicited Po Kun's help in the matter. Half an hour later U Po Tok, Po Kun, and the three Rangoon men went to plaintiff's house. There, besides the plaintiff and her father, they met some women, including one Ma Mi, plaintiff's cousin (since deceased), and Ma Mi's husband, Maung Po Han. It is further alleged that there was then a formal giving and taking in marriage and that U Po Tok stayed in the house for about twenty days. U San Hla says that he asked U Po Tok what Kanwin property he would give to the plaintiff. U Po Tok replied, "I will not give Kanwin property now. I have my first wife Ma Le Me. I have no children to inherit my property. All that I possess is my first and second wife's property." Po Kun says nothing of this. According to him, U San Hla said, "We are very poor. I shall give my daughter in marriage if U Po Tok fulfils the five duties of a husband." U Po Tok said, "I am a good and respectable lady. I shall fulfil the five duties of a husband."

This alleged formal marriage is also spoken to by Maung Po Han. He says that he and his late wife, Ma Mi, were asked by the plaintiff to attend the marriage and that they did so. He supports U San Hla as to the conversation about the property. Now there is nothing inherently improbable in the story that U Po Tok, accompanied by some others, went to the plaintiff's house and, with the consent of the plaintiff's father, entered into conjugal relations with the plaintiff, and that he, as the witnesses go on to state, thereafter proceeded to provide a house for the plaintiff and her relatives, where he might visit her. But this must not, in my opinion, be magnified, as the plaintiff wishes to do, into a formal wedding, such as a man in U Po Tok's position would arrange if he were really contracting a public marriage. The entire absence of any preliminary overtures on the part of MAUNG THA DUN v. MA THIRIN YIN.

U Po Tok, the fact that Po Kun was total stranger to U Po Tok, the circumstances that no elders of either Tharrawaddy or Letpadan were invited, and the conduct of U Po Tok in not suggesting at any time, then or later, that plaintiff should go to live at the mill, all these go to show that U Po Tok had no intention to confer on the plaintiff a status which in any way approached that of Daw Le Me. I note that the learned District Judge said: "In the present case, perhaps, it may be said that the evidence of Maung San Hla, Po Kun and Po Han is not sufficiently strong enough by itself, to hold that plaintiff was lawfully married to U Po Tok." He went on, however, to say that "there was abundant evidence of other respectable witnesses who depose to the joint living of the plaintiff and U Po Tok, their conduct and admissions, and their general repute."

There can be no doubt that, under Burmese Buddhist Law, although there may not be sufficient evidence of an actual giving and taking in marriage—since, no ceremony of any kind is essential for the purposes of lawful wedlock—the conduct of the parties, subsequent to their coming together, may raise a strong presumption of marriage, especially when the union has lasted for a long period. The evidence referred to by the learned District Judge will, therefore, now be examined, in order to ascertain whether the plaintiff, after she began to cohabit with U Po Tok, acquired the status of the "superior" wife equal to that of Daw Le Me.

The plaintiff herself says that she was kept in a hired building for about a year; her father and younger sister lived with her, and U Po Tok paid the rent; then with a sum of Rs. 325 provided by U Po Tok, she purchased, in her own name, a house in the Belindan quarter of Letpadan. This house was rather old and, after one rainy season, it was dismantled and a new building was put up, costing about Rs. 2,000. She alleges that U Po Tok lived with her in that house till his death about six years later, and that, during that period, he gave her a diamond ring worth about Rs. 300, gold bangles worth about Rs. 450, and various sums of money ranging from Rs. 25 to Rs. 400 for her use. At the time of his death there were in this house four longyis and four or five jackets belonging to U Po Tok and a table and two chairs. U Po Tok and she never went together to any house at Letpadan, and she was never taken to visit any of U Po Tok's relations. She says that she and U Po Tok took sabbath together at U Gandamas' monastery in Letpadan and that on one occasion he took her to the Pagoda festival at Paungde, and that this latter fact is known to Maung Po Ta and one Ma Ngwe Ko. Apparently, she never went to Tharrawaddy except when her cousin, Ma Mi died and when U Po Tok was in hospital just before his death. She never, at any time, had any share in U Po Tok's business and there was no property of any kind, or any document, in the joint names of herself and U Po Tok.

Here first witness, Maung San Hla, father of the plaintiff, says that, although U Po Tok often went back to Tharrawaddy at Letpadan, he always lived with his daughter in the same house. He also says, "U Po Tok used to live in our house for about seven or eight days in a month." He speaks to one occasion on which U Po Tok and the plaintiff invited some phongyis and gave a feast in their house. He further states that sometimes they went to Rangoon together and also went to Pagodas and Kyauungs together at Letpadan. The second witness, Maung Po Kun already mentioned, says that at the time of the plaintiff's alleged marriage, he was living temporarily at Letpadan; that about three or four days after the marriage, U Po Tok and Ma Then Yin lived together in a brick house near his house; that he saw them in the brick house for about three months and that he then went away to Pyapon, not returning till after U Po Tok's death. This witness is forty-five years old, has no house of his own, and, apparently, does not work at Letpadan. The third and fourth witnesses, Maung Po Hla and Maung Po Kye, are Pleaders of Letpadan and considerable reliance has been placed on their evidence. They state that U Po Tok built a house at Letpadan for the plaintiff and kept her publicly as a wife. They were not, however, on terms of social intimacy with U Po Tok and all that they can testify to is that they saw U Po

MAUNG THA DUN v. MA THEIN YIN.

Tok and the plaintiff together twice : the couple did not, at any time, visit them together.

The fifth witness, Maung Po Si, a trader, resident at Letpadan for about eighteen years, says that as he was going along the road in front of the plaintiff's house he saw U Po Tok there once ; his own house is about two furlongs away from plaintiff's house.

The sixth witness, Maung Po Tha, is sixty-five years old and a trader of Tharrawaddy. He says that he saw U Po Tok and the plaintiff in plaintiff's house at Letpadan twice ; that on one occasion he met them together in the train going to Rangoon, travelling third class. He says that on one occasion, at Tharrawaddy, U Po Tok had a quarrel with Daw Le Me when Daw Le Me said (referring to U Po Tok), "He has taken a lesser wife and built a house for her, I cannot live with him. Let me divorce from him." Witness told U Po Tok that he should not have taken a lesser wife and U Po Tok replied, "My former wife, Ma Gank Te, had no child by me; Ma Le Me has also no child by me; so I have to take Ma Thein Yin to get a child." This statement is somewhat extraordinary in view of the allegation that U Po Tok, at the time when he took the plaintiff, said that he had no children to inherit from him and that his first wife and second wife would succeed to his estate. There is no corroboration of Maung Po Tha's evidence on this point and on his own showing he is not a disinterested witness. He engaged a lawyer for the plaintiff and took her to the house of one U Kyaw. The plaintiff's cousin, Ma Mi, lived in his house paying rent, and died there. He claimed to possess diamonds and houses worth about Rs. 20,000 but his brother, the next witness, says he is worth about Rs. 3,000.

The seventh witness, Maung Po Ka, is a brother of Po Tha and is a retired Inspector of Police, and says that on one occasion he saw U Po Tok and the plaintiff together at the Letpadan Railway Station, and, on another, at the Tharrawaddy Railway Station ; also that U Po Tok told him that he had kept her at Letpadan.

The 8th witness, Maung Po Han, already mentioned, is a Sub-Inspector of Excise and used to live with Po Tha. He says that U Po Tok came to his house three or four times with the plaintiff ; that when his wife, Ma Mi, was ill both came to his house to see her and they both attended Ma Mi's funeral. He also says that Ma Mi and he once took sabbath in a pongyi kyaung with U Po Tok and the plaintiff ; but he does not know the name of the presiding monk of the kyaung. The 9th witness, Ma Shwe, is a resident of Rangoon and states that Po Tok and the plaintiff came to her house and put up there many times, not less than ten times, and for four or five days at a time ; they ate together and slept together at her house. Witness says she has no occupation, and there is no indication in her evidence that she is a person of any standing.

The 10th witness is a physician and shampoer of Rangoon and says he was called in to treat the plaintiff who was suffering from fever, U Po Tok being present and referring to plaintiff as his wife. He does not say in whose house this took place.

The 11th and 12th witnesses are Maung Po Ta and his wife ; the former gives his residence as Gyobingauk, and the latter hers as Nattalin. Maung Po Ta describes himself as the managing agent of a rice mill, but it appears from his wife's deposition that he used to receive Rs. 100 a month while he was employed as a manager in one U Po Chit's mill, and that U Po Chit has sold his mill. She herself sells cloth in a stall in the Nattalin Bazar and their house is worth about Rs. 1,500 with a mortgage of Rs. 300 on it. This couple speak, among other things, to a visit to their house at Nattalin by the plaintiff, followed up two days later by U Po Tok, after which they all went to a Pagoda festival at Papun. It will be remembered that the plaintiff herself mentioned Paungde as the place where the Pagoda festival was held.

The 13th witness, Maung Po Set, was formerly a school-master at Letpadan, his house was about five doors away from plaintiff's. He says that U Po Tok and the plaintiff lived publicly as man and wife for about four or five years--an obvious exaggeration. He also says that he went to their house to attend a ceremony at which phongys were fed ; that he met U Po Tok on that occasion, and that he met U Po Tok and the plaintiff together two or three times at the Pagoda at Letpadan.

MAUNG THA DUN v. MA THEIN YIN.

The fourteenth witness, Maung Thin Mya, is the wife of a clerk living at Tharrawaddy. She saw U Po Tok at the plaintiff's house "only very seldom" and does not know if he ever slept at the plaintiff's house. She first came to know that the plaintiff was U Po Tok's lesser wife because they went to Ma Mi's funeral together.

The fifteenth and last witness is Afor Ali, an Engine Driver. He says he found U Po Tok with the plaintiff at the latter's house and that U Po Tok engaged him for his mill. U Po Tok asked the plaintiff to pay him Rs. 10 as an advance and she did so. He worked in U Po Tok's mill for about two years and then left. About a month afterwards he heard that U Po Tok's chief wife had died and that U Po Tok was also ill; he went to see U Po Tok at Tharrawaddy; U Po Tok asked if the plaintiff had returned from Rangoon, and, on being told she had not, requested the witness to go and call her; he did so. The learned Counsel for the plaintiff points to this circumstance as showing U Po Tok's strong regard for the plaintiff, but on a consideration of the evidence of this witness I must hold that he cannot be believed, for not only is he not corroborated but he contradicted plaintiff about taking money from U Po Tok to her and he makes the extraordinary statement that he fetched the plaintiff from Latter Street, which is situated far to the west of the Sule Pagoda and later, in cross-examination, that the street in which plaintiff lived was on the east of the Sule Pagoda. This is a statement by a man who had been in Rangoon for about eight or nine years. He also admits that he once wrote to the 1st defendant, Maung Tha Dun, offering to work under the latter if he would give him more pay than that he was then getting; Maung Tha Dun sent no reply.

This is all the evidence on the plaintiff's side. There has been no attempt to show that the plaintiff was at any time publicly acknowledged as the wife of a rich mill owner. Letpadan is an important business centre, the head quarters of a large township, a busy Railway Junction, and a Municipal town containing about 4,000 houses. It is but reasonable to suppose that a man of U Po Tok's wealth and standing would have had a considerable number of friends and acquaintances in that place who would have been able to testify to the plaintiff's position if she had been a wife in the sense that she makes herself out to be. The only witnesses who were on mutual visiting terms with U Po Tok and the plaintiff were Maung Po Ta and his wife, and yet Maung Po Ta says: "I do not know whether plaintiff was a legal wife or a apayaw-maya (mistress or concubine) of U Po Tok."

If the plaintiff had been a wife on an equal footing with Daw Le Me, and if U Po Tok had at any time intended that she should occupy a position higher than that of a person who received visits from him, I have no doubt whatsoever that plaintiff would have gone to live in the house within the mill-compound, and that there she would have, as Burmese wives usually do, taken a hand in U Po Tok's business and that she would, in a very short time, have made herself known all over the town as the wife of the rich mill owner. The reason she gives for not going to live at the mill is not convincing; she says that she was kept away so that she might not encounter Da Le Me. But Daw Le Me was an aged lady and hardly ever came to Letpadan.

Having considered all the circumstances in favour of the plaintiff's case, I hold that the plaintiff was, at best, no more than an "interior" wife of U Po Tok, living separately from him and only receiving his visits, and that, therefore, she is not entitled in law to inherit any portion of U Po Tok's estate. I would reverse the decision of the Court below and order that the plaintiff's suit be dismissed with costs throughout. She will also pay the Court-fees which she would have had to pay had she not been permitted to sue as a pauper.

Heald, J.—I concur.

W. C. A.

Appeal accepted.

MARAKKARUTTI v. VEERAN KUTTY.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

REFERRED CASE NO. 17 OF 1922.

March 12, 1923.

Present:—Sir Walter S. Schwabe, Kt., Chief Justice, Justice Sir Francis, Oldfield, Kt., and Mr. Justice Ramesam.

MARAKKARUTTI AND OTHERS—

DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

T. P. M. VEERAN KUTTY AND OTHERS

—PLAINTIFFS AND DEFENDANTS—

RESPONDENTS.

Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 151—Inherent power of Court—Re-construction of destroyed record—Appellate Court, power of—Procedure.

There is inherent power in every Court to re-construct its own records, and there is inherent power in an Appellate Court to re-construct the records of the Court from which an appeal lies to it. [p. 1050, col. 2.]

Where the records of a case are destroyed subsequent to the decree, the party appealing from the decree can ask the Appellate Court to re-construct the record. It may be that in re-constructing the records, the Court will have to go very near to re-hearing; but the Court will always have to apply its mind to ascertain not what the rights of the parties were, but what the destroyed record of the suit was and on that record, when re-constructed, it will have to act on the ordinary principles on which it would have acted if the original record had been before it. Affidavits, counter-affidavits, hearing of witnesses, admission of copies are methods which can be properly allowed. It will also be open to the Court to call for a finding from the Court of first instance on what the record was, as also, in a proper case, to direct the first Court to do the re-constructing and to send down the case for the recording of evidence and a finding as to what the record consisted of. The judgment of the first Court would probably be the best evidence of what took place in that Court. [p. 1051, cols. 1 & 2.]

Where, however, the Appellate Court comes to the conclusion that no amount of re-constructing of the record would assist the appellant in his appeal, the Court has not got to have the case re-heard. The respondent in that event is entitled to the benefit of having the judgment which he has got in his favour at the original hearing, because the onus is on the appellant in an appeal to establish his grounds of appeal. [p. 1051, col. 2.]

Douglass v. Yallop, (1759) 2 Burr. 722; 97 E. R. 532, Babu Gooroo Dyal Singh v. Durbaree Lal Tiwaree, 7 W. R. 18 and Mc Lendon v. Jones, (1845) 42 Am. Dec. 640; 8 Ala. 298, referred to.

Case stated, under section 113 of the Civil Procedure Code, by the District Judge, South Malabar, in Appeal Suit No. 525 of 1921 (Original Suit No. 674 of 1920, on the file of the District Munsif, Parappanangudi).

Mr. K. P. Ramakrishna Ayyar, for the Respondent.

JUDGMENT.

Schwabe, C. J.—This case is referred to us by the District Judge of South Malabar. It is an appeal from the District Munsif of Parappanangudi. Difficulty has arisen owing to the fact of the District Munsif's Court having been destroyed in the Mopla rebellion and the records in this case at the same time destroyed. We are informed that there are many cases similarly affected, and the learned District Judge asks our direction as to what is the proper course to adopt.

The respondent only has been represented before us, but his Vakil, Mr. K. P. Ramakrishna Ayyar, has assisted the Court very much by placing before us fully every thing that he could find whether it was for him or against him in the matter. I think that one can safely start with the proposition that there is inherent power in every Court to re-construct its own records, and I think it follows that there is inherent power in the Appellate Court to re-construct the records of the Court from which an appeal lies to it. This power has been recognised in England and in America, which follows the English Common Law, and also in this country. The English case that is quoted on the subject, is Douglass v. Yallop (1). The matter was more fully discussed in an American case, Mc Lendon v. Jones (2), a judgment of the Court of Alabama which quoted and followed Douglass v. Yallop (1) and a case which had been decided by the Supreme Court of New York and that case points out, "cases must frequently have occurred in which, by accident, the records of Courts of Justice have been destroyed or lost, and it would seem strange, if the Common Law had provided no adequate means, by which the injuries growing out of such accident could be averted, or remedied," and then goes on to discuss the methods by which the remedy should be provided. I call attention to it because it states the matter more fully than the other reported cases. In this country the matter came before the Calcutta Court in 1867 in Baboo Gocroo Dyal Singh v. Durbaree Lal Tewaree (3) a judgment of Sir Barnes Peacock, C. J., and Jackson, J. In that case records had been lost in transit from the first Court to the second; the second Court acted on some documents purporting to be office copies which the High Court held were not regularly proved or admitted. The Court held that there were two alternative courses open, to direct the lower Appellate Court to receive such secondary evidence of the contents of original records as may be forthcoming or to order an entirely new trial. It decided against the second alternative for very cogent reasons with which we agree. It directed the lower Appellate Court to receive secondary evidence of the contents of the whole record, but if not able thus to re-place the record, that the parties should be at liberty to adduce further evidence and, on the record so re-constructed and supplemented, give judgment. While agreeing in the main with this, we think it desirable to state our own view of the matter.

(1) (1759) 2 Burr. 722; 97 E. R. 532.

(2) (1845) 42 Am. Dec. 640; 8 Ala. 298.

MARAKKARUTTI V. VEERAN KUTTY.

The first thing to observe is that the appellant has, in order to get his appeal heard at all, to satisfy the Court what the record is of the case in which he has failed. He can come to the Court and say that he has tried to get the record which has been destroyed. He can then ask the Court to be allowed to re-construct that record. It is then for the Court, if so minded—I say that because it is conceivable that the Court may say, on the material at hand before it or on the appellant's application, that no amount of re-constructing of the record would assist the appellant in his appeal—to permit the appellant to get the record re-constructed. The Court has not got to have the case re-heard. The respondent is entitled to the benefit of having the judgment which he has got in his favour on the original hearing. It may be that, in re-constructing the record, the Court will have to go very near to re-hearing; but the Court will always have to apply its mind to ascertain not what the rights of the parties were, but what the destroyed record of the suit was and on that record, when re-constructed, it will have to act on the ordinary principles on which it would have acted if the original record had been before it. It will be for the Judge to whom the application is made to decide how the re-construction of the record is to be attempted—affidavits, counter-affidavits, the hearing of witnesses, and the admission of copies are all methods which he can in a proper case allow. He will, of course, get the best evidence available. It will be open to him in a proper case to call for a finding of the District Munsif on what the record was. It may well be in some cases that it would be more convenient that the Court that heard the matter and made the record should do the re-constructing rather than the Appellate Court and with that in view, the Appellate Court may well in a proper case send the case to the District Munsif for the recording of evidence and a finding as to what the record consisted of, which finding, when given, it will be open to the Appellate Court to accept or reject in the ordinary way. It is worth observing that in the Appellate Court probably the best evidence of what took place in the Court below will be found in the judgment, if that has been preserved, of the District Munsif or the Subordinate Judge, as the case may be, who heard the case and recorded findings.

In the case at present before us, we have the District Munsif's judgment still existing and he states on several matters the facts that were proved before him, and it is very clear that his statement as a contemporaneous statement of what took place before him or statement made at any rate a short time after it had taken place will be as good evidence as can be obtained and in all probability better than any other. In the event of the Appellate Judge being unable to re-construct the record to his satisfaction it must be borne in mind that the onus is on the appellant to establish his grounds of appeal and on the respondent his cross-objections, if any.

Therefore, in this case we direct the District Judge of South Malabar to hear the appeal and, if he thinks it necessary to re-construct the record for the purposes of the appeal in the manner suggested above. I do not think we can in anticipation usefully give any further instructions as to what should be done in these matters.

SUKHNANDAN V. BRIJNANDAN.

Costs of this reference will be costs in the appeal.

Oldfield, J.—I agree and have nothing to add.

Ramesam, J.—I agree.

V. N. V.

Z. K.

Reference answered.

ALLAHABAD HIGH COURT.

SECOND CIVIL APPEAL No. 51 OF 1922.

March 19, 1923.

Present.—Mr. Justice Lindsay and Mr. Justice Daniels.

SUKHNANDAN AND ANOTHER—
DEFENDANTS—APPELLANTS

versus

BRIJNANDAN AND OTHERS—

PLAINTIFFS—RESPONDENTS.

Hindu Law—Joint family—Nucleus of ancestral property—Separate acquisitions—Burden of proof—Nucleus, whether must be substantial.

In a joint Hindu family, where there is a nucleus of ancestral property, with the assistance of which subsequent acquisitions have been made, the burden of proving that any particular property is separate lies on the person who asserts it.

Lal Bahadur v. Kanhaiya Lal, 29 A. 244; 9 Bom. L. R. 597; 11 C. W. N. 417; 5 C. L. J. 340; 4 A. L. J. 227; 2 M. L. T. 147; 17 M. L. J. 228; 34 I. A. 65 (P. C.), followed.

There is no authority for the proposition that in order to raise a presumption about the jointness of the acquisitions of a Hindu joint family the nucleus must be a substantial one; although a property which is incapable of yielding any income, such as an ancestral house, cannot be treated as a nucleus.

Second appeal against a decree of the District Judge, Jhansi, dated the 20th December 1921.

Dr. S. N. Sen and Mr. S. C. Das, for the Appellants.

Mr. N. P. Asthana, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.—This appeal arises out of a suit for partition. The main issue in the case and the sole issue in this appeal is whether the bulk of the property in suit is joint family property or is the self-acquired property of the defendant-appellant, Sukhnandan. The plaintiffs are two brothers of Sukhnandan. Their father and the eldest brother named Sarju are dead. It has been found, and it is not now disputed, that the family was joint. The findings of the Court below are that, although Sukhnandan is the most capable member of the family and the acquisition of the property in suit is due mainly to his exertions, yet there was a nucleus of joint family property with the assistance of which the subsequent acquisitions have been made and that in consequence the property in dispute must be held to be joint property. The fact that where there is a nucleus of joint family property with the assistance of which subsequent acquisitions have been made, the burden of proving that any particular property is separate lies on the person who asserts it, was laid down by the Privy Council in 1906 in the case of Lal Bahadur v. Kanhaiya Lal (1). This burden, as the Courts below have found, has not been discharged by Sukhnandan. On the contrary, he set up a case which has been found to be false, that the ancestral business came to an end on the death of his father, whereas in fact it was carried on by the eldest brother Sarju until Sarju became insane and the appellant came from Jhansi, where he had settled, to take over the management of the business. The only legal ground put forward by the appellant assailing the findings of the Court below is that there should have been a finding that the nucleus of joint family property was a substantial nucleus. No authority has been quoted in support of this proposition except an unreported case of the Madras High Court and there is nothing either in the rulings of this Court or of the Privy Council to support the proposition. No doubt it is true that property which was incapable of yielding any income might not be treated as a nucleus for the purpose of affecting the presumption as to subsequent acquisitions. This might apply, for instance, to an ancestral house. Here, however, the finding is that there was not only an ancestral house but an ancestral business the management of which was taken over by the appellant. The state of that business when the appellant took over the management of it is a fact peculiarly within the knowledge of the appellant and if he wished to show that the business was ended or yielded no income it was for him to prove it and not call the other side to prove the contrary. As we have seen, he did not attempt to prove it but, on the contrary, set up a false allegation that there was no business at all. No legal ground for assailing the findings of fact of the Court below has, therefore, been made out. Those findings are fatal to the appeal which we hereby dismiss with costs including in this Court fees on the higher scale.

(1) 29 A. 244; 9 Bom. L. R. 597; 11 C. W. N. 417; 5 C. L. J. 340; 4 A. L. J. 227; 2 M. L. T. 147; 17 M. L. J. 228; 34 I. A. 65 (P. C.).

RATNA KOER V. NANHAKI.

M. A. A.

*Appeal dismissed.PATNA HIGH COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION No. 155 OF 1923.

June 7, 1923.

Present:—Justice Sir B. K. Mullick, Kt., and Mr. Justice Bucknill.

Musammal RATNA KOER—APPLICANT—PETITIONERversusMusammal NANHAKI AND OTHERS—2ND PARTY—OPPOSITE PARTY.

*Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 83—
Deposit by mortgagor—Non-acceptance by mortgagee—Disposal of case—Subsequent payment to mortgagee—Jurisdiction of Court—Security bond, legality of.*

Where a mortgagee refuses to accept a tender made by a mortgagor in Court and the Court disposes of the matter by passing an order that the mortgagor is entitled to withdraw the money, it is not open to the Court afterwards to direct payment of the money to the mortgagee.

Section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act does not authorise the Court to take any security bond from any party when disposing of the money tendered by the mortgagor in respect of the mortgage.

Civil revision from an order of the Subordinate Judge, First Court, Arrah, Shahabad District, dated the 11th April 1923.

Mr. Mahabir Prasad, for the Petitioner.

Mr. Raghunandan Prasad, for the Opposite Party.

JUDGMENT.

Mullick, J.—On the 13th June 1922 the mortgagor deposited a sum of Rs. 2,825 in the Court of the Subordinate Judge of Arrah by way of tender in satisfaction or discharge of two mortgage-debts due to the opposite party mortgagees. On the 29th June the mortgagees filed a petition objecting to the tender on various grounds and the Subordinate Judge, instead of disposing of the petition summarily, allowed the parties time to compromise the case. Finally, there was no compromise and on the 29th July 1922 the Subordinate Judge made the following order:—“Hazri on behalf of both parties filed. Ordered that the case be disposed of.”

On the face of it, the order does not seem to be very clear; but having regard to the papers on the record it seems that what the Subordinate Judge decided was that as the tender was not accepted, the case was disposed of, and the mortgagor was entitled to withdraw his money. On the 29th November 1922 the mortgagee, apprehending that the mortgagor was about to carry out the order of the Court filed an application that a criminal case of theft in connection with the mortgage-deed was pending against the mortgagor and praying that the money might not be paid over to the mortgagor till the disposal of that case.

On the 4th December 1922 the mortgagor applied for the return of the money but the Subordinate Judge directed that the payment should be withheld till the disposal of the criminal case. On the 11th April 1923 the case was heard in the presence of both sides, the criminal case by that time having been disposed of and having ended in the acquittal of the mortgagor. On that day the mortgagees finding that the money was about to be returned to the mortgagor suddenly changed their mind and intimated their willingness to accept the tender in full discharge of their dues. The Subordinate Judge allowed the prayer and directed that the money should be paid to the mortgagees upon their executing a security bond to refund the money. Here, again, it is not at all clear why the Subordinate Judge allowed the mortgagees to reconsider their decision after the tender had been once refused. In my opinion, the Subordinate Judge had no power to direct the money to be paid to the mortgagees when the tender was no longer open. After the disposal of the case on the 29th July 1922 there was no other tender and money was the mortgagor's money and the mortgagor was entitled to withdraw it at her own pleasure. Being, therefore, of opinion that there was no tender outstanding the order directing the money to be paid to the mortgagees seems to have been made without jurisdiction.

KRISHNA REDDY v. THANICKACHELA MUDALI.

It is also not clear how a security bond was taken, for section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act does not authorise the Court to take any security bond from any party.

The result is that the order of the Subordinate Judge will be set aside and the mortgagor will be entitled to withdraw the money and the mortgagees must pursue such a remedy as they may think fit for the recovery of their mortgage-debt.

The application is allowed with costs, hearing fee one gold mohur.

Bucknill, J.—I agree.

N. H.

Application allowed.

MADRAS HIGH COURT.

LETTERS PATENT APPEAL NO. 3 OF 1923.

March 7, 1923.

Present:—Sir Walter S. Schwabe, Kt., Chief Justice, and Mr. Justice Ramesam, KRISHNA REDDY AND OTHERS—PLAINTIFFS—APPELLANTS

versus

THANICKACHELA MUDALI AND ANOTHER—DEFENDANTS—RESPONDENTS.

Letters Patent (Madras), cls. 13, 15—Transfer of suit from District Court to High Court, by Original Side Judge—Order, whether “judgment.”

An order of a Judge sitting on the Original Side transferring a suit from a District Court to the High Court under clause 13 of the Letters Patent of the Madras High Court is a judgment within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent and is, therefore, appealable.

Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar, 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. L. J. (1910) M. W. N. 697; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1. DeSouza v. Coles, 3 M. H. C. R. 384, Vaghoji Kuverji v. Camaji Bomanji, 29 B. 249; 6 Bom. L. R. 958 and Kanatal Bhoya v. Balaram Paramasukhdoss, 68 Ind. Cas. 921; 16 L. W. 608; 31 M. L. T. 284; 43 M. L. J. 480; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 44, followed.

Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Co., 8 B. L. R. 433 at p. 435; 17 W. R. 364 and Khatizan v. Sonairam Daulatram, 60 Ind. Cas. 963; 47 C. 1104, not followed.

Letters Patent Appeal against an order passed by Mr. Justice Kumaswami Sastri, in the exercise of his Extraordinary Original Civil Jurisdiction of this Court, dated the 18th December 1922, in the matter of Original Suit No. 29 of 1922, on the file of the District Court, Chingleput.

Messrs. T. S. Ramaswamy Aiyar and V. Sundaram Aiyar, for the Appellants.

Mr. V. Viswanatha Sastry, for the Respondents.

JUDGMENT.

Schwabe, C. J.—This is an appeal from an order of the Judge sitting on the Original Side transferring a suit from the District Court of Chingleput to the High Court under clause 13 of the Letters Patent. As a preliminary point, it is argued that no such appeal lies on the ground that the order is not a judgment within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent. In the recent case of Kanatal Bhoya v. Balaram Paramasukhdoss (1) I stated that “I do not propose to attempt to add a further definition to those which have already been given in other cases.”

Definition after definition has been attempted to the word. A very narrow meaning was given to it by Sir Richard Corch in Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Co. (2). A much wider defi-

- (1) 68 Ind. Cas. 921; 16 L. W. 608; 31 M. L. T. 284; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 44; 43 M. L. J. 480.
(2) 8 B. L. R. 433 at p. 435; 17 W. R. 364.

*NOTE.—In my judgment in Kanatal Bhoya v. Balaram Paramasukhdoss 68 Ind. Cas. 921; 16 L. W. 608; 31 M. L. T. 284; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 44; 43 M. L. J. 480, the sentence “and the guiding principle is that a decision is a judgment which is given in an action” should run “and the guiding principle is that a judgment is a decision which is given in an action.” It is my own fault and not the fault of the reporter.

PADAMSI V. SHESHRAO.

nition was given by a Full Bench of this Court in Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar (3) and it is enough for me to say that, in these matters, this Court is bound by the decision of its own Full Bench in that case. An attempt was made to give rules in that case which should be exhaustive of any matter that can come before this Court, and, in my judgment, all we have to do now is to say whether the matter in question before us is excluded from or included in the class of judgments referred to there. I find that it was there held that the case of De Souza v. Coles (4) in which it was held that the granting or refusing of leave to sue in this Court under clause 12 of the Letters Patent was a judgment in respect of which an appeal lay under clause 15 was rightly decided. This has also been held in Vaghoji Kuwerji v. Camaji Bomanji (5). I can see no difference in principle between such an order and the order in this case. The learned Judge in this case by his order puts an end to the case as it now stands in Chingleput and confers a jurisdiction on this Court in respect of that particular case. In my judgment, we are bound by the decision of the Full Bench of this Court referred to above and we hold that this is a matter which is appealable. The contrary view has been taken in Khatizan v. Sonairam Daulatram (6) where, on this precise point, a Bench of the Calcutta High Court has held that no appeal lies, but that Bench has applied the reasoning of Sir Richard Couch in his judgment in Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Co. (2) and the passage which they followed in that case is the passage which was expressly dissented from by the Full Bench of this Court, Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar (3). The Calcutta High Court followed the earlier Calcutta decisions on this point but this Court must follow its own Full Bench decision. It may be that some day this point may somehow get to the Privy Council and then perhaps we shall know whether Madras or Calcutta is right. But for the present, all we can do is to hold that this appeal lies. The preliminary point, therefore, fails.

Both parties state that, by consent, this appeal had been settled on the terms that it should be dismissed without costs, the respondent undertaking to pay Rs. 100 to the appellants in respect of costs already incurred and also undertaking, if further Court-fee has to be paid by reason of the case having been transferred from Chingleput to Madras, to provide what may be necessary up to Rs. 100. Civil Miscellaneous Petition No. 681 of 1923 for stay will also be dismissed:

Ramesam, J.—I agree.

V. N. V.

Petition dismissed.

NAGPUR JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

CIVIL REVISION PETITION NO. 78-B
OF 1922.

January 9, 1923.

Present:—Mr. Prideaux, A. J. C.

PADAMSI—APPLICANT

versus

SHESHRAO—NON-APPLICANT.

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s. 25—Decision on point of fact—Revision.

Small Cause Courts have been given very wide powers with regard to decisions on questions of fact. But in cases where their findings of fact are based on or involve assumptions or inferences which there is nothing in fact or probability to support, or are not justified by sufficient evidence, or are opposed to the evidence on record or are based on meagre or little evidence or on flagrant misinterpretation or disregard of evidence, or if injustice would otherwise be done, the High Court has power to interfere in revision.

Civil revision against a decree of the Judge, Small Cause Court, Akola, dated the 9th March 1922.

Mr. G. G. Hatvalne, for the Applicant.

Sir B. K. Bose and Mr. M. R. Bobde, for the Non-applicant.

JUDGMENT.—This is an application for revision of the judgment and decree of the Small Cause Court, Akola, in Small Cause Suit No. 832 of 1921 decided on the 19th March last. Plaintiff's case is that on 25th April 1921 the defendant orally agreed to sell to him 24 bales of old rui at the rate of Rs. 87-10-0 per bale including

(3) 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. 1; (1910) M. W. N. 697; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1.

(4) 3 M. H. C. R. 384.

(5) 29 B. 249; 6 Bom. L. R. 958.

(6) 60 Ind. Cas. 963; 47 C. 1104.

PADAMSI V. SHESHRAO.

pressing charges. These were to be delivered within eight or ten days after the agreement as they happened to be then in possession of one Ratnappa who was absent. On 6th May 1921 the plaintiff demanded delivery from defendant but the latter failed to deliver the goods. On 7th May 1921 plaintiff gave the defendant a telegraphic notice asking for delivery and on the same date the defendant wired back denying the contract. On 6th May 1921 the market-rate rose to Rs. 97-10-0 per bale and plaintiff thus suffered a loss at Rs. 30 per bale or Rs. 720 on 24 bales. The defendant admitted that negotiations had taken place as regards the sale but his story was that he had 26 bales of cotton two of them being of inferior ru and he wanted to sell the 26 bales or none at all. Plaintiff wanted to purchase only the 24 bales of good cotton and this prevented any agreement being come to. The lower Court has dismissed the suit holding the agreement was not proved.

No substantial question of law is involved in the present case, and it is contended for the non-applicant that this Court should not interfere on questions of fact. Small Cause Courts have doubtless been given very wide powers with regard to decisions on questions of fact and in revision this Court is always reluctant in questioning a decision on the facts. But there is no doubt that it has for good reasons power to do so. In cases where the findings of fact are based on or involve assumptions or inferences which there is nothing in fact or probability to support, or are not justified by sufficient evidence, or where the finding of fact is opposed to the evidence on record, or is based on meagre or little evidence, or on flagrant misinterpretation or disregard of evidence, or if injustice would otherwise be done, this Court has power to interfere in revision.

In the present case I do not think the Trial Court has sufficiently considered plaintiff's evidence or the probabilities of the case. The first witness is the plaintiff who naturally speaks to his version of the case. P.W. No. 2 is Damji Dalal who settled the contract. He supports the plaintiff. P. W. No. 3, Goculdas, does the same as does Sukhdeo (P. W. No. 4), another Dalal. Balwant (P. W. No. 7) is a karkun in the Mulji Jetha Factory. He states that the defendant told him that he had sold 24 out of the 26 bales to the plaintiff. Now, it is difficult to imagine that these witnesses would conspire to support the plaintiff; P. W. No. 7 is certainly an independent witness as are the two Dalals.

Against this testimony there is the evidence of Bhagwant Rao (D. W. No. 1). He speaks to negotiations and states that Damji Dalal said he could not settle the contract unless he took inspection of the two bales of inferior cotton. Thus, it is clear that no contract was come to in this witness's presence; matters were still pending when he left. Raoji (D. W. No. 2) speaks to negotiations and to Damji offering to take 24 bales and not the inferior cotton and the witness states Damji said he would inspect the bales in the afternoon and give his final word. It is clear that this witness also was not present while Damji finally agreed to take only the 24 bales or the 26 bales. Mohammad Hyat (D. W. No. 3) is a servant of the defendant. He speaks to negotiations and to Damji and plaintiff inspecting the two bales and after inspection the witness was told to tell his master that Damji was prepared to purchase only the 24 bales of good cotton. Gangaram (D. W. No. 4) was again not present when either the final contract was come to or Damji Dalal declined to buy. The last witness is the defendant.

Now, it seems to me that the weight of evidence is entirely with the plaintiff. The probabilities are also with him and I think that the Trial Court, owing to the delay in writing judgment after the hearing of the evidence in the case, has gone astray in its decision. I, therefore, allow this revision. I set aside the decree of the lower Court and decree in plaintiff's favour for the amount claimed, namely, Rs. 722-3-0 with Court interest on that amount from the date of the institution of the suit to date of payment. The non applicant will pay his own and the plaintiff's costs in both Courts. I fixed Pleader's fee at Rs. 15.

M. D. J.

Revision allowed.

END OF VOLUME 73.

GENERAL INDEX.

VOLUME 73—1923.

— : o : o : —

Acquiescence, doctrine of. See TRESPASS 223

— Encroachment on land of another—Standing by—Acquiescence, whether question of fact.

It is well established law in England that if a stranger builds on the land of another, although believing it to be his own, the owner is entitled to recover the land with the building on it unless there are special circumstances amounting to a standing by so as to induce the belief that the owner intended to forego his right or to acquiescence in the building on his land. This is also the law in India, with the exception that the party building on the land of another is allowed to remove the building.

Premji Jivan Bhale v. Haji Cassum Juma Khan, 20 B 298; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 758, Ramsden v. Dyson, (1866), H. L. 129 at p. 170; 12 Jur. (N. S.) 506; 14 W. R. 926; Plimmer v. Wellington Corporation, (1884) 9 App. Cas. 619 at p. 710; 53 L. J. P. C. 104; 51 L. T. 475; 49 J. P. 116; Dattatraya v. Shridhar, (1892) P. J. 348; relied on.

It has to be decided in each case whether the special circumstances of that case do or do not amount to such standing by.

Acquiescence is not a question of fact, but of legal inference from the facts found.

Narayan v. Bhalagir, 6 B. H. C. R. 80, relied on. N. RAMRATAN v. SHEODATTARAI 137

Acts—General.

- Act 1860—XLV. See Penal Co. E.
- 1861—V. See POLICE ACT.
- 1867—III. See PUBLIC GAMBLING ACT.
- 1867—XXV. See PRESS AND REGISTRATION OF BOOKS ACT.
- 1869—IV. See DIVORCE ACT.
- 1870—VII. See COURT-FEES ACT.
- 1872—I. See EVIDENCE ACT.
- 1872—IX. See CONTRACT ACT.
- 1877—I. See SPECIFIC RELIEF ACT.
- 1878—I. See ORFUM ACT.
- 1878—VIII. See CUSTOMS ACT.
- 1879—XVIII. See LEGAL PRACTITIONERS ACT.
- 1882—II. See TRUSTS ACT.
- 1882—IV. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT.
- 1882—V. See EASEMENTS ACT.
- 1882—VI. See COMPANIES ACT.
- 1882—XV. See PRESIDENCY SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.
- 1887—VII. See SUITS VALUATION ACT.
- 1887—IX. See PROVINCIAL SMALL CAUSE COURTS ACT.

Acts—General—concl'd.

- Act 1890—VIII. See GUARDIANS AND WARDS ACT.
- 1890—IX. See RAILWAYS ACT.
- 1893—IV. See PARTITION ACT.
- 1894—I. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT.
- 1897—X. See GENERAL CLAUSES ACT.
- 1898—V. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE.
- 1899—II. See STAMPS ACT.
- 1907—III. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.
- 1908—V. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE.
- 1908—IX. See LIMITATION ACT.
- 1908—XVI. See REGISTRATION ACT.
- 1909—III. See PRESIDENCY TOWNS INSOLVENCY ACT.
- 1912—IV. See LUNACY ACT.
- 1918—IX. See INDIAN SOLDIERS (LITIGATION) ACT.
- 1919—X. See EXCESS PROFITS DUTY ACT.
- 1920—V. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT.
- 1922—X. See LIMITATION ACT.

Acts—Bengal.

- 1879—IX. See BENGAL COURT OF WARDS ACT.
- 1884—III. See BENGAL MUNICIPAL ACT.
- 1885—VIII. See BENGAL TENANCY ACT.
- 1920—III. See CALCUTTA RENT ACT.

Acts—Bombay.

- 1880—I. See KHOTI SETTLEMENT ACT.
- 1888—III. See CITY OF BOMBAY MUNICIPAL ACT.
- 1918—VII. See BOMBAY RENT (WAR RESTRICTIONS No. 2) ACT.

Acts—Burma.

- 1898—III. See BURMA MUNICIPAL ACT.
- 1907—VI. See BURMA VILLAGE ACT.
- 1919—II. See BURMA HABITUAL OFFENDERS RESTRICTIONS ACT.

Acts—C. P.

- 1898—XI. See C. P. TENANCY ACT.
- 1903—XVI. See C. P. MUNICIPAL ACT.
- 1917—II. See C. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.
- 1920—I. See C. P. TENANCY ACT.

Acts—Madras.

- 1864—II. See MADRAS REVENUE RECOVERY ACT.
- 1865—VII. See MADRAS IRRIGATION CESS ACT.
- 1880—I. See MADRAS VILLAGE COURTS ACT.
- 1908—I. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT.
- 1920—V. See MADRAS DISTRICT MUNICIPALITIES ACT.

Acts—Punjab.

- Act. 1887—XVI. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT.
 —1887—XVII. See PUNJAB LAND REVENUE ACT.
 —1900—I. See PUNJAB LIMITATION (ANCESTRAL LAND ALIENATION) ACT.
 —1905—II. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
 —1911—III. See PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT.
 —1913—IV. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT.
 —1914—I. See PUNJAB EXCISE ACT.
 —1918—VI. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT.

Acts—U.P.

- Act 1886—XXII. See OUDH RENT ACT.
 —1901—II. See AGRA TENANCY ACT.
 —1901—III. See U. P. LAND REVENUE ACT.
 —1910—IV. See U. P. EXCISE ACT.

Regulations.

- Reg. 1802—XXV. See MADRAS PERMANENT SETTLEMENT REGULATION.
 —1819—VIII. See PUTNI TALUKS REGULATION.
 —1825—XI. See BENGAL ALLUVION AND DILUVION REGULATION.
 —1906—II. See N.-W. F. P. REGULATION.

Statutes.

- 1915 (5 & 6 GEO. V.) C. 61). See GOVERNMENT OF INDIA ACT.

Admissions—Admission of Counsel on point of law, whether binding on party.

A Counsel cannot bind his client by an admission made purely on a point of law. PESH HABIB GUL v. SHAHDAD KHAN 594

Adverse possession—Mortgage—Sale of equity of redemption to mortgagee, after sale to stranger, mortgagee, whether can set up adverse possession.

The owner of the equity of redemption in certain property sold it to the plaintiffs. He subsequently purported to sell the same equity of redemption to the defendant who was an assignee of one-third of the mortgagee rights in the property. On the strength of this purchase of the equity of redemption the defendant redeemed the remaining two-thirds of the mortgage. In answer to a suit by the plaintiffs to redeem the property the defendant set up his adverse possession from the date of the sale of the equity of redemption in his favour:

Held, (1) that the sale of the equity of redemption in favour of the defendant which had already been sold to the plaintiffs was a mere nullity and did not operate to confer any title on the defendant;

(2) that the defendant's possession as co-mortgagee could not, as the result of the alleged sale of the equity of redemption in his favour, become adverse to the plaintiffs;

(3) that the redemption by the defendant of the shares of the other mortgagees was in his character of co-mortgagee and did not effect the character of his possession which was that of a mortgagee.

Mohan Lal v Bhagu Shah, 14 Ind. Cas. 513; 252 P. W. R. 1912, Jiwa Khan v. Lakhmi Chand, 11 Ind. Cas. 429; 146 P. W. R. 1911; 232 P. L. R.

Adverse possession—contd.

1911 and Ariyaputhira Padayachi v. Muthukumarasawmy Padayachi, 15 Ind. Cas. 343; 37 M. 423, 12 M. L. T. 425; 23 M. L. J. 339; (1922) M. W. N. 854, relied on.

Lala Kanhoo Lal v. Musammam Manki Bibi, 6 C. W. N. 601, Putappa v. Tummaji, 14 B. 176; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 576, Hubdar Khan v. Gajadhar Chaube, 25 Ind. Cas. 600; 17 O. C. 294 and Ram Narayan Rai v. Ram Deni Rai, 63 Ind. Cas. 282; 6 P. L. J. 680, (1922) Pat. 129 (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 98, distinguished. L. SHUJA-UD-DIN KHAN v. SHER MUHAMMAD KHAN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 366 475

—Mortgagor and mortgagee—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), s. 49—Unregistered document—Admission for collateral purpose.

It is going too far to say that in no possible case can a mortgagee set up an adverse title to the mortgaged property.

A mortgagee can set up adverse possession if his possession at its inception was that of a trespasser.

Jiwa Khan v. Lakhmi Chand, 11 Ind. Cas. 429; 232 P. L. R. 1911; 146 P. W. R. 1911, followed.

It is to be decided on the facts of each case whether or not the circumstances establish an adverse title in a mortgagee.

A document although inadmissible for want of registration to prove title, can be referred to in order to ascertain the nature of the possession of the holder of the property.

Varada Pillai v. Jeevarathnammal, 53 Ind. Cas. 901; 43 M. 244; (1919) M. W. N. 724; 10 L. W. 679; 24 C. W. N. 346; 38 M. L. J. 313; 18 A. L. J. 274; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 64; 22 Bom. L. R. 444; 46 I. A. 285 (P. C.), Karnam Kandasami Pillay v. Chinappa, 62 Ind. Cas. 603; 44 M. 253; 40 M. L. J. 105; (1921) M. W. N. 1; 29 M. L. T. 167; 13 L. W. 423; Musigadu v. Maniam Gopal Reddy, 63 Ind. Cas. 215; 13 L. W. 400; (1921) M. W. N. 251, Mahendra Bahadur Singh v. Chandrapal Singh, 63 Ind. Cas. 284; 24 O. C. 155; 8 O. L. J. 622, Jhamphu v. Kutramani, 42 Ind. Cas. 713; 39 A. 696; 15 A. L. J. 761 and Ram Singh v. Basti, 48 Ind. Cas. 447; 89 P. W. R. 1918, relied on.

Defendant was in possession as mortgagee of certain property belonging to the plaintiffs. In 1884 a portion of the property was redeemed and a fresh mortgage was created of the remainder, but without possession. On that date the mortgagors obtained possession of the whole of the property. In 1888 the portion under mortgage was sold to the defendant by an unregistered sale-deed and the latter obtained possession of the property sold and continued in possession for over twelve years. In a suit for redemption of the property:

Held, (1) that although the unregistered sale-deed was inadmissible in evidence to prove the defendant's title, it could be referred to in order to ascertain the nature of his possession after 1888;

(2) that the defendant having obtained possession of the property in 1888 without title, that is, as a trespasser, his possession was adverse to the plaintiffs from its inception and having continued for Adverse possession—concl.

over twelve years had ripened into ownership. L QADAR BAKHSH v. MANGHA MAL, 5 L. L. J. 175, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 495; 4 L. 249 889

— Shamlat—Partition—Land to continue joint till certain harvest, effect of—Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1887), s. 121.

It is quite possible that a partition of shamlat should be made and possession of the several lots be given and taken and that no formal instrument of partition be prepared, in which case the giving and taking of possession by the several sharers of their several lots would be held to be the date on which the joint holding ceased to be joint and became severally.

Where, however, on the termination of partition proceedings, a deed of partition was drawn up under the directions of the Revenue Officer conducting the partition, and in obedience to the provisions of section 121 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act it was provided in the deed that partition should take effect from the following kharrif:

Held, that the land remained joint till that harvest and that even if the sharers took possession of the plots allotted to them before the harvest, their possession up to that date was merely the possession of co-sharers in separate possession of portions of the joint estate, and did not become adverse to each other till after the harvest.

Khudad v. Alamgir, 116 P. R. 1900, Lakhera v. Mahji, 50 Ind. Cas. 550. L HADAYAT KHAN v. SHAHMAND 665

Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 22—Succession to holding—"Sharing in cultivation," meaning of.

The expression "sharing in cultivation" occurring in section 22 of the Agra Tenancy Act means sharing in actual cultivation. In the case of the sub-letting of a holding the tenant cannot himself be said to cultivate, and, therefore, there can be no sharing in the cultivation of such a tenancy. A SAJJAD HUSSAIN v. WALI MUHAMMAD, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 451 1030

— ss. 25, 29—Occupancy tenant—Sub-lease unregistered for more than one year, validity of—Rent, whether can be recovered.

All agreements which are contrary to the law are void and unenforceable and no party to such agreements can obtain any relief from the Courts in respect of any portion of the agreements.

An occupancy tenant cannot recover rent from a sub-lessee holding under a sub-lease made in contravention of the terms of section 25 of the Agra Tenancy Act.

Section 29 of the Agra Tenancy Act does not say that where there has been a sub-letting in contravention of the terms of the Act, the sub-lease is valid and enforceable. All it says is that when there has been such a sub-letting and where the interest of the tenant becomes extinguished before the period of the sub-lease has expired, the landlord has a right or option to treat the sub-lessee as his principal tenant, and may enforce against him any of the covenants which he entered into with the tenant at the time the sub-lease was made. A DHARAMAN v. SUKHI, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 453 981

Agra Tenancy Act—contd.

— s. 32—Suit for possession of portion of holding, maintainability of.

Section 32 of the Agra Tenancy Act does not bar a suit for the recovery of a fractional share in a holding against a person in lawful possession.

Kedar v. Deo Narain, 39 Ind. Cas. 80; 37 A. 656; 13 A. L. J. 919, followed. A RAM KISHEN RAI v. SHEO SAGAR 462

— s. 34—Person cultivating land without consent of landholder—Option of landholder, to treat as tenant.

Under section 34 of the Agra Tenancy Act, a person who has cultivated land without the consent of the landholder, becomes a tenant when the landholder chooses to acknowledge him to be so, either by suing for rent or by suing for ejectment, but until the landholder has exercised his option, such a person cannot be considered to be a tenant.

Sat Narain Frasad v. Ram Kumar, Sel. Dec. No. 3 of 1910, relied on. A TARIF v. ASA RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 419 212 — ss. 34, 177 (e)—Question of proprietary title—Appeal.

In a suit for ejectment under section 34 of the Agra Tenancy Act, if the defendant pleads that he is not a tenant but a mortgagee of proprietary rights, a question of proprietary title is raised within the meaning of section 177 (e) of the Act, and an appeal lies to the Civil Court.

Kalyan Mal v. Samad, 18 Ind. Cas. 244; 35 A. 157; 11 A. L. J. 118; followed. A NANJADIK RAI v. RAM JATAN RAI, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 558 584

— s. 79—Dispossession by stranger with zemindar's permission—Suit for recovery of possession—Limitation.

Where a tenant is dispossessed from a portion of his holding by a person who takes possession of it with the permission of the zemindar, the dispossession must be deemed to be a dispossession by the zemindar, and a suit for recovery of possession will be barred by limitation if brought more than six months after the dispossession.

Ram Lal v. Chunni Lal, 27 A. 372; 2 A. L. J. 69; A. W. N. (1904) 281, Balbhaadar Chaubey v. Somaroo Rai, 27 Ind. Cas. 914; 13 A. L. J. 295, followed. A PARSOTAM v. GANPAT RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 517 1012

— ss. 95, 167—Suit for declaration that defendant is sub-tenant of plaintiff—Civil Courts, jurisdiction of.

A suit for a declaration that the defendant is a sub-tenant of the plaintiff, is a suit which comes under section 95 of the Agra Tenancy Act, and the Civil Court has no jurisdiction to try it.

Jagar Nath v. Ajudhya Singh, 17 Ind. Cas. 376; 35 A. 14; 10 A. L. J. 408 and Kanhi Ram v. Durga Prasad, 27 Ind. Cas. 913; 37 A. 223; 13 A. L. J. 278, distinguished. A GHISWA v. DEO NARAIN, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 568 947

— s. 146, clause first and second—Wrongful restraint—Damages, suit for—Cause of action.

The cause of action for a suit for damages in respect of a wrongful restraint under the first clause of section 146 of the Agra Tenancy Act takes its origin from the day on which the distraint comes to an end and the suit may be lawfully instituted within the prescribed limitation period of three months calculated from the said date. Dahp Upadhi v. Gauridat Upadhi, 2 Leg. Rem. 61, relied on.

Agra Tenancy Act—concl'd.

Obiter.—Where the cause of action for a suit for damages under the second clause of section 146 of the Agra Tenancy Act is the loss, damage or destruction to property, it is to the date of such loss, damage or destruction that the Court must look when computing the prescribed period of limitation.

Dambar Singh v. Balwant Singh, 10 Ind. Cas. 504; 8 A. L. J. 563, relied on. A JHABBU v. BATUL, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 146; 45 A. 208 299

— s. 194—Joint patti—Lambardar's powers.

It is within the competence of a Lambardar to give permission to a tenant to erect a kuccha house on land belonging to the joint patti. A ABDUR RAOF v. BACHCHOO, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 532 495

— s. 202—Suit for cancellation of lease granted by Lambardar—Plea that lease was granted by consent of co-sharers—Procedure.

A co-sharer brought a suit in the Civil Court for the cancellation of a perpetual lease granted by the Lambardar, on the ground that it was beyond the powers of the Lambardar to grant it. The defence set up by the lessee was that the lease was executed by the Lambardar with the consent of all the co-sharers:

Held, (1) that the defence amounted in substance to a plea that the defendant was a tenant or the whole proprietary body including the plaintiff;

(2) that, under the circumstances of the case, the procedure laid down in section 202 of the Agra Tenancy Act was applicable, and the defendant should have been directed to file a suit in the Revenue Court within three months to establish the tenancy which he had set up.

Raghunath v. Ganesh, 54 Ind. Cas. 381; 18 A. L. J. 214; 2 U. P. L. R. (A) 79; 42 A. 222 and Bhauji v. Ram Dayal, 64 Ind. Cas. 426; 19 A. L. J. 850, followed. A KALI DIN v. RAMAPAT, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 534 953

Appeal, second—Finding of fact, interference with Letters Patent Appeal.

A finding of fact should not be disturbed in second appeal. Where a Single Judge of the High Court interferes in second appeal with a finding of fact of the lower Appellate Court, his judgment is liable to be set aside in a Letters Patent Appeal. L. GIRDHARI v. ABDULLAH, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 36; 7 P. W. R. 1923 232

Apportionment—Equity of redemption, whether extinguished by mortgage-decree See MORTGAGE 661

Arbitration—Arbitrators sole judges of law and fact—Exceptions to rule—Error of law on face of award, meaning of—Jurisdiction, question of.

Arbitration—cont'd.

Where a cause or matters in difference are referred to an arbitrator, he is constituted the sole and final judge of all questions both of law and fact. The only exceptions to this rule are, where the award is the result of corruption or fraud, or where a question of law necessarily arises on the face of the award or upon some paper accompanying and forming part of the award. This latter exception should not be given an extended meaning.

Hodgkinson v. Fernie, (1857) 3 C. B. (N. S.) 180; 27 L. J. C. P. 66; 8 Jur. (N. S.) 818; 6 W. R. 181; 140 E. R. 712; 111 R. R. 614, followed.

An error of law on the face of the award means that there is in the award, or a document actually incorporated thereto, some legal proposition which is the basis of the award and which is erroneous.

The question of whether an arbitrator acts within his jurisdiction is for the Court to decide, but whether the arbitrator acts within his jurisdiction or not, depends solely upon the clause of reference. P. C. CHAMPSIEY BHARA & Co. v. JIVRAJ BALLOO SPINNING & WEAVING CO, 44 M. L. J. 706; 25 Bom. L. R. 588; (1923) A. I. R. (P. C.) 66; (1923) M. W. N. 596; 50 C. 130; 47 B. 436 — Minor—Award based on misapprehension, whether binding.

Where there is in the minds of both parties to an arbitration and of the arbitrators, a complete misapprehension as to the true, legal position of the parties, and this misapprehension is the cause of the non-inclusion for consideration in the arbitration proceedings of the legal rights of some of the parties, the award is bad and is not binding on the parties.

The principles under which the validity of an arbitration should be judged are more rigid than those which apply when a family settlement is under consideration.

In some cases in which although as an arbitration proceeding the result of an award cannot be supported it is still capable of support on the ground that the award represents what is in effect the outcome of a family compromise.

Defendant No. 1, a Hindu minor, had a reversionary interest in the property in dispute. His mother, acting on his behalf, agreed to refer the dispute to arbitration, but neither in the agreement of reference nor in the course of the arbitration proceedings were the true legal position and rights of defendant No. 1 put forward or considered. The arbitrators finally gave an award which had the effect of retarding the vesting in the defendant No. 1 of his reversionary interest for an indefinite period after the date when in law it should vest in him:

Held, (1) that the award being based on a complete misapprehension of the legal position and rights of defendant No. 1 was bad in law and was not binding on him;

(2) that the award could not be held binding on defendant No. 1 as a family settlement inasmuch as the result of the award was that the reversionary interest of the minor was affected in a manner very prejudicial to him and that Arbitration—concl'd.

no acquiescence on the part of his mother could make the award binding on defendant No. 1. PAT RAM BAHADUR SEN v. GANESH BHAGAT 542 —Private reference—Partition of joint family property—Powers of arbitrators—Mother's share, declaration of—Consent of parties to reference, effect of.

Where on a reference to arbitration by brothers forming a joint Hindu family for partition of family property, a provision for the maintenance of their widowed mother and sister is made with their consent, they cannot resile from the arrangement subsequently, even though the original terms of reference contained no provision entitling the arbitrators to provide for such maintenance.

Obiter.—In the case of a reference to arbitration by members of a joint Hindu family for partition of family property, the arbitrators have an authority to determine anything incidental or consequential to the mode in which the partition is to be effected and the rights of the female members of the family cannot be disregarded. O MUKHI DHAR v. MOOL CHAND, 10 O. L. J. 226; 9 O. & A. L. R. 875 39 —Property of deceased testator, division of—Reference during pendency of Probate proceedings, legality of.

Where the parties concerned with the Will of a deceased person refer to private arbitration the question how the properties of the deceased should be divided, the reference would not be rendered illegal by the mere fact that it was entered upon during the pendency of an application for the grant of Probate of the Will of the deceased and before the Probate proceedings had come to an end. B SHANKAR RAMCHANDRA KULKARNI v. RAMCHANDRA ANNAJI KULKARNI, 25 Bom. L. R. 437; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 365 416 —Reference by agent—Authorisation, proof of—Arbitration in criminal proceeding, nature of.

No instrument in writing is necessary to establish a valid authorisation by a principal to his agent to make a reference to arbitration.

Ram Dis v. Abbas Khan, 51 P. R. 1893 (F. B.) Unniraman v. Chathan, 9 M. 451; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 70, Saturji Partop Bahadoor Sahi v. Dullin Gulab-Koer, 24 C. 469; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 980, relied on.

At the same time, proof is required, whether there has been an instrument in writing or not, that the agent was actually authorised to make a reference to arbitration. Pesh FATEH MUHAMMAD KHAN v. WAFI BEGUM 609

Bengal Alluvion and Diluvion Regulation XI of 1825, s. 4, cl. (2). See RIPARIAN OWNER 727

Bengal Municipal Act III of 1884, ss. 209, 353—Gift of land to Municipality on condition that it would erect necessary fencing—Requisition requiring erection of fencing, failure to obey—Offence.

The language of section 209 of the Bengal Municipal Act is only indicative of this, that there is power in a Municipality to require a person to cause a fence to be erected by the side of a tank; but because the power is existent in a Municipality by virtue of statutory provisions, it does not follow that a Municipality cannot accept a condition or enter into a binding engagement that it would erect a certain fencing at its own cost.

Bengal Municipal Act—concl'd.

Accused made a free gift of certain land to the Howrah Municipality on condition that if at any time it was found necessary to erect a fencing at a certain place the Municipality would erect it at its own cost. Some years later the Municipality issued a requisition under section 209 of the Bengal Municipal Act calling upon the accused to erect the fencing. The accused failed to comply with the requisition and was prosecuted under section 353 of the Bengal Municipal Act.

Held, that the Municipality having accepted a gift of the accused's land on condition that it would erect the fencing at its own cost was bound by the condition and had no power to issue a requisition calling upon the accused to erect it, and that, consequently, the accused was not bound to comply with the requisition. C SUPDT. AND REMEMBRANCE LEGAL AFFAIRS, BEHAL v. NARAYAN CHANDRA BANERJEE, 38 C. L. J. 131; 24 Cr. L. J. 680 776

Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885), s. 12—Permanent tenure, transfer of, when complete.

Under section 12 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a transfer of a permanent tenure by a registered document is complete as soon as the document is registered.

Hamendra Nath Mukerji v. Kumar Nath Roy, 12 C. W. N. 478 and Kristo Bullu Ghose v. Kristo Lal Singh, 16 C. 642; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 424, followed. P C SURAPATI ROY v. RAM NARAYAN MUKERJI, (1923) A. I. R. (P. C.) 88; 45 M. L. J. 219; 50 C. 680; 18 L. W. 681; 33 M. L. T. 314 192

—s. 50, presumption under—Rent receipts for twenty years, production of, whether necessary.

Under section 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act what has to be established is, not that rent has been actually paid at a uniform rate during twenty years, but that the tenant has held at a rate of rent which has not been changed during twenty years. Such holding may be established even if it is not proved that rent has actually been paid during a portion of the twenty years.

Mohini Kanta Saha v. Preo Nath Neogy, 67 Ind. Cas. 381; 35 C. L. J. 3; 9; (1922) A. I. R. (C.) 141; 49 C. 661, followed.

To entitle a tenant to the benefit of the presumption embodied in section 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it is not necessary for him to produce receipts for a continuous series of twenty years. If some of the receipts are missing uniform payment may be proved for the wanting years by other proof and from surrounding circumstances.

Kattiyani Debea v. Soonduree Debea, 2 W. R. Act X Rul. 69, Elahee-Buksh v. Roopun Telee, 7 W. R. 284, followed. C SATISH CHANRA BISWAS v. M. MADHAB SAHA, 37 C. L. J. 598; (1923) A. I. (C.) 665 77

Bengal Tenancy Act—contd.

— s. 50 (1), (2), (3), operation of—
Sub-division or amalgamation of tenure, effect of—Construction of Statutes—Expressio unius exclusio alterius, applicability of.

The operation of section 50 (1) and 50 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not excluded in the case of tenures merely by reason of sub-division or amalgamation.

The sub-division of a tenure does not operate as a breach of the continuity of the tenure, if each fragment is held at a proportionate rent and the aggregate rent equals the original rent.

The maxim "expressio unius exclusio alterius" is often a valuable servant, but a dangerous master to follow in the construction of Statutes or documents. The exclusio is often the result of inadvertence of accident and the maxim ought not to be applied when its application, having regard to the subject-matter to which it is to be applied, leads to inconsistency or injustice. C KRISHNA KAMINI DAS v. NIL MADHAB SAHA, 36 C. L. J. 382; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 66 312

— s. 50 (2)—Presumption, whether applicable to suit for ejectment.

Section 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is by its terms limited in its application to suits or proceedings under the Bengal Tenancy Act, but even in cases where the section is not directly applicable the Court may act on a presumption similar to the one arising under the section, if the facts justify the necessary inference.

The presumption contained in section 50 of the Bengal Tenancy Act applies whether the rent is payable entirely in cash or partly in cash and partly in kind or entirely in kind, and the same principle applies to suits or proceedings to which the rule embodied in section 50 is extended by analogy.

Dina Nath Pal v. Rajar Salt Prasad, 72 Ind. Cas. 663; 36 C. L. J. 220; 27 C. W. N. 115; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 74, followed. C MONMOTHA NATH v. PROBODH CHANDRA, 37 C. L. J. 52; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 102 416

— s. 55, effect of.

Section 55 of the Bengal Tenancy Act was not intended to abrogate the ordinary rule that a creditor cannot be compelled to accept any sum in part satisfaction of his dues. Section 55 refers not to the right of a debtor to make a part payment, but to the appropriation of a payment when accepted by the landlord; in other words section 55 treats, not of tender but of appropriation. C BEHARI LAL v. NASIMANNESSA BIBI, 37 C. L. J. 222; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 527 482

— s. 106—Question of title between rival proprietors, decision of.

A Revenue Officer in deciding disputes between rival proprietors under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act is confined to the question of possession alone and is not competent to decide a question of title.

A Revenue Officer is competent to decide a question as to the relationship of landlord and tenant provided the question does not arise between the proprietors of neighbouring estates.

Bengal Tenancy Act—concl'd.

A certain plot of land was recorded in the Record of Rights as in the possession of plaintiff, who was the owner of an estate, as tenure-holder, while defendant, who was the owner of a neighbouring estate was recorded as the proprietor of the plot. Plaintiff brought a suit under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act for a declaration that the plot was part of his estate and that he was in possession of it as proprietor and asking that the word "tenure-holder" appearing against his name in the Record of Rights in respect of the plot should be struck out:

Held, (1) that the suit raised a question of title between proprietors of neighbouring estates;

(2) that a Revenue Officer had no jurisdiction under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act either to entertain the suit or to refer it to a competent Civil Court for trial. PAT MOORE v. GULAB CHAND, 4 P. L. T. 68; 1 P. L. R. 157; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 213 5

— s. 170—Application for leave to deposit decretal amount—Notice—Procedure.

When an application is made for permission to deposit the amount of a decree under section 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, notice must be given to the judgment-creditor and to the judgment-debtor of the application, and a definite adjudication must be given as to whether the deposit can or cannot be made by the person who desires to make it. PAT KUNJA SINGH v. BARHO RAY, 4 P. L. T. 247; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 353 12

Bombay High Court Rules, 1922, r. 215, applicability of—Partnership, denial of—Originating summons.

Rule 215 of the Rules of the Bombay High Court, 1922, Original Side, as amended, has no application where a partnership is denied, the question, therefore, as to the existence of the partnership itself cannot be determined by originating summons. B SUKHANAND GURUMUKHRAI v. BHIMRAJ, 25 Bom. L. R. 390; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 394 254

Bombay Rent (War Restrictions No. 2) Act (VII of 1918), s. 4 (6)—"Change of conditions," meaning of.

The words "change of conditions," occurring in section 4 (6) of the Bombay Rent (War Restrictions, No. 2) Act do not refer to any change of occupiers, but to the premises leased. S VELJI HIRJI v. CHELLARAM COOVERJI, (1923) A. I. R. (S.) 15 319

Buddhist Law—Burmese—Polygamy—Inheritance—"Superior" and "inferior" wives, rights of—Marriage—Presumption.

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law, polygamy is lawful, and a Burman Buddhist may have, at the same time, two or more wives, who are on an equal footing.

Mt Me v. Mt Shive Ma, 14 Ind. Cas. 475; 1 U. B. R. (1912) 111; 11 M. L. T. 160; (1912) M. W. N. 201; 15 C. L. J. 276; 9 A. L. J. 276; 14 Bom. L. R. 204; 22 M. L. J. 360 16 C. W. N. 529; 5 Bur. L. T. 65; Buddhist Law—concl'd.

39 C. 492; 39 I. A. 61 (P. C.). and Mi Kin Gale v. Mi Kin Gyi, 8 Ind. Cas. 1169; 1 U. B. R. (1910) 42, followed.

But, for the purposes of the law of inheritance, it is necessary to examine closely the relations that subsisted between a second, or, as she is commonly termed, lesser wife and her deceased spouse in order to determine her true status. Before she can succeed to her husband's estate, she must show that her connection with the deceased was such that she may be said to have been endowed with proprietary, as well as personal rights, and the proof required of her is more strict, where she had prior knowledge of the existence of the first wife and lived separately from, and unknown to her.

Under the Burmese Buddhist Law, although there may not be sufficient evidence of actual giving and taking in marriage—since no ceremony of any kind is essential for the purpose of lawful wedlock—the conduct of the parties since their coming together may raise a strong presumption of marriage specially when the union has lasted for a long period. R MAUNG THA DUN v. MA THIN YIN, 1 R. I. 1044

Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act (II of 1919), ss. 2, 10—Area of restriction—Magistrate, duty of.

An order under the Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act confining a person to the four corners of his house is improper. The narrowest limits of restriction should be the village of the person concerned, or the limits of the village to which he is restricted.

Before making an order of restriction under the above Act the Magistrate should satisfy himself that the accused is able to earn his livelihood within the area of restriction. L B NGABA SEIN v. EMPEROR, 11 L. B. R. 383; (1923) A. I. R. (R.) 102; 24 Cr. L. J. 559 175 —ss. 6, 7, 10—Restricted offender—Surety bond, whether can be taken—Restriction of person to village other than his own—Double report, legality of.

A person restricted under the Burma Habitual Offenders Act, should not be made to report himself to the Police in addition to reporting himself to the village headman.

A person who is proceeded against under the Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act cannot be required to execute a surety bond.

In order to justify the restriction of a person to a village other than his own, there must be proof that he is able to support himself at that village. L B EMPEROR v. NGA KATA, (1923) A. I. R. (R. 68, 24 Cr. L. J. 541 157

Burma Municipal Act (III of 1898), ss. 92 (4), 180—Walls, whether building—Walls built without sanction—Committee, right of, to demolish.

Walls built to enable the occupier of a house to use the enclosed area as part of his habitation are buildings within the meaning of the Burma Municipal Act, and the erection of such walls without the sanction of a Committee, Burma Municipal Act—concl'd.

would justify the committee in directing their demolition. L B KALOO KHAN v. M. A. RAHM, (1923) A. I. R. (R.) 65 972

Burma Village Act (VI of 1907), ss. 10, 28—Village headman—Protection from prosecution.

A village headman is protected by section 28 of the Burma Village Act to this extent that he cannot be prosecuted for an act or omission punishable under section 10 of that Act, or for an abuse of his power similarly punishable, even though such act or omission, or such abuse of power is punishable under the Penal Code, or some other law, unless the prosecution is instituted by order of, or under authority from, the Deputy Commissioner. U B NGA TUN LIN v. EMPEROR, 4 U. B. R. (1922) 101; (1923) A. I. R. (R.) 271 24 Cr. L. J. 581 325

Calcutta Rent Act (III B. C. of 1920), s. 18—Rent-Controller fixing standard rent—Jurisdiction, wrong exercise of—Revision.

Under section 18 of the Calcutta Rent Act a party aggrieved by an order of the Controller of Rent fixing a standard rent is entitled, by way of revision, to obtain a decision from the President of the Calcutta Improvement Tribunal as to whether or not the Controller of Rent had jurisdiction to fix any standard rent in the case brought before him. The fact that the petitioner before the President of the Tribunal contends that the Controller had no jurisdiction in the matter, cannot be construed to be a point against the petitioner disentitling him to any relief at the hands of the President under section 18 of the Calcutta Rent Act. G DAMANIA BROTHERS & Co. v. JORTON & Co, 27 C. W. N. 287; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 180 47

Carriage of goods—Damages for non-delivery—Railway Company—Risk Notes, Forms A and B—Loss, proof of.

A Railway Company seeking shelter behind a Risk Note in Form A or B for the non-delivery of the whole or a part of a consignment must show, in the first instance, that the goods have been lost, before the person claiming compensation for their loss can be called upon to prove that the loss was due to the neglect of the Company or to theft or to wilful neglect of its servants, etc.

Ghelabhat Punsi v. East Indian Railway Company, 63 Ind. Cas. 41; 23 Bom. L. R. 525; 45 C. 1201, relied on.

Agent, G. I. P. Railway v. Karaylal, 48 Ind. Cas. 294; 14 N. L. R. 122, East Indian Railway Company v. Kanak Behary Halder, 44 Ind. Cas. 631; 22 C. W. N. 62, dissented from. L EAST INDIAN RAILWAY CO. v. FIRM MOHAN LAL PANNA LAL, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 432 447

G. P. Land Revenue Act (II of 1917), s. 188 (2) (c)—Village held in partnership—Management by lamibardar—Suit for profits, maintainability of—General suit for accounts, whether necessary—Interest on village profits, when allowable.

A village was held by the members of a Hindu family who were joint at first but became separate in interest afterwards. But they continued to share profits of the village, of which they were tenants-in-common, by putting all the profits into a common chest and meeting their expenses from the same chest. This arrangement was subsequently discontinued and the village was managed by the member who was the lambardar in his capacity as such lambardar. Differences arose with regard to the distribution of profits and a suit was brought for profits for the period during which the village had been managed by the member as lambardar. It was urged that the various separated members of the family should be regarded as partners and that a general suit for accounts should be brought:

O. P. Land Revenue Act—concl'd.

Held, that the members could not be regarded as trading partners and that the suit as brought was tenable under section 188 (2) (c) of the Central Provinces Land Revenue Act.

No interest can be allowed in a suit for village profits where a co-sharer makes no demand for his share of profits. N. MAKUNDRAM v. SHRIKRISHNA, 19 N. L. R. 24 (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 197 142

—s. 212—Raiyatwari lands whether heritable.

Under clause (3) of section 212 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act, raiayatwari land is not liable to partition except with the consent of the Deputy Commissioner, but all heirs of a deceased raiayat are entitled to share in the produce of the land, and any of them may, if so advised, apply to the Deputy Commissioner for partition. N. RAHMAT BI v. BHURI BI, 6 N. L. J. 161 959

C. P. Municipal Act (XVI of 1903), ss. 2 (f), 44
—Tax, essentials of—Lease money for Municipal building, whether tax.

The essential quality of a tax and of those similar imposts mentioned in section 2 (f) of the C. P. Municipal Act seem to be that the amounts or rates of payments are fixed by levying authority without reference to the payer. In regard to some of them there is the option of making no payment if no benefit is taken but in none of them has the payer any option as to the amount to be paid.

An unpaid balance of lease money in respect of a Municipal market building is not a tax and is not recoverable by the summary procedure under section 44 of the C. P. Municipal Act. N. YESHWANTRAO PANDE v. SECRETARY, MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE, 19 N. L. R. 122; (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 264; 24 Cr. L. J. 516 52

C. P. Tenancy Act (XI of 1898), s. 35—Hindu widow—Surrender of holding—Reversioners, position of.

A surrender of an estate by a widow, if not impeachable for fraud or on other like ground, is binding on her husband's reversioners.

Dajiba v. Raghunath, 20 Ind. Cas. 920; 9 N. L. R. 126, relied on. N. MUKUND v. DIWAKAR 126

—ss. 47, 95. See LANDLORD AND TENANT 15

C. P. Tenancy Act (I of 1920), ss. 13, 105. See LANDLORD AND TENANT 51

City of Bombay Municipal Act (III of 1888), s. 33
—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115
—Election petition, disposal of, by Chief Judge, Bombay Small Cause Court—Revision.

The Chief Judge of the Court of Small Causes at Bombay, acting under section 33 of the City of Bombay Municipal Act is a persona designata and not a Court subordinate to the High Court. Consequently, the High Court has no jurisdiction, under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, to interfere with the decision of such Judge on an Election Petition under that section. B. NAVAIKAR v. SARAJINI NAIDU, 25 Bom. L. R. 463; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 421 133 Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (2), O. XXVI, rr. 11, 12—Letters Patent (Mad.) cl. 15—Partnership suit—Dispute as to terms of partnership—Reference by Judge of whole suit to Official Referee, validity of—Order, whether appealable—Order, whether can be questioned in same proceeding—Consent of parties, effect of—Functions of Court and Commissioner.

In a suit on the Original Side of the High Court for dissolution of an alleged partnership and accounts, the defendants disputed the terms of partnership. When the suit came on for trial, the Judge referred the whole suit to the Official Referee to determine what share the plaintiff had in the business and then to take a full account of the partnership. The Official Referee without taking accounts submitted a report as to the terms of the partnership, its duration and shares of parties. The consideration of the report came up again before another Judge. On objections being taken to the report:

Held, (1) that the order of the Judge referring the whole suit to the Official Referee was neither a "decree" within the meaning of section 2 (2) of the Code of Civil Procedure, nor a "judgment" within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent and was, therefore, not appealable;

Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar, 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. L. J. 1; (1910) M. W. N. 697; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1 (F.B.), followed.

(2) that the Official Referee had no power to decide questions as to terms of partnership, its duration or the shares of partners and the adjudication by him of these questions was ultra vires and the order of reference by the Judge could not confer jurisdiction on the referee to decide them.

(3) that, however, neither the order of reference nor the report of the Official Referee could be treated as mere nullities and in the same suit and the same proceedings it was not open to the parties to get behind the said order until it were reversed or modified in appeal or review.

Ledgard v. Bull, 9 A. 191; 13 I. A. 134; 4 Sar. P. C. 741; 5 Ind. Dec. (N.S.) 561 (P. C.), Minakshi Naidu v. Subramanya, 11 M. 26; 14 I. A. 160; 5 Sar. P. C. 754; 11 Ind. Jur. 393; 4 Ind. Dec. (N.S.) 18 (P. C.), Eajlakshmi Dasi v. Katayana Dasee, 12 Ind. Cas. 464; 38 C. 639, Nusserwanjee Pestonjee v. Mee. Mynooddeen Khan, 6 M. I. A. 134; 19 E. R. 50, Raja Har Narain Singh v. Chandhvain Bhagwant Kuar, 13 A. 300; 18 I. A. 55; 6 Sar. P. C.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

J. 14; 15 Ind. Jur. 283; 7 Ind. Dec. (N.S.) 189 (P. C.), distinguished.

George Henry Hook v. Administrator-General of Bengal, 60 Ind. Cas. 631; 48 C. 499; 19 A. L. J. 366; 40 M. L. J. 423; 29 M. L. T. 336; (1921) M. W. N. 313; 33 C. L. J. 405; 3 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 17; 23 Bom. L. R. 648; 48 I. A. 147; 25 C. W. N. 915; 14 L. W. 221 (P. C.), Mungul Pershad Dicit v. Gria Kant Lahiri, 8 C. 51; 11 C. L. R. 113; 8 I. A. 123; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 249; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 32 (P. C.), Sukhnath Rai v. Nehal Chand, 59 Ind. Cas. 801; 42 A. 661; 18 A. L. J. 644; 2 U. P. L. R. (A.) 240, Gomathan Alamelu v. Komandur Krishnamachari, 27 M. 118, Tuljaram Row v. Gopala Aiyar, 40 Ind. Cas. 611; (1917) M. W. N. 234; 21 M. L. T. 229; 32 M. L. J. 434, Sashikanta Acharyya v. Raja Sarat Chandra Rai Chaudhuri, 70 Ind. Cas. 6; 34 C. L. J. 415, Krishna Behari Roy v. Bunwari Lall Roy, 2 I. A. 283; 1 C. 144; 25 W. R. 1; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 559; 3 Suth P. C. J. 213; 1 Ind. Dec. (N.S.) 93 (P. C.), Beni Ram v. Nanku Mal, 7 A. 102; 11 I. A. 181; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 564; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 138 (P. C.), Rajeswara Sethupati Avergal [Raja of Ramnad] v. Velusami Tevar, 59 Ind. Cas. 880; 25 C. W. N. 581; 19 A. L. J. 168; 40 M. L. J. 197; 13 L. W. 290; (1921) M. W. N. 51; 33 C. L. J. 218; 23 Bom. L. R. 701, Ex parte Manohar Bhivray, 2 B. H. C. R. 374, and Sadasiva Pillai v. Ramalinga Pillai, 15 B. L. R. 383; 24 W. R. 193, relied on.

There is a sharp division between the functions of a Judge disposing of a suit and of a Commissioner like an Official Referee who is merely to aid the Judge in taking accounts rendered necessary for the passing of a final decree. The function of the Court is to determine the substantive rights of parties where they are disputed and to decide in what manner and from what date accounts have to be taken. The function of the Official Referee is to take accounts having regard to the declaration of the rights of parties made by the Judge in passing the preliminary decree. His powers to deal with the question are not limited simply to matters of arithmetic but he has, for the purpose of carrying into effect the directions given by the Judge in the preliminary decree and for the purpose of arriving at conclusions as to the state of accounts between the parties, power to take evidence and deal with matters ancillary thereto.

The powers of an Official Referee in Madras, limited as they are, must be sought for in the Civil Procedure Code and the Original Side Rules, and, in partnership suits, he is only a permanent Commissioner whose duty it is to take accounts and make enquiries contemplated by the Code and the Rules.

A distinction has to be drawn between cases where a Court having no jurisdiction to try the suit and cases where a Court having jurisdiction, passes an order which it is incompetent to pass.

An order without jurisdiction passed in a suit which the Court has jurisdiction to entertain and try cannot be treated as a nullity by the same Court in subsequent proceedings.

When a Judge has no inherent jurisdiction over the subject-matter of a suit the parties cannot, by their mutual consent, convert it into a proper judicial process, although they may constitute the Judge their arbiter, and be bound by his decision on the merits when these are submitted to him. But, when, in a cause which the Judge is competent to try, the parties without objection join issue and go to trial upon the merits, the defendant cannot subsequently dispute his jurisdiction upon the ground that there were irregularities in the initial procedure which, if objected to at the time, would have led to the dismissal of the suit.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

The Rules of Practice and Procedure of the English Courts do not form part of the substantive rules on the Original Side of the Madras High Court. ABDUL WAHAB v. ROKIA BIBI 808 ss. 10, 115—Order staying suit—Revision.

An order staying a suit under section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code is not a decision of a case within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code and is not open to revision.

In order to come to a finding as to whether the requirements of section 10 of the Civil Procedure Code have or have not been fulfilled, the Court is bound to determine certain matters mentioned in the section, and if it does, it cannot be said that it has acted illegally in the exercise of its jurisdiction or that it has failed to exercise a jurisdiction which was vested in it by law. L. RAM CHAND-DIWAN CHAND v. PRITHVI CHAND & Co., (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 615 237

s. 11—Agra Tenancy Act (II of 1901), s. 199 (1) (b)—Question of title decided by Assistant Collector, Second Class—Subsequent suit for ejectment before Assistant Collector, First Class—Res judicata.

Under ordinary circumstances the decision of an Assistant Collector, Second Class, would not be res judicata for a suit only triable by an Assistant Collector of the First Class.

Ram Gobind v. Sri Thakurji Maharaj, 19 Ind. Cas. 126; 11 A. L. J. 231, relied on.

But if an Assistant Collector of the Second Class decides a question of proprietary title under the provisions of section 199, sub-section (1) (b) of the Agra Tenancy Act his decision is one of a Civil Court and would act as res judicata in a subsequent suit brought in the Court of the Assistant Collector of the First Class in which such a question is involved.

Shahzade Singh v. Mohammad Mehdi Ali Khan, 3 Ind. Cas. 954; 6 A. L. J. 917; 32 A. 8, followed. A. AMIN-UD-DIN v. ABDUL SHAKOOR, (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 556 460

s. 11—Findings not necessary for decision of suit—Res judicata.

Findings upon matters which are not necessary for the determination of a suit do not constitute a final decision so as to be binding as res judicata. L. SOHAN SINGH v. JAWALA SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 248 854

s. 11—Partition suit—Res judicata between co-defendants.

Where an adjudication between the co-defendants is necessary to give the appropriate relief to plaintiff, the adjudication will be res judicata between the defendants as well as between the plaintiff and defendants. But for this effect to arise, there must be conflict of interest between the defendants, and a judgment defining the real rights and obligations of the defendants inter se. Without necessity, a judgment will not be res judicata amongst defendants, nor will it be res judicata amongst them by mere inference from the fact that they have been collectively defeated in resisting a claim to a share made against them as a group.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Ramchandra Narayan v. Narayan Mahadev, 11 B. 216; 11 Ind. Jur. 301; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 142, followed.

Ramchandra v. Abaji, (1886) P. J. 15, explained.

In a partition suit all the parties who are interested in the property to be partitioned occupy much the same position whether they are plaintiffs or defendants and a party claiming or resisting partition, whether he is plaintiff or defendant, is bound by the decision of the Court.

Nalin Kanta v. Sarhamoyi Debya, 24 Ind. Cas. 294; 17 Bom. L. R. 1; 27 M. L. J. 75; 1 L. W. 607; 15 M. L. T. 544; (1914) M. W. M. 948; 21 C. L. J. 23; 19 C. W. N. 531 (P. C.); noticed: B. GANGARAM BAKKRISHNA v. VASUDEO DATTATRAYA, 23 Bom. L. R. 268; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 203; 47 B. 534. 812

s. 11—Res judicata—Decree against limited heir—Reversioners, when bound.

A decree obtained against a limited female heir will operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit by the reversioners after her lifetime, if it is shown that the claim in the prior suit against the limited heir was not against her personally but against the inheritance she represented and that the trial was fairly and honestly conducted.

To ascertain whether a claim was against a limited heir personally or against the estate, the averments, the issues and the findings in the previous suit must be examined and if the contentions raised are those connected with the inheritance and the trial was with reference to them, the limited heir must be deemed to be representing the estate; if not, the litigation must be deemed personal to her and not binding on the reversioners.

Khumi Lal v. Gobind Krishna Narain, 10 Ind. Cas. 477; 38 I. A. 87; 33 A. 356; 15 C. W. N. 545; 8 A. L. J. 552; 13 Bom. L. R. 427; 13 C. L. J. 575; 10 M. L. T. 25; 21 M. L. J. 645; (1911) M. W. M. 432 (P. C.), Ramsunran Prasad v. Shyam Kumari, 69 Ind. Cas. 71; 49 I. A. 342; 31 M. L. T. 200; 3 P. L. T. 749; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 356; 1 Pat. 741; 16 L. W. 956; 21 A. L. J. 18; 9 O. & A. L. R. (P. C.) 1751; 27 C. W. N. 269; 37 C. L. J. 356; 44 M. L. J. 751 (P. C.), Risal Singh v. Balwant Singh, 48 Ind. Cas. 553; 40 A. 593; 28 C. L. J. 519; 24 M. L. T. 361; 9 L. W. 52; 23 C. W. N. 326; (1919) M. W. M. 1551; 36 M. L. J. 597; 21 Bom. L. R. 511; 43 I. A. 168 (P. C.), Kalama Natchier v. Rajah of Shiwagunga, 9 M. L. A. 539; 2 W. R. P. C. 31; 1923 P. C. J. 520; 2 Sar P. C. J. 305; 19 E. R. 843.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Prosunno Kumari Debya v. Golab Chand Baboo, 2 I. A. 14; 14 B. L. R. 450; 3 Sar P. C. J. 449; 23 W. R. 253; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 102, relied on.

Subbi Ganpatibhai v. Ramkrishnabhatta, 43 Ind. Cas. 23; 42 B. 63 at 76; 19 Bom. L. R. 919; Ranchoardas Vandrawandas v. Pravatibai, 26 I. A. 71; 23 B. 725; 1 Bom. L. R. 607; 3 C. W. N. 621; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 54; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 485 (P. C.), Braja Lal Sen v. Jiban Krishna Roy, 26 C. 285; 13 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 787, Nalla Tirupatiraju v. Nandikolla Venkayya, 67 Ind. Cas. 479; 45 M. 504; 15 L. W. 325; 30 M. L. T. 181; 42 M. L. J. 392; (1922) M. W. N. 207; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 131, distinguished.

Certain disputes between the daughters and nephew of a deceased Hindu were settled by a compromise by which the nephew was given certain lands. In a suit by the nephew for possession of those lands the daughters pleaded that their father was divided and that there was no consideration for the compromise which had been obtained by fraud. The Court, finding against fraud and divided status, held that the plaintiff's claim was prima facie bona fide and that the settlement amounted to a compromise of a doubtful claim and decreed the suit. In a later suit by the reversioners against the heirs of the nephew, after the death of the daughters, for possession on the ground that the properties belonged absolutely to the last male holder:

Held, that the suit was barred by res judicata by virtue of the decision in the prior suit in which the daughters represented the estate of their father. M. POTHUKUCHI RAJAGOPALAN v. VALIVETY RAMAMOORTHY, 18 L. W. 491. 284

s. 11—Res judicata—Jurisdiction; absence of, in previous case.

Where a Court has no jurisdiction in law to try a case, its decision therein does not operate as a bar to a consideration in a subsequent suit, of the questions involved in the suit.

The fact that at the time of the decision of the former suit, the case-law was in favour of the Court having jurisdiction, does not make any difference.

Lilabati Misra v. Bishun Chobey, 6 C. L. J. 621, followed.

Panchu Mandal v. Chandra Kanta Saha, 12 Ind. Cas. 9; 14 C. L. J. 220, Langat Singh v. Radha Kishan, 7 Ind. Cas. 781 and Dyal Singh v. Ram Rakha, 14 Ind. Cas. 78; 54 P. R. 1912; 122 P. W. R. 1912, distinguished: LMAYA DAS v. JINDA RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 141. 874

s. 11—Suit dismissed as barred by limitation—Res judicata.

For a decision to operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit, it must be one on the merits; the dismissal of a suit because it was barred by limitation, without considering the merits, would not operate as res judicata. SHANCHI KHAN v. KARAM CHAND, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 150. 705

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

s. 11, O. XXXII, r. 2—Non-joinder of parties—Dismissal of suit—Res-judicata.

Dismissal of a suit for non-joinder of parties does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit between the same parties.

Explanation IV of section 11, Civil Procedure Code, deals with a case tried on the merits and does not apply to cases of dismissal for want of parties, non-payment of Court-fees or the like.

Where by mere inadvertence, no next friend is put in for one of the plaintiffs, who is a minor, but the defect is cured in the Appellate Court, there is no legal objection to the maintainability of the suit under O. XXXII, r. 2, Civil Procedure Code. M SANKARAN, NAMBI v. DEVAKI ANTHEERJENAM, 16 I. W. 26; (1922) M. W. N. 428; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 259; 43 M. I. J. 572 491

s. 11, Expl. IV—Res-judicata—Plea not taken in previous suit—Subject-matter, difference of, effect of.

Defendant obtained a decree against one M. in execution of which he brought to sale and purchased a certain undivided share in a house which was alleged to have belonged to M. Subsequently, defendant brought a suit against B, the nephew of M., for rent of the purchased share. B denied the purchase by defendant but did not put forward the plea that the share purchased had never belong to M. The suit was eventually decreed. B then brought the present suit for possession of the share purchased by the defendant on the ground that M. was not the owner of the share.

Held, (1) that the question of M's ownership of the share purchased by the defendant was res judicata between the parties by virtue of Explanation IV to section 11 of the Civil Procedure Code;

(2) that the fact that the subject-matter of the earlier suit was not the same as the subject-matter of the later suit did not make any difference.

Gobind Lal v. Rao Baldeo Singh, 24 Ind. Cas. 93; 12 P. R. 1915; 226 P. L. R. 1914; 128 P. W. R. 1914, followed. L THAKUR DAS v. BRIJ LAL, 457

s. 16, proviso—"Defendant," meaning of.

The word "defendant" in the proviso to section 16 of the Civil Procedure Code means "all the defendants" where there are more than one defendant in the suit. C MOHAMED YASIN v. BIMOLA PROSAD 405

s. 20—Sale of goods—Offer and acceptance—Delivery and payment—Carrying on business, what amounts to—Cause of action—Place of suing.

Where proposal and acceptance are made by means of letters, the contract must be deemed to have been made at the place where the letter of acceptance is posted.

Defendants, carrying on business at Calcutta, sold goods to plaintiffs who carried on business at Amritsar. They consigned the goods to themselves at Amritsar, and endorsed the Railway receipt in favour of a Bank at Amritsar, instructing the latter to realise the price of the goods from the plaintiffs before handing over the Railway receipt to them and endorsing it in their favour. Plaintiffs sued defendants to recover damages for non-delivery of some of the goods and the suit was instituted at Amritsar. It was found that the defendants had a travelling agent at Amritsar who secured orders for them and forwarded them to the Head Office at Calcutta. He had, however, no power to enter into any contracts or to receive any monies on behalf of the defendants.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Held, (1) that it could not be said that the defendants, carried on business at Amritsar, within the meaning of section 20 of the Civil Procedure Code;

(2) that inasmuch as the goods had to be delivered and paid for at Amritsar the Amritsar Courts had jurisdiction to entertain the suit.

Suraj Bhan v. Punjab Cotton Press Co. Ltd., 18 Ind. Cas. 136; 45 P. L. R. 1913; 40 P. W. R. 1913, relied on. L FIRM HIRA NAND-MURLIDHAR v. FIRM GURMUKH RAI-RADHA KISHEN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 427 205

ss. 22, 23—Transfer of case—Jurisdiction of Court—Convenience of parties.

In sections 22 and 23 of the Civil Procedure Code, the Legislature has left it to the unfettered discretion of the Court to determine upon the circumstances of each case whether or not the venue should be changed from the place where the plaintiff has laid it, and has wisely refrained from attempting to crystallise this discretion into a definite formula.

The jurisdiction conferred upon the Court by these sections is, however, of an exceptional character and should be exercised very cautiously and only when a clear cause has been shown.

The cardinal principle to be observed in such cases is, that the plaintiff, as the arbitrator litis, has a right to choose his forum and that a Court should be exceedingly reluctant to interfere with this right.

The mere circumstance that the defendant's convenience would be promoted by the transfer cannot be regarded as an adequate ground for depriving the plaintiff of his right to file his suit in any Court allowed by law; but if the defendant establishes a manifest preponderance of convenience in his favour, the Court would be justified in granting his prayer. L ROOP CHAND v. GOKAL CHAND 860

s. 24—Plaint returned after recording evidence and hearing arguments—High Court's power of transfer.

Where a Court after recording all the evidence of the parties and hearing arguments on all the issues comes to the conclusion that the land in suit forms part of another district over which it has no jurisdiction and returns the plaint for presentation to some Court in that district, the High Court ought to exercise its powers of transfer and order the case to be sent back to the same Court to hear and determine the same. The jurisdiction of the High Court is wide enough to enable it to dispense with the formality of directing the plaintiff first to take jurisdiction, preliminary to an application to the

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

High Court to transfer it back to the file of the First Court. A SAHU NAND RAM v. HIRA DEVI, 21 A. L. J. 86; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 249 495

s. 35—Costs—Appellate Court, duty of—Appeal, second, interference by High Court. Under section 35 of the Civil Procedure Code it is the duty of an Appellate Court to award costs or make some direction as to costs, and the failure to make such provision, amounts to a failure to comply with the law, and as such is open to correction in second appeal.

The High Court will, in second appeal, interfere with an order of the lower Appellate Court varying the order of the Trial Court in the matter of costs, when such variation is based on either a wrong view of the law, or on a supposed fact for which there is no evidence whatever. O RAM KISHAN DAS v. JAGANNATH PRASAD, 25 O. C. 385; 10 O. L. J. 20; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 155 222

ss. 37 (b), 115—Execution of decree—Transfer of area of residence of judgment-debtor—Jurisdiction to execute decree—Appellate Court erroneously deciding lower Court had no jurisdiction—Revision.

Where the area in which a judgment-debtor lives is transferred from the jurisdiction of the Court which passed the decree to that of another Court, the latter Court has jurisdiction to entertain an application for execution of the decree, and there is no necessity in such a case to obtain a transfer of the decree from the former Court to the latter Court.

See: Nadan v. Muthuswamy Pillai, 53 Ind. Cas. 213; 42 M. L. J. 821; 37 M. L. J. 284; 26 M. L. T. 223; (1919) M. W. N. 640; 11 L. W. 63, followed.

An erroneous order by an Appellate Court dismissing an execution application on the ground that it was made to a Court not having jurisdiction amounts to a refusal to exercise jurisdiction within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code, and is open to revision by the High Court. M MUTHUKARUPPA CHETTY v. PANJA KAVUNDAN, (1923) M. W. N. 406; 18 L. W. 17; 45 M. L. J. 210 956

s. 47—Decree against father of Hindu joint family—Suit to make son's interest liable, maintainability of—Suit, whether maintainable. See HINDU LAW—JOINT FAMILY 402

s. 47—Execution of decree—Defendant against whom suit dismissed, whether party to suit—Objection by such defendant to attachment, nature of—Court, duty of.

P. instituted a suit against C. and D, father and son, and obtained a decree against the son D alone. P then applied to attach D's property whereupon C applied to the Court not to execute the decree against the property which he alleged belonged to himself. The Court, after considering affidavits filed by the parties, granted C's application, and referred P to a regular suit to have it declared that the property was the property of his judgment-debtor and was liable to be attached and sold in execution of his decree. On appeal:

Held, (1) that although the suit against C had been dismissed he was still a party to the suit within the explanation to section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code, and any question arising between him and P with regard to the execution of the decree would have to be determined by the Court executing the decree and not by a separate suit;

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

(2) that C's application was premature and ought not to have been entertained, that the application could only be made when the property had actually been attached and the applicant's rights interfered with, and that the question in C's application should be decided upon evidence and not upon affidavits. B CHUNILAL ASHARAM v. KASHIBHAI NATHABHAI, 25 Bom. L. R. 440; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 381 419

s. 47—Waste committed after decree—Execution of decree—Court, duty of—Judgment-debtor, liability of.

The question with regard to waste committed by a judgment-debtor after a decree for possession of property has been obtained against him, is a question arising between the parties, relating to the execution, discharge or satisfaction of the decree within section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code, and ought to be determined by the Court executing the decree, and not by a separate suit.

If property in respect of which a decree is made has depreciated in value, or been damaged since the decree, owing to the wilful action of the judgment-debtor the question whether he is liable to make good the loss is a question in execution. B HARI SHRIDHAR PRABHU DESAI v. SAKHARAM PADMANNA MAGDUM, 25 Bom. L. R. 449; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 391 443

ss. 47, 96—Execution of decree—Order issuing warrant for arrest of judgment-debtor—Appeal, whether lies.

An order issuing a warrant for the arrest of a judgment-debtor in execution of a decree is an order under section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code and is appealable as a decree under section 96 of the Code.

Ardesirji Framji v. Kalyan Das, 3 Ind. Cas. 46; 32 A. L. J. 912, relied on. L MEHR CHAND v. RAM LAI, 766

ss. 47, 109, 110, [O. XLV, r. 4—Leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council—Precedents, value of—Applicability of s. 47, whether substantial question of law—Consolidation of suits for appeal to Privy Council, when permissible.

Leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council cannot be granted in a case under section 109 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code merely because leave to appeal has already been granted in respect of another case involving the same question. Makund Sarup v. Richard Ross Skinner, 5 Ind. Cas. 523, not followed.

A question relating to the effect on a particular case of section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code as debarring the plaintiffs from proceeding by suit instead of in execution of a decree already obtained, is not such a substantial question of law within the meaning of section 109 (2) of the Civil Procedure Code as to entitle a party to leave to appeal to His Majesty in Council.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Under O. XLV, r. 4 of the Civil Procedure Code, consolidation for purposes of valuation for leave to appeal to the Privy Council is admissible only when the suits in question involve substantially the same questions for determination and have been decided by the same judgment.

Where two suits were determined by two distinct judgments in the Court of first instance and appeals therefrom were originally heard together and decided by one judgment but an application for review in one of them was allowed and another judgment given:

Held, that the judgments in the suits were different and distinct in both the Courts and that the second requirement under O. XLV, r. 4 of the Civil Procedure Code was not fulfilled and consolidation for the purposes of valuation could not be allowed.

Bhagwan Singh v. Bhavani Das-Bhagawan Das, 59 Ind. Cas. 794; 43 A. 223; 18 A. L. J. 1119; 2 U. P. L. R. (A) 411, distinguished. M. RAJA RAJESWAR SETHUPATHI v. ARUNACHALAM, 44 M. L. J. 424; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 602 217

— s. 48, O. XX, r. 11—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 175—Execution of decree—Compromise—Agreement to pay by instalments, effect of—Limitation.

Where both parties to a decree agree to an order being passed directing the payment of the decree by instalments and act upon it, they are precluded from contending subsequently that the order was an improper one.

Akbar Khan v. Dina Nath, 200 P. R. 1889, followed.

In execution of a decree the parties agreed that the amount of the decree should be paid by certain instalments. The Court accepted the arrangement and dismissed the application for execution which was then pending. Some of the instalments were paid, but default having then been made in the payment of others, the decree-holder again applied for execution:

Held, that the order passed by the Court on the agreement of the parties to pay the decretal amount by instalments was in substance an order under r. 11 of O. XX of the Civil Procedure Code and fell within the purview of clause (2) of section 48 of the Code, thus extending the period of limitation contained in clause (1) of the section. L. BANARSI DAS v. RAMZAN, (1923) A. I. R. (I) 381 671

— s. 48 (1) (b)—Execution of decree—Order in execution placing compromise on record, whether order amending decree—Judgment-debtor, whether bound by compromise.

An order under section 48 (1) (b) of the Civil Procedure Code must be made by the Court which passed the decree and acting as that Court. Jurawan v. Mahabir Dube, 44 Ind. Cas. 24; 40 A. 198; 16 A. L. J. 71, relied on.

An order made by an Executing Court placing compromise arrived at between the judgment-debtor and the decree-holder on the record does not fall within the purview of section 48 (1) (b) of the Civil Procedure Code.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

When an arrangement is entered into to pay a decree by instalments and is sanctioned by the Court executing the decree, the arrangement does not alter the original decree which still remains the decree to be executed, so far as the provisions of section 48 of the Civil Procedure Code are concerned:

Nanak Chand v. Anant Ram, 26 P. R. 1894 and Chajju v. Gulab, 61 P. R. 1886, followed.

Nawab Zada Muhammad Akbar Khan v. Dya Nath, 200 P. R. 1889, Mon Mohun Roy v. Durga Churn Goode, 15 C. 502; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 919, Kashiram v. Pandu, 27 B. 1; 4 Bom. L. R. 688 (F. B.), Badri Narayan v. Kunj Behari Lal, 18 Ind. Cas. 731; 11 A. L. J. 224; 35 A. 178, Nanku v. Jadu Nath, 57 Ind. Cas. 591, Muhammad Sulaiman v. Jhukki Lal, 11 A. 228; A. W. N. (1889) 53; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 573, Lodd Govinda Doss v. Rajah of Karvetnagar, 30 Ind. Cas. 357; 29 M. L. J. 219 and Lodd Govind Doss v. Krishna Doss v. Ramdoss Vishmadoss, 28 Ind. Cas. 376; 17 M. L. J. 222; (1915) M. W. N. 225, distinguished. L. JIWAN BAKHSH v. MUBINAT HUG 794

— s. 53—Hindu Law—Joint family—Survivorship—Nephew, whether liable for debts of uncle.

Under the Hindu Law there is no obligation upon any co-parcener, except a son or a grandson who has acquired rights by survivorship, to pay the debts of a deceased co-parcener.

It is only a son or a lineal descendant who comes within the scope of section 53 of the Civil Procedure Code.

A nephew who has succeeded to the property of his uncle by survivorship, is not a "descendant" of his uncle in whose hands the property is liable for the debts of the deceased uncle within the meaning of section 53 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Chunilal Harilal v. Bai Mani, 46 Ind. Cas. 745; 42 B. 504; 20 Bom. L. R. 660, relied on. A. JAGARNATH SINGH v. MOTI LAL, 21 A. L. J. 353; 45 A. 455; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 539 958

— s. 60 (p)—Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1887), s. 70—Insolvency—Panchotra paid to Lambardar, whether exempt from attachment.

The amount of panchotra paid to a Lambardar does not fall within section 60 (p) of the Civil Procedure Code or section 70 of the Punjab Land Revenue Act and is not exempt from attachment on the insolvency of the Lambardar. L. NAND SINGH v. LACHMI NARAIN SINGH 928

— s. 64—Attachment of decree obtained by Receiver—Leave of Court not obtained, effect of—Bona fide purchaser for value, rights of, whether affected.

An attachment of a decree obtained by a Receiver in a suit is invalid without the leave of the Court that appointed the Receiver.

An act done without the Court's sanction to proceed against a Receiver can, however, be validated by subsequent sanction.

Karath Parahote Ammukutty v. Manavikraman, 59 Ind. Cas. 568, 43 M. 793; 12 L. W. 331.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Jangana Sanyasiak v. Mycherla. Peda Atachanna, 70 Ind. Cas. 759; 15 L. W. 289; 42 M. L. J. 379; Banku Behary Dey v. Harendra Nath Mukherjee, 8 Ind. Cas. 1115 C. W. N. 54; Sarat Chandra Banerjee v. Apurba Krishana Roy, 11 Ind. Cas. 187; 15 C. W. N. 925; 14 C. L. J. 55, relied on.

But where no steps have been taken to validate an irregular attachment of a decree obtained by a Receiver by the time the Receiver assigns his interest as a decree-holder to an innocent purchaser, the rights of the attaching creditor cannot be allowed to prevail over those of a bona fide transferee for consideration of the decree-holder's interest. M. KALYANASUNDARAM AIVAR v. NARASIMHA AIVANGAR, 44 M. L. J. 427; 18 L. W. 280; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 567. 456

s. 86—Auction-purchase by Hindu manager decree-holder with family funds—Properties benami in name of third person—Suit by other members, if barred.

Section 86 of the Code of Civil Procedure does not bar a suit by a member of a joint family for recovering property bought in Court-auction out of joint family money in the name of some third person benami by the managing member who was himself the decree-holder. Such a purchase is not a purchase made "on behalf of" all the members of the family within the meaning of section 66.

Balnath Das v. Bishen Devi, 63 Ind. Cas. 678; 19 A. L. J. 78; 13 U. P. L. R. (A) 147; 43 A. 711 dissented from.

Suraj Narain v. Ratan Lal, 40 Ind. Cas. 988; 40 A. 159; 21 C. W. N. 1065; 20 O. C. 211; 2 P. L. W. 160; 33 M. L. J. 180; 15 A. L. J. 685; 19 Bom. L. R. 737; 22 M. L. T. 121; 26 C. L. J. 267; 6 L. W. 509; (1917) M. W. N. 477; 4 O. L. J. 752; 44 I. A. 2; (P. C.) distinguished.

Bodh Singh Doodhoooria v. Ganesh Chunder Sen, 12 B. L. R. 317 (P. C.); 19 W. R. 356; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 253, relied on. M. NATARAJA MUDALIAR v. RAMASWAMI MUDALIAR, 16 L. W. 358; 43 M. L. J. 363; (1922) M. W. N. 584; (1922) A. I. R. (M) 481; 48 M. 855. 478

s. 80—Transferee from insolvent prior to adjudication—Objection by Official Assignee to entry of transferee's name in Record of Rights—Suit for declaration of right to possession—Official Assignee, notice to, whether necessary.

The mere fact that the Official Assignee, in whom the estate of an insolvent has vested, objects before the Revenue Authorities to the entry of plaintiff's name in the Record of Rights in respect of property purchased by the latter from the insolvent prior to his adjudication, does not entitle the Official Assignee to notice under section 80 of the Civil Procedure Code prior to a suit for declaration of right to obtain possession. B. DAMODAR JAGJIVAN v. GOVINDJI JAVABHAI, 25 Bom. L. R. 378; (1923) A. I. R. (B) 392. 240

s. 91, O. XXII, rr. 4, 9, O. XXVI, r. 9—Suit to establish right of way, nature of Appeal—Abatement—Death of respondent.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Ignorance of death, whether sufficient cause for setting aside abatement—Judgment based solely on local inspection, legality of.

A suit to enforce the enjoyment of a right of way as an easement does not fall within the purview of section 91 of the Civil Procedure Code and does not, therefore, require the sanction of the Collector.

It cannot be said that an appellant's ignorance of the death of a respondent can in no case be a sufficient cause for setting aside an abatement. A question of this nature cannot be decided on generalities and independently of the circumstances of each particular case before the Court.

A judgment should not be based solely on the result of a personal local inspection made by the Judge.

Ahmad Sahib Shutari v. Magnesite Syndicate Ltd., 29 Ind. Cas. 90; 39 M. 151; 2 L. W. 466; 17 M. L. J. 387; 23 M. L. J. 598; Kessowji Issur v. G. I. P. Railway Company, 31 B. 138; 6 C. L. J. 11; 11 C. W. N. 721; 17 M. L. J. 317; 4 A. L. J. 461; 9 Bom. L. R. 671; 2 M. L. T. 435; 34 I. A. 115 (P. C.), relied on. L. TIRATH RAM v. MUHAMMAD ABDUL RAHIM SHAH, (1923) A. I. R. (I) 545. 616

s. 92—"Interest," what is—Trust for benefit of widows and orphans of Khatri—Khatri, whether interested in trust.

It is wholly impossible to define, with any degree of accuracy, what exactly constitutes an "interest" as contemplated in section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code. There is no doubt, however, that the interest contemplated by that section need not be a direct interest, in the sense that only a beneficiary can institute a suit, but it must be a real, substantial and existing interest.

Ramachandra Iyer v. Parameswaran Munbu, 50 Ind. Cas. 693; 42 M. 36; 36 M. L. J. 396; 25 M. L. T. 304; 9 L. W. 492; (1919) M. W. N. 370, relied on.

Where a trust is created for the benefit of the widows and orphans of the Khatri of a particular locality, the male members of the Khatri community of that locality have a sufficient interest in the trust to enable them to bring a suit under section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code for the enforcement of the trust. L. MURLI DHAR v. SULTAN SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (I) 518. 302

s. 92—Scheme—suit—Trustee, non-existence of, effect of—Person in possession, whether proper party—Construction of document—Will—Bequest for spread of Sanskrit language, validity of—Bequest for spread of Hindu religion, validity of—Alternative objects, bequest for—One object void—Whole gift, whether bad—Hindu Law—Adoption by widow in pursuance of authority to adopt in Will—Adopted son, whether entitled to repudiate dispositions of ancestral property in same Will.

Where there is a trust created by a Will for public purposes of a charitable or religious nature, a suit will lie under section 92 of the Code of Civil Procedure for settling a scheme if the direction of the Court is deemed necessary for the administration of such trust, whether or not there is a de facto or de jure trustee in existence on the date of suit. The heir at law in possession of the property has an interest in it and is a proper party to such a suit.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Nett Rama Jogiah v. Venkatecharlu, 26 M. 450 and Budh Singh Budhuria v. Niradbaran Roy, 2 C. L. J. 431, followed.

Ashraf Ali v. Mahammad Nurajjama, 49 Ind. Cas. 355; 23 C. W. N. 115. Annavarapu Nacharamma v. Malladi Venkatapayya, 70 Ind. Cas. 903; 31 M. L. T. 63; 16 L. W. 922 and Official Assignee v. Abdul. Hussein, 28 Ind. Cas. 116, distinguished.

A bequest for the spread of the Hindu religion is void for uncertainty.

Scott v. Brownrigg, (1881) 9 L. R. Ir. 246; Dunne v. Byrne, (1912) A. C. 407; 81 L. J. P. C. 202; 106 L. T. 394; 56 S. J. 324; 28 T. L. R. 257. Ghandi Charan Mitra v. Haribola Das, 51 Ind. Cas. 215; 46 C. 951; 29 C. L. J. 366; 23 C. W. N. 645, followed.

A bequest for the spread of the Sanskrit language is a valid charitable bequest.

Whicker v. Hume, (1858) 7 H. L. C. 124; 28 L. J. Ch. 396; 4 Jur. (N.S.) 933; 11 E. R. 50; 31 L. T. (O. S.) 319; 6 W. N. 813; 115 R. R. 70 and Attorney-General v. Flood, (1816), Hay & J. App. xxi; Hayes 611, followed.

In the case of a bequest for alternative objects, where the trustees have been given an absolute discretion to spend the whole fund on one or other object or on both, if one of the objects is void for uncertainty, the whole gift is bad, for the testator having left the application of the fund entirely to the trustees it would be open to that body to apply the whole amount to the uncertain object, leaving nothing for the other.

In re Macduff, Macduff v. Macduff, (1896) 2 Ch. 451; 65 L. J. Ch. 700; 74 L. T. 706; 45 W. R. 154. Houston v. Burns, (1918) App. Cas. 337; 87 L. J. P. C. 99; 18 L. T. 462; 34 T. L. R. 319; Blair v. Duncan, (1902) A. C. 37; 71 L. J. P. C. 22; 50 W. R. 369; 86 L. T. 157; 18 T. L. R. 4194 and Leavers v. Clayton, (1878) 8 Ch. D. 584; 47 L. J. Ch. 675; 39 L. T. 89; 26 W. R. 907, relied on.

A person who has been adopted by a widow on the authority of her husband contained in a Will is not entitled to repudiate the other dispositions of property in the same Will. Ganapathi Ayyan v. Savithri Ammal, 21 M. 19; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 364, followed.

Bhyri Appamma v. Byri Chinnamm, 58 Ind. Cas. 511; 12 L. W. 17 and Balkrishna Motiram Gujar v. Shri Uttar Narayander, 50 Ind. Cas. 912; 43 B. 542; 21 Bom. L. R. 225, distinguished.

Per Spencer, J.—Where a testator's meaning is so vague that the execution of his purpose would practically amount to making a new Will for him, the Court will not recognise the trust as one capable of execution.

Muthukrishna Naicken v. Ramchandra Naicken, 47 Ind. Cas. 611; 37 M. L. J. 489. Blair v. Duncan, (1902) A. C. 37; 71 L. J. P. C. 22; 50

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

W. R. 369; 86 L. T. 157; 18 T. L. R. 193 and Grimond v. Grimond, (1905) A. C. 124; 74 L. J. P. C. 35; 92 L. T. 477; 21 T. L. R. 323, followed.

In construing a Will, it is open to the Courts to take into account the sympathies of the testator with certain objects and his connection with certain institutions.

Clode v. Andrews, (1907) 97 L. T. 130 and Attorney-General v. Stepney, (1804) 32 E. R. 751; 10 Ves. 22; 7 R. R. 325, followed.

Per Devadoss, J.—A Court will uphold a bequest if its purpose is definite though the objects of the charity are not definite.

Gordhan Das v. Chunni Lal, 30 A. 111 at p. 114; 5 A. L. J. 23; A. W. N. (1908) 34, relied on. M. VENKATANARASIMHA RAO v. SUBBA RAO, 17 L. W. 51; (1923) M. W. N. 111; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 376; 46 M. 300

991

s. 92—Sui by trustee to enforce his right to possession of trust properties, nature of—Sui against trespasser—Sanction of Collector, whether necessary.

A suit by a trustee to enforce his right as trustee to the possession of trust properties does not fall within the purview of section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Budree Das Mukim v. Choont Lal Johurry, 33 C. 789 at p. 808; 10 C. W. N. 581, relied on.

Section 92 of the Civil Procedure Code does not apply to a suit brought against trespassers. L. GANGA PURI v. MOHAN LAL, 4 L. 295

645

s. 104 (f), Sch. II, para. 21—Arbitration—“Order filing award”—what is Appeal.

An “order filing an award” within the meaning of section 104 (f) of the Civil Procedure Code, does not mean the order by which the arbitrators are directed to send their award or bring it to Court before any objections have been lodged or disposed of. It means the order passed after the objections have been disposed of, and against this order an appeal lies under section 104 (f) of the Code, notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph 21 (2) of Schedule II to the Code.

Ram Dilli v. Amar Singh, 101 Ind. Cas. 512; 123 P. R. 1912; 103 P. W. R. 1911; 172 P. L. R. 1911, followed. L. GHULAM MUSTAFA v. GHULAM SADIQ

820

s. 109 (c)—Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Important questions of law.

In order that leave to appeal to the Privy Council should be granted the questions involved in the appeal must generally be important in the way that the decision of them will affect a large number of persons. N. MOHAN LAL BALBHADRA v. BISSESSARDAS DAGA, (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 272

221

s. 110—Construction of document—Substantial question of law.

Mere questions of construction of particular documents cannot be treated as questions of general importance or substantial questions of law within the meaning of section 110 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Babu Udairaj Singh v. Raja Bhagwan Bahsh Singh, 10 O. C. 308, relied on. O SANSURI PRASAD v. BHISHAM ALI, (1922) A. I. R. (O.) 214

407

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.s. 114—Change of law after passing of decree—Review.

The grounds for a review must be something which exist at the time of the decree sought to be reviewed: a review cannot be granted because of the happening of a subsequent event. Consequently, where there has been a change in the law subsequently to the passing of a decree, that is not a sufficient ground for review. N SARFARAJ KHAN v. RAMCHANDRA 4

s. 115—Interlocutory order—Revision.

The High Court will not interfere in revision with an interlocutory order unless some irreparable injury is caused to any party thereby. PAT RAMJAS AGARWALA v. MESSRS. LINTON MOLESWORTH & CO., LD., (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 411 71

s. 115—Order refusing to pass decree in terms of award—Interlocutory order—Revision.

An order refusing to pass a decree in terms of an award made in the course of the suit, and directing the hearing of the suit to proceed is an interlocutory order, and is not open to revision by the High Court under section 115, Civil Procedure Code. B CHIMANBHAI KALAYANBHAI v. KESHAVLAL BULAKHIDAS, 25 Bom. L. R. 443; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 4021, 7 B. 721 464

s. 115—Revision—Interference, when justified.

A petitioner who invokes the revisional power of a High Court must come into Court with clean hands and must show that he has been unjustly treated.

A High Court will not exercise its revisional jurisdiction when the finding of the Court below has resulted in substantial justice, even where that finding has proceeded upon a wrong determination of a question of law.

Ghasita v. Sultan, 11 Ind. Cas. 445; 93 P. R. 1911; 151 P. W. R. 1911; 228 P. L. R. 1911, relied on.

The Judicial Commissioner will not in the exercise of his revisional jurisdiction interfere with even a wrong decision come to by an Appellate Court so long as the latter had jurisdiction to determine the question and actually did determine it, except where the wrong decision is of a vitally important description and where it cannot possibly, in the interests of justice, be allowed to stand. Pesh RAM DAS v. RAM LAL 873

s. 115—Suit, disposal of, on point not raised by parties—Substantial error or defect of procedure—Revision—Limitation Act (IX of 1908); Sch. I, Art. 142—Suit for possession—Gift, set up by defendant—Failure to establish gift—Possession of defendant, adverse or permissive.

Where a Court disposes of a suit on a point not raised by the parties and to which evidence has not been directed, there is a substantial error or defect of procedure and a revision against the decision is competent.

Shtababawa v. Sangappa, 29 B. 1; 1 A. I. J. 637; 8 C. W. N. 865; 6 Bom. L. R. 770; 8 Sar. P. J. C. 720; 31 I. A. 154 (P. C.) relied on.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

In a suit for recovery of possession of a certain plot of land, if the defendant bases his possession on a deed of gift which he fails to prove, the conclusion is, not that his possession is permissive but that it is that of a trespasser. Such a suit is governed by Art. 142 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, and the plaintiff must prove possession within 12 years.

Sambu Hanmanta Koba v. Namanarayan Naikde, 12 Ind. Cas. 362; 35 B. 438; 13 Bom. L. R. 857, relied on. PAT GAYANI SAHU v. BALCHAND SAHU 41

s. 115—Wrong decision on point of law or fact—Illegality or material irregularity—Revision.

A Court which comes to a wrong conclusion on a point of law or fact, in deciding a question which it had jurisdiction to decide, cannot be said to have acted illegally or with material irregularity so as to justify interference in revision by the High Court, under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code. L SHRO NATH v. BEG RAJ, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 194 558 ss. 115, 151, O. XLI, rr. 23, 24, 25—Remand, when permitted—S. 151, object of—Appeal, when may be treated as revision.

The Code of Civil Procedure permits a remand by an Appellate Court not only in the particular case set forth in O. XLI, r. 23, but also in all cases where there has been any error, defect or irregularity which has vitiated the whole decision of the case, provided that the procedure under O. XLI, rr. 24 and 25 does not meet the cases.

An order of remand cannot be made under r. 23 of O. XLI of the Code, unless the case has been disposed of without entering into the full merits by reason of a decision on law or fact which has prevented the case being tried to the end.

Section 151 of the Code of Civil Procedure can never be invoked in any case unless a Court has jurisdiction to entertain the case. It cannot be invoked to give a Court jurisdiction, if it does not possess it otherwise.

Where no appeal lies, an appeal to the High Court may be treated as an application for revision.

Ramji Das v. v. Bhagwan Das, 43 Ind. Cas. 180, not followed.

Section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code is intended merely to rule out revision of interlocutory orders. An order of remand is not an interlocutory order. O FARZAND ALI v. EKADASHI, 26 O. C. 10; 9 O. & A. L. R. 352; 10 O. L. J. 36; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 177 591

s. 115, O. VII, r. 10, O. XLIII, r. 1 (a)—Order directing return of plaint confirmed on appeal—Revision.

Where a Trial Court holds that it has no jurisdiction to entertain a suit and its order is upheld on appeal, the order of the Appellate Court is open to revision by the High Court. L DWARKA DAS v. RAHIM BAKHSH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 524 755

s. 115, O. IX, rr. 8, 9, O. XII, rr. 2, 3, O. XLIII, r. 1 (c)—Dismissal of suit for default—Remedy—Procedure—Revision.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Where a suit is dismissed under r. 2, O. XVII of the Civil Procedure Code, the plaintiff's remedy is by way of an application to set aside the dismissal under O. IX, r. 9 of the Code, and if that application is dismissed he has a right of appeal against the order of dismissal under O. XLIII, r. 1 (c) of the Code. When a suit is dismissed under r. 3 of O. XVII, of the Code the plaintiff has a right of appeal against the decree passed in the case.

In neither case does a revision lie against the order of dismissal. PAT BAKAR HUSAIN v. HUSSAIN MIRZA, 4 P. L. T. 46; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 223 373

s. 141, O. IX, r. 9, O. XLIII, r. 1 (c)—Suit dismissed for default—Application for restoration dismissed for default—Application for restoration of dismissed application, whether lies—Appeal.

Where an application for restoration of a suit dismissed in default is itself dismissed in default, an application lies under O. IX, r. 9 of the Civil Procedure Code for restoration of the dismissed application. If, however, this second application is rejected, no appeal lies against the order of rejection.

Under O. XLIII, r. 1 (c) of the Civil Procedure Code an appeal lies from an order under O. IX, r. 9, of the Code rejecting an application for an order to set aside the dismissal of a suit. This cannot be interpreted to mean that an appeal lies from an order under r. 9, O. IX rejecting an application for an order to set aside the dismissal of an application. L. LOK NATH v. SATTAN BAI, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 392 821

s. 144—Landlord and tenant—Ejectment—Possession obtained by landlord—Compensation, amount of, enhanced on appeal—Mesne profits—Interest.

A landlord obtained possession of a tenant's holding in execution of a decree for ejectment obtained by him under the provisions of the Malabar Compensation for Tenants' Improvements Act. On appeal, the amount of compensation awarded by the Trial Court was enhanced:

Held, that under the provisions of section 144 of the Civil Procedure Code, the defendant was entitled to interest at a sufficient rate on the additional sum awarded by the Appellate Court from the date on which the landlord took delivery till the date on which the defendant became aware that the landlord had deposited the additional amount, in lieu of mesne profits.

Kalyan Das v. Maqbul Ahmad, 45 Ind. Cas. 548; 35 M. L. J. 169 at p. 176; 22 C. W. N. 866; 16 A. L. J. 693; 5 P. L. W. 159; 28 C. L. J. 181; 8 L. W. 179; (1918) M. W. N. 535; 24 M. L. T. 110 25 Bom. L. J. 864; 40 A. 497; (P. C.), Manian v. Kuthiruvattah, 62 Ind. Cas. 724; 41 M. L. J. 15; 13 L. W. 449. Manakal Murthi Sankaran v. Areekara Aihath Sankaran Nair, 66 Ind. Cas. 129; 44 M. 960; (1922) M. W. N. 470; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 347, followed. M. NEELAKHANDAN NAMBUDDRI v. VASUDEVAN NAMBUDDRI, 18 L. W. 301 (1923) M. W. N. 508; 45 M. L. J. 323; 33 M. L. T. 45 1041

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

s. 144—Property attached in execution—Suit by third party regarding title to property—Property handed to Receiver in second suit—Second suit, dismissal of—Application under s. 144 by decree-holder in first suit, whether maintainable.

If a decree-holder in execution of his decree attaches certain property, but on a third party bringing a suit to establish his title to that property, the property is placed in charge of a Receiver in proceedings in the second suit; it is not competent to the decree-holder in the first suit, on failure of the second suit, to claim the recovery of the property from the Receiver, by an application under section 144, Civil Procedure Code, in the execution proceedings in the first suit. A CHHUTAN v. JWALA PRASAD 602

s. 148, applicability of, to pre-emption decrees. See PRE-EMPTION 891

s. 148—Ex parte decree set aside conditionally on payment of costs by certain date—Failure to make payment within time—Extension of time—Power of Court.

Where an application to set aside a decree, ex parte is allowed conditionally on the applicant paying a certain sum by a certain date to the plaintiff as damages and payment is not made by due date, the Court has jurisdiction under section 148 of the Civil Procedure Code to extend the time fixed.

Jagarnath Sahl v. Kamta Prashad, 23 Ind. Cas. 138; 36 A. 77; 12 A. L. J. 38, relied on. L. FIRI GOBIND SAHAI-RUP LAL v. GURDAS MAL 648

ss. 148, 149—Decree conditional on payment of additional Court-fees by certain date—Extension of time—Power of Court.

Where a decree is passed in favour of a plaintiff conditionally on his paying additional Court-fees by a certain date and the condition is entered in the decree, the Court passing the decree has no jurisdiction to extend the time fixed for the payment except on a review of judgment. The remedy of the plaintiff is either by way of review or by way of appeal.

Sajjadi Begam v. Dilawar Hussain, 47 Ind. Cas. 4; 40 A. 579; 16 A. L. J. 625, relied on. L. DIWAN CHAND v. RAM LABHAYA MAL, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 372 922

s. 151—Inherent power of Court—Reconstruction of destroyed record—Appellate Court, power of—Procedure.

There is inherent power in every Court to re-construct its own records, and there is inherent power in an Appellate Court to re-construct the records of the Court from which an appeal lies to it.

Where the records of a case are destroyed subsequent to the decree, the party appealing from the decree can ask the Appellate Court to re-construct the record. It may be that in re-constructing the records, the Court will have to go very near to re-hearing; but the Court will always have to apply its mind to ascertain not what the rights of the parties were, but what the destroyed record of the suit was and on that record, when re-constructed, it will have to act on the ordinary principles on which it would have acted if the original record had been before it. Affidavits, counter-affidavits, hearing of witnesses, admission of copies are methods which can be properly allowed. It will also be open to the Court to call for a finding from the Court of first instance on what the record was, as also, in a proper case, to direct the First Court to do the re-constructing and to send down the case for the recording of evidence and a finding as to what the record consisted of. The judgment of the First Court would probably be the best evidence of what took place in that Court.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Where, however, the Appellate Court comes to the conclusion that no amount of re-constructing of the record would assist the appellant in his appeal, the Court has not got to have the case re-heard. The respondent in that event is entitled to the benefit of having the judgment which he has got in his favour at the original hearing, because the onus is on the appellant in an appeal to establish his grounds of appeal. M. MARAKKA-KUTTI v. VEERAN KUTTY, 44 M. L. J. 673; 32 M. L. T. 382; 18 L. W. 21; (1923) M. W. N. 471; 46 M. 679; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 647 1050

s. 151—Inherent powers of Court—
Decree, setting aside of.

A Court has no jurisdiction under section 151, Civil Procedure Code, on its motion to set aside its own decree, to set aside which the plaintiff, if he so desired, could move the Court. Section 151 is intended only for exceptional cases for which there is no other remedy except the use of the Court's inherent powers. A. MAHADRO v. KALLO, 21 A. L. J. 447 494

ss. 151, 152—Amendment of decree—
Error in decree following error in plaint—Court, jurisdiction of, to amend decree—Inherent power.

Where an error in a decree is due to following a similar error in the plaint, a Court has jurisdiction under section 152 of the Civil Procedure Code to amend the decree, as such error is one arising by accidental slip or omission. Apart from section 152, section 151 enables a Court to alter a decree when it does not correctly express what the Court actually decided or intended to decide. L. SA SINGH v. JAGJIT SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 147 679

s. 151, O. IX, r. 13—Ex parte decree, setting aside of—Mistake as to date of hearing.

A Court has no jurisdiction, apart from O. IX, r. 13 of the Civil Procedure Code, to set aside an ex parte decree made by itself. The mere fact that the Court thinks it possible that the defendant might have made a mistake about the date of hearing of the suit is not sufficient. L. JAGAN NATH v. ABDUL HAKIM, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 147 680

s. 151, O. XXXIX, rr. 1, 2—Temporary injunction, grant of—Inherent jurisdiction.

A Court can issue a temporary injunction staying execution of a decree in a proper case even though no ground, such as is mentioned in O. XXXIX, r. 1 or r. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code, has been alleged or proved. L. KANSHI RAO v. SHARAF DIN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 141 909

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

s. 151, O. XLI, r. 20—Appeal—Court, power of, to add stranger as party—Inherent power, when to be exercised.

The powers of an Appellate Court to implead parties to an appeal are circumscribed by the provisions of r. 20 of O. XLI of the Civil Procedure Code, and it is only in exceptional circumstances that the inherent powers of the Court under section 151 of the Code should be invoked.

Under O. XLI, r. 20 of the Civil Procedure Code, an Appellate Court has power to implead only such persons as parties to the appeal as were parties in the Trial Court and were not made parties to the appeal, but not those who are complete strangers to the suit.

Mihir Lal v. Imtiaz Ali, 18 A. 332 at p. 333; A. W. N. (1896) 91; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 927, relied on.

Hemanigini Debi v. Haridas Banerjee 46 Ind. Cas. 398; 3 P. L. J. 409; (1918) Pat. 276; 5 P. L. W. 216, distinguished. L. HALIMAN v. NUR MUHAMMAD KHAN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 497 136

s. 151, O. XLI, r. 23, O. XLIII, r. 1 (4)— Remand for re-decision after amendment of plaint—
Appeal, whether lies.

Order XLI, r. 23 of the Civil Procedure Code applies only when the case has been decided by the First Court on a preliminary point.

An Appellate Court has power to make an order of remand under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code, when O. XLI, r. 23 of the Code does not apply.

Abdul Karim Abu Ahmed Khan Ghaznavi v. Allahabad Bank, Limited, 41 Ind. Cas. 598; 44 C. 929; 26 C. L. J. 49; 21 C. W. N. 877, relied on.

An order of remand made under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code is not appealable.

An Appellate Court holding that on the plaint as it stood any decree which might be passed in favour of the plaintiff would be incapable of execution owing to vagueness, remanded the case to the Trial Court for a fresh decision after amendment of the plaint:

Held, that the order of remand was not one under O. XLI, r. 23 of the Civil Procedure Code, not being on a preliminary point, and was not, therefore, appealable. L. MAHMUD SHAH v. TALAB HUSSAIN SHAH 915

s. 151, O. XLVII, r. 7—Review, grant of —Grounds not sufficient—Order under s. 151—Appeal.

An appeal does not lie from an order granting an application for review of judgment, even although there were not sufficient reasons for entertaining the application, as the grounds on which such an appeal may be entertained are restricted by the provisions of O. XLVII, r. 7 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

An appeal does not lie from an order passed under section 151 of the Civil Procedure Code. C BASANTA KUMARI GUPTA v. ABHOY SANKAR SEN. 37 C. L. J. 99; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 450 306

— O. I, rr. 1, 3, O. II, r. 3—Misjoinder of parties and causes of action.

Defendants second party agreed to sell certain land to plaintiff No. 1. They subsequently sold the land to defendants first party and plaintiff No. 2 in certain shares. Plaintiffs Nos. 1 and 2 sued the defendants for specific performance of the agreement in favour of plaintiff No. 1, for possession of the entire land and for damages and mesne profits and in the alternative for partition of the share sold to plaintiff No. 2 and for accounts and profits of that share.

Held, (1) that the right to the reliefs claimed by the plaintiffs did not arise out of the same act or transaction or series of acts or transactions;

(2) that there was no common question of law or fact arising out of the separate claims of the plaintiffs;

(3) that the joinder of the plaintiffs and their causes of action in one case was not authorised by any provision of the Civil Procedure Code;

(4) that, therefore, the suit was bad for misjoinder of parties and causes of action.

Fakirapa v. Rudrapa, 16 B. 119; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 555, Pinapati Mrutyumjaya v. Pinapati Janakamma, 26 M. 647 (F. B.) distinguished. PAT RAM JAS AGARWALA v. MESSRS. LINTON MOLESWORTH AND CO., LD., (1923) A. I. R. (Pat) 411 71

— O. II, r. 2—Mortgage of three plots of land—Suit to redeem two plots—Consent decree—Subsequent suit to redeem third plot, whether maintainable:

P. mortgaged three plots of land to D. He brought a suit to redeem two of the plots only and this resulted in a consent decree giving him possession on payment of a certain sum. He then brought a suit to recover possession of the third plot:

Held, that under O. II, r. 2, of the Code of Civil Procedure, the suit was not maintainable as by omitting to sue in respect of the third plot in the first suit the plaintiff must be deemed to have relinquished his claim to it. B BHAI DAJI KHADE v. PATLU MALU SABLE, 24 Bcm. L. R. 1157; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 63 862

— O. II, r. 2—Tenancy-in-common—Suit for profits—Subsequent suit for partition, maintainability of.

Where there is a tenancy-in-common, there is always a constantly recurring right for each tenant to demand partition from the other. Therefore, it is always open at any time, as long as the tenancy-in-common continues, for one tenant to file a suit for partition irrespective of any suit or suits which may have been filed for a share of the profits previously.

The fact, therefore, that in a suit by a joint tenant for a share of his profits he did not sue for partition, would not bar a subsequent suit for partition, as the causes of action not being the same O. II, r. 2, Civil Procedure Code, would not apply. B TIMMAPPA ANNAYA v. MANJAYA JATTAYA, 25 Bom. L. R. 491, (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 449 424

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

— O. II, rr. 3 (1), 6—Pre-emption suit—Joinder of several causes of action against vendee—Discretion of Court.

A pre-emption suit is really direct against the vendee, the vendor not being a necessary party thereto.

Under the provisions of r. 3 (1), O. II, of the Civil Procedure Code a plaintiff in a pre-emption suit is entitled to claim to pre-empt in a single suit several sales effected by different vendors in favour of the same vendee.

Where a Trial Court does not think fit to take action under r. 6 of O. II of the Civil Procedure Code, against a joinder of several causes of action in the same suit an Appellate Court should not interfere with the exercise of its discretion. L PAIRA RAM v. KESHO NATH 892

— O. V, r. 17—Service of summons—Substituted service, when to be made—Ex parte decrees, application to set aside—Limitation—Burden of proof—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 164.

The mere temporary absence of the defendant from his house does not justify the serving officer in affixing a copy of the summons on the door of his house. Before that can be done all due and reasonable diligence to find him must be used.

Defendant, against whom an ex parte decree had been passed applied to set it aside. The application was made on the 37th day after the decree had been passed. The defendant led evidence to show that a summons was never sent to be served on him and there was no rebuttal.

Held, that under the circumstances the onus was upon the plaintiff to show that the defendant had knowledge of the decree more than thirty days before the date of his application. L NIHALA v. KHAZAN SINGH 84

— O. VI, r. 17—Civil Procedure Code (Act XIV of 1882), s. 53—Amendment of plaint, when to be allowed—Adverse possession—Co-sharers—Overt act—Joint property included in self-acquired property—Partition—Possession, whether to be upheld.

Under O. VI, r. 17 of the Civil Procedure Code the powers of a Court in allowing an amendment of a plaint are far wider than was the case under the Code of 1882, and there is in the present Code no provision corresponding to the proviso to section 53 of the Code of 1882.

An amendment will not, however, be allowed if it converts the suit into one which is not only different from, but is inconsistent with, the plaint as originally lodged, and when the defendant is prejudiced by the amendment.

The main test in such cases is whether the amendment meets the ends of justice by allowing the whole question in dispute to be decided between the parties and to ensure a final decision and to avoid unnecessary litigation.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

The possession of one co-sharer cannot become adverse to that of other co-sharers, unless he overtly asserts an exclusive title as against the others.

One of several co-sharers, if he includes a portion of the property in which he has a joint title in other property in which he has an exclusive title, may reasonably anticipate that he will not necessarily be disturbed or be put to unjustifiable expense when partition eventually takes place. Such action on his part, therefore, does not amount to an overt assertion of an exclusive title to that portion of the joint property as against the others. Pesh GULAM HAIDAR KHAN v. SARDAR ALI KHAN 748

— O. VI, r. 17, Appendix A—Suit against Railway Company—Misdescription—Amendment.

In a suit against a Railway Company the plaintiff described the defendant as "The Agent A. B. Railway Company, Ltd." The Company, however, was aware that the suit was brought against itself and not against the Agent:

Held, that the fact that the word "Agent" preceded the name of the Railway Company in the description of the defendant was merely a misdescription and little more than a clerical error which could be amended at any time without prejudice to the opposite party.

Sinoh Ram Behari Lall v. Agent, East Indian Railway Company, 64 Ind. Cas. 125; 2 P. L. T. 679, dissented from.

Per Macleod, C. J.—If it can be said that there has been a misdescription of a party in the title of a plaint the necessary amendment ought, in the interests of justice, to be allowed, if otherwise the rights of the parties would be prejudiced.

If a Company is a party to a suit it should be described either as "The A. B. Company, Ltd., having its registered office at—" or as "A. B., a public officer of the C. D. Company." B SARASPUR MANUFACTURING COMPANY v. B. B. & C. I. RAILWAY COMPANY, 25 Bom. L. R. 513; 47 B. 785. 1027

— O. IX, applicability of, to execution proceedings—Application for execution dismissed in default—Remedy, proper—Order refusing to restore application for execution dismissed in default, whether appealable.

The provisions of O. IX, of the Civil Procedure Code have no application to execution proceedings. Where, therefore, an application for execution of a decree is dismissed in default, the proper remedy of the decree-holder is to make a fresh application for execution of his decree.

An order refusing to restore an application for execution of a decree dismissed in default of prosecution is not open to appeal. A BHARAT INDU v. ASGHAR ALI KHAN, 21 A. L. J. 135; 45 A. 148; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 460 453

— O. IX, r. 2, 8—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 42—Suit for declaration—Admission by one defendant—Date fixed for appearance of guardian ad litem of minor defendant—Dismissal for default—Form of order.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

In a suit for declaration one of the several defendants who disclaimed all interest in the property in dispute, appeared and admitted the claim. There was some difficulty in serving the guardian ad litem of one of the minor defendants, and a date was fixed for his appearance. On that date the guardian filed a written statement and then absented himself. When the suit was called on none of the parties were present and the suit was dismissed for default under O. IX, r. 2, of the Civil Procedure Code. It was urged that the suit should not have been dismissed and that at any rate the dismissal should have been under O. IX, r. 8 of the Code:

Held, (1) that the fact that one of the defendants had admitted the plaintiff's claim did not entitle the latter to have the suit decreed against that defendant and dismissed as against the rest under O. IX, r. 8 of the Civil Procedure Code, inasmuch as the provisions of that rule must be read with section 42 of the Specific Relief Act which makes the grant of a declaratory decree discretionary and the discretion would obviously have been wrongly exercised in this case by granting a decree against one defendant only and that the least important defendant who had disclaimed all interest in the property in dispute;

(2) that the mere filing of a written statement by the guardian ad litem of the minor defendant before the case was called on did not amount to an appearance within the meaning of O. IX, r. 8, of the Civil Procedure Code;

(3) that, however, the date on which the suit was dismissed having been fixed only for the appearance of the guardian ad litem of the minor defendant, the Court should not have dismissed the suit on that date, owing to the absence of the plaintiff but should have fixed a further date for the hearing of the suit. PAT THAKUR PATHAK v. RAGHO PATHAK 559

— O. IX, r. 8, XXII, r. 3, 9, O. XLIII, r. 1 (k)—Suit dismissed in default in ignorance of death of plaintiff—Refusal to set aside dismissal—Procedure.

An order under O. IX, r. 8 of the Civil Procedure Code dismissing a suit for default of prosecution on a date when the plaintiff was dead, in ignorance of such death, is a nullity.

An order under r. 3, O. XXII of the Civil Procedure Code dismissing an application to set aside an order such as the above is not appealable; the proper remedy of the party affected is an application to the Court under r. 9 of O. XXII, to set aside the abatement, and if this application is also dismissed, the order of dismissal is appealable under r. 1 (k) of O. XLIII of the Code. O TIRLOCHAN PRASAD SINGH v. BHAGWATI, 9 O. & A. L. R. 70 230

— O. IX, r. 9, application of—Execution application, dismissal of—Restoration.

O. IX, r. 9 of the Civil Procedure Code has no application to execution proceedings. Execution applications are practically never restored, the reason is, that fresh applications can be filed.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

O NAGESHWAR PRASAD v. JAI NARAYAN, (1922)
 A. I. R. (O. 201 73

— O. XVII, rr. 2, 3—Dismissal of suit in presence of plaintiff's Pleader—Order, nature of—Remedy—Appeal—Revision.

Where on the day of hearing of a suit the plaintiff is represented by a Pleader who asks for an adjournment which is refused, the Court cannot dismiss the suit for default under O. XVII, r. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code but must proceed to dispose of it on the merits under r. 3 of that Order.

Obiter:—The remedy of the aggrieved party in such a case is by way of appeal against the decree and not by way of revision against an order refusing restoration of the suit.

Patinhare Tayhatt Rama Mannadi v. Vellur Krishnan Menon, 26 M. 267, Vatguntathammal v. Valliammal Ammal, 41 Ind. Cas. 719; 41 M. 256; 6 L. W. 337; (1917) M. W. N. 743, followed.
M VISWANATHA ASARI v. SAMI ASARI, 18 L. W. 209; (1923) M. W. N. 802 982

— O. XIX, r. 3, } O. XXXVIII r. 5—Affidavit, form of—Responsibility for making affidavit—Attachment before judgment—Principles applicable.

Where an affidavit states that the information deposed to is true to the best of the deponent's knowledge, information and belief, it is imperative that the deponent should state how much of the affidavit is sworn to from his own knowledge and how much is merely sworn to from information which he believes to be true.

Padmabati Dasi v. Rasik Lal Dhar, 6 Ind. Cas. 666; 37 C. 259, relied on.

An affidavit in support of an interlocutory application may be confined to facts which the deponent is able to depose to of his own knowledge, or it may be one in which statements of his belief may also be admitted if the grounds of his belief are given. But if the affidavit swears to certain facts as true and does not state that the facts deposed to are merely within the belief of the deponent, then it must be taken that the statements, in so far as they are statements of facts, are matters within his own knowledge and not merely matters of belief only and it will be no excuse, if those facts should turn out to be untrue, to say that he did not intend it to be taken that he was swearing things within his own knowledge and that he merely intended to state what had been stated to him.

The power given to the Courts, by r. 5 of O. XXXVIII of the Civil Procedure Code, to attach a defendant's property before judgment is not meant to be exercised lightly or without clear proof of the existence of the mischief aimed at in the rule. To attach a defendant's property before his liability has been established by a decree may have the effect of seriously embarrassing him in the conduct of his defence, as the properties could not be alienated even for the purpose of putting him in funds for defending the suit which may eventually prove to have been entirely devoid of merit. This power should be exercised only when the Court is satisfied, not only that the defendant is about to dispose of his property or to remove it from the jurisdiction of the Court, but also that his object in so doing is to obstruct or delay the execution of any decree that may be passed against him and so deprive the plaintiff if successful, of the fruits of victory.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Once the Court accept the view that the defendant has no intention of alienating his property, there is no longer any power in the Court to grant an order for attachment before judgment, because in such a case it is quite obvious that the essential condition laid down in r. 5 of O. XXXVIII of the Civil Procedure Code has not been fulfilled.
Pat Chandrika Prashad Singh v. Hira Lal 721

— O. XXI, rr. 22, 23—Execution of decree—Attachment, issue of, before service of notice—Attachment, reasons for issue of, not recorded, effect of.

The issue of an attachment before the service of the notice issued under r. 22, O. XXI of the Civil Procedure Code, is a mere irregularity, and does not invalidate the execution proceedings. Although the reasons for the issue of such an attachment should be recorded at the time, a failure to do so will not per se render the attachment invalid. O GIRWAR SAHAI v. MANGAL, 9 O. & A. I. R. 92; 26 O. C. 288 241

— O. XXI, r. 30—Decree directing sale of property on failure of payment—Attachment, whether necessary before sale.

The procedure laid down in O. XXI, r. 30 of the Civil Procedure Code is only applicable in the case of a decree for the payment of money, that is to say, where there is no decree which affects any specific immoveable property. In such a case before any specific immoveable property belonging to the judgment-debtor can be the subject of sale in satisfaction of the decree, it is necessary that the property should first be attached.

Where, however, a decree itself gives effect to a charge on specific immoveable property and directs the property to be sold in the event of the decretal amount not being paid, the decree is in fact something more than a decree for the payment of money and it is altogether unnecessary that the procedure laid down in O. XXI, r. 30, of the Civil Procedure Code should be carried out before the property is sold. Pat Jagannath Sao v. Debi Prasad 598

— O. XXI, r. 33—Restitution of conjugal rights, decree for—Direction about wife not being sent to jail in execution—Marriage during minority—Enmity.

The tendency of modern legislation is against sending women to jail in civil matters, and the power of sending women to jail in civil matters should, therefore, be sparingly exercised.

A woman who disobeys a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights loses her right to claim maintenance from her husband and this ought ordinarily, to be considered sufficient punishment for her disobedience.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Bai Parvati v. Mansukh Jettha, 59 Ind. Cas. 361; 44 B. 972; 22 Bom. L. R. 1097, relied on.

Where it was found that a woman against whom a decree had been passed for restitution of conjugal rights had been married while she was still a minor, that her husband had neglected to maintain her for 18 or 19 years, and that there was bitter enmity between the parties:

Held, that this was a fit case in which the Court ought to exercise the power vested in it by O. XXI, r. 33 of the Civil Procedure Code by directing that the wife shall not be sent to jail in execution of the decree. L. AMIR BIBI v. NUR MUHAMMAD 716

O. XXI, r. 36—Pre-emption decree—Vendee not in possession of property—Payment of pre-emption money—Formal possession, whether necessary—Trusts Act (I. of 1882), s. 82—Pre-emption decree—Pre-empted property under mortgage—Redemption with money paid by pre-emptor—Possession of vendee, nature of. In a pre-emption suit, if the pre-empted property is in the possession of a mortgagee, the vendee being only the owner of the equity of redemption, it is not necessary for the pre-emptor, after he has paid the pre-emptive price, to apply for formal possession of the property. His title is complete on payment of the price. Order XXI, r. 36, Civil Procedure Code, has no application to such a case.

Sita Ram Pande v. Madho Pande, 23 Ind. Cas. 876; 12 A. L. J. 521, relied on.

Where in the case of pre-emption of sale of property subject to a mortgage, the vendee, on being paid the pre-emption money, redeems the mortgage and takes possession of the property, he will, on the analogy of section 82 of the Trusts Act, be considered to hold the property on behalf of the pre-emptor. A RAGHUBIR SINGH v. JODHA SINGH, 21 A. L. J. 417; 45 A. 482; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 507 646

O. XXI, rr. 58, 63—Property sold in execution of money-decree—Attachment under mortgage-decree—Objection by prior purchaser allowed—Sale under mortgage decree, effect of—Order on objection, whether final.

Certain property belonging to S was mortgaged to L. K. and S to recover a certain sum of money and obtained an order for attachment before judgment of the property. The suit was subsequently decreed. L then obtained a decree on his mortgage and attached the mortgage property. K brought the property to sale under his money-decree and purchased it himself. He then filed an objection against the attachment and sale of the property in execution of L's mortgage-decree. This objection was allowed and the property was exempted from sale under L's decree. K then obtained possession of the property. Several years later, L's representatives brought the property to sale under L's mortgage-decree and purchased it themselves. Thereupon they brought a suit for possession and mesne profits against K.

Held, that the order on K's objection having become final and binding on L and his representatives, the sale of the property under L's mortgage-decree was ineffective as against K and he could not, therefore, be evicted from the property. P C SARJU PRASAD MISSIR v. MAKSUDHAN CHADHURY, (1922) M. W. N. 793; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 341; 21 A. L. J. 195; 27 C. W. N. 275; 31 M. L. T. 219 882

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

O. XXI, rr. 66, 90—Execution of decree—Sale proclamation—Valuation, alternative, whether can be entered.

The insertion of any valuation in a sale proclamation other than the valuation fixed by the Court is calculated to mislead intending bidders and should not be permitted.

Beni Prasad v. Eadal Singh, 49 Ind. Cas. 195; 4 P. L. J. 37, followed. PAT DAMRUPAT SINGH v. RAMESHWAR SINGH, (1923) Pat. 2c8; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 445 317

O. XXI, r. 89—Sale-proceeds, payment of, into Court—Money received by decree-holder.

The payment of sale-proceeds into Court is not sufficient to constitute them money received by the decree-holder within the meaning of r. 89, O. XXI of the Civil Procedure Code. B TOTARAM CHUNILAL v. CHHOTURAM MOTIRAM, 25 Bom. L. R. 446; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 299 454

O. XXI, r. 96—Execution of decree—Sale—Property in possession of tenants—Formal possession, delivery of, effect of—Possession, suit for—Limitation.

Zemindari property which is let out to tenants for cultivation is not property of a nature of which actual possession can be obtained by an auction-purchaser. Therefore, in the case of such property the delivery of formal possession to the auction-purchaser under the provisions of O. XXI, r. 96, Civil Procedure Code, gives a fresh start of limitation.

Jang Bahadur Singh v. Hunwant Singh, 63 Ind. Cas. 212; 19 A. L. J. 469; 43 A. 520 (F. B.), distinguished. A RAM-LALLAN SINGH v. HARAKH NARAIN RAI, 20 A. L. J. 641; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 463 920

O. XXII, r. 4 (2)—Legal representative—Pleading, repudiation of.

O. XXII, r. 4 clause (2) of the Civil Procedure Code does not entitle the legal representative of a party to the suit to take up an attitude contrary to that taken up by his predecessor in the pleadings.

Birendra Kishore Manikya Bahadur v. Akram Ali, 13 Ind. Cas. 513; 15 C. L. J. 194; 39 C. 439; 16 C. W. N. 304, Rangasami Gounden v. Nachappa Gounden, 50 Ind. Cas. 498; 42 M. 523; 36 M. L. J. 493; 17 A. L. J. 536; 29 C. L. J. 539; 21 Bom. L. R. 640; 23 C. W. N. 777; (1919) M. W. N. 262; 26 M. L. T. 5; 10 L. W. 105; 46 L. A. 72 (P. C.), followed. M KOZHICKOT PATINHARE KOVILAGATHI THAMBATTI THAMBURATHI v. SANKARAMENON 376

O. XXII, r. 9—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5, application of—Legal representative of deceased party—Delay in applying for substitution—Minority of representative—Succession Certificate, obtaining of—Delay, whether excusable;

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Where there is delay in presenting an application for substitution of the representatives of a deceased party, due to the representatives being minors and to the fact that they had to obtain a Succession Certificate, there is sufficient reason to excuse the delay within the meaning of section 5 of the Limitation Act, read with O. XXII, r. 9 of the Civil Procedure Code. O AKHTAR HUSAIN v. QUDRAT ALI, 9 O. & A. L. R. 267; 26 O. C. 206 & 244 215

— O. XXIII, r. 3, O. XLIII, r. 1 (m)—Order holding that no compromise has been proved—Appeal, whether lies.

Rule 3 of O. XXIII of the Civil Procedure Code applies only where it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that a suit has been adjusted wholly or in part by any lawful agreement or compromise, or where the defendant satisfies the plaintiff in respect of the whole or any part of the subject-matter of the suit. The rule does not lay down what the Court is to do if it finds that there has been no adjustment, compromise or satisfaction.

Therefore, an order holding that there has been no compromise is not an order under r. 3 of O. XXIII of the Civil Procedure Code and is not appealable under r. 1 (m) of O. XLIII of the Code which pre-supposes the existence of an agreement, compromise or satisfaction.

Mahamat Idris Meah v. Mahamad Esahah, 42 Ind. Cas. 192 distinguished. L SHANTI SARUP v. JAHANGIR MAI, BANSI MAI, 177

— O. XXVI, r. 1—Commission to examine witness—Court, duty of—Pleadings—Fraud, allegation of—Evidence required.

Evidence taken on commission should only be used when the witness is proved to be too ill to give evidence in Court, or is absent, for other sufficient reason.

Charges of fraud and collusion should be proved by those who make them—proved by established facts or inferences legitimately drawn from those facts taken together as a whole. Suspensions and surmises and conjecture are not permissible substitutes for those facts or those inferences, but that by no means requires that every puzzling artifice or contrivance resorted to by one accused of fraud must necessarily be completely unrevell'd and cleared up and made plain before a verdict can be properly found against him. P C SATISH CHANDRA CHATTERJI v. KUMAR SATISH KANTHA ROY, (1923) A. I. R. (P. C.) 73; 45 M. L. J. 363 (P. C.) 391

— O. XXVI, r. 4—Commission to examine defendant as his own witness, when may be issued.

Defendant, who was residing in the territory of a Native State, more than 200 miles from the Court in which the suit was pending, and who was the only witness on his own behalf, applied for a commission for his examination as a witness. The application was rejected and an ex parte decree was passed against him. On revision:

Held, that this was a fit case in which a commission ought to have issued for the examination of the defendant as his own witness; and that the ex parte decree must be set aside and the suit decided afresh after the examination of the defendant on commission. L. ELVERS v. AMERICAN MOTOR COMPANY 923

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

— O. XXXII, rr. 3, 4—Suit against minor—Guardian ad litem, appointment of—Officer of Court, when can be appointed—Notice to minor and natural guardian—Failure of guardian to produce evidence—Decree, whether binding on minor.

In respect of the appointment of a guardian for a minor defendant, O. XXXII, r. 4, of the Civil Procedure Code does not impose an obligation on the Court to insist on the plaintiff to produce an affidavit to the effect that there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit or to ascertain and exhaust the relatives of the minor defendant before appointing an officer of the Court.

Under O. XXXII, r. 4, of the Civil Procedure Code an officer of the Court can be appointed guardian when there is no other person fit and willing to act as guardian for the suit. But the fulfilment of this condition must be considered with reference to the circumstances of each case.

Order XXXII, r. 3, (4) of the Civil Procedure Code does not require any notice of the proceedings to the minor; nor is separate notice of a proposal to appoint a Court guardian necessary to the father or other person in whose care the minor is, when such father, guardian or other person is a party to the proceedings and is aware of the proposal. The absence of such notice is, in any case, a mere irregularity, which does not affect the validity of the proceedings, in the absence of proof of fraud or gross negligence on the part of the person appointed.

Munnu Lal v. Ghulam Abbas, 6 Ind. Cas. 788; 32 A. 287; 11 C. L. J. 557; 12 Bom. L. R. 439; 14 C. W. N. 744; 8 M. L. T. 57; 20 M. L. J. 591; 37 I. A. 77; 13 O. C. 123 (P. C.), followed.

Rashid-un-nisa v. Muhammad Ismail Khan, 3 Ind. Cas. 864; 31 A. 572; 13 C. W. N. 1182; 10 C. L. J. 318; 6 A. L. J. 822; 11 Bom. L. R. 1225; 6 M. L. T. 279; 19 M. L. J. 631; 36 I. A. 163 (P. C.), distinguished.

A decision obtained against a minor represented by a guardian cannot be set aside in the light of fresh evidence which was not produced at the previous trial unless it can be shown that the failure to produce such evidence was the result of gross negligence or fraud on the part of the guardian ad litem. M RAMASWAMI CHETTY v. DORAISWAMI, 44 M. L. J. 293; 17 L. W. 638; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 463 409

— O. XXXIII, r. 5—Application for leave to sue as pauper—Evidence on plaintiffs' title, whether can be taken.

In an application for leave to sue as a pauper the Court is not entitled, before deciding whether to grant or refuse the application, to take evidence from the parties upon the question of the plaintiff's title, with a view to find out whether the plaintiff has a cause of action. Taking such evidence amounts to exercising a jurisdiction not vested by law.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Jogendra Narayan Ray v. Durga Charan Guha, 52 Ind. Cas. 610, 46 C. 651, relied on.

Charu Sita Das v. Haran Chandra Mukherjee, 50 Ind. Cas. 520; (1919) Pat. 232, dissented from.

Kamrakh Nath v. Sundar Nath, 20 A. 299; A. W. N. (1898) 36; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 552 and Chaterpal Singh v. Raja Rau, 7 A. 651 (F. B.); A. W. N. (1885) 156; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 854, distinguished. A SHAURAN BIBI v. ABDUS SAMAD, 21 A. L. J. 441; 45 A. 548 538

O. XXXIII, r. 5 (d)—Pauper petition—Cause of action—Extraneous evidence, admissibility of.

In an application for permission to sue in formal pauperis, in order to ascertain if the plaintiff discloses a cause of action under O. XXXIII, r. 5, of the Civil Procedure Code, it is not competent to the Court to go beyond the allegations in the plaint and on extraneous evidence to find whether the plaintiff is likely to succeed on the cause of action alleged.

Govindasami Pillai v. Municipal Council, Kumbakonam, 45 Ind. Cas. 95; 41 M. 620; 34 M. L. J. 399, followed. M. BOLIMATI MURIGADU v. NALLA BAPADU, (1923) M. W. N. 412; 18 L. W. 53 946

O. XXXIII, rr. 7, 15—Application for leave to sue as pauper, dismissal of, for want of prosecution—Fresh application, whether barred.

The rejection of an application for leave to sue as a pauper for failure of the applicant to press it, is a bar to a subsequent application for leave to sue as a pauper in respect of the same right.

Ranchod Morar v. Bezantji Edulji, 20 B. 86; 10 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 616, Naraini Kuar v. Mahkan Lal, 17 A. 526; A. W. N. (1895) 106; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 636, relied on. L. BEGUM v. JAFAR HASSAN 897

O. XXXIV, r. 1. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, s. 91 (f) 8

O. XXXIV, r. 4—Mortgage suit—Preliminary decree—Application to make decree final—Limitation, operation of. See LIMITATION ACT (IX of 1908), SCH. I, ART. 182 187

O. XXXIV, rr. 4, 10—Mortgage suit—Preliminary decree—Costs in appeal, whether recoverable personally—Practice.

In an appeal against a preliminary decree in a mortgage suit, it is open to the Appellate Court to direct that costs awarded against the unsuccessful appellant be recovered from him personally. But in the absence of such express direction the costs sanctioned by O. XXXIV, rr. 4 and 10, Civil Procedure Code, are added to the mortgage-money and are in the first instance recoverable from the mortgaged property after the decree is made final.

Damber Singh v. Kalyan Singh, 43 Ind. Cas. 557; 40 A. 109; 15 A. L. J. 914 and Sadiq Husain Khan v. Ummatul Fatima Begum, 48 Ind. Cas. 329, followed.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Amina Bibi v. Rama Shankar Misar, 50 Ind. Cas. 730; 17 A. L. J. 582; 41 A. 473, distinguished. A MUHAMMAD IFTIKHARULLAH v. BANKE LAL 950

O. XXXIV, r. 5—Final decree, application for—Notice to judgment-debtor, necessity of.

Notice to the judgment-debtor is not prescribed by law before making a decree final on the application of the decree-holder, but in practice it is given on the principle that it is just and proper to hear the opposite party.

Where a notice of an application by a decree-holder to make his decree final is duly served on the judgment-debtor but he fails to appear to show cause on the date fixed for the hearing, it may be reasonably inferred that he has nothing to say in answer to the application. If the first application is subsequently dismissed in default and the decree-holder applies again, a second notice is not required under the circumstances. N. BABOOJI v. RAMGOPAL, 19 N. L. R. 124 32

O. XXXIV, r. 5—Preliminary decree—Execution, application for, whether can be treated as application for final decree.

When the holder of a preliminary decree, instead of applying for a final decree being passed, applies for the execution of the decree, the Court has no jurisdiction to treat the latter application as an application to make the decree final. S. SAKER CHAND NARSIDAS v. YACOOB, (1923) A. I. R. (S.) 14 311

O. XXXIX, r. 1—Temporary injunction, grant of.

An ad interim injunction ought not to be given when permanent relief is not obtainable. PAT BISHUN PRASHAD v. SASHI BHUSAN, (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 193 294

O. XL, r. 1—Declaratory suit—Receiver, appointment of—Agricultural land—Appointment of Receiver to collect rent—Jurisdiction of Civil Court.

The question that a Court has to consider in dealing with an application for the appointment of a Receiver is whether, in the circumstances of the case, the appointment of a Receiver is just and convenient, the object merely being to preserve the property.

A Court is not debarred from appointing a Receiver of property forming the subject-matter of a declaratory suit in which possession of the property is not to be awarded to one party or the other.

Dan Prasad v. Gopi Kishen, 22 Ind. Cas. 59; 36 A. 19; 11 A. L. J. 973, Amar Nath v. Tehal Kaur, 67 Ind. Cas. 383; 4 U. P. L. R. (L) 71; (1922) A. I. R. (L) 444, relied on.

A Civil Court has jurisdiction to appoint a Receiver to collect the rents of agricultural land.

Raghubir Singh-Jaswant Singh v. Narinjan Singh, 72 Ind. Cas. 569; (1923) A. I. R. (L) 48, distinguished. L. DHUMI v. MUHAMMAD SAJJAD ALI KHAN, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 623 600

O. XLI, r. 22—Appeal barred by time—Cross-objections, whether can be heard.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

An appeal must be properly before the Court in order that cross-objections may be heard.

Where an appeal is barred by time neither the appeal nor the cross-objections are properly before the Court, and the Court has no power to proceed with either. L. JAIGOPAL SINGH v. MUNA LAL, 4 L. 140; 5 L. J. 345. 655

— O. XLI, r. 23, O. XLIII, r. 1 (4)—Order of remand involving question of custom—Appeal, whether lies.

There can be no appeal from an order of remand passed under O. XLI, r. 23, of the Civil Procedure Code where the question involved is one of custom.

Sawan Singh v. Mothu, 23 Ind. Cas. 817; 85 P. R. 1914; 162 P. L. R. 1914; 120 P. W. R. 1914, followed. L. CHANDO v. MIRAN BAKSHI, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 525. 650

— O. XLI, r. 23, O. XLIII, r. 1 (u)—Appeal against order of remand—Finding of fact based on misappreciation of case—High Court, interference by.

In an appeal from an order of remand findings of fact cannot be examined in second appeal, but where it appears that the first Appellate Court has failed to appreciate the real question in controversy between the parties, the High Court will interfere and direct a re-hearing of the appeal. L. QADIR BAKSHI v. SHAMAS DIN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 206. 756

— O. XLI, r. 27—Evidence fresh in appeal—Document filed after close of arguments, whether admissible.

Where a document is filed by a party in the Appellate Court after arguments have been finished on both sides and judgment is reserved; it ought not to be admitted in evidence without giving the other party an opportunity to raise any objection which he might have to its admissibility in evidence. C. MANJURI DASSI v. KHETRAMANI DASSI. 96

— O. XLVII, r. 1—Second appeal, disposal of—Discovery of fresh evidence—Review.

An application for review based on the ground of discovery of fresh documentary evidence cannot be entertained after the disposal of a second appeal.

Nandkishore v. Anwar Hussain, 4 Ind. Cas. 809; 32 A. 71; 6 A. L. J. 979, followed. A. MARIAM-UN-NISSA BIBI v. BABU RAM, 21 A. L. J. 377; 45 A. 451; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 541. 1016

— O. XLVII, r. 4, 5—Review, application for—Appeal, filing of, effect of—Procedure.

If an application for review is made in proper time and before an appeal has been preferred, the Judge is not prevented from proceeding upon the application for review by the subsequent presentation of an appeal. That power exists so long as the appeal is not heard, because once the appeal is heard, the decree on appeal is the final decree in the case, and the application for review of judgment of the Court of first instance can no longer be prosecuted. On the other hand, if the application for review is successful and the judgment is vacated, the appeal directed against that judgment can no longer proceed. When a final decree is made after the review has been admitted that decree is, however, liable to be challenged in accordance with law.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

Birjbasi Lal v. Salig Ram, 14 Ind. Cas. 472; 34 A. 282; A. L. J. 183. Kankalya Lal v. Baldeo Prasad, 28 A. 240; A. W. N. (1905) 265. Vadilal v. Fulchand, 30 B. 56; 7 Bom. L. R. 664. Nanhe v. Mangat Rai, 20 Ind. Cas. 647. Arayalpurath v. Cheekiladen Ahmad, 2 Ind. Cas. 294. Gour Sundar Bhoumik v. Rakhal Raj Bhoumik, 34 Ind. Cas. 592; 27 C. L. J. 326; 20 C. W. N. 1165. Maksud Mali v. Secretary of State, 9 Ind. Cas. 532. Pyari Mohan Kundu v. Kalu Khan, 41 Ind. Cas. 497; 44 C. 1011 and Bhurut Chunder Mojomdar v. Ram Gunga Sein, B. L. R. Sup. Vol. 362; 5 W. R. 59, relied on.

The Court is competent to determine whether when a review is granted the case should be re-opened in part or in its entirety. When, however, on the grant of an application for review, no reservation is made, it may fairly be assumed that the entire case is intended to be re-opened.

Gour Sundar Bhoumik v. Rakhal Raj Bhoumik, 34 Ind. Cas. 592; 27 C. L. J. 326; 20 C. W. N. 1165. Bhubaneswari Koer v. Ajodhya Singh, 11 Ind. Cas. 102; 15 C. L. J. 349. Sadar-ud-Din v. Ekram-ud-Din, 20 Ind. Cas. 670; 19 C. L. J. 225; 18 C. W. N. 22 and Janaki Nath v. Prabhesini Dasi, 30 Ind. Cas. 898; 19 C. W. N. 1077; 22 C. L. J. 96; 43 C. 178, relied on.

A review proceeding ordinarily commences with an ex parte application. The Court may then, either reject the application at once, or may grant a Rule calling on the other side to show cause why the review should not be granted. In the second stage, the Rule may be either admitted or rejected and it is obvious that the hearing of this Rule may involve to some extent an investigation into the merits. If the Rule is discharged, then the case ends. If, on the other hand, the Rule is made absolute, then the third stage is reached; the case is re-heard on the merits and may result in a repetition of the former decree or in some variation of it. Though in one aspect the result is the same whether the Rule be discharged or on the re-hearing the original decree be repeated, in law there is a material difference, for, in the latter case, the whole matter having been re-opened, there is a fresh decree; in the former case the parties are relegated to and still rest on the old decree. Consequently, the order appropriate to a discharge of the Rule is the rejection of the application, an order so made terminates the second stage of the proceedings and there is no third stage for the re-hearing of the case.

Vadilal v. Fulchand, 30 B. 56; 7 Bom. L. R. 664 and Nanhe v. Mangat Rai, 20 Ind. Cas. 647, relied on.

Where an application for review is presented under O. XLVII, r. 5 of the Civil Procedure Code, in respect of a decree made by two Judges, if one of them is absent from the Court, the remaining Judge may deal with the matter in the first two stages, as mentioned above but not in the third.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—contd.

O' GOUR KRISHNA SIRCAR v. NILMADHAB SAHA,
 35 C. L. J. 484; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 113 34

Sch. II, para. 1—Arbitration—“All parties interested”—Parties who have failed to appear, whether necessary parties to reference.

From the mere fact that a certain party to a case does not put in an appearance and the case proceeds ex parte so far as he is concerned, it cannot be assumed that he is not an interested party within the meaning of paragraph 1 of Schedule II to the Civil Procedure Code.

Polita Pavana Panda v. Nayasinga Panda, 51 Ind. Cas. 155; 42 M. 632; 36 M. L. J. 538 and Laduram Nathmal v. Nandalal Karuri, 55 Ind. Cas. 747; 47 C. 555; 31 C. L. J. 156, relied upon.
M. PASUMARTI BHAGAVANULU v. BOLLAN SETHA RAMASWAMI, 41 M. L. J. 359; 17 L. W. 424; (1923) M. W. N. 296; 32 M. L. T. 298; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 572 202

Sch. II, para. 15—Arbitration—Arbitrator acting on private information—Misconduct—Award, whether valid—Guardian and minor—Minor, whether bound by guardian's admission—Reference by guardian waiving right to object to award, whether binding on minor.

An arbitrator is not entitled to examine witnesses in the absence of parties or institute private enquiries behind their back and an award based on such information or knowledge is invalid, unless a power is expressly vested in the arbitrator by agreement of parties where they are sui juris.

In re Gregson and Armstrong, (1894) 70 L. T. 106; 10 R. 408; Harvey v. Shelton, (1844) 7 Beav. 455; 49 E. R. 1141; 13 L. J. Ch. 466; 64 R. R. 116; Dobson v. Groves, (1844) 6 Q. B. 637; 115 E. R. 239; 14 C. J. Q. B. 17; 9 Jur. 86; 66 R. R. 509; Daya Kishen v. Dharan Das, 4 A. L. J. 159; A. W. N. (1907) 75; Lachmi Narain v. Sheo Nath Pandey, 54 Ind. Cas. 443; 42 A. 185; 18 A. L. J. 78; 1 U.P. L. R. (A.) 177; Ganesh Narain Singh v. Malda Koer, 10 Ind. Cas. 456; 13 C. L. J. 399 and Hari Singh v. Kankinarah Co. Limited, 66 Ind. Cas. 389; 34 C. L. J. 39, relied on.

Where, on a reference to arbitration by a guardian on behalf of a minor agreeing to be bound by the decision of the arbitrator, either on his own information, or on examination of witnesses, and undertaking not to dispute the validity of the award on any ground, an award was passed based on private inquiries and information not accessible to the parties:

Held, that the guardian's conduct in waiving the minor's right to object to irregular procedure was grossly negligent and that the minor was not bound either by the reference or by the award.

Swamirao v. Collector of Dharwar, 17 B. 299; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 195; Rhodes v. Spithenbank, (1883) 2 Q. B. 577; 58 L. J. Q. B. 287; 60 L. T. 856; 37 W. R. 457; Lakshminarayana Taniri v. Ramachandra Taniri, 45 Ind. Cas. 763; 34 M. L. J. 71; 23 M. L. T. 89 and Chunduru Punnayyah v. Rajam Viramma, 70 Ind. Cas. 668; 42 M. L. J. 429; 15 L. W. 427; (1922) M. W. N. 213; 45 M. 425; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 273, followed.

Civil Procedure Code—1908—concl'd.

Venkalasubba Rao, J.—A statement in the nature of an admission by a guardian is not as such conclusive against a minor.

If once it is found that evidence has been improperly admitted, the question whether such evidence had or had not an effect on the arbitrator's mind is immaterial and the award cannot be supported.

Dobson v. Groves, (1844) 6 Q. 637; 115 E. R. 239; 14 L. J. Q. B. 17; 9 Jur. 86; 66 R. R. 509; Walker v. Forbisher, (1801) 6 Ves. 70; 31 E. R. 943; 5 R. R. 223, relied on. M. CHINTALAPUDI SANYASI v. CHINTALAPUDI VENKATA RAO, 17 L. W. 71; (1923) M. W. N. 7; 44 M. L. J. 263; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 301 470

Committee—Temple Committee—Meeting—Quorum, want of—Adjournment—Notice.

Where a duly notified meeting of the members of a Temple Committee cannot be held owing to there being no quorum, such meeting cannot be adjourned to, and held at, a later hour, without notice of such adjournment having been previously given to all the members of the Committee; an adjourned meeting held without such notice, and all business transacted thereat are invalid. B. NILKANTH DEVRAO NADKARNI v. MURARI GOVIND MHALE, 25 Bom. L. R. 315; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 272 178

Companies Act (VI of 1882), s. 169—Appeal, delay in presenting—Extension of time—Sufficient cause—Negligence.

Appeals under the Companies Act ought to be filed with such promptitude as to render service of notice upon the respondent possible within the three weeks prescribed by section 169 of the Act. The Appellate Court will not extend the time for appealing unless the delay is caused either by the conduct of the respondent or by mistake of the officials of the Appellate Court.

Daulat Ram v. Woollen Mills Co., 95 P. R. 1908; 165 P. W. R. 1908; Ghisu Mal v. Porter, 10 Ind. Cas. 908; 33 A. 641; 8 A. L. J. 719; Ramanappa v. Official Liquidator, Bellary Brucepetta Stock and Loan Transacting Company, 22 M. 291; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 207, relied on.

The carelessness or ignorance of a Pleader is not a sufficient reason to extend the time fixed by section 169 of the Companies Act and the Court should not show leniency in such matters without sufficient cause.

Hira Lal v. Himalaya Glass Works Co., 10 Ind. Cas. 433; 176 P. L. R. 1911; 100 P. W. R. 1911, followed. I. NARINDRA NATH v. KISHEN LAL, 211

Construction of contract—Contract for sale of goods—Arbitration clause—Claim for damages for non-delivery, whether claim arising out of contract.

A contract for the sale of goods contained a clause providing that any claim or dispute of any sort whatever arising in connection with the contract, unless amicably settled, must be referred to arbitration. Plaintiff sued to recover damages for non-delivery of a portion of the goods contracted for :

Construction of contract—conclid.

Held, that the plaintiff's claim being for damages arising out of the failure of the defendant to fulfil his contract to supply the goods, was covered by the arbitration clause and his suit was not, therefore, maintainable.

Ganesh Das-Ishar Das v. Durga Dat-Jagan-Nath, 60 Ind. Cas 776; 2 L. 19; 3 L. L. J. 61; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 97, followed L. GHAMANDI LAL-NARAIN DAS v. CHURANJI LAL-POKHAN MAILL, 5 L. L. J. 146; 4 L. 168; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 453 459

—Sale of goods—C. I. F. contract, incidents of—Purchaser, whether can refuse payment except on delivery.

One of the clauses in a contract for the sale of goods provided that the vendor shall draw upon the purchaser through any Bank in sterling for the total amount of the invoice at 60 days' sight, the Bills of Lading and shipping documents to be handed to the purchaser on payment of the draft. The purchaser further bound himself to accept such drafts for presentation and pay at maturity notwithstanding any objection he may have on account of any variation whatever from the terms of the indent, such objections, if any, to be settled privately or by arbitration. The purchaser also agreed not to raise any claim in respect of the transaction unless he had accepted and retired the draft or drafts:

Held, that on a true construction of the agreement the purchaser was bound to accept the drafts upon presentation: on tender of the Bills of Lading and shipping documents, and no claim could be raised by him, nor arbitration invoked until such payment had been made.

When goods have been sold upon C. I. F. terms, the contract of the seller is performed by tendering to the buyer the documents which would enable the latter to obtain on the ship's arrival the delivery of the goods contracted for. These documents must be tendered within a reasonable time from the time agreed upon for shipment of the goods which they represent. If the contract of sale provides that payment is to be made by draft drawn on the buyer, the latter is bound to accept the draft on tender of the proper documents. This he must do even though the goods be lost or destroyed at the time the draft is presented. The delivery he is entitled to as against payment of the contract price is not the goods contracted for but their symbol represented usually by the Bill of Lading, Charter-party, Invoice and Policy of Insurance. Upon payment he can, upon arrival of the ship demand the goods themselves, and should these not be forthcoming, or, when forthcoming, not be of the nature contracted for, all his remedies at law are then open to him.

Clemens Horst Co. v. Biddell Brothers, (1912) A. C. 718; 81 L. J. K. B. 42; 105 L. T. 563; 17 Com. Cas. 55; 12 Asp. M. C. 81; 56 S. J. 50; 28 T. L. R. 42, relied on. L. BUBBY MURRY & Co. v. HERTZ & Co., (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 541; 4 L. 215 421

Construction of document—Admission of executant, value of.

The admission of the executant of a document cannot be utilised to contradict the document. Evidence cannot be admitted to show the intention of the executant which is not disclosed by the authorised channel, namely, the words which he himself selected.

Great Western Railway v. Bristol Corporation, (1918) 87 L. J. Ch. 414; 16 L. G. R. 393, relied on. O. MONMOTHA NATH v. PROBODH CHANDRA; 37 C. L. J. 52; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 102 416

—"Auladdar aulad," meaning of.

The expression auladdar aulad in a document includes descendants whether male or females except descendants through females.

Abdul Ganne Kasam v. Hussien Miya Rahim-tulla, 10 B. H. C. R. 7, followed. B. SAVAD MIKA SAHEB SAHAJI MIA RAPI v. BAI CHHOTI BEGAM 427

—Document making mention of executant's heir—Intention to convey title.

A Hindu lady who had an absolute estate in certain property executed a mukhtarnama in favour of one G, her son-in-law, which contained the following clause: "My daughter's son R is my heir, but he is now a minor and is unable to manage the village and Court affairs personally. I, the executant, am a parda nashin lady, and it is impossible for me to manage the village and Court affairs unless I appoint a general agent. Therefore, of my own accord, and free will I have appointed G, as my general agent. This mukhtarnama shall remain in force until my grandson R attains his majority. On attaining his majority he shall either look after his affairs personally or appoint a mukhtar."

Held, (1) that the whole object of the power-of-attorney was simply to arrange that as R, whom the executant believed to be her heir was a minor, and as she herself was unable to manage her affairs personally, G, who was R's father, should look after the estate until the latter attained his majority;

(2) that the expression "my daughter's son R is my heir" was merely a statement of belief and was not intended to convey title;

(3) that the expression "on attaining his majority he should either look after his affairs personally or appoint a mukhtar" did not, and was not intended definitely to, confer any right, but was merely a statement of what would take place in normal course on the assumption that in law R was the executant's heir;

(4) that, therefore, the clause in the power-of-attorney was not a Will of a disposition of property in any sense, nor could it be regarded in any way as a declaration of trust conveying any definite rights. PAT RAM BAHADUR SEN v. GANESH BHAGAT 542

—Substantial question of law. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (ACT V OF 1908), s. 110 407

—Wajib-ul-arz—Hindu widow—Adoption.

A group of villages was owned by Hindus belonging to the same caste. In the wajib-ul-arz of some villages it was stated that widows could adopt sons to their deceased husbands without having an authority from them to that effect. In the wajib-ul-arz of the other villages it was simply stated that the widows could adopt:

Construction of document—contd.

Held, that the statements were not inconsistent and amounted to the same thing that the widows could adopt without an authority to that effect from their deceased husbands. P O BISWA NATH SINGH v. JUGAL KISHORE, (1923) A. I. R. (P. C.) 90; 18 L. W. 88; 45 M. L. J. 215; 9 O. & A. L. R. (P. C.) 563; (1923) M. W. N. 620; 26 O. C. 228; 38 C. L. J. 299; 33 M. L. T. 289 (P. C.) 244

————— Wajib-ul-arz—Record of custom or contract.

A village confiscated by the Government during the Mutiny was re-granted to a single individual. At a subsequent Settlement a record was made in the wajib-ul-arz, purporting to be a record of a custom of pre-emption in the village:

Held, that having regard to the history of the village there could not have been a custom of pre-emption in existence at the time of the regrant and that the record must be deemed to be a record of contract and not of custom. A SHIB DRI v. KANIZ FATIMA, 21 A. L. J. 99; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 282 538

————— Will or gift—Invalidity of one clause, whether affects whole Will—Muhammadian Law—Rule against perpetuities, applicability of.

In dealing with the internal evidence of a document which purports to be a Will upon its own character, neither the reservation of property to the testator nor the alleged delivery of possession to the legatees are in themselves sufficient to destroy the apparent character of the document.

Actual delivery of possession to a beneficiary is not fatal to the character of a testamentary bequest. It is evidence against the disposition being testamentary but it is not a fact which per se annuls its testamentary character. As evidence it can be rebutted by other evidence.

It is a natural and intelligible position that a testator may wish to put his legatees in immediate possession to test the success of the disposition, to avoid disputes as to the interpretation of the Will and to familiarise the beneficiaries with their eventual properties. Courts must necessarily recognise such temporary possession as not incompatible with a Will, provided that the disposition to which such possession gives effect is unmistakably revocable and that possession is not intended to confer a permanent title during the testator's lifetime.

The essential of a gift is that the donor should intend immediately to divest himself of the property.

The rule against perpetuities does not rest solely on the religious laws of Hindus or Muhammadans but on general considerations of public policy.

With the exception of a wakf, or a charitable devise, the Muhammadan Law does not favour a perpetuity.

A testator directed by his Will that certain property should always be held by the senior member in his line of descent provided he possessed certain qualifications, and that the property should not be the subject of an alienation:

Construction of document—contd.

Held, that the devise offended against the rule against perpetuities and was invalid.

The invalidity of one clause in a Will does not invalidate the whole, if that clause does not affect other provisions of the Will. Pesh YUSAF KHAN v. MISAL KHAN 99 ————— Construction of Statutes—Legislative recognition of judicial construction.

The Legislature is presumed to know not only the general principles of law but also the construction which the Courts have put upon particular Statutes.

Where a section of an Act which has received a judicial construction is re-enacted in the same words, such re-enactment is treated as a legislative recognition of that construction. MAHAMMAD MAZAHARAI AHAD v. MAHAMMAD AZIMUDDIN, 37 C. L. J. 108; 27 C. W. N. 210; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 507 17 ————— Contract—Breach of promise—Cause of action.

If there is a contract binding upon the co-sharers of a village, by the terms of which one of them is not to sell any share in the village to a stranger without offering the other co-sharers an opportunity of purchasing at the same price and a co-sharer does in fact sell a share in the village to a stranger in contravention of the terms of that contract, the circumstance that the period for which the contract was to run, came to an end before another co-sharer could institute a suit to enforce his right, will not deprive the latter of his right to maintain the suit upon the cause of action which had already arisen. A RAM BHAROSE v. CHANDRA SHEKHAR DAT, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 135 295 ————— Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 23—Public policy—Consideration for stifling prosecution in non-compoundable offence, whether recoverable.

Where an offence which is non-compoundable is compounded, the complainant cannot recover by civil action anything that the accused has undertaken to pay, such an agreement being void as opposed to public policy.

Shah Rahman v. Ismail Khan, 82 P. R. 1904, Ghulam Mohi-ud-din v. Deoki Nand, 22 Ind. Cas. 393; 39 P. R. 1914; 54 P. L. R. 1914; 57 P. W. R. 1914, Nujebar Rahmam v. Mukhtashed Husain, 15 Ind. Cas. 259; 40 C. 113; 16 C. W. N. 854, relied on.

Where during the investigation of a case of theft a panchayat was held and some of the persons who were suspected of the theft agreed to pay a certain sum of money to the complainant, as a consequence of which the investigation was dropped:

Held, that the agreement by the suspected persons to pay a sum of money to the complainant was unlawful as being opposed to public policy and the complainant, therefore, could not recover the money. L NAZAR v. PARAS 668 ss. 23, 25—Unlawful consideration—Debt incurred when borrower under Court of Wards—Inadequacy of consideration.

Contract Act—contd.

A debt unenforceable at law because of its having been incurred by a ward of the Court of Wards is not an unlawful consideration, within the meaning of section 23 of the Contract Act, for a bond executed after the estate is released by the Court of Wards.

A consideration for a bond is not inadequate within the meaning of Explanation II of section 25 of the Indian Contract Act, if a portion of it consists of a debt which was unenforceable because of its having been incurred at a time when the debtor was a ward of the Court of Wards. A. BINDESHRI PRASAD v. SARJU SINGH, 21 A. L. J. 446 458

s. 25 (3)—Stamp Act (I I of 1899), s. 2 (5), Sch. I, Art. 15—Written promise to pay barred debt, requisites of—Promise, whether bond.

A document sufficiently complies with the provisions of section 25 (3) of the Contract Act, if it is signed by the person to be charged, and refers to the debt in such a way as to identify it, and contains a promise to pay wholly or in part the debt referred to therein, or expresses an intention to pay which can be construed to be a promise.

Appa Rao v. Suryaprasada Rao, 23 M. 94; 9 M. L. J. 330; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 459, relied on.

A written promise to pay a barred debt is not a bond within the meaning of the Stamp Act and is not required by any of the provisions of the Act to be stamped.

Defendant pleaded in answer to a suit on a promissory note that the suit was barred by time. Plaintiff produced certain letters written by the defendant containing a clear promise to pay the debt. The suit was within limitation from the date of these letters, although the debt had become barred before the letters were written:

Held, that having regard to the provisions of section 25 (3) of the Contract Act the suit must be held to be within limitation. L. DAVID SUTHERLAND CLARK v. MRS. ROSE GRIMSHAW, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 481 652

s. 30—Wagering contract—Collateral contract, whether enforceable.

Section 30 of the Contract Act does not prevent a person who is employed as agent in connection with wagering contracts from recovering sums due to him by his principal.

Shibho Mal v. Lachman Das, 23 A. 165; A. W. N. (1901) 33 and Jagat Narain v. Sri Kishan Das, 8 Ind. Cas. 783; 33 A. 219; 7 A. L. J. 1146, followed. A. BIDHI CHAND v. KACHHU MAL, 45 A. 503 477 ss. 38, 45—Mortgages—Redemption—Payment to one co-mortgagee, whether discharges mortgage—Specification of shares, effect of—Presumption.

Courts in India have always recognised that equity demands that the redemption of mortgages shall be facilitated.

Contract Act—contd.

It has always been regarded as a matter of public policy that the restoration of land to its original owner and the release of land from the burden of incumbrances are in themselves desirable, and an insistence on the proposition that a mortgagor is obliged to satisfy separately every one of a number of co-mortgagees, may operate to effect a clog on the equity of redemption. It would in many cases have the effect of forcing a mortgagor into Court as his only means of ensuring redemption.

At the same time the least fraud between the mortgagor and one of several co-mortgagees with the intention of defeating the rights of the latter would deprive the mortgagor of his right to obtain release by a single payment. This would be a question of fact in each case, and it must be accepted that a principle of equity which allows one of several co-mortgagees to give a valid discharge must be qualified throughout by the equally equitable condition that there has been no attempt to defeat or prejudice the rights of other persons.

The mere specification of shares among the mortgagees themselves does not necessarily affect the mortgagor. For the mortgagor to be affected it must be shown not only that the shares of the mortgagees have been specified, but that the essence of the contract between them and the mortgagor was that he should redeem according to those shares. In the absence of a direct contract to this effect, it must be assumed that the liability of the mortgagor is joint and not several as regards the whole body of co-mortgagees.

Section 38 of the Contract Act applies to an offer which has been accepted as well as to an offer which has been refused; but whether section 38 of the Contract Act applies to payment to one of several joint mortgagees or not, the rule of equity applicable to India is that, in the absence of fraud or an intention to defeat the rights of other mortgagees, payment to a single mortgagee, discharges the mortgagor. The mere specification of the shares held by the mortgagees in a Revenue Record is not sufficient in itself to warrant the assumption that the mortgagor is bound by the division of those shares, and it lies upon the mortgagees to show that a definite contract subsisted between the parties which recognised this division.

Barbar Maran v. Ramana Goundan, 20 M. 461; 7 M. L. J. 269; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 327 and Mannava Annappuramma v. Uppala Akkayyao, 19 Ind. Cas. 12; 36 M. 544; 13 M. L. T. 263; (1913) M. W. N. 328; 24 M. L. J. 333 (F. B.), approved of. Mathra Das v. Nizam Din, 41 Ind. Cas. 921; 68 P. R. 1917; 107 P. L. R. 1917; 81 P. W. R. 1917 (F. B.) dissented from.

Jagat Tarini Dasi v. Nabo Gopal Chakr, 34 C. 3051; 5 C. L. J. 270, Sitaram v. Shridhar, 27 B. 292; 5 Bom. L. R. 91, Parbhu Ram Pandey v. Jhalo Kuer, 42 Ind. Cas. 408; 2 P. L. J. 520; (1917) Pat. 258; 4 P. L. W. 57 and Ram Chandra v. Goswami Rajjan Lal, 5 Ind. Cas. 129; 32 B. 164; 7 A. L. J. 99, considered. Pesh GULMIRAN v. ABDUL RAHIM KHAN, 682

s. 62—Contract, novation of—Non-performance—Original contract, reversion to.

Contract Act—contd.

Where, although the defendant is, by virtue of a contract entered into with the plaintiff, under a liability to the latter, both the parties agree to have their rights determined by an arbitrator and the arbitrator does determine the defendant's liability, it is not open to the plaintiff. On failure of the defendant to satisfy his claim in accordance with the award, to revert to the original contract and bring a claim in violation of the terms of the award and based upon the original contract.

Manohur Koyal v. Thakur Das Naskar, 15 C. 319; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 796, dissented from.

K. M. P. R. N. M., Firm v. P. T. Theperumal Chetty, 67 Ind. Cas. 905; 45 M. 180; 14 L. W. 660; (1921) M. W. N. 861; 42 M. L. J. 236; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 314; 31 M. L. T. 478, relied upon. A RAM NATH v. MANNU LAL, 21 A. I. J. 380; 45 A. 472; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 518 615

s. 91—Railways Act (IX of 1890), s. 72 (3)—Delivery of goods by seller to Railway for consignment to buyer—Property in goods—Seller's right to sue for damages.

Where a seller delivers goods to a Railway Company for consignment to the buyer, the property in the goods passes to the buyer under section 91 of the Contract Act and the latter alone can sue the Railway Company for damages caused by non-delivery.

Dawes v. Peck, (1799) 8 T. R. 330; 8 Esp. 12; 101 E. R. 1417, followed. M. M. & S. M. Ry. Co. v. K. RANGASWAMY CHETTY 537

s. 133—Principal and surety—Variance in contract—Discharge of surety.

A suit to recover a sum of money was compromised on the terms that the amount in suit should be paid by the defendant by certain instalments and that meanwhile an attachment order made against the property of the defendant in the course of the suit should remain in force until the terms of the compromise had been complied with. One F became surety for the performance of the terms by the defendants. Subsequently, the Court, without the knowledge or consent of the surety, gave the defendant liberty to sell the attached property privately on certain conditions. The surety, thereupon, applied to the Court to be discharged from his obligation:

Held, (1), that the attachment order itself carried with it power in the Court to order a sale of the property attached, and that, therefore, the order giving liberty to the defendant to sell did not amount to a variance of the contract between the principal and the creditor;

(2), that in any case the order giving the defendant liberty to sell not having been acted upon, amounted at most to an agreement to vary the contract and did not amount to an actual variance of its terms;

(3), that, therefore, on neither ground could the surety claim to be discharged from his obligation. L. DASHAN RAM-GANESH DAS v. KHAN DUN-ALLAH BAKESH 3

Contract Act—concl.

s. 200—Kovilagam property—Previous mortgage—Grant of melcharth by unauthorised person—Ratification.

The grant of a melcharth in Kovilagam properties itself does not of itself terminate the interest of a previous mortgagee. That interest is terminated not solely on account of the grant of the melcharth but only if and when the melcharthdar also finds money for redemption and pays it to the previous mortgagee. Therefore, where a melcharth is granted in property previously mortgaged by a person who has not the authority to do so, there is no bar to the same being ratified under section 200 of the Contract Act by the person who is really competent to grant the melcharth. M KOZHICKOT PATINHARE KOVILAGATH THAMBATTI THAMBU-RATHI v. SANKARA MENON 376

s. 230—Principal and agent—Contract with foreign merchant—Personal liability of agent—Presumption.

Under section 230 of the Contract Act an agent is not personally bound by a contract entered into by him on behalf of his principal in the absence of any contract to that effect. Such a contract, however, has to be presumed to exist when the contract is made by the agent for the sale or purchase of goods for a merchant resident abroad. But this presumption is not applicable where the contract is entered into directly with the foreign merchant, the agent acting merely as a sort of post office and undertaking no sort of responsibility.

Tulika Basavaraju v. Parry & Co., 27 M. 315, Arunachalam Chettiar v. Kasi Nevenda Pillai, 24 Ind. Cas. 1007, Puran Chand v. Tara Singh, 138 P. L. R. 1905, Bharagava & Co. v. B. Koltayashi, 65 Ind. Cas. 468; 2 L. L. J. 374; 18 P. W. R. 1922, relied on.

Fazal Ilahi v. Imperial Chemical Co., Delhi, 67 Ind. Cas. 157, distinguished. L. FIRM DEOKI NANDAN v. RAM LAL AULAK, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 295 885

Costs—Discretion—High Court, interference by.

The High Court will not interfere with the reasonable exercise of discretion by an Appellate Court in the matter of costs. O. RAJENDRA NARAYAN v. GHAFOR KHAN, 9 O. & A. L. R. 77 307

Court-fees—Partition suit—Appeal—Deficiency in Court-fees—Extension of time—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 5—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 149.

A plaint or a memorandum of appeal in a suit for partition must bear ad valorem Court-fees on the value of the share claimed by the plaintiff whether the latter is out of possession or is in joint possession of the property in dispute.

Tara Chand Mukherji v. Afzal Beg, 13 Ind. Cas. 185; 34 A. 184; 8 A. L. J. 1329, Harcharan Das v. Sukhraj Das, 62 Ind. Cas. 979, dissented from.

As a general principle, it is always advisable in the interests of justice that an appeal should be heard on its merits in preference to being rejected on any technical points of law.

Court-fees—concl'd.

Where there could have been no misapprehension as to the amount of Court-fees payable on a memorandum of appeal, and the memorandum is nevertheless deficiently stamped, the appellant cannot get any indulgence by way of extension of time under section 5 of the Limitation Act or section 149 of the Civil Procedure Code. Pesh MURLI MAL v. VAISHNO DITTA 788

Court-Fees Act (VII of 1870), ss. 5, 7, (iv) (c)

—Suit for declaration and confirmation of possession, nature of—Consequential relief—Valuation—Court-fees—Taxing Officer, decision of—High Court, whether can interfere.

In a suit falling under section 7 (iv) (c) of the Court-Fees Act it is not open to the plaintiff to put an arbitrary and incorrect valuation on the relief sought. In such a case the valuation for the purposes of Court-fees must, in the first instance, be made by the plaintiff but is finally determinable by the Court. The valuation must be fixed with reference to the value of the subject-matter of the relief, that is to say, the money value of the loss which the plaintiff apprehends.

A prayer for confirmation of possession includes a prayer for recovery of possession if the Court thinks the plaintiff is out of possession and amounts to consequential relief within the meaning of section 7 (iv) (c) of the Court Fees Act.

Bokuronnissa Bibee v. Kureemmoonissa Khatoon, 19 W. R. 18, Jhumak Karti v. Debu Lal Singh, 16 Ind. Cas. 898, 22 C. L. J. 415, Dina Nath Das v. Rama Nath Das, 34 Ind. Cas. 702; 23 C. L. J. 561, followed.

A suit for declaration and confirmation of possession must, therefore, be valued for purposes of Court-fees according to the value of the land in dispute.

Under section 5 of the Court Fees Act the Taxing Officer has jurisdiction to fix the amount of fee payable, and if he decides that the valuation put by the appellant on the relief sought is incorrect he has jurisdiction to correct it. His decision as to the amount of fee payable is final, and the High Court has no jurisdiction to interfere with it, even if he has done something which the law does not allow him to do.

Balharan Rai v. Gobind Nath Tewari, 12 A. 129; A. W. N. (1890) 39; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 831, Karan Singh v. Gopal Rai, 4 Ind. Cas. 123; 32 A. 59; 6 A. L. J. 972, Lagan Baral Kuar v. Khakhan Singh, 43 Ind. Cas. 521; 3 P. L. J. 92, Chanderbati Kuer v. Gorey Lal Singh, 52 Ind. Cas. 508; 4 P. L. J. 700, followed. PAT RAMSEKHAR PRASAD SINGH v. SHEONANDAN DUBEY, 4 P. L. T. 71; 1 P. L. R. 25; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 137; 2 Pat. 198 43

—s. 7 (iv) (c), Sch. II, Art. 17 (iii)—Suit for declaration that certain property is wakf and that a decree obtained in respect of it shall not affect it, nature of—Court-fee payable.

Certain trust property was mortgaged by the trustee to the defendant who obtained a decree on his mortgage and obtained possession of the property. Plaintiffs, who were not parties to the decree, brought a suit for a declaration that the property was public property, that the trustee had no right to mortgage it, and that the decree for possession obtained in respect of it by the defendant was void and inoperative and not liable to execution:

Court-Fees Act—cont'd.

Held, (1) that the suit was in its essence one for a declaration only and that the plaint did not disclose any claim for a consequential relief;

(2) that the plaintiffs not being parties to the decree obtained by the defendant on his mortgage, it was not incumbent on them to ask for an injunction prohibiting the defendant from executing the decree;

(3) that, therefore, the suit fell under Art. 17 of Schedule II to the Court Fees Act and not under section 7 (iv) (c) of the Act.

Amin Chand v. Sant Murli Dhar, 19 Ind. Cas. 219; 18 P. R. 1913; 151 P. W. R. 1913; 211 P. L. R. 1913, followed. L NIHAL DEVI v. CHUNI LAL, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 373; 5 L. L. J. 357 767

—s. 7 (v) (d)—Suit for possession by usufructuary mortgagee—Court-fee payable—“Market-value”, meaning of.

In a suit for possession as usufructuary mortgagee, the Court-fee payable is on the market-value of the mortgagee interest in the property, i.e., the mortgage-money, on payment of which the property can, at any time, be redeemed.

The expression “market-value,” in section 7 (v) (d) of the Court Fees Act, means the market-value of the subject-matter of the suit. O MAHDI v. GAJADHAR, 9 O. & A. L. R. 85 244

—s. 7 (x) (a)—Contract of sale—Contract of exchange—Suit for specific performance—Court-fee payable.

Defendant agreed to transfer certain land to the plaintiff in return for certain land belonging to the plaintiff and Rs. 600 in cash. The defendant failed to carry out the agreement and plaintiff sued for specific performance of the contract or in the alternative for return of the money paid by him to the defendant with interest:

Held, (1) that the contract between the parties was one of sale inasmuch as part of the consideration to be paid by the plaintiff was a sum of money;

(2) that the suit fell within section 7 (x) (a) of the Court Fees Act and Court-fees were payable on the land, plus Rs. 600, which the plaintiff had agreed to pay to the defendant in exchange for the defendant's land.

Semle:—A suit for the specific performance of a contract of exchange falls under section (x) (a) of the Court Fees Act. L KUNDAN LAL v. ANAND SARUP, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 456 709 Criminal breach of trust—Property in possession of third person—Order directing detention of property, legality of.

In a case of a criminal breach of trust in respect of a motor car which, it appeared, had been sold by the accused to a third person the Magistrate made an order directing that the car should remain in Court until further orders:

Held, that as regards the purchaser of the car there was a gross abuse of the process of a Criminal Court by utilising criminal proceedings to which he was not a party for the detention of property which he had bought and of which he was in possession, whether or not the seller had a right to sell it to him. C KEDAR NATH DEY v. MOHAMMED SIDIK 807

Criminal breach of trust—concl'd.

Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), ss. 10, 195 (1) (a)—Police Act (V of 1861), s. 4, District Magistrate acting under, whether Court—Jurisdiction of Sessions Judge to interfere—Revision whether competent—Superintendent of Police whether subordinate to District Magistrate.

Where a District Magistrate has authority to grant and does grant, contrary to the opinion of the Superintendent of Police, sanction to prosecute a person on the allegation that he had committed contempt of the lawful authority of an officer in-charge of a Police station, he does so by virtue of the provisions of section 4 of the Police Act. He is, however, not acting as the Presiding Officer of the Court of a District Magistrate, constituted under the Criminal Procedure Code and consequently a Sessions Judge has no jurisdiction to interfere with his order. His order, not being that of a Court of Justice, is not subject to the revisional jurisdiction of a High Court.

The Superintendent of Police of a District is subject to the Magistrate of that district within the meaning of section 195 (1) (a) of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Emperor v. Shib Singh, 27 A. 292; 1 A. L. J. 597; A. W. N. (1904) 231; 1 Cr. L. J. 899, relied on.

Emperor v. Sarada Prosad Chatterjee, 32 C. 80; 2 Cr. L. J. 171, not followed. A CHHOTAY LAL v. CHHEDI LAL, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 149; 45 A. 1351; 24 Cr. L. J. 597 341

s. 89—Proceedings against absconder—Sale—Application for restoration allowed, effect of—Properly, whether can be restored.

Where an application under section 89 of the Criminal Procedure Code is allowed after the property has been sold, the successful applicant is not entitled to restoration of the property but only to the nett proceeds of the sale of the property. EMPEROR v. FAZAL DAD, 24 Cr. L. J. 573. 269 ss. 107, 125—Security for keeping peace—Appeal, right of—Jurisdiction of District Magistrate to take executive action.

No appeal lies from an order under section 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code, but where a person bound down under that section applies to the District Magistrate to consider the case under section 125 of the Criminal Procedure Code and cancel the bond, the latter is within his jurisdiction to take executive action for the settlement of the dispute and direct the applicant to be discharged from his security, that is, cancel the bond, if he comes to a finding that there was no real danger of a breach of the peace.

Durga Singh v. Amar Dayal Singh, 66 Ind. Cas. 425; 3 P. L. T. 103; 23 Cr. L. J. 281; (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 334, distinguished. PAT MONMOHAN DASS v. BABU LAL, (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 420; 24 Cr. L. J. 627 515

ss. 107, 125, 435 (4)—Jurisdiction of District Magistrate under s. 125, nature of.

Criminal Procedure Code—cont'd.

—Proceeding under s. 107—District Magistrate not moved—Jurisdiction of Sessions Judge to refer to High Court—District Magistrate's Court, whether subordinate to that of Sessions Judge.

The jurisdiction of a District Magistrate under section 125 of the Criminal Procedure Code is neither appellate nor revisional, it is merely confined to examining the record to satisfy himself whether it is no longer necessary to keep the parties under the bond.

Panarsi Das v. Partab Singh, 18 Ind. Cas. 351; 35 A. 103; 11 A. L. J. 16; 14 Cr. L. J. 63 and Sheo Singh v. Emperor, 26 Ind. Cas. 169; 1 O. L. J. 541; 15 Cr. L. J. 721, relied on.

A Sessions Judge has jurisdiction to refer a proceeding under section 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code to the High Court even where no application has first been made to the District Magistrate under section 125 of the Code.

Sita Ram v. Emperor, 39 Ind. Cas. 998; 39 A. 466; 15 A. L. J. 469; 18 Cr. L. J. 630, relied on.

Lalji v. Emperor, 43 Ind. Cas. 604; 16 A. L. J. 39; 40 A. 140; 19 Cr. L. J. 188, dissented from.

As a Court of Revision, the Court of District Magistrate is not inferior to that of the Sessions Judge. But when a District Magistrate passes an order as a Court of original jurisdiction, that Court is subordinate to the Court of Sessions Judge which can exercise revisional powers. O EMPEROR v. BALWAT SINGH, 9 O. & A. L. R. 344; 24 Cr. L. J. 616 504 ss. 107, 145—Proceedings under s. 107—District Magistrate, power of, to interfere—Direction to Subordinate Magistrate, to initiate proceedings under s. 145—District Magistrate, jurisdiction of.

A District Magistrate has no power to set aside an order made under section 107 of the Criminal Procedure Code by a Magistrate subordinate to him. If he finds that an improper order has been made, all he can do is to submit the case to the High Court for the exercise of its revisional powers.

A District Magistrate has no jurisdiction to direct a Magistrate subordinate to him to take proceedings under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code. PAT BANSIDHAR MARWARI v. INDAR NARAYAN SINGH, 1 P. L. R. 93 Cr.; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 438; 24 Cr. L. J. 545 161

s. 108—Accused required to furnish security—Subsequent conviction of substantive offence—Security withdrawn—Commitment to Jail—Date from which substantive sentence to commence.

Accused was, on 23rd May 1921, ordered to furnish security under section 108, Criminal Procedure Code, for one year, or undergo imprisonment for that period. On 31st July 1921 he was convicted of a substantive offence under section 500, Penal Code, and sentenced to undergo three months' simple imprisonment, but he remained on bail till 23rd November 1921, when the bail-bond was cancelled. In the meanwhile, on the 16th October 1921, he withdrew his security and on 23rd November 1921 was committed to Jail under section 108, Criminal Procedure Code: The question was whether the substantive sentence of three months should commence on the date the bail-bond was cancelled, or on the expiry of the period of one year under section 108:

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Held, that the sentence of imprisonment under section 500, Penal Code, took effect on 23rd November 1921 when accused's bail-bond was cancelled, as on the date on which that sentence was imposed, he was not undergoing a sentence of imprisonment. O GANESH SHANKAR VIDYARTHI v. EMPEROR, 25 O. C. 249; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 56; 24 Cr. L. J. 577 321

s. 110—Evidence of instances in which accused suspected, value of—Corroboration.

Evidence of instances in which the accused has been suspected, is not evidence of general repute, nor evidence on which the Court can bind the accused over under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code, but such evidence may be admissible as corroborating independent evidence given of accused's reputation. O SANKU v. EMPEROR, 9 O. & A. L. R. 269; 24 Cr. L. J. 608 352

s. 110, proceedings under, resulting in discharge of accused—Fresh proceedings started after short interval—Court, duty of—Definite offence alleged—Procedure.

Where proceedings against an accused person under section 110 of the Criminal Procedure Code result in his discharge, and within a very short time thereafter fresh proceedings are started against him, it is the duty of the Court to see that there is sufficient evidence of his conduct after the conclusion of the previous proceedings to justify the fresh proceedings. If the allegation against him is of a definite offence, he ought to be prosecuted for that offence, without having resort to second hand evidence of that offence to prejudice the case against him under section 110, Criminal Procedure Code. O SHAKUR v. EMPEROR, 9 O. & A. L. R. 90; 26 O. C. 242; 24 Cr. L. J. 565 261 ss. 110, 118, 121, 514—Security for good behaviour—Forfeiture, grounds for—Offence, commission of before making of order—Commission of offence, proof of.

The period for which a person is bound over to be of good behaviour begins from the date on which he is bound over.

Therefore, where security is given for good behaviour neither the principal nor the surety can be made liable for an offence which occurred before the security was given.

A conviction is ordinarily considered necessary to establish that an offence has been committed but the commission of an offence, within the meaning of section 121 of the Criminal Procedure Code may be proved otherwise than by a conviction, for instance, by evidence recorded under section 512 of the Code.

The flight of a person accused of dacoity to Independent Afridi territory raises a strong presumption of the intention of the absconder to join a band of dacoits. In such a case a bond for good behaviour given under section 118 of the Criminal

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Procedure Code, on proceedings taken under section 110 of the Code is liable to forfeiture, provided evidence is produced to show either that the person bound committed an offence in British India prior to his absconding and during the currency of the bond, or that during the same period he committed an offence during his outlawry punishable with imprisonment. PESH MANSUR v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 588 332

ss. 110, 435—Sessions Judge, powers of, in cases under s. 110—Private inquiries influencing judicial decision, effect of.

A Sessions Judge has power, under section 435 of the Criminal Procedure Code, to call for the record of proceedings under section 110 of that Code, before an inferior Criminal Court within his jurisdiction, and to refer the matter to the High Court.

Where a Magistrate has made private inquiries, and has allowed actual information ad hominem to influence his judgment in a judicial decision against particular individuals brought before him by process of law, his order is liable to be quashed as being vitiated by the admission of such information. A SHIQ ALI v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 513; 24 Cr. L. J. 593 337

s. 118—Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act (II of 1919), s. 7—Surety-bond plus restriction order, legality of.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to direct an accused person to furnish securities for good behaviour under section 118 of the Criminal Procedure Code and at the same time to pass an order under section 7 of the Burma Habitual Offenders Restriction Act, restricting the movement of the accused. L B PAN ZYAW v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (R.) 1341 24 Cr. L. J. 735 975

s. 122—Surety for good behaviour—Surety offered, fitness of.

Where a person is directed to furnish sureties for his good behaviour, the fact that a surety offered by him has already become surety for another is no ground for not accepting him. O GHISA v. EMPEROR, 9 O. & A. L. R. 40; 24 Cr. L. J. 517 53

s. 133—Public nuisance—Obstruction to public path—Bona fide claim of right—Jurisdiction—Magistrate issuing rule whether competent to make it absolute on report of another Magistrate.

In a proceeding under section 133 of the Criminal Procedure Code for the purpose of compelling the removal of an obstruction from a public way, where a bona fide question as to the way being public is raised, there is no jurisdiction to make an order under the section, and the question should be left for determination by the Civil Court. To have this effect, however, the claim must be bona fide and not a mere pretence to oust jurisdiction, and it is for the Magistrate to say whether the claim is bona fide or not.

Queen-Empress v. Bisseessur Sahu, 17 C. 962; 8 Ind. Dec. (N.S.) 914, relied on:

A Magistrate who issues a conditional Rule under section 133 of the Criminal Procedure Code is competent to make the Rule absolute upon the evidence recorded and report submitted to him by another Magistrate to whom he had referred the matter under the last paragraph of clause (1) of section 133.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

In re Narasimha, 9 M. 291; 10 Ind. Jur. 185; 2 Weir 60; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 537, relied on. PAT CHANDRIKA KOERI v. BUDHU DUSADH, 24 Cr. L. J. 690

— ss. 133, 135, 141—Obstruction—Jury, appointment of—Failure to return verdict—Procedure.

Where a person against whom a conditional order is made under section 133 of the Criminal Procedure Code obtains the appointment of a jury, but the jury, for any reason, does not return a verdict within the time fixed by the Magistrate the latter must inquire into the matter before he passes a final order.

Raimohan Karmohar v. Emperor, 35 Ind. Cas. 969; 44 C. 61; 20 C. W. N. 1171; 17 Cr. L. J. 409, relied on. PAT AJODHYA TEWARI v. EMPEROR, 4 P. L. T. 13; 1 P. L. R. 22 Cr.; (1923 A. I. R. (Pat) 131; 24 Cr. L. J. 583

— ss. 133, 137—Nuisance—Inquiry—Procedure—Order based on oral inquiry, legality of.

The procedure to be followed in an inquiry under Chapter XI of the Criminal Procedure Code is that provided for a summons-case, and the Magistrate is bound to record the evidence produced by the parties.

Sita Ram v. Emperor, 41 Ind. Cas. 1000; 32 P. R. 197 Cr.; 18 Cr. L. J. 888; 43 P. W. R. 1917 Cr., Hingu v. Emperor, 3 Ind. Cas. 482; 31 A. 453; 6 A. L. J. 685; 10 Cr. L. J. 297, Srinath Roy v. Ainadd Halder, 24 C. 395; 1 C. W. N. 217; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 930, relied on.

An order under that Chapter based on an oral inquiry is illegal and liable to be set aside. L. MAM CHAND v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 615

— s. 137—Title, dispute as to—Conditional order, propriety of.

Where there is a genuine dispute as to title suitable for decision by the Civil Court, that is a sufficient ground within the meaning of section 137 of the Criminal Procedure Code for holding that a conditional order under section 137 is not reasonable and proper. O. BHAGWAN DAS v. EMPEROR, 9 O. & A. L. R. 35; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 1521 24 Cr. L. J. 635 — ss. 144, 435, 439—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 188—Order under s. 144—Extension of period by Local Government, limits on—Reasons for extension—Disobedience of order—Offence—Revision—Ground, new, whether can be urged before High Court.

The Local Government when extending the period during which an order under section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code is to remain in force, is not concerned with the reasons given by the Magistrate for the order, but with the actual order passed by him, and if the Local Government considers that there is danger to human life, health or safety or a likelihood of a riot or an affray in allowing the act which has been prohibited by the Magistrate, it is perfectly competent under clause (5) of section 144 to extend the period of the order.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

The Legislature has not seen fit to limit the time for which the force of an order under section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code may be extended by the Local Government under clause (5) of the section, and under the terms of the clause it is competent to the Local Government to extend the order so long as the danger which it apprehends continues to exist.

There is nothing in clause (5) of section 144 of the Criminal Procedure Code which requires the Local Government to state its reasons for extending the period of the order or even to state the fact of a likelihood of a riot or affray or other danger which it apprehends and it is not open to the High Court to add to the section a condition not imposed by the Legislature.

Under section 188 of the Penal Code, if the Court finds that the order, disobedience of which is sought to be punished, was a legal order, it has only to see whether the accused disobeyed the order, and, if so, whether such disobedience caused or tended to cause the effects specified in the second and third paragraphs of the section.

The object of requiring an application for revision to be presented first to the District Magistrate or to the Sessions Judge is, that the High Court in dealing with the matter may have before it a reasoned opinion of the two Courts on the points at issue, and this object will be largely defeated if applicants are allowed to take in the High Court points which they did not press before the lower Appellate Court. A BHURE MAL v. EMPEROR, 45 A. 526; 24 Cr. L. J. 689

— s. 145—Final order—Finding of apprehension of breach of peace, whether necessary.

In making a final order under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code, it is not necessary for the Magistrate to record a finding that there is an apprehension of a breach of the peace, such a finding is necessary only for the purpose of the preliminary order when the Magistrate assumes jurisdiction under that section. L. GANGA RAM v. MURAD SHAH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 253; 24 Cr. L. J. 631

— s. 145, proceeding under—Decree of Civil Court, awarding possession, effect of—Possession, mode of delivery of, whether material.

A Magistrate, in declaring possession in a proceeding under section 145, Criminal Procedure Code, cannot go behind a decision of a Civil Court in the matter. It is not for him to question the validity of the decree on the ground that it was passed without jurisdiction.

When a decree such as the above is inter partes it is immaterial whether the delivery of possession under it was symbolical or not. O. AKHOY MONDAL v. BASU RAI, 27 C. W. N. 267; 37 C. L. J. 256; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 176; 24 Cr. L. J. 517

— s. 145, proceeding under—Procedure.

The object of section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code is to prevent a breach of the peace by a summary decision as to the possession of the con-

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

tending parties, leaving them to decide their title and right to possession in a competent Civil Court where, naturally, the proceeding has to be a protracted one. It is, therefore, incumbent upon Magistrates to dispose of proceedings under section 145 of the Code as quickly as possible and with due regard to the rules of procedure prescribed by that self-contained section. The procedure for the trial of a case under this section is that laid down for the trial of summons-cases. PAT MOTI SINGH v. DEANUKDHARI SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (Pat) 53; 24 Cr. L. J. 595

— s. 145, proceeding under—Written statement, failure of one party to file, effect of—Jurisdiction of, Magistrate—Transfer of case to another Magistrate, when can be made.

The basis of a proceeding under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not the written statement of the parties but the Police report or other information from which the Magistrate is satisfied about the fact of the likelihood of a breach of the peace.

When a Magistrate is so satisfied he should make a note stating the grounds of his being so satisfied, and require the parties to attend and put in written statements of their respective claims.

If a party fails to put in a written statement that would not take away the jurisdiction of the Magistrate to proceed with the case. The proceeding having been properly initiated it is incumbent on the Magistrate to make the enquiry and to take such evidence as the parties offer irrespective of the fact that one or other of them has failed to put in a written statement.

In re Goluck Chunder Mylee, 11 W. R. 9 Cr. relied on.

Section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code requires the Magistrate who draws up a proceeding under the section to call upon the parties concerned to attend his Court and to file written statements of their respective claims. He cannot direct them to appear before another Magistrate. But after the parties have attended and are ready to proceed with the case, it may be validly transferred to another Magistrate competent to try it.

Misri Chaudhury v. Narsingh Prasad Tewari, 62 Ind. Cas. 139; 2 P. L. T. 180; 22 C. L. J. 43, distinguished. PAT RAMJHARIA v. PIAR KOERI, 4 P. L. T. 308; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat) 309; 24 Cr. L. J. 557

— s. 145, proceedings under—Evidence, necessity of.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to make an order under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code without any evidence being adduced before him. G HATEMALI CHAPRASI v. OSIM-ADDY, 24 Cr. L. J. 702 — ss. 145, 350—Proceeding under s. 145—Change of Magistrates—Accused, right of, to re-summon witnesses.

In a proceeding under section 145 of the Criminal Procedure Code where the Magistrate is succeeded by another, the succeeding Magistrate is not compelled under the proviso to section 350 of the Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Code to start the enquiry de novo, if an application to that effect is made on behalf of the accused.

The intention of the Legislature was to limit the application of proviso (a) to section 350 of the Criminal Procedure Code to criminal trials and not to extend that proviso to enquiries which are also covered by the first portion of the section. G SADEK REZA v. SACHINDRA NATH ROY, 37 C. L. J. 128; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 483; 24 Cr. L. J. 569

— s. 146—Order as to possession—Brevity—Revision.

It is impossible to lay down a hard and fast rule when a High Court should interfere on the ground of the brevity of an order passed in a proceeding under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Where a Magistrate passes an order under section 146 of the Criminal Procedure Code but omits to write at length the reasons for such order, it may be good ground for remand. But a High Court will not interfere if the Magistrate passed the order after giving full consideration to the evidence in the case. G KANAI LAL v. HYDER ALI, 37 C. L. J. 127; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 483; 24 Cr. L. J. 575

— s. 154—First Information Report consisting of confession, admissibility of—Conviction for murder on plea of guilty, legality of.

A First Information Report is not admissible in evidence if it is a confession by the accused to the Police of his guilt.

A conviction merely on a plea of guilty in a murder case is not illegal though in each case the circumstances must be examined to see whether the plea of guilty is one which should be acted on. N MANJOO v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (N) 251; 24 Cr. L. J. 570 — ss. 154, 162, 283—Information of cognizable offence, what is—Written statement obtained from witness during investigation, admissibility of, as evidence—Statement made before Committing Magistrate transferred to Sessions record, whether can be used as substantive evidence.

The information referred to in section 154 of the Criminal Procedure Code is something in the nature of a complaint or accusation, or at least information of a crime, given with the object of putting the Police in motion in order to investigate, as distinguished from information obtained by the Police when actively investigating a crime.

Circumstances may arise in which information is given to the Police of such a vague and indefinite character that it cannot be treated as coming under section 154 of the Code, so as to make it incumbent upon the officer in charge of the Police Station to start an investigation and he may reasonably require more direct information before doing so, and such further information given to him in such circumstances might not come under the provisions of section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code. Or the information referred to in section 154 may come from more sources than one, and more than one such information may be recorded at or about the same time.

But once definite information has reached the Police relating to the commission of a cognisable offence under section 154 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and the Police have taken active steps to investigate, whether the information has been taken down in the book kept for that purpose as provided in section 154 or not, all further statements taken from the witnesses are taken in the course of a Police investigation and are inadmissible in evidence under section 162 of the Code.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Under section 288 of the Criminal Procedure Code a Sessions Court is not restricted to admitting the evidence of a witness duly taken before the Committing Magistrate merely for the purpose of contradicting that witness when giving evidence in the Sessions Court. The section is intended to enable the Court to read the previous evidence as substantive evidence at the trial where, for the purposes of justice, the adoption of such a course is found necessary by the Judge.

Queen-Empress v. Dorasami Ayyar, 24 M. 414 at p. 416; 2 Weir 377, Maruti Joti Shinde v. Emperor, 63 Ind. Cas. 332; 23 Bom. L. R. 820; 22 Cr. L. J. 636; 46 B. 971 (1922) A. I. R. (B.) 108, relied on.

It is, however, a matter for the discretion of the Judge whether he thinks that such evidence should be used in the interest of justice, for many cases may arise in which it would be dangerous to rely upon such evidence where witnesses have proved themselves before the Sessions Judge altogether unworthy of credit.

Per Mullick, J.—Information, within the meaning of section 154 of the Criminal Procedure Code, is an allegation in the nature of a complaint, made to a Police Officer with a view to his taking action, and when such an allegation is made the Police Officer must record it as an information under the section, and the writing will attract the provisions of section 35 of the Evidence Act; and if the Police Officer should record more than one information relating to a cognisable offence they will all share the privilege of being exempt from the disability imposed by section 162 of the Criminal Procedure Code. In every case it is for the Court to decide whether the communication is an information in this technical sense and whether and when the Police investigation had in fact begun. Pat GANSA ORAON v. EMPEROR, 4 P. L. T. 462; 1 P. L. R. 178 Cr.; 2 Pat. 517; 24 Cr. L. J. 641

561
s. 164—Confession, recording of—Failure to make enquiry, effect of.

The failure of a Magistrate, before recording a confession, to question the person making the confession as to whether he is making it voluntarily, is a fatal defect which renders the confession inadmissible in evidence.

Farid v. Emperor, 65, Ind. Cas. 6131 2 L. 325; 5 P. W. R. 1922 Cr.; 23 Cr. L. J. 149; 4 U. P. L. R. (L.) 33; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 237, followed. LACHHI RAM v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 330; 24 Cr. L. J. 564

260
s. 164—Statements by accused before trial, record of—Magistrate, power of—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 9, 11, 21, 133—Statements by accused before trial, admissibility of—Accomplice, statement of—Corroboration.

There is nothing in section 164 or any other sections of the Criminal Procedure Code which forbids a Magistrate from recording a statement if the accused chooses to make one before he is placed on his trial. Such a statement, if proved to be voluntary, is not only admissible but is of the greatest value as a fact relevant to the probability or improbability of his guilt.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chunder Chuckerbutty, 2 C. W. N. 702 and Queen-Empress v. Viray, 9 M. 224; 2 Weir 125; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 553, dissented from.

Emperor v. Kangal Mali, 26 Ind. Cas. 161; 41 C. 601; 15 Cr. L. J. 713, cited.

Sections 9 and 11, read with section 21, of the Evidence Act amply justify a Court in admitting into evidence all previous statements made by an accused which have a bearing upon the question of his guilt and whether the previous statement is made to a Police Officer, to a Judicial Officer, or to a third party is immaterial, if the statement is relevant to the fact in issue, namely, the accused's guilt.

Queen-Empress v. Bhairab Chunder Chuckerbutty, 2 C. W. N. 702, explained.

Under section 133 of the Evidence Act the evidence of an accomplice by itself would be sufficient for the purpose of a conviction; but it is a rule of practice founded on experience that in every case where an accomplice has given evidence the Court must raise a presumption that he is unworthy of credit unless corroborated in material particular. Failure to raise that presumption is an error of law.

Phillip Jacobs, 1 Cr. App. R. 215, noticed. PAT MADAN GURU v. EMPEROR, 4 P. L. T. 381; 24 Cr. L. J. 723

963
ss. 164, 286, 342—Sessions trial—Confession retracted—Plea of not guilty—Procedure.

Accused, in a murder case, made a confession which was duly recorded under section 164, Criminal Procedure Code. Before the Committing Magistrate also they pleaded "guilty," but in the Court of Session they pleaded "not guilty." Upon this the Sessions Judge proceeded to take in evidence, before the examination of any witness, the previous statements made by the accused, not only before the Committing Magistrate but prior to the commencement of proceedings in the Magistrate's Court. He then examined, and almost cross-examined the accused upon their confessions, and thereafter recorded the prosecution evidence:

Held, that, the Sessions Judge had acted in contravention of the provisions of section 286, Criminal Procedure Code; that, although under section 342 of that Code the power given to the Court to examine an accused person is one which may be exercised at any stage of the trial in the discretion of the Court, this provision does not in any way supersede the clear directions contained in section 286 as to the manner in which a Sessions trial should be commenced.

When an accused is on his trial on a capital charge, it is not expedient that the Sessions Court should convict him even upon a plea of guilty entered before the Trial Court itself. As a matter of practice, the Court should, in its discretion, put such a plea on one side and proceed to record and consider the evidence, in order to satisfy itself, not merely of the guilt of the accused, but of the precise nature of the offence committed and the appropriate punishment for the same.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Where a confession of guilt is retracted, the proper time for taking into consideration such confession is after the Court is in possession of the entire prosecution evidence and can estimate what the effect of that evidence would be, considered apart from any statement which the accused person may from time to time have made. A SUKHIA v. EMPEROR, 20 A. L. J. 669; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 266; 24 Cr. L. J. 609 497

— s. 164 (3)—Confession, mode of recording—Magistrate, duty of, to put questions.

All that section 164 (3) of the Criminal Procedure Code requires is that a Magistrate recording a confession on questioning the person making the confession must have reason to believe that it is being made voluntarily. No express form of questions is prescribed, and the extent to which the Magistrate should question the person making the confession must largely depend upon the particular facts of each case. Whilst it is clearly desirable that he should always put such questions as may be necessary to enable him to determine whether the confession is voluntary, no particular form of questioning can be laid down as necessary.

Where the circumstances under which a confession is made are not such as to create any suspicion in the mind of the Magistrate and he is satisfied from the demeanour of the person making the statement as well as the questions put and the manner in which the statement is made that it is voluntary, the statement cannot be objected to on the ground that the provisions of section 164 of the Criminal Procedure Code were not complied with.

A Court which is called upon to accept a confession must in each case satisfy itself that the Magistrate recording the confession honestly believed, and took steps to ascertain, that the confession was a voluntary one. PAT THIRU BHOGTA v. EMPEROR, 4 P. L. T. 279; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat) 356; 24 Cr. L. J. 649 589 — ss. 164 (3), 533—Confession, mode of recording—Certificate of voluntariness, absence of—Enquiry failure to make, effect of.

The failure of a Magistrate recording a confession to append the certificate prescribed by section 164 (3) of the Criminal Procedure Code to the statement recorded by him can be cured by the evidence of the Magistrate, but his failure to make any enquiry as to the state of mind of the confessor at the time the confession was recorded is fatal and renders the confession inadmissible in evidence. L JHANA v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 345; 24 Cr. L. J. 618 508 — ss. 179, 183, applicability of—Offence committed during journey in foreign territory and British India—Offence, whether triable in British India—"Consequence" in s. 179, meaning of.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Section 183 of the Criminal Procedure Code applies only to cases where the offence is committed in British India and not in foreign territory. This section is part of a Code of Procedure for the trial of offences committed in British India; it extends to the whole of British India, but cannot give the Courts jurisdiction over offences committed beyond the limits of British India. The word "journey" used in the section does not include a journey in foreign territory, but is confined in its meaning to a journey within the territories of British India.

Babu Baldi v. Queen, 5 M. 23; 1 Weir 1; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 17, relied on.

Where an offence is committed in the course of a journey part of which lay through foreign territory and it is doubtful whether the offence was committed in foreign territory or in British India, section 183 of the Criminal Procedure Code is not applicable to the case and it is not triable in British India.

Semble:—The "consequence" contemplated by section 179 of the Criminal Procedure Code means a consequence which forms a part and parcel of the offence and does not mean a consequence which is not such a direct result of the act of the offender as to form any part of that offence.

In re Rambilas, 26 Ind. Cas. 136; 38 M. 639; 16 M. L. T. 505; (1914) M. W. N. 894; 15 Cr. L. J. 688; 29 M. L. J. 175; Krishnamachari, v. Shaw Wallace and Co. 29 Ind. Cas. 331; 29 M. L. J. 178; 18 M. L. T. 25; (1915) M. W. N. 418; 39 M. 576; 16 Cr. L. J. 491 and Gokal Chana v. Phul Chand, 5 Ind. Cas. 830; 7 P. R. 1910 Cr. 7. P. W. R. 1910 Cr.; 172 P. L. R. 1910; 11 Cr. L. J. 253, relied on. L NADAR v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 487; 24 Cr. L. J. 579 323

— ss. 190 (1) (b), 351—Cognizance of offence on Police report—Witness, prosecution of, with other accused—Magistrate, jurisdiction of.

Where after some evidence for the prosecution had been led in a case in which the prosecution was initiated on a Police report, the Magistrate ordered the prosecution of one of the witnesses jointly with another accused and commenced the trial de novo:

Held, Per Robinson, C. J. and Macgregor, J., that the Magistrate had full jurisdiction to act, that section 351 of the Criminal Procedure Code applied to the case, and that the Magistrate, so far as section 190 was applicable, if it was applicable at all, had acted under section 190 (1) (b) of the Code.

Per Maung Kin, J.—That section 190 (1) (b) applied to the facts of the case. L B NGA CHAN THA v. EMPEROR, 11 L. B. R. 398; (1923) A. I. R. (R.) 31; 24 Cr. L. J. 519 55

— ss. 190 (1) (c), 191—Cognizance of offence by Magistrate—Omission to inform accused of his right to have case transferred—Illegality.

When a Magistrate takes cognizance himself of an offence under section 190 (1) (c) of the Criminal Procedure Code, the accused has a right under section 191 to have the case tried by another Magistrate and to be told by the Magistrate that he has such a right. An omission to inform the accused and the Magistrate's refusal to transfer the case when asked to do so are fatal to the legality of the trial. The accused, in order to save time and trouble of a further hearing may waive his right. But he can do so only when he is distinctly told by the Magistrate in accordance with the provisions of the Criminal Procedure Code that he has the right to decline to be tried by him. A CHANDER SEN v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 89; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 383; 24 Cr. L. J. 656 576

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

ss. 195, 439—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 182—Sanction for prosecution—Application to Appellate Court—Revision—Offence under s. 182—District Magistrate, power of, to grant sanction.

Where an application under clause (6) of section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code is made to an Appellate Court against the order of the First Court refusing or granting a sanction to prosecute, the order of the Appellate Court is open to revision under section 439 of the Code.

Bishen Singh v. Amritsaria, 5 P. R. 1908 Cr.; 7 P. W. R. 1908 Cr.; 103 P. L. R. 1908; 7 Cr. L. J. 281, (F. B.) followed.

Sarat Chandra Mandal v. Ram Sashi Roy, 69 Ind. Cas. 153; 26 C. W. N. 1016; 36 C. L. J. 265; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 45; 23 Cr. L. J. 665, dissented from.

Although Police Officers in a district are generally subordinate to the District Magistrate, that is not the subordination contemplated by clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code. That clause contemplates subordination to some superior Officer of Police.

Ramaswamy Lall v. Queen-Empress, 27 C. 452; 4 C. W. N. 594; 14 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 297, relied on.

A District Magistrate has, therefore, no power to grant sanction for prosecution under section 195 (1) (a) of the Criminal Procedure Code in respect of an offence under section 182 of the Penal Code for giving false information to the Police. L KHAZAN SINGH v. KIRPA SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 341; 4 L. 130; 5 L. L. J. 372; 24 Cr. L. J. 683 779 ss. 198, 537—Order under s. 196 sanctioning prosecution—Omission to address Magistrate concerned—Irregularity.

An order of the Government sanctioning, under section 196 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the prosecution of a person for a political offence did not say in its body to whom the order was given but the District Magistrate, the Special Magistrate and the Public Prosecutor concerned were designated below it. It was objected that the order was open to objection on the ground that it was not given to any determinate person:

Held, (1) that the order must be taken as addressed to the persons designated below who were the persons concerned in the holding of the trial;

(2) that even if the objection was valid, the omission was a mere irregularity covered by section 537 of the Criminal Procedure Code. M MANDAYAPURATH ERESAKUTTY, In re, 17 L. W. 100; 44 M. L. J. 166; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 328; 24 Cr. L. J. 539 155

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 235—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 215, 420 offences under—Conviction for more serious offence, whether permissible.

When the facts proved in a case constitute two or more offences, the Court should convict of, and punish for, the most serious offence that is established, provided the accused has been charged with, and has had an opportunity of meeting the charge of that offence.

Where, therefore, a person takes a ransom for the restoration of stolen property, and fails to return that property to the person who paid him the ransom and the facts show an offence under section 420 of the Penal Code, though they also establish an offence under section 215, he can be convicted under section 420 provided he was duly charged with it. L B NGA SHAN v. EMPEROR, 11 L. B. R. 422; (1923) A. I. R. (R) 37; 24 Cr. L. J. 529 145

s. 247—Acquittal—Revival of proceedings—Jurisdiction of Magistrate.

An order of acquittal passed under section 247 of the Criminal Procedure Code, so long as it is not set aside by a competent Court is a bar to fresh proceedings in respect of the same offence.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to revise proceedings in a case which has terminated in an order of acquittal under section 247 of the Criminal Procedure Code. C NITYANANDA KOER v. RAKHAHARI MISRA, 38 C. L. J. 196; 24 Cr. L. J. 716 940

s. 250—Complaint, vexatious, to Village Magistrate—Compensation.

A person who makes a complaint to a Village Magistrate of a bailable offence, knowing that the latter must, in the ordinary course of his duty, report the substance of the complaint to the Police, gives information to a Police Officer within the meaning of section 250 of the Criminal Procedure Code just as effectively as if he went in person to the Police Station, and where the complaint is ultimately found to be frivolous or vexatious, an order directing the complainant to pay compensation is perfectly legal.

Nachimuthu Chetty v. Muthuswami Chetty, 24 Ind. Cas. 167; 39 M. 1006; (1914) M. W. N. 804; 27 M. L. J. 37; 15 Cr. L. J. 431, Margasahaya Chetty v. Gandala Nadiabba, 36 Ind. Cas. 843; 32 M. L. J. 78; 18 Cr. L. J. 11; (1917) M. W. N. 86; 5 L. W. 290 and Thonokadavath Awalla v. Amman Mannil Kuttilal, 36 Ind. Cas. 471; (1917) M. W. N. 155; 4 L. W. 73; 17 Cr. L. J. 503, followed.

King-Emperor v. Thammana Reddi, 25 M. 667; 2 Wei 318, In re Arulanatham Pillai, 13 Ind. Cas. 221; 22 M. L. J. 138; (1911) 2 M. W. N. 558; 10 M. L. T. 550; 13 Cr. L. J. 29, followed. M KALYAPERUMAL NAIDU v. BAVAJI SAHIB, (1923) M. W. N. 421; 18 L. W. 32; 45 M. L. J. 255; 24 Cr. L. J. 717 941

s. 250—Frivolous and vexatious prosecution—Compensation—Formal notice to show cause, whether essential.

Section 250 of the Code of Criminal Procedure does not require that in the case of a complaint being found frivolous or vexatious, the complainant must be 'called upon to show cause' why he should not be made to pay compensation; it only requires any objection which is urged to be recorded and considered. The section is not intended to multiply the proceedings but to be applied in a summary manner.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

A party who has the right to make a formal objection and have it recorded can waive that right by his acquiescence.

Gulzari Lal v. Gunga Ram, 14 Ind. Cas. 652; 9 A. L. J. 170; 13 Cr. L. J. 268, distinguished.

Pandurang Narayan v. Laxman Babaji, 3 Bom. L. R. 777 and Suchandi Kolitani v. Dom Kolita, 5 C. W. N. 214, not followed. A PANCHAM v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 369; 45 A. 474; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 548; 24 Cr. L. J. 719 ss. 254, 256, 342, 537—Examination of accused—Cross-examination of prosecution witnesses under s. 256—Fresh examination of accused, whether obligatory.

943

Section 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code which requires that the accused shall be examined generally in the case after the examination of the prosecution witnesses and before the accused is called on for his defence, is mandatory and not discretionary and failure to comply with the terms of the section is an illegality vitiating the trial and not a mere irregularity which can be cured under section 537 of the Code.

Per Curiam (Venkatasubba Rao, J. dissenting):—The mere fact that in a warrant-case after the framing of a charge under section 254 of the Criminal Procedure Code, the prosecution witnesses are recalled and cross-examined under section 256 of the Code, does not render a fresh examination of the accused obligatory and the omission to question the accused again at this stage does not amount to a non-compliance with the provisions of section 342 of the Code and does not vitiate the trial.

In re Marudath Mathu Vannian, 71 Ind. Cas. 252; 43 M. L. J. 402; 16 L. W. 420; (1922) M. W. N. 601; 44 M. 820; (1922) A. I. R. (M) 512; 24 Cr. L. J. 124, overruled.

The expression "after the prosecution witnesses has been examined" in section 342, Criminal Procedure Code, means when the prosecution has finished calling evidence. Cross-examination of the prosecution witnesses under section 256 is not part of the examination of the prosecution witnesses within the meaning of section 342, nor does such re-examination generally amount to giving fresh evidence for the prosecution, but is merely explanatory of the cross-examination. If new and material matter in support of the prosecution is elicited in cross-examination or re-examination, it is desirable that the accused should again be questioned on the case and asked generally to explain the circumstances, and if fresh evidence on material matters in support of the prosecution case is elicited in re-examination it would be obligatory on the Court to question the accused on that.

M. VARMA ROWTHEN, In re, 44 M. L. J. 567; 17 L. W. 722; 32 M. L. T. 385; 46 M. 449; (1923) M. W. N. 477; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 609; 24 Cr. L. J.

347

168

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 257—Discretion of Magistrate to refuse to summon witnesses, extent of—Order directing deposit of expenses of witnesses, legality of.

The language of section 257 of the Criminal Procedure Code is imperative, and a Magistrate has no discretion to refuse to issue process to compel the attendance of any witness merely because he thinks that no useful purpose will be served by summoning him as a witness to attend the Court. The person who applies for their attendance is the best judge of the matter and it is not for the Magistrate to say which witnesses shall and which shall not be of any use to him. The only grounds upon which an application for the summoning of witnesses can be refused are those enumerated in clause (1) of section 257 and a Magistrate is not entitled to refuse the application on any other ground.

Section 257 (2) of the Criminal Procedure Code fully empowers a Magistrate trying a case to order that the reasonable expenses required for the attendance of a witness shall be deposited in Court by the person applying for his attendance before the witness is summoned.

Qadu v. Queen-Empress, 7 P. R. 1898 Cr., dis-sented from. L. GANPAT RAI v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 420; 24 Cr. L. J. 686

282

s. 291—Defence witness, discharged—Accused, right of, to examine.

The fact that a witness cited by an accused person is discharged before his examination, is no bar to his being examined as a witness if he is in attendance, and the accused insists on his evidence being recorded. O NAGESHWAR v. EMPEROR, 9 O. & A. L. R. 46; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 142; 24 Cr. L. J. 518

54

s. 307—Trial on several charges—Acquittal by jury—Magistrate agreeing in respect of graver charges—Reference on minor charges, propriety of.

There is nothing to prevent a Judge who has accepted the findings of the Jury in favour of the innocence of the accused in respect of certain graver charges, from making a reference under section 307 of the Criminal Procedure Code with the object of having some of the accused convicted on minor charges, where the prosecution has failed not because of the evidence happening to be false but because of the facts alleged being insufficient to support the graver charges. O EMPEROR v. HARI DAS MITRA, 37 C. L. J. 34; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 108; 24 Cr. L. J. 674

770

s. 308—Jury trial—Discharge of Jury—Misconduct—Inherent power of Court—Code, whether exhaustive.

So far as it deals with any point specifically, the Code of Criminal Procedure must be deemed to be exhaustive and the law must be ascertained by reference to its provisions, but where a case arises which obviously demands interference and it is not within those for which the Code specifically provides, it would not be reasonable to say that the Court has not the power to make such order as the ends of justice require.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Where the question of misconduct on the part of the Jury or other similar sufficient cause arises, the Sessions Judge has inherent power to discharge the Jury and empanel another.

The Criminal Procedure Code does not provide for such circumstances, but the presumption that Jurors will discharge their duties without impropriety may explain the omission.

The power to discharge a Jury on such grounds is discretionary, but must not be exercised lightly, nor until the Judge has satisfied himself by such form of enquiry as, in the circumstances, he can adopt that reasonable grounds exist for exercising the power. G RAHIM (SHEIKH) v. EMPEROR, 37 C. L. J. 595; 24 Cr. L. J. 677 773 ss. 328, 337, 338—Pardon tendered by Sessions Judge—Examination of approver as witness by him whether legal—Approver, whether must be one charged with offence triable exclusively by Sessions Court—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 14—Previous conduct, admissibility of—Accomplice, evidence of—Corroboration.

If under section 328 of the Criminal Procedure Code a Sessions Judge himself tenders pardon to an accused who accepts it, he can at once examine him as a witness and it is not necessary that such accused should be sent to the Committing Magistrate for his statement to be recorded on oath.

Under sections 337, 338 of the Criminal Procedure Code it is not necessary that the person to whom a pardon is tendered should himself be charged with an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session, all that is required is that the person to whom pardon is tendered, who need not even be an accused, should be supposed to have been directly or indirectly concerned in or privy to an offence triable exclusively by the Court of Session with which another person is charged.

Before the evidence of an accomplice can be accepted it is necessary to be satisfied that the accomplice himself took part in the crime to the extent that he says and that he is in a position to give true evidence as to what occurred. It is also necessary that the accomplice's evidence should be corroborated to prove that it was the accused person and no one else who committed the crime. N KASHIRAM v. EMPEROR, 6 N. L. J. 1441 (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 248; 24 Cr. L. J. 566 282 ss. 337, 494—Approver—Discharged accomplice—Corroboration of evidence—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 400—Association for habitually committing dacoity—Evidence of accomplice.

An accomplice witness against whom the case has been withdrawn under section 494 of the Criminal Procedure Code is less reliable than one to whom a pardon has been tendered under section 337 of the Code. The latter is pardoned conditionally and has before him, as an inducement to stick to the truth, the constant apprehension that his statement may be used against him in a trial hereafter if he is proved to have given false evidence on any point. Moreover, there is at least one previous statement by which his veracity can be tested. On the other hand, the accomplice witness, who has not received a conditional pardon, is a freer man in the witness-box since he is not pinned down to a previous statement which may be based on tutored material, by the fear of prosecution for perjury if his deposition in Court does not correspond exactly with that previous statement.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

In any case, the evidence of an accomplice must be regarded as tainted, particularly of an accomplice who has been discharged under section 494 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and it must be corroborated in material particulars before it can be acted upon.

When persons are charged with belonging to a gang associated for purposes of habitually committing offences, the only direct evidence that can be tendered is that of accomplices. Other witnesses can testify to association on certain isolated occasions, but the man who gives evidence of habitual association for a particular purpose must almost inevitably be an accomplice. L CHHAPROLIA v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 696 808

s. 342—Failure to examine accused—Grave irregularity—Re-trial.

The failure by a Magistrate to examine an accused person for the purpose of section 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code is a grave irregularity and might, in a suitable case, be in itself a sufficient ground for setting aside a conviction. The fact that the accused was examined and cross-examined as a prosecution witness in a cross-case would not relieve the Magistrate of the duty imposed on him by the above section or lessen the gravity of the irregularity. Where, however, the irregularity is not such as to prevent the Magistrate from arriving at a correct view of the facts and the accused has said all he has had to say in the capacity of a prosecution witness, and no unfair use has been made of any admission made by him as a witness, the High Court will not order a re-trial. O NAGESHAR PRASAD v. EMPEROR, 9 O. & A. L. R. 218; 24 Cr. L. J. 661 693

s. 345—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 342—Wrongful confinement of complainant and another—Complainant, power of, to compound offence.

Where a person is charged under section 342 of the Penal Code with wrongfully confining the complainant and another person, the complainant has authority to compound the offence as against himself but he has no authority to compound it as against that other person. O SHIB CHANDRA v. RABBANI MONDAL, 27 C. W. N. 168; 37 C. L. J. 254; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 168; 24 Cr. L. J. 578 322

s. 345—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 498, offence under—Composition at revision stage.

A High Court in revision may allow an offence under section 498, Penal Code, to be compounded.

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

Lalla v. Emperor, 24 Ind. Cas. 975; 17 O. C. 92; 15 C. L. J. 567, followed. O CHHOTAI SINGH v. Emperor, 9 O. & A. L. R. 776; 24 Cr. L. J. 590
834

— s. 367—Judgment in criminal case, contents of—Failure to consider essential points.

Accused was convicted of offences under sections 426 and 447 of the Penal Code. It did not appear from the judgment that the Magistrate had considered the knowledge or the intention with which the accused had done the act complained of as constituting mischief, or that he had come to any conclusion as to whether the accused entered into or upon property in the possession of the complainant or what his intention was, if he did so:

Held, that the judgment was bad and could not be allowed to stand.

Though a Magistrate is at liberty to refer to the evidence in a criminal proceeding in a manner equally appropriate to civil proceedings he should not lose sight of the fact that he is dealing with a criminal matter and should ultimately dispose of the case purely from the standpoint of the Criminal law. C BHABANI PRASAD MOITRA v. HARI CHARAN BHATTACHARJEE, 38 C. L. J. 7; 24 Cr. L. J. 714
838

— ss. 367, 537—Judgment, place of, in criminal trial—Non-compliance with provisions of s. 367 of Act V of 1898 whether mere irregularity.

The delivery of judgment and the passing of sentence is an integral part of a criminal trial. It is not a mere formality and, consequently, where a judgment is signed and dated before delivery and is translated to the accused by the Court Interpreter, the Judge himself being absent, it amounts to a breach of the provisions of section 367 of the Criminal Procedure Code and cannot be treated as a mere irregularity to be cured by section 537 of the Code. L B RAMBIT v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (R.) 44; 24 Cr. L. J. 584
828

— s. 403—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 411—Stolen property, several articles of, found in possession of accused—Trial in respect of some—Acquittal—Subsequent trial in respect of remaining articles, legality of.

Several articles of property stolen from different persons were found in possession of the accused. He was tried in respect of some of the articles upon a charge under section 411 of the Penal Code and was acquitted. He was subsequently prosecuted under the same section in respect of the other properties found in his possession on the same date, but there was no evidence that the articles were received at different times:

Held, that under section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code the second trial was illegal.

Queen-Empress v. Makhan, 15 A. 317; A. W. N. (1893) 101; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 919 and Ishan Muchi v. Queen-Empress, 15 A. 514; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 925, followed. C GANESH SAHU v. EMPEROR, 37 C. L. J. 326; 27 C. W. N. 554; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 557; 50 C. 594; 24 Cr. L. J. 707
981

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

— s. 403—Trial in Native State—Trial for same offence in British India, legality of.

A dacoity was committed in British India and the accused were shortly after caught in a Native State with the stolen property. They were tried and convicted by the State Court of an offence under section 411 of the Penal Code. After serving out their sentence they were tried in British India on a charge under section 395 of the Penal Code, but the evidence only established an offence under section 411 of the Code against them:

Held, that their trial by the State Court barred their trial by the Court in British India on the same facts and for the same offence, by virtue of the provisions of section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code. L TEJA SINGH v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 715
989

— ss. 407, 422—S. 407, appeal under, hearing of—Notice to officer appointed by Local Government not given—Illegality.

Where an appeal under section 407, Criminal Procedure Code, is heard by a Magistrate specially empowered to hear such appeals, it is incumbent on the Magistrate to give notice of such hearing under section 422 of the Code, to the officer appointed by the Local Government in that behalf and an omission to give such notice before hearing the appeal cannot be treated as an irregularity. The disposal of such an appeal without notice to the officer is not a legal disposal of the appeal. B EMPEROR v. SHIVLINGAPPA, 24 Bom. L. R. 1150; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 74; 24 Cr. L. J. 700
812

— s. 413—Joint trial—Appealable and non-appealable sentences—Appeal whether lies against non-appealable sentence.

Where several persons are tried jointly and convicted at one trial, some of them receiving appealable and the others non-appealable sentences the latter do not obtain a right of appeal merely owing to the fact of their joint trial with the others.

Hussain Khan v. Emperor, 39 Ind. Cas. 690; 39 A. 293; 15 A. L. J. 136; 18 Cr. L. J. 546 and Bhola v. Emperor, 40 Ind. Cas. 332; 39 A. 549; 15 A. L. J. 574; 18 Cr. L. J. 684, followed. A JHAGRU v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 679; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 609
775

— s. 435—Revision—Pending case—Interference by High Court—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 405—Pleader retaining fees, the recovery of which is time-barred—Offence.

It is inadvisable for a High Court to interfere in revision in a pending case unless there is some manifest and patent injustice apparent on the face of the proceedings calling for prompt redress.

Jagat Chandra Mozumdar v. Queen-Empress, 26 C. 786; 3 C. W. N. 491; 13 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1103, relied on.

A Pleader retaining fees, the legal recovery of which is time-barred, is not guilty of criminal breach of trust. N KRISHNARAO v. EMPEROR, 6 N. L. J. 119; 24 Cr. L. J. 591
835 — ss. 437, 503—Further inquiry—Notice to accused, necessity of—Additional District Magistrate, power of, to issue commission for examination of witness within jurisdiction—Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), ss. 362, 365

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

— Abduction, what constitutes—Woman, confinement of, pending negotiations for her release—Offence.

An order under section 437 of the Criminal Procedure Code for further inquiry should not be passed without notice to the person accused, and then only if the order of discharge was manifestly perverse or occasioned a grave miscarriage of justice. But an order for further inquiry passed without such notice is not illegal.

An officer appointed as Additional District Magistrate and authorised to exercise all the powers of a District Magistrate as contained in Sch. III, part V. (18) of the Criminal Procedure Code is empowered to issue a commission under section 503 of the Code for the examination of a witness within his own jurisdiction.

R. J., a young woman, was abducted and taken to D. K. from where she, after a few days, made her escape, and was proceeding to a Police Station; on her way she met accused who represented himself to be a Police constable and offered to take her to the Police Station, but instead of doing this he took her to his house where he confined her and negotiated with her relatives who agreed to pay him for her release :

Held, that the action of the accused in falsely representing himself to be a Police constable and the inducement held out by him that he would take the woman to the Police Station amounted to abduction as defined in section 362 of the Penal Code.

Held, further, that in wrongfully confining the woman while he negotiated with her relative for the payment of a sum of money which was practically her ransom, his act fell under section 365 of the Penal Code. L. BAHADUR ALI v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 158; 24 Cr. L. J. 622

510

— s. 438, 439—Revision—District Magistrate, whether can make reference against order of Sessions Judge—Procedure.

It is not the practice of the High Courts in India to take action under section 439 of the Code of Criminal Procedure on a report by a District Magistrate which has for its object interference with a decision by a Court of Session.

Queen-Empress v. Korauddi, 23 C. 250; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S. 167), Emperor v. Jamna Bai, 28 A. 91; 2 A. L. J. 589; A. W. N. (1905) 198; 2 Cr. L. J. 515, Emperor v. John Francis Lobo, 36 Ind. Cas. 577; 41 B. 47; 18 Bom. L. R. 795; 17 Cr. L. J. 529 In re Angamuthu Vanathrian, 16 Ind. Cas. 522; 1 M. L. T. 170; (1912) M. W. N. 812; 23 M. L. J. 732; 13 Cr. L. J. 714, relied on.

The proper procedure for District Magistrate, who considers an order of the Sessions Judge illegal, is to move the Public Prosecutor to bring the matter before the High Court.

In re Angamuthu Vanathrian, 16 Ind. Cas. 522; 12 M. L. T. 170; (1912) M. W. N. 812; 23 M. L. J. 732; 13 Cr. L. J. 714, relied on. L. EMPEROR v. FAZAL DAD, 24 Cr. L. J. 572 — ss. 438, 523—Enquiry under s. 523, nature of—Revision.

269

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

It is not incumbent upon the Magistrate to hold a judicial enquiry upon oath, for the purpose of passing an order under section 523 of the Criminal Procedure Code. The section itself does not make any magisterial enquiry imperative. The Magistrate has to satisfy himself, on such material as is before him, who is entitled to possession of the property concerned, and can pass an order on Police reports and papers alone.

A High Court has jurisdiction to revise orders passed under section 523, Criminal Procedure Code, where a proper case is made out.

Ma Thein Nu v. Ma The Hmit, 57, Ind. Cas. 81; 12 Bur. L. T. 266; 10 L. B. R. 156; 21 Cr. L. J. 561, followed. L. CHUNI LAL v. ISHAR DAS, 4 L. 38; 24 Cr. L. J. 670

702

— s. 439—Acquittal—Revision.

Per Macleod, C. J.—If the Local Government do not exercise their right of asking the High Court to admit an appeal from an order of acquittal passed by a Sessions Judge sitting with assessors, it is difficult to imagine any circumstances which would justify the High Court in interfering with the order in revision at the instance of the complainant.

Per Crump, J.—After a regular trial in the Sessions Court, it would be only in the most exceptional cases that the High Court would be justified in interfering, under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code, with an order of acquittal, when there is no appeal by the Local Government under section 417 of the Code. B. JOITA BECHAR v. PARSHOTTAM SANKALCHAND, 25 Bom. L. R. 488; 24 Cr. L. J. 734

974

— s. 439—Acquittal—Revision—High Court, when will interfere.

Although the High Court will not, under section 439 of the Criminal Procedure Code, ordinarily interfere with an order of acquittal, it will do so where such an order is invalid, as where it is passed in an appeal under section 407 of the Code of the hearing of which the officer appointed by the Local Government in that behalf had no notice. B. EMPEROR v. SHIVILINGAPPA BASAPPA, 24 Bom. L. R. 1150; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 74; 24 Cr. L. J. 709

812

— ss. 439, 476—Magistrate ordering prosecution under s. 476—Revision by District Magistrate—Jurisdiction.

Where an order to prosecute a person is passed by a Magistrate under section 476, Criminal Procedure Code, the District Magistrate has no jurisdiction to interfere, it is only when sanction to prosecute has been granted under section 195, that the District Magistrate has such powers. A. SITA RAM v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 652; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 597

690

— s. 476, proceeding under—Notice, whether necessary.

In a proceeding under section 476 of the Criminal Procedure Code it is not invariably necessary that the person to be proceeded against should receive notice to show cause against the proposed action against him. L. B. GURA v. DISTRICT JUDGE, AKYAB, (1923) A. I. R. (L. B.) 79; Cr. L. J. 736

976

Criminal Procedure Code—contd.

s. 488—Order of maintenance—Subsequent civil suit negating relationship—Stay of maintenance order.

Where the relationship, on which a maintenance order under section 488, Criminal Procedure Code, is based, has been declared by the final decree of a competent Civil Court not to exist, the person adversely affected is entitled to ask the Magistrate to abstain from giving any further effect to his order of maintenance.

Mahomed Abid Ali Kumar Kadar v. Ludden Sahiba, 14 C. 276; 11 Ind. Jur. 296; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 183, Illath Narayanan Moosad v. Kathil Itlicherry Amma, 42 Ind. Cas. 331; 33 M. L. J. 449; 22 M. L. T. 293; 6 L. W. 536; 18 Cr. L. J. 971; (1918) M. W. N. 65, followed. M. MADDU VENKAYYA v. MADOU PAIDAMMA, 32 M. L. T. 345; (1923) M. W. N. 421; 18 L. W. 132; 45 M. L. J. 104; 46 M. 721; 21 Cr. L. J. 720 944

s. 488, scope of—Maintenance of son during period of study.

The rights conferred by section 488 of the Criminal Procedure Code are very restrictive. Under the provisions of the section, a father is bound to maintain his child, if the latter is not able to maintain himself. But where he is able to maintain himself, but wants to prosecute his studies in order to better his prospects, he has no right to force his father to comply with his wishes. L B ABDUL RAHIM v. MA SHWE MAY, (1923) A. I. R. (R.) 45; 24 Cr. L. J. 590 334 ss. 517, 520—Application for restoration of property—Limitation—Power of Court.

No period of limitation is prescribed for an application under section 517 or 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and such an application can always be made within a reasonable time of the termination of the proceedings in which the property in dispute was produced.

The words "make any further orders that may be just" in section 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code are intended to enable superior Courts to pass proper orders in cases where property has been erroneously disposed of under section 517 of the Code.

During the investigation into a case of theft, certain currency notes were produced before the Police by the petitioner. One T. was eventually convicted of criminal misappropriation in respect of the notes and the notes were made over to the complainant under the orders of the Magistrate. The petitioner was subsequently tried and convicted of an offence under section 411 of the Penal Code in respect of the notes, but was acquitted by the Sessions Judge on appeal. Nearly six months after his acquittal he applied to the Sessions Judge for restoration of the notes to him. The Sessions Judge rejected the application on the ground that it was barred by limitation:

Held, (1) that the application was in no sense an appeal against the order of the Magistrate making over the notes to the complainant but an independent application to the Sessions Judge himself with a view to his taking action under section 520 of the Criminal Procedure Code;

Criminal Procedure Code—concl.

(2) that as such, no period of limitation was applicable to it;

(3) that under section 520 of the Code the Sessions Judge was possessed of very wide powers and could pass any order that he deemed just. L KANSHI RAM v. EMPEROR, 4 L. 49; 3 P. W. R. 1923 Cr.; 24 Cr. L. J. 713 937

s. 522—Restoration of property—Trial Court, refusal of, to make order—Appeal—Revision.

The discretion to pass or not to pass an order for restoration of property under section 522 of the Criminal Procedure Code is vested in the Trial Court, and where that Court declines to make such an order in the exercise of its discretion, a Court of Appeal or Revision has no jurisdiction to compel it to do so.

Bhagbat Shaha v. Siddique Ostagar, 16 Ind. Cas. 176; 39 C. 1050; 16 C. W. N. 811; 13 Cr. L. J. 608 and Muhammad Din v. Emperor, 48 Ind. Cas. 510; 14 P. R. 1919 Cr.; 20 Cr. L. J. 30; 1 P. W. R. 1919 Cr.; 33 P. L. R. 1919, relied on. A AZIZ AHMAD v. BUDDHU KHAN, 21 A. I. J. 459; 24 Cr. L. J. 677; 45 A. 553 773

Criminal trial—Cognizance taken by different Magistrates, legality of.

Proceedings under sections 120 A and 420, Penal Code, were taken against the accused in the Court of a Deputy Magistrate before whom the case remained pending and no evidence was taken up to a certain date, when a formal complaint was laid before the District Magistrate by the Police on which the District Magistrate took proceedings which ended in the committal of the accused to the Court of Session:

Held, that there was no illegality in the District Magistrate taking cognizance of the case, as, though the law prevents a person being tried twice over for the same offence, there is no provision that if cognizance is taken by two different Magistrates at different times the trial can be before one of them only. G HARI SATYA BISHNU v. EMPEROR, 37 C. L. J. 327; 50 C. 482; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 652; 24 Cr. L. J. 710 934

Prosecution, failure of, to produce all witnesses, effect of.

The mere fact of the non-production of some of their witnesses by the prosecution cannot, in any way, affect the credibility of witnesses who are produced. L INDAR SINGH v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 708 932

Stay of trial pending decision of civil suit—Proper procedure—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 344—Government of India Act, 1915, (5 & 6 Geo. V, C. 61), s. 107.

An application for stay of trial in a criminal case pending the decision of a Civil Court ought to be made in the first instance to the Magistrate trying the case under section 344 of the Criminal Procedure Code and if the party fails to get a reasonable order, a revision against the order of refusal, should be filed to the High Court.

The High Court will not act under section 107 of the Government of India Act on an independent Criminal trial—contd.

dent application for stay of proceedings. M
YALAVARTY ANKANNA v. PILLAMERI ADRIKHOTLU,
18 L. W. 236; 24 Cr. L. J. 640 528

— Witness deaf but able to speak and write—Refusal to examine witness, effect of.

A Magistrate has no jurisdiction to refuse to examine a witness who is deaf but who is able to speak and write, and such refusal, if prejudicial, vitiates the trial. G GANODA DASSYA v. SRIMANTA GHOSH, 24 Cr. L. J. 688 784

Custom v. Personal law—Brahmans of Gokalgarh, District Ambala—Burden of proof.

The circumstance that a family or a tribe has departed from its personal law in one respect, for instance, the incompetency of a daughter to inherit her father's property, does not necessarily lead to the conclusion that it has adopted agricultural custom in all other respects.

The initial presumption in the case of Brahmans is that they are governed by their personal law and the onus is on the person who sets up a custom restricting a Brahman proprietor's powers of alienation to establish it.

The Brahmans of Gokalgarh in the Ambala District are not governed by agricultural custom in matters of alienation.

Ambala is, ethnically and by language, more connected with the United Provinces than the Punjab, and the Brahmans of that District follow their personal law and do not observe any custom like that of the agriculturists of the Punjab.

Kapuria v. Mangal, 149 P. R. 1908; 192 P. W. R. 1908, followed. L SALIG RAM v. BADHAWA (1923) A. L. R. (L.) 501; 4 L. 254 759

— Personal law—Sadozai-royal family, whether governed by custom or Muhammadan Law—Succession—Females, exclusion of.

Whenever there is a gap in the Customary Law which cannot be filled otherwise, it must be filled by a reference to the personal law of the litigating parties.

Daya Ram v. Sohail Singh, 110 P. R. 1906; 31 P. L. R. 1907; 59 P. W. R. 1907 (F. B.), relied on.

The Sadozai family, descended from Shah Shuja, follows Muhammadan Law in matters of succession and no custom obtains in the family whereby females are excluded from inheritance.

Pesh FATEH MUHAMMAD KHAN v. WAFI BEGUM 609

— Non-proprietors, right of, to transfer house—Mauza Raja Jang, Tahsil Kasur, District Lahore.

Several previous sales of their houses by non-proprietors in a village, even where acquiescence by the proprietors is proved, do not necessarily imply a renunciation by the proprietors of their discretionary right to object to subsequent sales or establish a custom recognising such sales as authorised by the proprietors.

Kharak Singh v. Alladitta, 85 P. R. 1882; Maya Das v. Jan Muhammad, 13 P. R. 1889, Buta Mal v. Ruldu, 40 P. R. 1889, Khudayar v. Kapur Singh, 50 P. R. 1889 and Harsahai v. Ganga Ram 7 P. R. 1900, P. L. R. 1900, p. 145, followed.

Custom—contd.

Mauza Raja Jang, in Tahsil Kasur, District Lahore, is a village and not a town.

Non-proprietors of Mauza Raja Jang have not by custom the right to transfer their rights of residence in the village without the consent of the proprietors. L MUHAMMAD DIN v. LABH SINGH 220 — Proof—Opinion of tribe, value of—Tribal and family custom—Special custom—Burden of proof.

Custom is a mere crystallisation of public opinion in matters affecting the social and economic life of a community, and it is not an unsound criterion of the existence of a custom whether or not it is to any extent in harmony with general opinion.

It is dangerous to hold that a custom, which is categorically repudiated and condemned by the majority of a tribe, is actually the custom by which they are bound.

There is an overwhelming presumption that a particular family follows the general custom of its tribe, and, in particular cases, definitely established instances of a mode of succession in a family belonging to a particular tribe are of enormous value in arriving at a general custom which is simply the aggregate of the custom of particular families.

Courts have the widest latitude in discovering and establishing any particular custom applicable to any particular community, and it is for this reason that case-law has been particular in distinguishing the customs of various tribes. But Courts are bound to recognise some limit to the distinctions which can be drawn among different members of the same community, and they are obliged to take certain tribes as the lowest unite regarding which case-law can be established as binding.

Courts must, in the interests of justice and the discouragement of litigation and uncertainty of tenure, lay down the normal rule of succession applicable by custom to the tribe as a whole. In such cases it may be possible for special families to prove a special custom but the onus will lie heavily on him who asserts a departure from the general rule.

The statement of a custom prevailing among Muhammadans as being in conformity with Muhammadan Law, is no bar whatever to its being a valid and a genuine tribal custom. This is particularly the case where there is any confusion or variety in the details of the custom, and where it has been, in any way, in a state of flux. In such a case it is natural and legitimate that members of the tribe concerned should refer their custom to the test of Muhammadan Law, and although this test may not be the ultimate ratio decidendi, it is not one which in any way invalidates a statement of custom. Pesh SAIFDAR KHAN v. MOHAMMAD ZAMAN KHAN 577

— Adoption—Descendants of adopted son, succession to natural family.

Under the Customary Law the descendants of an adopted son who has succeeded to the property of his adoptive father, retain their right of succession in the natural family of the adoptee in the presence of and along with the other de scendants of that family. L ISHAR v. HUKAM SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 485 788

Custom—contd.

— Alienation by female—Consent of reversioner, effect of—Sons of reversioners, whether bound.

The assent of a reversioner to an alienation by female in possession if made bona fide, without collusion or intention to injure the other reversioner, is binding upon his sons and debars them from challenging the alienation.

Habib Khan v. Muhammad Khan, 16 Ind. Cas. 463; 68 P. R. 1912; 194 P. W. R. 1912; 210 P. L. R. 1912, followed. L MAKHAN SINGH v. KISHEN SINGH 273

— by limited owner—Female reversioner, whether can object.

Where a female is in possession of certain property with a limited interest, her alienations can be controlled by another female who is entitled to succeed to the estate on the death of the alienor.

Maqsum-un-nissa v. Kaniz Zohra, 135 P. R. 1908; 194 P. W. R. 1908, followed. L MAWAZ v. KHAN ZOHRA JAN 583

— Necessity—Money borrowed for trade—Antecedent debt—Mortgage, prior.

Money borrowed for the purposes of trade is not taken for necessity. An alienation, therefore, by an agriculturist of ancestral land for such purposes would not be justified.

Where two mortgages, executed within a few days of each other in favour of the same mortgagee form practically one transaction, the mortgage prior in date cannot be considered as an antecedent debt. L MOHAMMAD USMAN KHAN v. ATA MOHY-UD-DIN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 142; 5 L. J. 304 871 — Ancestral property—Alienation—Sonless proprietor of Rohtak Tahsil, District Rohtak.

A sonless proprietor of the Rohtak Tahsil of the Rohtak District has unrestricted powers of alienation in respect of ancestral land.

Giani v. Tek Chand, 64 Ind. Cas. 549; 11 P. L. R. 1922; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 69; 4 L. 111 and Uggar Sain v. Tetu, 71 Ind. Cas. 829; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 193; 4 L. 113, followed.

Budal v. Kirpa, 23 Ind. Cas. 211; 76 P. R. 1914; 148 P. L. R. 1914; 131 P. W. R. 1914, dissented from. L KALA v. MAM CHAND, 4 L. 282 988

— Gift in favour of collateral—Gilotar Jats of Jhang District.

Among Gilotar Jats of the Jhang District a male proprietor is empowered by custom to make a gift of ancestral property in favour of a collateral to the exclusion of other collaterals. L SAMAIL v. AHMADA, 4 L. 189; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 517 452

— Hindu Law—Marriage between Khatri male and Brahmani woman, validity of.

It is dangerous to seek to extend custom by such logical processes as analogy.

Bhambul Devi v. Narain Singh, 29 Ind. Cas. 572; 39 P. R. 1915; 103 P. W. R. 1915; 8 P. L. R. 1916, followed.

Custom—contd.

The initial presumption in the case of high caste Hindus is in favour of their following their personal law and the onus of proving any special or general agricultural custom lies on the person asserting the existence of such:

A marriage between a Khatri male and a Brahmani woman is not valid under the Hindu Law.

Sahib Ditta v. Bela, 50 P. R. 1907, P. L. R. 1907; p. 154, distinguished. L PARS RAM v. HUKMAN SINGH 239

— Partition—Widow, whether can claim partition—Burden of proof.

The widow of a deceased co-sharer has a statutory right to demand partition, and the onus is upon the party who disputes the widow's right to obtain a partition to prove that such right does not exist.

Bhag Bhari v. Wazir Khan, 14 Ind. Cas. 451; 70 P. R. 1912; 91 P. W. R. 1912; 124 P. L. R. 1912, Sant Singh v. Basant Singh, 71 Ind. Cas. 28; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 81, followed.

Abdul Qadir v. Rabia, 41 Ind. Cas. 473; 4 P. R. 1917 Rev.; 1 P. W. R. 1917 Rev., dissented from. L GHANSHAM v. RAMJI LAL, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 625; 4 L. 344 441

— Succession—Ancestral property—Equal holdings—Common ancestor expressly mentioned in pedigree table—Presumption.

Where in a suit relating to succession under the Customary Law of the Punjab it was found that the holdings of the plaintiffs, collaterals of the deceased, were almost equal in area to those of the deceased, some of the *khata*s being still joint, and that the common ancestor of the parties was expressly mentioned in the pedigree tables prepared at the different Settlements:

Held, that, in the absence of any indication that the property was self-acquired, the presumption was that it was ancestral.

The express mention of a common ancestor in a pedigree table furnishes a presumptive proof that the land originally belonged to him.

Jiwan Singh v. Har Kaur, 22 Ind. Cas. 415; 41 P. R. 1914; 51 P. L. R. 1914; 34 P. W. R. 1914, followed. L MARYAM BIBI v. GHULAM MAHOMED 881

— Burden of proof—Gift in favour of sister, validity of—Makwal Jats of Isan Mahar, Tahsil and District Muzaffargarh.

The position of a sister in matters of succession in the Muzaffargarh District is a strong one.

In the Muzaffargarh District the burden lies on a collateral to show that he has a preferential right to succeed as against the sister of the last male-holder.

In the Muzaffargarh District the Jats, especially the Muhammadan Jats, have very large powers of alienation and gift.

Among Makwal Jats of Isan Mahar, Tahsil and District Muzaffargarh, a gift by a male proprietor in favour of a sister or sister's son in the presence of collateral is valid. L HAYAT v. ALI MOHAMMAD

Custom—contd.

Succession—Collaterals living in another village—Sisters v. Collaterals—Self-acquired property—Jats of Amritsar District.

Prima facie, the agnates of a deceased person are entitled to a share in his estate even though they live in another village and own no land in the village in which land belonging to the deceased is situate.

Daya Ram v. Sohail Singh, 110 P. R. 1906; 31 P. L. R. 1907; 59 P. W. R. 1907 (F. B.) and Nanda v. Hira, 41 Ind. Cas. 230; 47 P. R. 1917; 117 P. W. R. 1917, followed.

Among people following Customary Law the position of a sister of a male proprietor without issue cannot be assimilated for purposes of inheritance to that of a daughter, and she must in such matters be regarded as a sister of that proprietor and not as a daughter of his father.

Hamira v. Ram Singh, 134 P. R. 1907; 85 P. W. R. 1907 (F. B.), followed.

Among Jats of the Amritsar District the burden is on the sister to prove that she has a right to succeed to the self-acquired property of her brother in preference to his collaterals in the third degree. L. SANT KUAR v. SHER SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 476 786

Collaterals v. Sister—Lak Jats of Muzaffargarh District.

Among Lak Jats of the Muzaffargarh District a sister or sister's son excludes collaterals of the third degree.

In matters of succession under the Customary Law the position of females generally is very much stronger in the western Punjab than in other parts of the Province. L. KADIR BAKHSH v. ALLAH DITTA 808 Pagwand — Whole blood whether excludes half — Presumption—Swathis Mansehra Tahsil, Hazara District.

Where the chundawand rule prevails, the whole blood would certainly exclude half-blood, but the converse would not necessarily follow; sons might succeed to their father's estate under the pagwand rule and still a full brother might succeed to his brother's estate in preference to a half brother. All that can be said is that, where the relationship through mothers has been ignored in the former case, Courts should not be surprised to find it ignored in the latter also.

Sardar Bakhsh v. Ahmad Yar, 150 P. R. 1888, relied on.

A pagwand system of succession can be found co-existing with a system under which the whole blood excludes the half in succession to a brother's estate.

The presumption, if any, arising from the pagwand rule of succession, in favour of the rule that the half-blood should succeed along with the whole, is a very weak one and is easily rebutted.

The whole blood invariably excludes the half where the descendants of a common ancestor have split up into groups according to uterine descent.

The normal custom among Swathis of the Mansehra Tahsil, District Hazara, is for whole brothers to succeed solely to the estate of a deceased brother to the exclusion of half brothers. Pesh Gul Ahmad v. Ghulam Rabani Khan 675

Custom—contd.

Succession—Step-mother, right of, to succeed step-son—Aroras of Montgomery District—Hindu Law—Succession—Disability—Lunatic—Person unable to manage affairs—Pleadings, construction of.

In cases where custom is alleged, a duty is imposed on the Court to endeavour to ascertain the existence and nature of that custom.

Fatima Bibi v. Gul, 127 P. R. 1893, Karlar Singh v. Mathar Singh, 94 P. R. 1898, Lorendi v. Krishen Kaur, 149 P. R. 1888 and Daya Ram v. Sohail Singh, 110 P. R. 1906; 31 P. L. R. 1907; 59 P. W. R. 1907 (F. B.), followed.

The fact that a particular tribe has in many matters adopted agricultural custom, cannot by itself afford a basis for the deduction that in the said tribe a custom exists by which a step-mother succeeds to her step-son.

There is no general custom in the Punjab recognising the succession of the step-mother to a step-son. On the contrary, a step-mother's right to succeed to her step-son according to the general custom has been negatived, and it is for the person setting up such a right to satisfy the Court by the production of instances where step-mothers have succeeded that such a custom exists.

Among Aroras of the Montgomery District a step-mother is not entitled by custom to succeed to her step-son.

Obiter dictum:—A man may be incapable of looking after his affairs without being a lunatic within the meaning of that term for the purpose of preventing his succession under the Hindu Law.

The assumption of control by the Court of Wards of the property of a person does not imply lunacy such as would cause a disability to succeed under the Hindu Law.

Surti v. Narain Das, 12 A. 520; A. W. N. (1890) 110; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1082, relied on. L. DAYAN v. HIRA NAND, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 448; 4 L. 202 898

Will—Muhammadzai Pathans of Charsadda Tahsil, Peshawar District—Sonless proprietor—Will in favour of daughters.

Custom is a mere crystallisation of public opinion in matters affecting the social and economic life of a community.

Where the practice of gift-making has established itself, the effect must be to incline public opinion favourably towards the practice of testamentary bequests, which are really in the nature of deferred gifts which are more easily revocable.

Restrictions placed upon testamentary disposition with a view to safeguarding the interests of sons have little force as presumptive evidence that a sonless proprietor is governed by similar restrictions safeguarding the interests of mere reversioners.

When the practice of Will-making establishes itself, it is the sonless proprietor who obtains the first power of bequest.

Custom—concl'd.

A sonless Muhammadzai proprietor of the Peshawar District is competent to bequeath the whole of his estate to his daughters, married or unmarried, in the presence of reversioners.

The history and conditions of the settlement of Pathan tribes in the different Districts of the North-West Frontier Province are widely dissimilar, and, in ascertaining the customs of the Pathans of the Peshawar District, no useful inferences can be drawn from customs obtaining in the other Districts of the Province. Pesh Abdul Manan v. Farooq 79

Damages, suit for—Cause of action. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, 1901, s. 146, CLAUSES FIRST AND SECOND 299

DEFINITIONS;—

Accessible to the public. See PUNJAB MUNICIPAL ACT, 1911, s. 3 (13) 725

Admixture. See OPIUM ACT, 1878, s. 9 700

All parties interested. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, SCH. II, PARA. I 202

Appellate Court. See SUITS VALUATION ACT, 1887, s. 11 87

At the beginning of the tenancy. See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 116 450

Auladdar aulad. See CONSTRUCTION OF DOCUMENT 427

Building. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1913, s. 16 911

By right of blood relationship. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1905, s. 12 (a) 594

Carrying on business. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 20 205

Change of conditions. See BOMBAY RENT (WAR RESTRICTIONS) ACT, 1918, s. 4 (6) 319

Compensation. See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ART. 101 17

Consequence. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, s. 179 323

Defendant. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 16 405

Demand. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 331 272

Dhaddhura. See RIPARIAN OWNER 727

Harbour. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 216 691

Illegally ejected. See OUDH RENT ACT, 1886, s. 108 (10) 238

In order of succession. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1905, s. 12 (a) 594

Interest. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 92 302

Loss. See RAILWAY COMPANY 986

Malik. See HINDU LAW—WILL 530

Market value. See COURT FEES ACT, 1870, s. 7 (v) (d) 244

Order being award. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 104 820

Owner. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1913, s. 16 444

Payable. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT, 1908, s. 3 (2) 733

DEFINITIONS—concl'd.

Person aggrieved by any proceeding. See MADRAS REVENUE RECOVERY ACT, 1864, s. 59 106

Preparation. See OPIUM ACT, 1878, s. 9 700

Proceedings for the recovery of any sum. See EXCESS PROFITS DUTY ACT, 1919, s. 18 106

Refusal to accept for registration, refusal to register, refusing to admit a document for registration. See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, s. 72 182

Robbery. See RAILWAY COMPANY 986

Seen. See EVIDENCE ACT, 1872, s. 63 (5) 654

Share in cultivation. See AGRA TENANCY ACT, 1901, s. 22 1030

Shop. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1913, s. 16 454

Structure. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1913, s. 16 911

Subordinate Court. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT, 1894, s. 18 354

Theft. See RAILWAY COMPANY 986

Thirumanam. See MADRAS ESTATES LAND ACT, 1908, s. 3 (2) 733

Town. See PUNJAB PRE-EMPTION ACT, 1905, s. 3 (2) 855

Trespass. See PENAL CODE, 1860, s. 297 935

Unable to pay his debts. See PROVINCIAL INSOLVENCY ACT, 1920, s. 10 74

Dhaddhura, custom of, meaning of. See RIPARIAN OWNER 727

Divorce Act (IV of 1869), s. 15—Guilty party, whether can obtain relief—Desertion, what is—Cross petition by husband—Separate document, whether necessary—Foreigner named as co-respondent—Jurisdiction.

Speaking generally, a guilty party cannot obtain relief by way of judicial separation any more than it can obtain relief by way of divorce.

Otway v. Otway, (1888) 13 P. D. 141; 57 L. J. P. 81; 59 L. T. 153, followed.

The desertion required to be proved under the Divorce Act is a wilful abstention by the husband against the wish of the wife.

Bai Kanku v. Shiva Toya, 17 B. 624; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 409 (F. B.), relied on.

In a suit for divorce by a wife, the husband can, in answering his wife's petition, counter-petition for a divorce on the ground of his wife's adultery—a separate petition on a separate document is not necessary.

N. v. N. (1913) P. 75; 82 L. J. P. 56; 108 L. T. 271; 57 S. J. 343; 29 T. L. R. 321, followed.

Where a husband in a petition for divorce charges a foreigner with adultery, the Court has jurisdiction to add him as co-respondent.

Rayment v. Rayment, (1910) P. 271; 79 L. J. P. 115; 103 L. T. 430; 54 S. J. 721; 26 T. L. R. 634; followed. B. Rose Hill v. Luke C. Hill, 25 Bom. L. R. 289; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 284; 47 B. 657 304

Dower-debt, suit for recovery of, nature of.

A suit to recovery a dower-debt is a suit to enforce a simple money claim founded solely on the contract entered into by the husband. It is, moreover, a suit to recover compensation within the Dower-debt—concl'd.

meaning of Art. 116 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act. O MAHAMMAD MAZHARAL AHAD v. MAHAMMAD AZIMUDDIN, 37 C. L. J. 108; 27 C. W. N. 210; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 507 17

Easement—Light, easement of—Measure of right.

There is no rule defining the measure of a dominant owner's right to easement of light or requiring an angle of 45 degrees through which the rays of the sun are to be received. The principle is that interference with the dominant owner's right in order to be actionable, must be a substantial deprivation of light, enough to render the occupation of the house uncomfortable according to ordinary notions. This would differ in different places and different circumstances.

Colls v. Home and Colonial Store Limited, (1904) A. C. 179; 73 L. J. Ch. 484; 90 L. T. 687; 53 W. R. 39; 20 T. L. R. 475, followed. A CHANDAN KUNWAR v. NARAIN, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 542 581

Privacy, right of.

The existence of the right of privacy does not depend on the caste or the creed of the person owning the building or on the fact whether or not the building is used by ladies. It is a custom of the country and is protected as such.

Gokal Prasad v. Radho, 10 A. 358; A. W. N. (1888) 135; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 241 and Jamiluddin v. Abdul Majid, 28 Ind. Cas. 674; 13 A. L. J. 361, followed. A BOHRA TARA CHAND v. RAYAZI BEGAM, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 404 1040

Water, right to—Artificial watercourse.

The right to water flowing through artificial water-courses is a right of easement and must rest on some grant or arrangement, either proved or presumed, from, or with the owners of the land from which the water is artificially brought, or on some legal origin. It is quite distinct from the natural right, which as a natural incident to the ownership of land, entitles prima facie each successive riparian proprietor to the unimpeded flow of water of a natural channel in its natural course, and to its reasonable enjoyment as it passes through his land. L BELA SINGH v. BALI RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 257 489

Easements Act (V of 1882), ss. 30, 47—Transfer of dominant heritage—Easement, division of—Discontinuance of easement—Extent of easement.

Under section 47 of the Easements Act, a continuous easement is extinguished when it totally ceases to be enjoyed as such for an unbroken period of 20 years. Such period should be reckoned in the case of a continuous easement from the day on which its enjoyment was obstructed by the servient owner, and in the case of a discontinued easement from the day on which it was last enjoyed by any person as dominant owner.

The exact nature of the right of easement acquired by a party is determined by the accustomed user and where the user proved is only the erection of a dam of flimsy structure across a stream, there is no right to erect a permanent dam.

Bakhtavatsal Ammal v. Secretary of State, 9 Ind. Cas. 636; 9 M. L. T. 375, relied on. M HOTA VEERABHADRAYYA v. VENKATAKRISHNA RAO, 18 L. W. 404; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 674 66

Encumbrance—Lease, whether encumbrance.

Apart from dealings such as mortgages, which create a charge upon land, there are other dealings which amount to an encumbrance. Anything which interferes with the unrestricted rights of the proprietor is an encumbrance, for instance the granting of a lease of zerai lands. A lease of such lands granted to an occupier in circumstances which would give him a right of occupancy over the land amounts to an encumbrance. PAT MAHADEO PRASAD SAHU v. GAJADHAR PRASAD SAHU, 1 P. L. R. 145 359

Estoppel—Incomplete transaction—Conduct.

Though a party has complete power to rescind from an incomplete engagement, such a power will be denied when the actings and conduct of the parties have carried the incompletely executed engagement into effect. But in order to exclude the plea of locus penitentiae, a party must base his claim, not upon the incompletely executed engagement, but upon the equities that arise from the actings and conduct of the parties. PAT MAN SINGH v. NAWLAKHBATI, 4 P. L. T. 335; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat) 492 822

Pre-emption suit—Vendee, right of, to prove real nature of transaction.

It is open to the vendee in a pre-emption suit to prove the real nature of the transaction against a third party.

In order to maintain a plea of estoppel in a pre-emption suit, it must be proved that the plaintiff believed the representation made to him, and brought his suit on the basis of it.

Nawab Begam v. Hamid Ali, 11 O. C. 176, relied on. O BANKE BEHARI LAL v. MANNA LAL, 9 O. & A. L. R. 79 372

Wrong doer, whether can set up his own wrong—Person claiming through wrong-doer, position of.

A party who claims under a wrong-doer cannot be in a better position than the wrong-doer himself.

A person who can only claim through another is estopped from challenging an adoption made by a widow with the consent of the latter on the ground that his judgment, in giving consent to the adoption, was vitiated by the acceptance of a corrupt consideration.

The principle contained in the maxim nemo allegans suam turpitudinem est audiendus, that no one alleging his own wrong is to be heard, is applicable to this country.

Where it is necessary for a party who wishes to establish a certain state of things to set up his own wrong, he will not be allowed to do so.

Doe v. Roberts, (1819) 2 B. & Ald. 368; 105 E. R. 401; 20 R. R. 477. Prote v. Wiggins, (1836) 3 Bing. (N. S.) 230; 3 Scott. 601; 2 Hodges 204; 6 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 2; 132 E. R. 398; 43 R. R. 621. Voddina Kamayya v. Gudisa Mayayya, 43 Ind. Cas. 352; 32 M. L. J. 484. Sid, lingappa v. Hirasa 31 B. 405; 9 Bom. L. R. 542, followed and applied. M PARTHASARATHY REDDIAR v. KANDASWAMI MUDALIAR, 32 M. L. T. 349; (1923) M. W. N. 423; 18 L. W. 156; 45 M. L. J. 161 954

Evidence, admissibility of—Goods consigned to Railway—Damages, suit for—Valuation of goods—Invoice, admissibility of.

In a suit for damages, against a Railway Company, on account of the deterioration of goods while in transit, an invoice, sent to the claimant by the consignor, showing the value of the goods, is a prima facie evidence of what the claimant was charged for them and what presumably he would have to pay for them, and in the absence of cross-examination, it is admissible in evidence and it is not necessary to put the consignor into the witness-box to prove what was the actual value of the goods sent. A DUKHI RAM v. R. N. W. RAILWAY, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 145 440

—, admissibility of—Identification by co-accused—Secondary evidence, whether admissible—Evidence by official witness when admissible—Identification, mistake in—Evidence in other respects, whether discredited.

Inasmuch as an accused cannot give evidence while on his trial, secondary evidence of an identification of a co-accused by him is clearly inadmissible. Evidence by an official witness of identification is only admissible, if the identifying witness is called to support his identification on oath.

The fact that a witness makes mistakes in identification is no reason for discrediting his evidence in other matters. A KHERAL v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 143; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 352; 45 A. 300; 24 Cr. L. J. 526 62 —, record of—Vernacular record not in agreement with English record—Procedure—Doubt, benefit of.

Ordinarily, where evidence is given by a witness in his own language, the vernacular record of the case is more reliable and entitled to greater weight. But where the Magistrate recording the evidence in English is an Indian gentleman of considerable experience as a Magistrate, his record should be preferred. Where, however, the record of such a Magistrate and the vernacular record are at variance, the accused is entitled to the benefit of any omissions from the latter and the doubts created thereby. L SADHU SINGH v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 167; 24 Cr. L. J. 625 513

Evidence Act (1 of 1872), s. 18—Admission by predecessor-in-title, when admissible.

Statements made by persons from whom the parties to a suit have derived their interest in the subject-matter of the suit are admissible as admissions only when the admissions are of a date prior to the date of the transfer. Statements made by persons in possession of property and qualifying or affecting their title thereto are receivable against the party claiming through them by title subsequent to the admission. O. GALSTAUN v. ABID HUSAIN, 9 O. & A. L. R. 282; 10 O. L. J. 263 428

—, s. 18 (2)—Admission by vendor subsequent to sale—Purchaser, whether bound.

A purchaser is not bound by an admission made by his vendor subsequent to the purchase by him. He is not the representative-in-interest of his vendor, though he claims his title by virtue of the purchase through him. L B MAUNG AUNG v. MAUNG SHWE LIN, (1923) A. I. R. (R) 51 1039

Evidence Act—contd.

—, s. 35—Confession—Certificate by Magistrate, whether conclusive.

A certificate recorded by a Magistrate under section 35 of the Evidence Act as to the voluntariness of a confession made to him is good prima facie evidence of the fact which it records. The certificate, however, is not conclusive and the facts may be proved which may lead the Court to think that the confession was not really voluntary. O NAR SINGH v. EMPEROR, 25 O. C. 229; (1922) A. I. R. (O.) 302; 24 Cr. L. J. 561 257 —, ss. 63, 91—Document—Secondary evidence.

Where the terms of a contract are reduced to writing, the only evidence which is allowable under section 91 of the Evidence Act to prove the terms thereof is the document itself or such secondary evidence as is mentioned in section 63 of the Act. Any other kind of documentary evidence is inadmissible in evidence.

Where a portion only of a dominant heritage passes to another by a sale-deed, the whole of the easement right cannot be deemed to have been transferred, notwithstanding that no right was specially reserved by the vendor in the sale-deed. Under section 30 of the Easements Act when a dominant heritage is divided between two or more persons, the easement becomes annexed to each of the sharers provided that such annexation is consistent with the terms of the instrument under which the division was made. M HOTA VEERABHADRAYYA v. VENKATAKRISHNA RAO, 18 L. W. 404; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 674 66

—, s. 63 (5)—Secondary evidence—"Seen," meaning of—Illiterate witness.

Under section 63 (5) of the Evidence Act secondary evidence of the contents of a document must be given by a person who has seen the original. If a document is read over to a man because he cannot read it himself, and he signs it and signs it as containing what has been read over to him, he may be said within the meaning of section 63 of the Evidence Act to have "seen" the contents of the document.

Ghure v. Chattrapal Singh, 23 Ind. Cas. 111; 12 A. L. J. 239, explained. A PUDAI SINGH v. BRIJ MANGAL, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 612 654

—, s. 90—Old document—Executant's signature through scribe—Authority to scribe—Presumption.

In the case of a document more than 30 years old produced from proper custody, the legal presumption is that it was executed by the person who purports to execute it; but if it is signed by the scribe on behalf of the executant, there is no presumption that the scribe had authority from the executant to sign.

Gokul Singh v. Saheb Singh, 38 Ind. Cas. 162; 15 A. L. J. 121 and Lokman Das v. Ganga Sahai, 66 Ind. Cas. 96, followed.

Evidence Act—contd.

Yar Ali v. Hashmat Bibi, A. W. N. (1897) 90, distinguished. A BOODHA v. SUKHRAM SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 420 989

— s. 112—Legitimacy, rule of—Rule, applicability of, to Muhammadans.

The rule as to legitimacy contained in section 112 of the Evidence Act is a rule of procedure and not of substantive law, and as such is applicable to Muhammadans.

Mazhar Ali v. Budh Singh, 7 A. 297; A. W. N. (1884) 333; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 422 (F. B.) and Mairaj Fatima v. Abdul Waheed, 63 Ind. Cas. 286; 43 A. 673; 19 A. L. J. 715, relied on. A HAJIRA KHATUN v. AMINA KHATUN, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 570 983

— s. 114 (e)—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 24 (2)—Warrant signed by Serishtadar "by order"—Presumption.

Where a Serishtadar signs a warrant "by order" the presumption under section 114 (e) of the Evidence Act is applicable, and he must be held to be the officer appointed by the Court to sign processes as required by clause (2) of r. 24 of O. XXI of the Civil Procedure Code. G GIRIDHAR SARKAK v. HARISH CHANDRA, 37 C. L. J. 331; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 584; 27 C. W. N. 1044; 24 Cr. L. J. 584 328

— s. 116—Landlord and tenant—Estoppel—At the beginning of the tenancy, meaning of.

The words "at the beginning of the tenancy" in section 116 of the Evidence Act apply only to cases in which a tenant is put into possession of the tenancy by the person to whom he has attorned and do not apply to cases in which the tenant has previously been in possession.

Lal Mahomed v. Kallianus, 11 C. 519; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1104, Sibu Sant v. Netai Charan Das, 9 Ind. Cas. 806; 15 C. L. J. 114, Yerraguntha Seshachari v. Mukkumalia Chinniah, 15 Ind. Cas. 721, relied on.

Ketu Das v. Surendra Nath Sinha, 7 C. W. N. 596 and Mathra Prasad v. Gokal Chand, 51 Ind. Cas. 546; 17 A. L. J. 835; 1 C. P. L. R. (A) 100; 41 A. 654, distinguished.

In answer to a suit for rent on the basis of a written lease the defendant stated that the house to which the lease referred was really the joint property of himself and the plaintiff, who was his brother and who had agreed to a scheme of partition by which the house in dispute was to go to him and another house to the defendant, and that as a guarantee for carrying out the terms of this arrangement the defendant had been persuaded to execute the lease, but that the partitions had fallen through and the document remained a mere formality, no rent having ever been paid.

Held, that in the absence of proof of any rent ever having been paid or that the defendant was inducted as a tenant by the plaintiff, the former was not estopped from denying that he was the plaintiff's tenant. L. RIKHI DAS v. B. ELA RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 403 450

Evidence Act—concl'd.

— s. 138—Cross-examination, right of—Examination-in-chief, value of, in absence of cross-examination.

Section 138 of the Evidence Act merely lays down the order in which witnesses will be examined, cross-examined and re-examined. An examination-in-chief of a witness, without an opportunity being offered to the opposite party to cross-examine, is not legally acceptable. PAT MOTI SINGH v. DHANUKDHARI SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 53; 24 Cr. L. J. 595 339

Excess Profits Duty Act (X of 1919), s. 18, rules framed under, rule 24 (3)—"Proceedings for the recovery of any sum," meaning of.

The words "proceedings for the recovery of any sum" in sub-rule (3) of rule 24 of the rules framed under section 18 (1), (2) of the Excess Profits Duty Act, mean the proceedings taken under sub-rule (1) of that rule after default has been made in payment. L. GIAN SINGH-BAHADUR SINGH v. EMPEROR, 4 L. 165 108

Execution of decree—Assignment of decree by decree-holder—Transfer of decree for execution—Objection to executability of decree, whether maintainable.

Where a decree-holder assigns the decree and applies to the Court for the recognition of the assignment and for a transfer of the decree to another Court for execution, and the Court transmits the decree without adjudicating on its executability, the mere omission by the judgment-debtor to take objection to the assignment of the decree being recognised and to its transmission to another Court for execution, does not preclude him from raising in the Executing Court the question that the decree is not executable. M. NATESA CHETTIAR v. ANNAMALAI CHETTIAR, 17 L. W. 319; 32 M. L. T. 157; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 487 213 — Decree for possession and mesne profits—Stay of execution on production of sureties—Application for determination of future mesne profits—Step-in-aid of execution—Sureties not made parties—Limitation against sureties, saving of—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 182.

The plaintiff obtained a decree in 1907 for possession, and mesne profits, past and future. In March 1908 he filed a darkhast for the recovery of possession and past mesne profits. In the meanwhile, the judgment-debtor got the execution stayed under the order of the High Court after sureties had passed security bonds for the due fulfilment of the decree. The High Court confirmed the decree in September 1915 and the execution proceedings that had been stayed were continued and the decree-holder recovered possession and past mesne profits in 1916. In April 1918, the plaintiff made an application for the determination of the future mesne profits from the date of the decree, making the judgment-debtor only the party. On ascertaining the mesne profits the plaintiff put in the present darkhast in January 1920 for recovering from the judgment-debtor or the sureties the amount of future mesne profits so determined:

Execution of decree—concl'd.

Held, that the darkhast of 1920 was time-barred as against the sureties, inasmuch as limitation as against them ran from 1915, the date of the High Court decree, and though the application to ascertain the amount of mesne profits was made to keep the decree alive as against the judgment-debtor it would not keep the decree alive as against the sureties.

An application for the ascertainment of the mesne profits awarded by a decree prior as well as subsequent to its date is not a proceeding in the suit but a proceeding in execution and comes within Art. 182 of the Indian Limitation Act. B USUR ALI v. AMIN, 25 Bom. L. R. 810; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 366; 47 B. 778 233 — Money-decree—Judgment-debtor's estate taken over by Court of Wards—Instalments, whether should be allowed.

The mere fact that the estate of a judgment-debtor has been brought under the management of the Court of Wards is not a reason for allowing him to pay by instalments the amount of a money-decree obtained against him. L WALI DAD KHAN v. MANI RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 800

— Sale of tenure—Crops, whether belong to raiyat or purchaser.

The sale of a tenure in execution of a decree would pass all that is growing upon the land, unless the growing crops are excepted by the notification of sale, or else a custom is proved that the outgoing raiyyat should have the crops, subject to a payment for use and occupation of the land while they remain on the ground.

Afatabolla Sirdar v. Dwarka Nath Moitry, 4 C. 814; 4 C. L. R. 95; 2 Ind. Dec. (C.) 57516, relied on. PAT DHOBI ROY v. MAHADEO SINGH, 4 P. L. T. 318; 1 P. L. R. 269; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 355 451

Ex parte decree—Appeal—Appellate Court, power of.

When a suit is decided ex parte the Appellate Court to which an appeal from the decree is preferred, has jurisdiction to reverse the decree of the lower Court on the ground that such Court was wrong in proceeding to decide the case ex parte and has also power to remand the suit for re-hearing.

Sadhu Krishna Ayyar v. Kuppan Ayyangar, 30 M. 54; 1 M. L. T. 268; 16 M. L. J. 479 (F. B.), relied on. O FARZAND ALI v. EKADASHI, 26 O. C. 10; 9 O. & A. L. R. 332; 10 O. L. J. 36; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 177 591

Family settlement, principles applicable to—Minor whether bound.

A family arrangement might be upheld even though there were no rights actually in dispute at the time of making it, and the Courts will not be disposed to scan with much nicety the quantum of consideration.

It is a mistake to suppose that the doctrine of family settlement extends no further than Family settlement—concl'd.

arrangements for the settlement of doubtful or disputed rights. The principle is applicable not merely to cases in which arrangements are made between members of a family for the preservation of its peace but also to cases in which arrangements are made between them for the preservation of its property.

Helan Dasi v. Durga Das Mundal, 4 C. L. J. 327, relied on.

In the absence of proof of mistake, inequality of position, undue influence, coercion, fraud or any similar ground, a family arrangement made in settlement of a disputed or doubtful claim is a valid and binding arrangement which the parties thereto cannot deny, ignore or resile from. If the parties have settled a dispute, such settlement will not be set aside on the ground that it gave to one of them more than that which he ought possibly to have recovered if he had taken the judgment of the Court upon the matters in difference between them.

There is nothing in this doctrine of family arrangements opposed to the general principle that, when it is sought to bind a minor by an agreement entered into on his behalf, it must be shown that the agreement was for the benefit of the minor. If improper advantage has been taken of the minor's position, a family arrangement can be set aside on the ground of undue influence or inequality of position or one of the other grounds which would vitiate an arrangement in the case of adults; but when there is no defect of this nature the settlement of a doubtful claim is of as much advantage to a minor as to an adult and where a genuine dispute has been fairly settled, the dispute cannot be re-opened solely on the ground that one of the parties to the family arrangement was a minor.

Keramutulla Miah v. Keramutulla Meah, 49 Ind. Cas. 586; 23 C. W. N. 118, relied on. PAT RAM BAHADUR SEN v. GANESH BHAGAT 542

Government of India Act (5 & 6 Geo. V, c. 61), 107—Powers of superintendence, when to be exercised.

Semble.—The High Court will not, in the exercise of its power of superintendence under section 107 of the Government of India Act, interfere with an order of a lower Court when it is not manifestly erroneous and unjust. M LAGADAPATI VENKATARAMANABUSHANAM v. KARELI A RAMASWAMY, 17 L. W. 375; (923) M. W. N. 244, 4 M. L. J. 78; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 500 131

Guardian and ward—Ward, whether can question act of guardian after disability ceases.

A person under disability is bound by the act of his guardian by whom he is represented in a proceeding, but such a person can re-open the proceeding after the disability ceases, if he satisfies the Court that the act of the guardian has prejudiced him. PAT MAN SINGH v. NAWLAKHBATI, 4 P. L. T. 35; (923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 42 822

Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), ss. 7, 8—Appointment of guardian—Notice to interested party not given, effect of—Person other than applicant appointed—Separate application, whether necessary.

Guardians and Wards Act—contd.

It is open to a person who should have been, but who has not been, served with notice of an application for appointment as guardian, to object in revision to an order granting such application.

Sections 7 and 8 of the Guardians and Wards Act do not necessarily require that, when once proceedings for the appointment of a guardian of a minor have been properly instituted, a separate application should be taken from the person whom the Court appoints, though in practice it may be usual to take one. O ISLAMAN v. MAQBULAN, 9 O. & A. L. R. 74 255

g. 25—Custody of infant—Father and mother, rights of—Arrangement transferring custody of child, whether revocable.

A father is entitled to the custody of his child as against the mother even though the child is only four years old and is likely to be better looked after by the mother, unless it is shown that he is unfit to have the custody of the child.

Where there is nothing established against the father except that he and the mother have, during the past, been on bad terms and have been engaged in litigation, the father ought not to be deprived of the right to the custody of the child.

An arrangement by which a father abandons a child's custody to the mother is not irrevocable.

Mrs. Annie Besant v. Narayamah, 24 Ind. Cas. 290; 38 M. 807 at p. 808; 27 M. L. J. 30; 18 C. W. N. 1089; 1 L. W. 520; (1914) M. W. M. 585; 16 M. L. T. 165; 20 C. L. J. 253; 16 Bom. L. R. 625; 12 A. L. J. 1125; 41 I. A. 314 (P. C.), followed. M. SATYANARAYANA v. NARASIMMA, 18 L. W. 173; (1923) M. W. N. 668 948

Hindu Law—Father's debt—Sons, pious duty of—Death of father, effect of.

A debt by a Hindu father which is neither antecedent nor for legal necessity, is not binding on the sons on the plea of pious obligation merely because of the father being dead on the date of the institution of the suit.

Chet Ram v. Ram Singh, 67 Ind. Cas. 569; 44 A. 368; 49 I. A. 228; 3 P. L. T. 363; 31 M. L. T. 50; 43 M. L. J. 98; 16 L. W. 89; (1922) M. W. N. 455; 4 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 64; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 247; 3 P. L. R. 1922; 24 Bom. L. R. 123; 27 C. W. N. 150; 21 A. L. J. 114; 37 C. L. J. 79 (P. C.), followed.

Gharib Ullah v. Khalak Singh, 25 A. 407; 30 I. A. 165; 5 Bom. L. R. 478; 7 C. W. N. 681; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 483 (P. C.), distinguished. A RAJA SINGH v. DURGA SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 529 607 Invalid mortgage by deceased father—Pious obligation of sons.

A mortgage by a Hindu father, not incurred for legal necessity or for the payment of an antecedent debt, is not binding on his sons even after his death, on the ground of any pious obligation on them to pay their deceased father's debts. O RAM SARUP SINGH v. JAGESHAR SINGH, 9 O. & A. L. R. 157; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 150 486

Hindu Law—contd.

Adoption—Gift of only son in adoption—Widow, power of—Adoption by widow—Adopted son, right of, to contest prior alienations.

A Hindu widow can make a valid gift of her only son in adoption.

Krishna v. Paramshri, 25 B. 537; 8 Bom. L. R. 73, followed.

Strictly speaking, as soon as a Hindu widow takes a boy in adoption, all alienations made by her become ineffective against the adopted son, though it can be shown that they were made for necessity. In the case of a lease, however, by the widow, it is good until the adopted son chooses to contest it. He may be willing to take advantage of the lease and receive rent thereunder. It is only when he chooses to contest the lease that he is entitled to mesne profits in addition to the rent. B GANPATI SHANKRAPPA HEDGE v. KRISHNAPA SHIVRAM HEGDE 204

Sister's son—Sudras—Leva patidars of Gujarat, whether Sudras.

The leva patidars of Gujarat are Sudras, and the adoption of a sister's son is valid among them. Among Sudras there is no necessity to prove a custom permitting the adoption of a daughter's son or a sister's son.

Manchharam Bhiku v. Dattu Bhiku, 54 Ind. Cas. 110; 21 Bom. L. R. 1172; 44 B 166, followed. B KAHNDAS NARAIN v. JIWAN PRAG, 25 Bom. L. R. 510; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 427 1023

Alienation by father—Legal necessity—Justification—Immediate necessity.

In order to justify an alienation made by a Hindu father it is not sufficient in law to show that at the time of the alienation debts binding upon the family were outstanding. It must further be shown that the alienation had to be undertaken under the pressure of present necessity for the discharge of the debts.

Where, therefore, a Hindu father sold the joint family property in order to pay off debts including a mortgage-debt which formed the bulk of the consideration but which was not to fall due till two years and some months subsequent to the date of the sale, and the scheme adopted for the liquidation of the debts by the father was not a prudent one:

Held, that the sale could not be held to have been made for a legal necessity and was liable to be set aside. A BANDHU RAM v. RAM KISHUN SONAR, 21 A. L. J. 354; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 535 1010

Charitable endowment—Temple site purchased in name of one member of joint family—Other members, right of, to joint trusteeship—Family God installed in new temple—Original founder of worship, position of—Usage of institution, evidential value of.

The mere fact that a site was purchased in the name of one of the members of a Hindu joint family and a temple was subsequently built on that site does not show that that member was the founder of the temple and that his descendants alone, to the exclusion of those of other members, are entitled to the trusteeship of the temple.

Hindu Law—contd.

The site of a temple was purchased in the name of one of the members of one of three branches of a Hindu family and a temple was built on it. There was no evidence to show whether that member acted for his branch only or for the whole joint family consisting of all the three branches, or whether they were divided from one another at that period; nor was there any definite evidence as to how the money for the purchase of the site and for the building of the temple was found. Prior to the building of the temple the common ancestor of all the three branches had a place of worship in a temple-house for a deity which was afterwards installed in the suit temple. There was also an effigy in the temple of the original common ancestor. Several temporary arrangements had been made in which one branch recognised the right of the other branches to manage:

Held, that in view of these facts all the three branches were equally entitled to the trusteeship of the suit temple either because the original ancestor was accepted as the real founder or because the member in whose name the site was purchased was acting on behalf of all the three branches of the family.

Where a family god that is worshipped in a temple house belonging to a person is afterwards installed in a newly built temple, the new temple must be regarded only as an enlargement of the original institution in the temple house and the latter must be taken as the original foundation and its founder as the founder of the new temple.

Mahomed Ismail Ariff v. Ahmed Moola Davood, 35 Ind. Cas. 30; 43 C. 1085; 14 A. L. J. 741; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 460; 20 C. W. N. 1118; 20 M. L. T. 1101; 18 Bom. L. R. 611; 31 M. L. J. 290; 24 C. L. J. 198; 4 L. W. 269; 2 Bur. L. T. 141; 8 L. B. R. 517; 43 L. A. 127 (P. C.), followed.

Where there is no direct evidence as to who was the founder of a temple and what are the rules of succession to the trusteeship, the Court must infer them from the practice of the institution and the conduct of the parties. M. NARAYAN CHETTY v. ELAYAPERUMAL 381

Hindu — Illegitimate offspring by Muhammadan mistress, whether Hindu.

Under the Hindu Law a man cannot be regarded as a Hindu by birth unless both his parents are Hindus, consequently an illegitimate offspring of a Hindu by a Muhammadan mistress would not be a Hindu:

Lingappa Goundan v. Esudasan, 27 M. 13; relied on. B. SITARAM PANDURANG v. GANPAT DAULATRAO, 25 Bom. L. R. 429; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 384 412

Inheritance, exclusion from — Insanity.

Insanity to cause exclusion from inheritance under the Hindu Law need not be congenital. B. BAPUJI NARSO v. DATTU ANTAJI, 25 Bom. L. R. 404; 47 B. 707; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 425 279

Hindu Law—contd.

Joint family — Alienation by manager — Minor members, position of — Advantage — Necessity.

An alienation of joint family property by the manager would affect the shares of the minor co-parceners only if it is proved that the alienation was for necessity.

The manager of a joint Hindu family cannot justify the sale of family property merely on the ground that the sale at the time appeared to be advantageous. B. VISHNU VISHVANATH NIMKAR v. RAMCHANDRA SADASHIV NIMKAR, 25 Bom. L. R. 508 1017

Alienation by manager, suit to set aside — Purchase-money partly raised for binding purposes — Decree, form of.

In a suit by a Hindu co-parcener to set aside an alienation made by the manager, where part of the purchase-money is found to have been raised for purposes binding on the family, the Court should make the decree for possession conditional on the payment of the amount.

Koor Hasmat Rai v. Sunder Das, 11 C. 396; 10 Ind. Jur. 26; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1013 followed; L. AMIR v. KAHAN CHAND, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 255 818

Decree against father — Family property sold in execution — Sons, position of — Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 47 — Decree against father of Hindu joint family — Suit to make son's interest liable, maintainability of — Suit, whether maintainable.

In the absence of any objection by any member of a Hindu joint family, when joint family property is put up for sale in execution of a decree against the manager, it may be inferred that the intention was to pass the interest of all the members in the family, though it may be open to other members of the family to dispute that intention and to satisfy the Court either that the alienation was not binding on them or that the debt incurred by their father was not binding on them or that in any way possible their interest in the family property had not passed to the auction-purchaser.

Sripal Singh v. Prodyot Kumar Tagore, 39 Ind. Cas. 252; 44 I. A. 1; 32 M. L. J. 133. 15 A. L. J. 147; (1917) M. W. N. 193; 21 C. W. N. 442; 25 C. L. J. 220; 21 M. L. T. 222; 19 Bom. L. R. 1290; 44 C. 524 (P. C.), followed.

Where in the case of a Hindu joint family consisting of a father and his sons, the family property is sold in execution of a decree against the father, the auction-purchaser can, if the sons contest his right, bring a separate suit for recovery of possession. Such a suit is not barred by section 47 of the Civil Procedure Code as the sons cannot be considered to be the representatives of their father.

Sadashiv Mahadu v. Narayan Vithal, 11 Ind. 987; 35 B. 452; 13 Bom. L. R. 661, distinguished. B. DADA JINAPPA VAGIANI v. YESU bin SAKHOBA UGARE, 25 Bom. L. R. 494 402

Hindu Law—contd.

Joint family—Hundi executed by manager
Liability of co-parceners—Unsecured debt
Liability of estate—Debt by manager—
Presumption—High rate of interest—Necessity—Burden of proof.

A hundi executed and signed by the manager of a Hindu joint family as such for family necessity is binding on the entire co-parcenary body. Krishnanand Nath Khare v. Raja Ram Singh, 66 Ind. Cas. 150; 20 A. L. J. 233; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 116; 44 A. 393, followed.

The manager of a Hindu joint family can incur simple debts in his capacity as such manager and on behalf of the family.

Dhiraj Singh v. Manja Ram, 19 A. 300; A. W. N. (1897) 69; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 196 and Kailu v. Faiyaz Ali Khan, 30 A. 394; 5 A. L. J. 307; A. W. N. (1908) 173, distinguished.

There is no presumption that a debt incurred by the head of a Hindu joint family is one incurred on behalf of the family. The person who asserts that a particular debt of the manager is binding on the family must prove it.

Soiru Padmanabh Rangappa v. Narayanrao, 18 B. 520; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 855, relied upon.

Where the rate of interest of a loan taken by the manager of a Hindu joint family is unduly high, the creditor in order to bind the family estate must prove not only the necessity for the loan, but also the necessity to borrow it at so extravagant a rate.

Nawab Nazir Begam v. Rao Raghunath, 50 Ind. Cas. 434; 46 I. A. 145; 36 M. L. J. 521; 17 A. L. J. 591; 23 C. W. N. 700; 21 Bom. L. R. 484; 26 M. L. T. 44; 30 C. L. J. 86; (1919) M. W. N. 498; 11 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 49, followed. A RAGHUNATH SINGH v. SRINARAIN, 21 A. L. J. 323; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 424; 45 A. 434 1018

Joint estate, blending of, with separate estate—Presumption.

When members of a joint family, who have control over the joint estate, blend that estate with property in which they have separate interests, the presumption is in favour of the whole property becoming joint. It makes no difference whether separate estate is brought into the joint family account or the joint family property is brought into the separate account.

Suraj Narain v. Ratan Lal, 40 Ind. Cas. 988; 40 A. 159; 44 I. A. 201; 21 C. W. N. 165; 15 A. L. J. 684; 19 Bom. L. R. 737; 23 M. L. T. 121; 26 C. L. J. 267; 6 L. W. 509; (1917) M. W. N. 477; 4 O. L. J. 762; 20 O. C. 211; 2 P. L. W. 160; 33 M. L. J. 180 (P. C. relied on. P C RAJANIKANTA PAL v. JAGAMOHAN PAL, (1923) A. I. R. (P. C.) 57; 44 M. L. J. 561; 32 M. L. T. 149; 25 Bom. L. R. 683; 37 C. L. J. 515; (1923) M. W. N. 438; 50 C. 439; 18 L. W. 387; 27 C. W. N. 997; 9 O. & A. L. R. 805 (P. C.) 252

Litigation by—Separate representation of minor co-parceners—Manager, compromise of suit by, validity of.

A compromise of a suit by the manager of a joint Hindu family without obtaining the consent of minor co-parceners who are separately represented in the suit is unlawful and falls not only as regards the minor co-parceners but as regards the manager as well.

Hindu Law—contd.

Where one of several mortgagors has redeemed a mortgage under which all are equally liable, he is subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee whose debt he discharges and, as an assignee of the security which he pays off, can enforce it by a suit for sale. O LUTAR RAM v. LAL RANJIT SINGH, 9 O. & A. L. R. 677 113

Joint family—Mortgage-decree against father—Sons, liability of.

In a joint Hindu family consisting of a father and his sons, the latter are not precluded from questioning a mortgage-decree obtained against their father, so long as the mortgaged property is still in possession of the family and no adverse proprietary rights have sprung up by a sale held in execution of the decree, and the onus is on the mortgagee decree-holder to show that the mortgage was made for payment of an antecedent debt or for a valid family necessity.

Sahu Ram Chandra v. Bhup Singh, 39 Ind. Cas. 28; 44 I. A. 16; 15 A. L. J. 437; 39 A. 4371 21 C. W. N. 698; 1 P. L. W. 557; 19 Bom. L. R. 498; 26 C. L. J. 1; 33 M. L. J. 14; (1917) M. W. N. 439; 22 M. L. T. 22; 6 L. W. 213 (P. C.) Suraj Bansi Koer v. Sheo Persad Singh, 11 A. 88; 5 C. 148; 4 C. L. R. 226; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 1; 3 Suth P. C. J. 58; 2 Shome L. R. 242; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 705 (P. C.), Chandardeo Singh v. Mata Prasad, 1 Ind. Cas. 479; 31 A. 176; 6 A. L. J. 263, followed.

Sripal Singh Dugar v. Prodyat Kumar Tagore, 39 Ind. Cas. 25; 44 I. A. 1; 15 A. L. J. 147; 32 M. L. J. 133; (1917) M. W. N. 193; 21 C. W. N. 442; 25 C. L. J. 220; 21 M. L. T. 222; 19 Bom. L. R. 290; 44 C. 524 (P. C.), Kalyan Singh v. Dharam Singh, 68 Ind. Cas. 704; 26 A. L. J. 721; (1-22) A. I. R. (A) 489; Basdeo Lal v. Mahabir, 59 Ind. Cas. 570; 8 O. L. J. 18; 23 O. C. 344; 3 U. P. L. R. (O) 1, Bhagbut Pershad v. Girja Koer, 15 C. 717; 15 I. A. 99; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 185; 12 Ind. Jur. 280; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1062 (P. C.), distinguished.

Gur Narain v. Gulzari Lal, 25 Ind. Cas. 917; 17 O. C. 318; 1 O. L. J. 503, not followed. GANGA BAKSH SINGH v. RAGHUBAR SINGH, 9 O. & A. L. R. 359; 10 A. L. J. 61; (1923) A. I. R. (O) 182 27

Mortgage, usufructuary—Necessity—Interest, whether can be allowed.

Where a usufructuary mortgage of joint family property is challenged by a co-parcener, and a portion of the mortgage-money is found to have been paid for necessity the mortgagee is not entitled to interest on that amount as a condition of delivery to the plaintiff of his share of the mortgaged property. A RAM LALLAN SINGH v. HARAKH NARAIN RAI, 20 A. L. J. 641; (1922) A. I. R. (A) 403 920

Nucleus of ancestral property—Separate acquisitions—Burden of proof—Nucleus, whether must be substantial.

In a joint Hindu family, where there is a nucleus of ancestral property, with the assistance of which subsequent acquisitions have been made, the burden of proving that any particular property is separate lies on the person who asserts it.

Hindu Law—contd.

Lal Bahadur v. Kanhaiya Lal, 29 A. 244; 9 Bom. L. R. 597; 11 C. W. N. 417; 5 C. L. J. 340; 4 A. L. J. 227; 2 M. L. T. 147; 17 M. L. J. 228; 34 I. A. 65 (P. C.), followed.

There is no authority for the proposition that in order to raise a presumption about the jointness of the acquisitions of a Hindu joint family the nucleus must be a substantial one; although a property which is incapable of yielding any income, such as an ancestral house, cannot be treated as a nucleus. A SUKHNANDAN v. BRIJNANDAN, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 574 1052

Joint family—Partition, partial, effect of.

The very conception of a joint Hindu family involves joint ownership of all the family property by its members, and the moment a partition takes place between the members, even though it is a partition of only a portion of the joint property, they cease to be members of a joint Hindu family.

Gaurishankar Parabhuram v. Atmaram Rajaram, 18 B. 611; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 916, dissented from. L BENI PARSHAD v. GUR DEVI, 5 L. L. J. 185; (1923) A. I. R. (L) 497, 4 L. 452 894

Partition—Widowed daughter-in-law—Maintenance, right to—Cause of action when arises—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), s. 28, whether extinguishes right to maintenance:

Under the Hindu Law a widowed daughter-in-law has no legal right to maintenance as against the self-acquired property of her father-in-law, if her husband died during the lifetime of her father-in-law. But although the obligation of the father-in-law to maintain his widowed daughter-in-law is only moral and not legal when he has no ancestral assets in his hands, the position of the heir who takes his estate by inheritance is different. What was a moral obligation in respect of the father ripens into a legal obligation when the estate passes into the hands of his heirs who are not entitled to evade liability merely because they do not receive the estate by inheritance but by way of gift or testamentary disposition.

Bai Parvati v. Tarwadi Dolatram, 25 B. 263; 2 Bom. L. R. 894, dissented from.

Siddessury Dasee v. Janardan Sarkar, 29 C. 557, 6 C. W. N. 539, Indulala Dassee v. Panchamani Dassee, 28 Ind. Cas. 578; 21 C. L. J. 292; 19 C. W. N. 1109; Narayanarao Ramchandra Pant v. Ramabai, 6 L. A. 114; 3 B. 415; 3 Ind. Jur. 332; 2 Shome L. R. 274; 3 Shome L. R. 190, 3 Sutu P. C. J. 617; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 24 6 C. L. R. 162; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 20 (P. C.), Kedar Nath Coondoo Chowdhury v. Hemangini Dass, 13 C. 336; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 725, Khethur Monie Dassee v. Kasheerath Dass, 20 L. R. A. C. J. 15; 10 W. R. (P. B.) 89; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 659, Meenakshi Ammal v. Rama Aiyar, 10 Ind. Cas. 341 37 M. 396; 13 M. L. T. 97; 24 M. L. J. 106; (1913) M. W. N. 40, Jhki v. Nand Ram, 11 A. 194; A. W. N. (1889) 30; 13 Ind. Jur. 347; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 552 and Yamunuoai v. Manubai, 23 B. 608; 1

Hindu Law—contd.

Bom. L. R. 95; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 406, relied upon.

When joint property of a Hindu family is partitioned, provision may be made for the maintenance of such female members of the family as are entitled to maintenance from the estate.

Kedar Nath Coondoo Chowdhury v. Hemangini Dass, 13 C. 336; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 725, and Commumoney Dossee v. Ramnath Bysack, (1843) Fulton 189; 1 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 758, followed.

Section 28 of the Limitation Act does not extinguish a right to maintenance. The cause of action for maintenance accrues from time to time according to the want and exigencies of the person entitled.

Rangammal v. Eehammal, 22 M. 305; 9 M. L. J. 14; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 217, In the goods of Gobinda Chandra, 23 Ind. Cas. 539; 12 C. W. N. 1141, Kedar Nath Coondoo Chowdhury v. Hemangini Dass, 13 C. 336; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 725 and Siddessury Dass v. Janardan Sarkar, 29 C. 557; 6 C. W. N. 539, followed. G GOPAL CHANDRA v. KADAMBINI DASI 235

Joint family—Separation of one member, effect of—Presumption—Insolvency of some members—Shares of others, whether affected.

There is no presumption that where one coparcener in a joint Hindu family separates from the others, the others remain united. It must be decided upon the evidence in each case whether the rest of the members had agreed to continue to remain united.

Balabux v. Rukhmabai, 30 C. 725; 30 I. A. 130; 7 C. W. N. 642; 5 Bom. L. R. 469; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 470 (P. C.), followed.

It is not open to an Insolvency Court to direct the Receiver in Insolvency to deal with assets other than those belonging to the persons who have been adjudicated insolvents.

Sanyasi Charan Mandal v. Asutosh Ghosh, 26 Ind. Cas. 836; 42 C. 225, relied on.

Where some members of a joint Hindu family are adjudicated insolvents the shares only of those upon whom the debts of the insolvents are binding vest in the Receiver. Consequently, the insolvency of some members of a joint Hindu family does not affect the shares of the other coparceners except those who happen to be the sons of the insolvent or insolvents.

Sanyasi Charan Mandal v. Asutosh Ghosh, 26 Ind. Cas. 836; 42 C. 225, Rangayya Chetti v. Thanikachalla Mudali, 19 M. 74; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 757, Fakirchand Motchand v. Motchand Hurrukchand, 7 B. 438; 8 Ind. Jur. 93; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 294, relied on.

Bihari Lal v. Sat Narain, 69 Ind. Cas. 486; 3 L. 329; (1923) A. I. R. (L) 1, distinguished. L BASUJESHAU NATH v. GANGA RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 572 281

Simple money-decree against father—Family property sold in execution—Sons, whether can recover their share.

Where in execution of a simple money-decree against the father, the family property is sold by auction, the sons cannot recover their share of it unless they can show that the debt for which the property was sold was incurred for illegal or immoral purposes.

Hindu Law—contd.

Sahu Ram Chandra v. Bhup Singh, 39 Ind. Cas. 280; 39 A. 437; 44 I. A. 126; 21 C. W. N. 698; 1 P. L. W. 557; 15 A. L. J. 437; 19 Bom. L. R. 498; 26 C. L. J. 1; 33 M. L. J. 141 (1917) M. W. N. 439; 22 M. L. T. 22; 6 L. W. 213; (P. C.) and Chet Ram v. Ram Singh, 67 Ind. Cas. 569; 44 A. 368; 3 P. L. T. 363; 31 M. L. T. 50; 43 M. L. J. 98; 16 L. W. 89; (1922) M. W. N. 455; 4 U. L. R. (P. C.) 64; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 247; 3 P. L. R. 1922; 24 Bom. L. R. 123; 27 C. W. N. 150; 49 I. A. 228; 21 A. L. J. 114; 37 C. L. J. 79 (P. C.), distinguished.

Sripat Singh Dugar v. Prodyot Kumar Tagore, 39 Ind. Cas. 252; 15 A. L. J. 147; 32 M. L. J. 133; (1917) M. W. N. 193; 21 C. W. N. 442; 25 C. L. J. 220; 21 M. L. T. 222; 19 Bom. L. R. 290; 44 C. 524; 44 I. A. (P. C.), Girdharee Lall v. Kantoo Lall, 1 I. A. 321; 14 B. L. R. 187; 22 W. R. 56; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 380 (P. C.), followed. A. RAM CHANDRA v. MUHAMMAD NUR, 21 A. L. J. 485; 45 A. 545; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 591. 656

Joint family—Transfer by father—Property passing out of family—Sons' power to challenge transfer—Transfer, private—Legal necessity.

Where ancestral property has passed out of a Hindu joint family either under a conveyance executed by the father in consideration of an antecedent debt or in order to pay off an antecedent debt, or under a sale in execution of a decree for the father's debts, his sons cannot recover that property unless they show that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes, and that the purchaser had notice that they were so contracted.

A purchaser at an auction-sale of joint family property for the father's debts, in the absence of notice that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes, is not bound to make enquiry beyond what appears on the face of the proceedings.

Suraj Bansi Koer v. Sheo Persad Singh, 5 C. 148; 6 I. A. 88; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 1; 3 Suth. P. C. J. 589; 4 C. I. R. 226; 2 Shome L. R. 2421 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 705 (P. C.); Nanomi Babuasin v. Modhun Mohun, 13 C. 21; 13 I. A. 1; 10 Ind. Jur. 151; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 682; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 510 (P. C.); Bhagbut Pershad Singh v. Girja Koer, 15 C. 717; 15 I. A. 99; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 186; 12 Ind. Jur. 289; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1062 (P. C.); Sahu Ram Chandra v. Bhup Singh, 39 Ind. Cas. 280; 39 A. 437; 21 C. W. N. 698; 1 P. L. W. 557; 15 A. L. J. 437; 19 Bom. L. R. 498; 26 C. L. J. 1; 33 M. L. J. 141; (1917) M. W. N. 439; 22 M. L. T. 22; 6 L. W. 213; 44 I. A. 126 (P. C.) and Chandradeo Singh v. Mata Prasad, 1 Ind. Cas. 479; 31 A. 176; 6 A. L. J. 263, relied on.

It is not, however, correct to say that in every case where joint family property has passed out of the family for satisfaction of the father's debts the sons cannot challenge it unless they show that the debts were contracted for immoral purposes.

Hindu Law—contd.

Where a property has been sold by the father to pay off a debt and the sons bring a suit to recover it, and the property has not been sold at public auction, it lies upon the transferee to justify the alienation of the estate by showing that the debt was in lieu of some antecedent debt or that the alienation was for some legal necessity. A. SAHEB SINGH v. GARDHARI LAL, 45 A. 576. 1024

Mitakshara—Joint family—Partition—Intention to divide—Partial partition—Express agreement.

Under the Hindu Law of the Mitakshara, an unambiguous and definite intimation of intention on the part of one member of a joint family to separate himself and to enjoy his share in severalty has the effect of creating a division of the interest which until then he held in jointness.

Girja Bai v. Sadashiv Dhundiraj, 37 Ind. Cas. 321; 43 I. A. 151; 20 C. W. N. 1085; 11 A. L. J. 822; 20 M. L. T. 78; 12 N. L. R. 113; (1916) 2 M. W. N. 65; 18 Bom. L. R. 621; 4 L. W. 114; 24 C. L. J. 257; 31 M. L. J. 455; 43 C. 1031 (P. C.), followed. Romalinga Annavi v. Narayana Annavi, 68 Ind. Cas. 451; 24 Bom. L. R. 1209; 30 M. L. T. 255; (1922) M. W. N. 399; 45 M. 489; 26 C. W. N. 929; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 211; 43 M. L. J. 428; 16 L. W. 639; 20 A. L. J. 839; 37 C. L. J. 15 (P. C.), disapproved.

Where, in the case of a division of property among members of a Hindu joint family, there is evidence sufficient to show that the parties intended to sever, any property which is not divided by metes and bounds will be considered to be held by them as tenants-in-common, unless there is an express agreement between the parties that they should treat that property as belonging to them as joint tenants. They will then be joint tenants, not as members of the joint family which no longer exists, but under a special agreement made after the severance.

Gaurishankar v. Atmaram, 18 B. 611; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 916, not followed. B. DAGADU a. SAKUBAI NANA BODAKE, 25 Bom. L. R. 806; 47 B. 773. 369

Reversioner, interest of, nature of—Reversioner, whether can assign or bind interest.

A Hindu reversioner has no right or interest in presenti in property which a female owner holds for her life. Until it vests in him on her death, should he survive her, he has nothing to assign or to relinquish or even to transmit to his heirs. His right becomes concrete only on her demise; until then it is a mere spes successionis. His guardian, if he happens to be a minor, cannot bargain with it on his behalf or bind him by any contractual engagement in respect thereto.

Amrit Narayan Singh v. Gaya Singh, 44 Ind. Cas. 408; 27 C. L. J. 296; 23 M. L. T. 142; 22 C. W. N. 409; 34 M. L. J. 298; 4 P. L. W. 221; 16 A. L. J. 205; (1918) M. W. N. 506; 7 L. W. 581; 20 Bom. L. R. 346; 45 C. 590; 45 I. A. 35 (P. C.), followed.

When a dispute with regard to the rights of the members of a family has been settled by a fair compromise such compromise will be upheld by the Court, although perhaps resting upon grounds which would not have been considered satisfactory if the transaction had been between strangers, but it must be established that the right compromised could at least have formed the subject-matter of a claim, though a doubtful claim.

Hindu Law—contd.

A reversionary heir, however, who has only a spes successionis cannot enter into a compromise with regard to such interest as he may have in the estate of the person whose reversionary heir he claims to be.

But a compromise of a doubtful claim by the holder of a limited interest binds the reversionary heir if it is established that the compromise was a fair and honest one and that the limited holder entered into the transaction as representing the estate and for the protection of the estate and not as representing herself and for her own protection.

Whenever a question is raised whether a transaction is an alienation or a compromise of a doubtful claim the true test to apply is to see whether the alienee derives title from the holder of the limited interest. Where a transaction is based on the assumption that there was an antecedent title of some kind in both the parties and the agreement acknowledges and defines what that title is, the transaction is not an alienation but a compromise of a doubtful claim.

Bhagwati Kuer v. Jagdam Sahay, 62 Ind. Cas. 933; 6 P. L. J. 604; 2 P. L. T. 471, followed. PAT
RAM BAHADUR SEN v. GANESH BHAGAT 542

Succession—Ancestral property—Daughter's son, position of—Survivorship.

The doctrine of survivorship, as understood by the Mitakshara Law, is not limited to unobstructed succession and to the succession to the joint property of re-united co-parceners.

Under the Mitakshara Law the right of survivorship will not prevail in favour of a survivor as against the male issue of the deceased.

"Ancestral property," in its technical sense in the Hindu Law, means property which descends upon one person in such a manner that his issue acquire certain rights in it as against him.

It is true that under the Hindu Law it is only the persons who offer the funeral cake to the owner of the property that are regarded as having an interest in the property by birth. But it is well-established that as each fresh member takes a share, his descendants to the third generation below him take an interest in that share by birth.

Whatever the position of a daughter's son may have been under the Hindu Law, before the appointment of a daughter to raise up issue for her father became obsolete, under the present form of that law he is a member of his own father's family and cannot be regarded as a member of his maternal grandfather's family. PAT MAN SINGH v. NAWLAKHSAH, 4 P. L. T. 335; (1923), A. L. R. (Pat) 492 822

Disability—Lunatic. see CUSTOM 898

—SUCCESSION

Hindu Law—contd.

Succession—Widow, disqualification of—Unchastity—Hostility.

Under the Hindu Law unchastity disqualifies a widow from succeeding to her husband's estate but it must be physical unchastity which occurred during the lifetime of the husband.

In the absence of unchastity, a widow will be excluded from succeeding to her husband only on proof of malignant or unjustified hostility towards her husband for which she is alone, or at least partly, responsible.

Khettermont Dassi v. Kadambini Dassi, 17 Ind. Cas. 83; 16 C. W. N. 964, relied on. PESH
MUKANDI BAI v. JAMNI BAI 875

Widow—Adoption after death of adult son—Consent of Sapindas.

An adoption by a Hindu widow subsequent to the death of her unmarried adult son is legal and valid if made with the consent of her deceased husband or of his sapindas.

Tripuramba v. Venkataratnam, 72 Ind. Cas. 278; 44 M. L. J. 349; 46 M. 423, followed.

The onus of proving that in the case of an adoption by a Hindu widow the consent of the sapindas was procured by a bribe is strongly on the person who alleges it and the mere fact of a promise of payment of money is not conclusive on the question of the consent having been obtained.

M. PARHASARATHY REDDIAR v. KANDASWAMI MUDALIAR, 32 M. L. T. 349; (1923) M. W. N. 423; 18 L. W. 156; 45 M. L. J. 161 954

Gift of estate to next reversioner—Acceleration—Provision for widow's maintenance.

A gift of the entire estate by a Hindu widow in possession, in favour of the next reversioner, which operates as an acceleration of the estate to the latter, is not vitiated by its containing a provision for the maintenance of the widow.

Rangasami Gounden v. Nachiappa Gounden, 50 Ind. Cas. 498; 42 M. 523; 36 M. L. J. 493; 17 A. L. J. 536; 29 C. L. J. 539; 21 Bom. L. R. 640; 23 C. W. N. 777; (1919) M. W. N. 262; 26 M. L. T. 5; 10 L. W. 105; 46 L. A. 72 (P. C.) and Angamulhu Chetti v. Varatharajulu Chetti, 53 Ind. Cas. 386; 42 M. 854; 37 M. L. J. 384; 26 M. L. T. 301; (1919) M. W. N. 716; 11 L. W. 11 (F. B.), followed.

Bhagwati Kuer v. Dhanukdary Prasad Singh, 53 Ind. Cas. 347; 46 L. A. 259; 47 C. 466; 37 M. L. J. 513; 17 A. L. J. 1036; (1919) M. W. N. 860; 1 P. L. T. 1; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 27; 22 Bom. L. R. 477; 24 C. W. N. 274; 12 L. W. 105 (P. C.) and Sureshwar Misser v. Maheshwari Misra; 57 Ind. Cas. 325; 47 L. A. 233; 48 C. 100; (1920) M. W. N. 472; 39 M. L. J. 161; 28 M. L. T. 154; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 128; 12 L. W. 461; 18 A. L. J. 1069; 25 C. W. N. 194 (P. C.), relied on. A
RAM ADHAR SINGH v. RAM MAOHAR SINGH, 21 A. L. J. 548 990

Marriage of daughter—Gift to son-in-law—Legal necessity.

It is the duty of a Hindu mother to provide a husband for her daughter and for this purpose

Hindu Law—contd.

she has power to make a gift of property to her son-in-law whenever it is necessary.

N hard and fast rule can be laid down as to extent of a Hindu widow's right of alienation in this respect. If the property is of large value, probably the alienation of more than a quarter would not be upheld. But where the property is very small in value and other circumstances, such as, blindness of the girl, also require it the alienation of the whole even will be a sheer legal necessity. A BHAGWATI SHUKUL v. RAM JATAN TEWARI, 21 A. L. J. 232; 45 A. 297 648 —Widow—Surrender, requisites of—Bengal Court of Wards Act (IX of 1879), s. 60, applicability of, to surrender by Hindu widow of life-estate.

Though actual transfers by Hindu widows have, in many cases, been supported by reference to the theory of the relinquishment of the widow's entire interest, there is relinquishment in the true sense of the term, when there is disclaimer by the widow at the time of the death of her husband, or renunciation of the world by her afterwards, or some act by her which might, in the eye of the law, justify the inference that the widow is civilly dead. It is only where the widow is dead, either actually or civilly, that the law steps in and gives the estate of her husband to the next reversioner. On the other hand, there are cases which are called cases of relinquishment but which are in fact not cases of relinquishment at all, where alienations by Hindu widows have been upheld by arguing from analogy. But analogy denotes only a partial similarity; and it does not follow that, because where a widow renounces the word the next reversioners take the estate by operation of law, there is also a succession by operation of law, where, as a result of a transaction not amounting to relinquishment of properly so-called but capable of being supported by reference to the theory of relinquishment, the estate comes to the next reversioners.

For instance, a Hindu widow may sell for valuable consideration the entire estate of her husband to the next reversioner or to an entire stranger with the assent of the next reversioner. The transaction will be upheld by applying the analogy of a relinquishment of her estate by the Hindu widow; but it cannot be argued that there is relinquishment, properly so-called, in such a case, or that the title of the reversioner arises by operation of law.

The law on the subject has grown from precedent to precedent and it cannot be argued that because a certain legal incident is true of a certain proposition, it must also be true of every proposition which may have been logically drawn from the first proposition or which is capable of being supported by reference to the first proposition.

It is one thing to say that because, upon the death of a widow, either actual or civil, the estate would at once vest by operation of law in the next heir of her husband, therefore, the widow can operate her own death by conveying absolutely the estate of her husband to one who, at the moment of the conveyance, is the next heir of her husband; and it is quite another thing to say that when the widow does convey the estate to the next reversioner, the reversioner takes the estate by operation of law and not by virtue of the conveyance. In other words, it does not follow that, because the heir takes by operation of law where there is real relinquishment by the widow, that is to say, when she elects to die a civil death, he also takes by operation of law when, as a result of a transaction which may be supported by reference to the theory of relinquishment, but which is in fact not relinquishment, the estate is carried from the widow to the heir or to a stranger with the consent of such heir.

Hindu Law—contd.

In a case of disclaimer by a Hindu widow at the time of the death of her husband or of relinquishment, properly so-called, afterwards, the title of the heir would arise by operation of law, and if the widow happens to be a ward of Court at the time of relinquishment section 60 of the Bengal Court of Wards Act would not, in such a case, operate to the prejudice of the heir. But wherever the transaction is one, not of relinquishment, but capable of being supported by reference to the theory of relinquishment, the title of the heir arises, not by operation of law, but by the act of transfer on the part of the widow, and if the latter is a ward of Court, on the date of the transaction, the transaction comes within the prohibition contained in section 60 of the Bengal Court of Wards Act.

A deed of surrender executed by two Hindu widows in favour of the next heirs of their husband of their husband's estate after reciting that the widows being old were desirous of spending the remainder of their lives in Divine Worship at the holy City of Benares, stipulated for a substantial monthly allowance for the widows for their lives which was to be a first charge on certain properties. Certain other duties were imposed upon the heirs and the deed provided that if the heirs neglected the performance of those duties the widows would be entitled to enforce them. On the date of the execution of the deed of relinquishment the widows were wards of Court, but the sanction of the Court of Wards to the deed was not obtained:

Held, that the transaction did not amount to a relinquishment, properly so-called, but operated as a conveyance in favour of the heirs and fell within the prohibition contained in section 60 of the Bengal Court of Wards Act.

A relinquishment by a Hindu widow becomes operative only when the widow acts upon the declaration and withdraws herself from the estate. PAT MAN SINGH v. NAWLA KHBATI, 4 P. L. T. 335; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 492 822 —Will—Absolute estate bequeathed to widow, legality of—Construction of Will—"Malik," import of.

Hindu Law—concl'd.

A Hindu can give by Will an absolute estate in his property to his widow.

The word "malik" employed in a Will has considerable force as indicating that the person in reference to whom it is used should take absolute interest in the properties conferred. P. Q. SUDHAMANI DAS v. SURAT LAL DAS, (1923) A. I. R. (P. C.) 65; 18 L. W. 86; 45 M. L. J. 247; (1923) M. W. N. 601; 38 C. L. J. 253 580

Will appointing heir—No provision for widow—Presumption—Residence and maintenance of widow.

Where a Hindu makes a Will in which he deliberately makes no express provision with reference to his wife, it cannot be assumed that his intention was that his wife should be in the same position as if he had died intestate, the proper implication, if any, to be made is that he was satisfied that the maintenance and residence out of his estate to which she was entitled would be sufficient maintenance for her.

A Hindu (Jain) made a Will whereby he appointed a certain person as his heir and declared that he should act under the orders of his wife. The Will further provided that if no male issue were born to the appointed heir, and it were necessary to adopt a son, then during the lifetime of the testator's wife the selection should be made with her consent. After the death of the testator the widow brought a suit for declaration of her rights as a Hindu widow, alleging that under the terms of the Will the testator did not dispose of his estate during her lifetime:

Held, that the testator had disposed of the estate to the appointed heir and that the widow was only entitled to rights of maintenance and residence. P. Q. FOOLCOOVERBAI v. KESHURISINGH, 25 Bom. L. R. 621; (1923) A. I. R. (P. C.) 112; 18 L. W. 153; 45 M. L. J. 249; (1923) M. W. N. 578; 33 M. L. T. 214; 9 O. & A. L. R. 799 242

Indian Soldiers (Litigation) Act (IX of 1918), s. 11, applicability of—Plaintiff who has ceased to be a soldier on date of suit, whether can claim benefit of section.

Under section 11 of the Indian Soldiers (Litigation) Act the time during which a plaintiff has been serving under War conditions is to be excluded in computing the period of limitation for the suit only in a case in which the plaintiff is an Indian Soldier. The section does not apply to the case of a plaintiff who has been a Soldier but has ceased to be one at the time when he brings his suit. L. MUHAMMAD DIN v. ILAM DIN, 5 L. L. J. 174; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 455 817

Insolvency—Assignment of prospective surplus—Assignee, rights of.

An insolvent can assign any prospective surplus that may remain over after his estate has been fully administered in insolvency, such assignment is of a contingent interest and does not give the assignee the right to intervene until it is ascertained whether or not there is a surplus. B. RAMCHANDRA NARAYAN v. NIPUNGE, 25 Bom. L. R. 499 378

Insolvency—concl'd.

Claim to property sold as insolvent's disallowed—Suit to establish title, whether maintainable—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XX-I, r. 92 (3), application of.

Where an Insolvency Court disallows the claim of a person to property attached and sold as the property of the insolvent, a regular suit to establish his right to the property is maintainable. The provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure do not apply to such a case.

Ram Piyara v. Bhana Mal, 61 Ind. Cas. 332; 2 L. 147; 3 U. P. L. R. (L.) 401; 3 L. L. J. 233, relied on. L. HARNAM v. GANPAT, 5 L. L. J. 9; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 224 367

Interpretation of Statutes—Court, duty of.

Courts cannot read into Statutes provisions which are not there, even if they think that anomalies are not to be avoided otherwise.

In the Punjab the Legislature has taken the responsibility of embodying the customary rules of pre-emption in a Statute and the Courts must presume that Statute to be exhaustive and must follow it. L. HADAYAT ULLAH v. GHULAM MUHAMMAD BEG, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 529 444
Jurisdiction—Civil or Revenue Court—Dispute between tenants.

The Civil and not the Revenue Court has jurisdiction to adjudicate upon a dispute between two parties both claiming to be tenants of the same land under the same zemindar, where the claimant has never held possession of the land. O. GAYA DIN SINGH v. CHAUHANJA PANDE, 9 O. & A. L. R. 87; 10 O. L. J. 178 238

Criminal case pending in another Province, stay of—High Court, jurisdiction of.

A High Court has no jurisdiction to declare that a criminal case pending in a Court not subject to its jurisdiction is triable exclusively in another Court; nor has it jurisdiction to stay all further proceedings in a criminal case which is in course of hearing in a Court not subject to its jurisdiction.

Charu Chandra Majumdar v. Emperor, 37 Ind. Cas. 145; 44 C. 595; 21 C. W. N. 320; 25 C. L. J. 165; 18 Cr. L. J. 81 (F. B.), not followed. A. RADHIKA NATHA SAHA v. JOTISH GHANDRA SADHU, 24 Cr. L. J. 635 523

Magistrate issuing rule whether competent to make absolute on report of another Magistrate. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, s. 133 802

Jurisdiction of Civil Courts. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT, 1887, ss. 53, 76 (i), (e), (f) 209

Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Courts—Jurisdiction, whether can be conferred by consent. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT, 1887, ss. 77 (3), (i) 760

Suit by landlord for declaration of right to receive batai—Suit for correction of revenue entry. See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT, 1887, s. 7 (3) 67

Khoti-nisbat lands—Injali trees, properly in—Dunlop's Proclamation, effect of—Kabuliyat, failure of Khot to execute, effect of.

Defendants who had held certain Khoti-nisbat lands as tenants of the khot since the introduction of the Survey Settlement, subject to certain rights in the nature of occupancy rights, claimed to be the owners of the injali trees standing on the lands. It was found that, before the introduction of the Survey Settlement, the lands used to be let out by the khot from year to year on an annual lease. The trees were originally the property of Government.

Held, that, by virtue of Dunlop's Proclamation of 1824, the khot had become the owner of the trees and that, afterwards, there had been nothing to extinguish those rights or to transfer them to the defendants.

Collector of Rainagiri v. Vyankatray, 8 B. H. C. R. (A. C. J.) 1, followed.

Per Crump, J.—The mere failure on the part of a vatandar khot to sign the annual kabuliyat, can have this result only, that he would not be entitled for the time being to the right of management of the village. That would not, however, affect any other rights which he might have independent of that right of management, such as the right to timber growing in khoti-nisbat lands.

Per Macleod, C. J.—There is no general rule, that no vatandar khot can claim to be the owner of the soil. With regard to khoti khasgi, and khoti-nisbat lands he is very much in the position of an owner. B AHMED BALU DABIR v. GANESH VISHNU, 25 Bom. L. R. 521. 1035

Khoti Settlement Act (I of 1880), s. 10—Mortgage of Khoti land, effect of—Khot, right of, to claim land.

A simple mortgage of khoti land by the occupant thereof, amounts to a transfer of his interest in the land, within the meaning of section 10 of the Khoti Settlement Act, and entitles the khot to claim the land, even though the mortgage was paid off before the khot advanced his claim. B VASU KRISHNA YEKAUDA v. MADHAVRAO MORESHWAR BHADANEKAR, 24 Bom. L. R. 1160; (1923) A. I. R. (B) 33. 880

Land Acquisition Act (I of 1894), s. 18—Application for reference, essentials of

The conditions prescribed by section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act are the conditions to which the power of the Collector to make the reference is subject and those conditions must be fulfilled before the Court can have jurisdiction to entertain the reference.

Where on a compulsory acquisition of his property, a person sends a letter to the Land Acquisition Officer stating that the compensation awarded to him is inadequate and that unless the property is released or proper compensation awarded, he would have the acquisition declared void in a Civil Court, that does not amount to an application for reference under section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act. O SAMUEL BURGE v. IMPROVEMENT TRUST, LUCKNOW, 9 O. & A. L. R. 925. 127

s. 18—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 115—Government of India Act (5 & 6 Geo. V, Land Acquisition Act—contd.

c. 61), s. 107—Collector, refusal by, to make reference—Revision—“Subordinate” Court, meaning of.

The High Court has no power to interfere in revision under section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code with an order of a Collector refusing to make a reference under section 18 of the Land Acquisition Act.

Macleod, C. J.—Having regard to the provisions of section 107 of the Government of India Act, wherein the High Court is said to have superintendence over Courts which are subject to its appellate jurisdiction, it may be assumed, in the absence of any other statutory direction to the contrary, that unless the High Court has appellate jurisdiction over a Court, that Court will not be subordinate to it within the meaning of section 115 of the Civil Procedure Code.

A Collector acting under section 18 of the Land Acquisition is not a Court, but even if a Court, it is not a Court subordinate the High Court. B BALKRISHNA DAJI v. COLLECTOR “BOMBAY SUBARBAN,” 25 Bom. L. R. 398; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 290; 47 B 699. 354 Landlord and tenant—Agreement to settle land—Payment of salami—Failure to execute kabuliyat, effect of.

Plaintiff, who was in occupation of certain land belonging to the second defendant, obtained a settlement of the land from the latter subject to the payment of a certain sum as salami and the execution of a kabuliyat within fifteen days. He paid the salami and although he continued in possession of the land, did not execute the kabuliyat till several months after. In the meantime, the landlord cancelled the arrangement with the plaintiff and settled the land with first defendant.

Held, that the plaintiff had acquired the rights of a tenant on the date on which the land was settled with him, and that the delay in the execution of the kabuliyat could not affect the tenancy which had already been granted to the plaintiff, and the landlord was not competent to cancel the arrangement with the plaintiff so as to enable him to make a new settlement. C BHAGU SINGH v. MOHESHWAR BARIK. 291

Denial of landlord's title, what amounts to—Ejectment—Forfeiture—Agricultural tenancy.

In order to succeed in a claim for possession of the lands comprised in a tenancy based on forfeiture resulting from a denial of the landlord's title by the tenant, the landlord must satisfy the Court, first, that there has in fact been a denial of the nature contemplated by law, that is to say, a distinct unequivocal renunciation of the tenancy; secondly, that the denial is in respect of the land sought to be recovered; and thirdly, that the principle of forfeiture is applicable to an interest in land of the nature held by the defendant.

In considering whether what has taken place amounts in law to a denial of the landlord's title, the Court must have regard not only to the language used and the circumstances under which it came to be used, but must also consider what the tenant intended by using the particular words under the particular set of circumstances:

Landlord and tenant—contd.

Where a portion of the lands comprised in a tenancy was acquired by Government and in the Acquisition proceeding the tenant put forward the claim that he was the owner of the land acquired with a view to obtain the largest possible share of the compensation awarded:

Held, that this did not amount to a denial of the landlord's title, especially with regard to the remainder of the lands, so as to entitle the landlord to resume the possession on the ground of forfeiture.

Quere.—Whether the principle of forfeiture by denial of the landlord's title applies to an agricultural lease. L. ZIA-UD-DIN v. FAKHAR-UD-DIN, 4 L. 160; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 454 Grove-holder—Right to transfer trees.

The general law is that a person who plants a grove with the permission of the zemindar acquires a transferable interest in the trees.

Jugdip Narain Singh v. Jokhan Akir, 5 Ind. Cas. 250 and Ram Sarup v. Jagan Nath, 25 Ind. Cas. 152, distinguished.

Haidar Ali Khan v. Gangu, A. W. N. (1905) 204, Haji Muhammed Ismail Khan v. Mithu Lal 17 Ind. Cas. 956; 11 A. L. J. 649 and Jalesar Sahu v. Raj Mangal, 63 Ind. Cas. 437; 43 A. 606; 19 A. L. J. 616, followed. A. LAL BAIJNATH SINGH v. CHANDRAPAL SINGH, 21 A. L. J. 457; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 553

Lease for specific purpose—Purpose not carried out—Lease, determination of—Perpetual lease—Lessee, death of, effect of.

Where a lease is granted for a specific purpose it lapses automatically, if the purpose is not carried out.

A perpetual lease is determined by the death of the lessee. Therefore, a lease of land to a Company for a specific purpose, whereby the Company is given the power of holding the land as long as it pleases, is determined as soon as the Company becomes defunct.

Vaman Shripad v. Maki, 4 B. 424; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 788, relied on, N. GOWARDHANDAS v. WAHIDKHAN, 6 N. L. J. 170; (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 243

Notice to quit—Tenant holding over—Sub-letting by tenant at profit—Landlord, right of, to recover such profit—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 2 (12).

Where after receiving notice to quit a tenant holds over and sub-lets the premises leased to him and in addition to the rent receives a premium from the sub-tenant, such premium amounts to profits received by him while in wrongful possession within the meaning of section 2 (12) of the Civil Procedure Code, and he is liable to pay the sum so received, together with the rent, to the landlord. B. GHULAM MOHIUDIN v. DAYABHAI CHIMAN LAL, 25 Bom. L. R. 447; (1923) A. I. R. (B) 398

Occupancy rights, mortgage of—Relinquishment in favour of landlord—Redemption.Landlord and tenant—contd.

Where an occupancy tenant relinquishes his holding in favour of the zemindar, the zemindar becomes the transferee of any mortgagor's right, which might have been created on it and is entitled to redeem the mortgage. A. KUMAR SAINTHWAR v. BISHUN MOHAN SAHAI, 21 A. L. J. 120; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 263

Surrender of tenancy—Sub-tenancy, determination of—C. P. Tenancy Act (X I of 1898), ss. 47, 95—C. P. Tenancy Act (I of 1920), ss. 13, 105—Suit to eject sub-tenant after surrender of tenancy—Jurisdiction of Civil Courts.

If a tenant surrenders his holding, the sub-tenancy created by him is also determined.

Bhopal Singh v. Thakur Borelal, 6 C. P. L. R. 74, relied on.

A Civil Court has jurisdiction to try a suit to eject a sub-tenant after a surrender of the tenancy by the tenant. Such a suit is not between a landlord and a tenant but between a landlord and a trespasser.

Ganesh Das v. Shankar, 13 Ind. Cas. 909; 8 N. L. R. 22, distinguished. N. GOPALA V. SAKHARAM, 6 N. L. J. 224; (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 261

Tenancy, nature of—Proof—Presumption.

Where the origin and the original purpose of a tenancy are not known, the facts that the rent has never changed, that there have been several devolutions by inheritance in the family of the tenant and that the land of the tenancy is used in part for dwelling purposes and in part as a garden, point to the conclusion that the tenancy is a non-agricultural permanent tenancy of a transferable character.

When the origin of a tenancy and the circumstances attending its creation are not known, evidence of the mode of dealing with the land demised and the acts and condition of the parties generally constitute the evidence, and may be the only evidence, available to prove the nature of the tenancy.

Moharam Sheikh v. Talemuddin Khan, 13 Ind. Cas. 608; 16 C. W. N. 567; 15 C. L. J. 220, followed.

The purpose of a tenancy may be altered by consent of the contracting parties and when such alteration takes place the incidents of the tenancy may not be identical with those at its inception. C. MAKHAN LAL DE v. ARUN BALA DEVI

Tender of rent—Amount not including interest on arrears—Tender, refusal of—Tender and appropriation.

A landlord is not bound to accept the principal amount of rent when the interest due thereon is not tendered in full. As the principal and interest constitute one indivisible and entire claim, the landlord is entitled to refuse a tender by which what is due as rent is transmitted but what is remitted as the entire amount due on account of interest on rent, cesses and interest on cesses is less than what is legally due.

A creditor is not bound to accept less than his whole debt, and there can be no valid tender of a part of an entire and indivisible debt. But, though a tender of a smaller amount than that of which an indivisible and entire claim consists will be invalid as a tender there is nothing to prevent the creditor from accepting the amount tendered in part payment, and his doing so will not preclude him from afterwards claiming the residue of his account, always provided that the debtor did not make it a condition of his tender that it be accepted in discharge of the whole.

Landlord and tenant—concl.

The cause of action where principal and interest thereon are both due, is only one, so that if the creditor sued to recover only the interest he could not sue to recover the principal and subsequent interest in a second suit.

A tender must be unconditional, or, at all events, free from any condition to which the creditor may rightfully object. C. BEHARI LAL v. NASIMANNESSA BIBI, 37 C. L. J. 222; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 527 482

Transfer of holding—Demand of rent from transferee of holding, effect of.

A demand by the landlord for rent from the transferee of a holding professing to be in occupation of the holding as a tenant is good evidence of mutual consent to the creation of a tenancy unless the landlord is able to explain that the demand was not unqualified and should be differently interpreted.

Underhay v. Redd (1888) 20 Q. B. D. 209; 57 L. J. Q. B. 129; 58 L. T. 457, 36 W. R. 298; Brown v. Storey (1840) 1 M. & G. 117; 1 Scott (N. S.) 9; 9 L. J. C. P. 225; 4 Jur. 319; 133 E. R. 270, relied upon.

Deonandan Pershad v. Meghu Mahton, 5 C. L. J. 181; 11 C. W. N. 225; 34 C. 57, distinguished. C. MONMOTHA NATH v. PROBODH CHANDRA, 37 C. L. J. 52; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 102 416

Trees, whether belong to tenant—Burden of proof—Pleadings and proof.

Under the general law trees standing on land held by a tenant on cash-rent belong to the landlord and if any custom deviating from this general proposition is alleged, it must be proved conclusively by those who maintain it. PAT NATHUNI RAI v. RAMESHWAR SINGH, 1 P. L. R. 289 629

Wrongful exclusion of tenant—Rent-suit, dismissal of—Subsequent suit for possession and mesne profits by tenant—Landholder's right to claim deduction for rent.

In calculating the mesne profits to be allowed to a tenant in a suit by him against the landholder for wrongful exclusion, the landholder is entitled to deduct from such profits the rent payable to him during the period of exclusion, notwithstanding that a suit by him for rent in the Revenue Court was dismissed on the ground that the relation of landlord and tenant was not subsisting between the parties. M. RAMACHANDRULU v. VENKATA NARASIMHA, 44 M. L. J. 486; 17 L. W. 545; 32 M. L. T. 364; (1923) M. W. N. 437; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 557 670

Legal Practitioners Act (XVIII of 1879), s. 13 (b) (g)—Giving wrong information to client—Professional misconduct—Absence of fraud—Costs.Legal Practitioners Act—concl.

Where a Pleader, who was in possession of documents belonging to his client, from some motive, of fear and self-interest, caused by certain circumstances, concealed the fact from him and denied being in possession of them, but it appeared his conduct was in no way fraudulent and there was no intention to hurt the client:

Held, (1) that the conduct of the Pleader in telling a lie to his client, from whatever motive, amounted to professional misconduct;

(2) that in the absence of any fraudulent intention, it was not necessary to take any action against the Pleader beyond expressing strong disapproval of his conduct, especially in view of the fact that he had to defend himself against very serious charges of fraud which had not been made out;

(3) that having regard to the vindictive conduct of the petitioner and the fact that the charges of fraud brought by him against the Pleader had not been substantiated it was not necessary to direct the Pleader to pay the costs of the petitioner. M. A. FIRST GRADE PLEADER, In the matter of, 17 L. W. 358; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 485; 24 Cr. L. J. 585 329

s. 28—Pleader, professional services by—Suit for recovery of remuneration, maintainability of.

The Court is reluctant to restrict the provisions of section 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act by placing a narrow and restricted interpretation thereon.

Sib Kishore Ghosh v. Manik Chandra Nath, 29 Ind. Cas. 453; 21 C. L. J. 618 a; p. 620, Kamini Debi v. Khetra Mohan Ganguli, 11 Ind. Cas. 382; 15 C. L. J. 690; 15 C. W. N. 631, Ishan Chandra Kar v. Ram Churan Pal, 26 Ind. Cas. 960; 20 C. L. J. 445 and Mohendra Lal v. Akhil Chandra Pakrashi, 20 Ind. Cas. 47; 20 C. L. J. 424, followed.

Where there is no agreement between a Pleader and his client, the Pleader is entitled to maintain an action for recovery of reasonable remuneration for services rendered. But where there is a contract between the parties such contract to be enforceable must fulfil the requirements of section 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act, namely, the contract must be in writing and the writing must be deposited in Court within the prescribed period.

Plaintiff, a legal practitioner, rendered certain professional services to the defendant. There was an agreement between the parties as to the remuneration to be paid to the plaintiff but it was not filed in Court. On accounts being adjusted between the parties a certain sum was found due to the plaintiff on the basis of the agreement. He sued to recover this amount:

Held, that the suit was in its essence to enforce the agreement and was not maintainable on account of failure to comply with the provisions of section 28 of the Legal Practitioners Act.

Kamini Debi v. Khetra Mohan Ganguli, 13 Ind. Cas. 43; 15 C. L. J. 660; 17 C. W. N. 45, Krishnasami v. Kesara, 14 M. 63; 5 Ind. ec. (N. S.) 45 and Anantayya v. Padmayya, 16 M. 2-8; 2 M. L. J. 247; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 900 relied upon. C. KALIPADA DAS v. DURGA DAS ROY, 27 C. W. N. 769; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 677 10

Letters Patent (Bom.) * cl. 15—Appeal—Security for costs—Principles applicable.

In an appeal under clause 15 of the Bombay Letters Patent it is open to the High Court to demand such further security, beyond the Rs. 500 deposited by the appellant under High Court Rule 736, for the costs of the appeal as it may think fit.

In order to justify the exercise of the power to demand security for the costs of an appeal, there must be some evidence at least of facts which cast doubts on the honesty and bona fides of the appellant, such as obstruction to the execution of the decree in the lower Court, or the fact that the appellant is not the real litigant, or if in any way it can be shown that the appeal is vexatious. B RATANCHAND DAYACHAND v. DAMJI DHARSEY, 25 Bom. L. R. 468; (1923) A. I. R. 399 474

Letters Patent (Mad.), cls. 11, 15—Transfer of suit from District Court to High Court, by Original Side Judge—Order, whether "judgment."

An order of a Judge sitting on the Original Side transferring a suit from a District Court to the High Court under clause 13 of the Letters Patent of the Madras High Court is a judgment within the meaning of clause 15 of the Letters Patent and is, therefore, appealable.

Tuljaram Row v. Alagappa Chettiar, 8 Ind. Cas. 340; 35 M. L. J. 1; (1910) M. W. N. 697; 8 M. L. T. 453; 21 M. L. J. 1. DeSouza v. Coles, 3 M. H. C. R. 384; Vaghoji Kuverji, v. Camaji Bomanji, 29 B. 249; 6 Bom. L. R. 958 and Kanalal Bhoya v. Balaram Paramasudhoss, 68 Ind. Cas. 921; 16 L. W. 608; 31 M. L. T. 284; 43 M. L. J. 480; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 44, followed.

Justices of the Peace for Calcutta v. The Oriental Gas Co., 8 B. L. R. 433 at p. 435; 17 W. R. 364 and Khatizan v. Spnairam. Daulatram, 60 Ind. Cas. 963; 47 C. 1104, not followed. M KRISHNA REDDY v. THANAKACHALA MUDALI, 45 M. L. J. 153; (1923) M. W. N. 681 1054 Limitation Act (IX of 1908), ss. 3, 29—Limitation Act (X of 1922), s. 3—Limitation under special law—Waiver.

A waiver of the question of limitation under any special law is no longer permissible under section 29 of the Limitation Act as amended by Act X of 1922, read with section 3 of the Act. O SAMUEL BURGE v. IMPROVEMENT TRUST, LUCKNOW, 9 O & A. L. R. 925 127

s. 5—Appellant having good case on merits—Admission of appeal after limitation.

The fact that an appellant has a good case on the merits, is not a good ground for the exercise of the Court's discretion under section 5 of the Limitation Act for the admission of the appeal after expiry of limitation. L LAKHMI DAS v. MEHR CHAND, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 44 910

s. 5, application of. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, r. 9 215

s. 12—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XLII, r. 2—*Appeal, second—Time spent in obtaining copy of Trial Court's judgment, whether can be excluded.Limitation Act—contd.

Under section 12 of the Limitation Act only the time requisite for obtaining copies of the judgment and decree appealed against can be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for the appeal. In the case of a second appeal the appellant is not entitled to the exclusion of the time spent in obtaining a copy of the Trial Court's judgment although under r. 2, which has been added by the Lahore High Court to O. XLII of the Civil Procedure Code, a copy of the Trial Court's judgment must be filed along with the memorandum of appeal. L CHUHAR MAL v. BIRA RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 461 919

s. 12—Time requisite for obtaining copies, what is—Appeal, second—Finding of fact—Revision.

Under section 12 of the Limitation Act only the time from the date of making the application for copies up to the date on which the copies are ready for delivery can be excluded.

A finding as to the time requisite for obtaining copies under section 12 of the Limitation Act is one of fact and cannot be attacked in second appeal, much less in revision.

Sher Singh v. Pem Raj, 48 Ind. Cas. 31; 100 P. R. 1918; 185 P. W. R. 1918, Bawa Singh v. Thukur Singh, 67 Ind. Cas. 478; 4 U. P. L. R. (L) 80; (1922) A. I. R. (L) 423, followed. L RAM SARUP v. ZORAWAR MAL 447

s. 14—Dismissal of suit for non-joinder of necessary parties—Exclusion of period of litigation.

Some of the trustees of a mosque sued for the appointment of a Receiver for the properties belonging to the mosque and for the removal of the manager who, it was alleged, was indebted in a large sum to the mosque. The manager disputed plaintiffs' right to sue and claimed that the mosque was indebted to him. Issues were framed as to this liability and the Court found that a certain sum of money was owing by the mosque to the manager. A Receiver was appointed and was directed to settle accounts with the manager who was thereafter paid a portion of the amount found due. On appeal, however, the plaintiff's suit was dismissed on the ground that some of the trustees alone were not competent to sue. In a subsequent suit by the manager for recovery of the amount due to him from the mosque:

Held, that during the whole period of the previous litigation in the Court of first instance and in appeal, the plaintiff was bona fide litigating his rights and that that period must, under section 14, of the Limitation Act be excluded from the period of limitation prescribed for the suit.

The interpretation to be put upon section 14 of the Limitation Act must be a wide one, the principle being that limitation would remain in suspense while a plaintiff is bona fide litigating his rights in a Court of Justice.

Nrityamont Dass v. Lakhan Chunder Sen, 33 Ind. Cas. 452; 30 M. L. J. 529 at p. 541; 20 C. W. N. 522; (1916) 1 M. W. N. 332; 3 L. W. 471 18

Limitation Act—contd.

Bom. L. R. 418; 24 C. L. J. 11-20 M. L. T. 10; 43 C. 660 (P. C.), relied on.

Per Wallace, J.—The dismissal of a suit on the ground of non-joinder of necessary parties is a dismissal for a cause of a like nature with defect of jurisdiction within the meaning of section 14 of the Limitation Act. M. THURUTHIELAKATH THORTINAKKARA PUTHIA PURAYIL v. THARAYIL PERIYAYIL KUNHAMMAD, 44 M. L. J. 179; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 347. 139 ss. 14, 29 (b)—C. P. Land Revenue Act (I of 1917), s. 169 (1) (b)—Partition proceedings—Title suit—Limitation—Suit filed in wrong Court—Exclusion of period.

Before its amendment by Act X of 1922, section 29 (b) of the Limitation Act of 1908 operated to exclude the applicability of section 14 of the Act to a suit filed in accordance with an order passed under clause (b) of section 169 (1) of the C. P. Land Revenue Act.

Abdul Hakim v. Laljunnissa Khatun 30, C. 532; 7 C. W. N. 550; Kalimuddin Mollah v. Sahabuddin Molla, 54 Ind. Cas. 705; 47 C. 300; 24 C. W. N. 4; 30 C. L. J. 455 and Kopparthi Lingayya v. Aravelli Chinnarayana, 44 Ind. Cas. 805; 41 M. 169; 33 M. L. J. 566; 7 L. W. 443 (F. B.), relied on. N. LAKSHMAN v. KESHOA RAO, 6 N. L. J. 205. 1021

s. 19—Statement admitting execution of mortgage-bond—Acknowledgment of liability.

A mere statement by a person that he executed a mortgage-bond for the balance of the sale price due under a sale-deed does not amount to an acknowledgment under section 19 of the Limitation Act of a liability subsisting at the time when the statement was made.

Kandasami Reddi v. Suppammal, 70 Ind. Cas. 576; 45 M. 443; 15 L. W. 325; 42 M. L. J. 218; (1922) M. W. N. 168; (1922 A. I. R. (M) 104; 32 M. L. T. 166, Ittappan Kuthiravattat Nayer v. Manu Sastri, 2 M. 34; 12 M. L. J. 101 and Venkata v. Partha ayadhi, 16 M. 220; 3 M. L. J. 35; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 860, followed.

Subramania. Iyer v. Veeraladra Pillai, 70 Ind. Cas. 593; 14 L. W. 148; (1921) M. W. N. 475; 41 M. L. J. 217, doubted. M. MUTHUKUMARA MUDALIAR v. CHOCKALINGA MUDALIAR, 17 L. W. 674; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 634. 952

s. 22—Pre-emption, suit for—One of several vendees impleaded after expiry of limitation, effect of.

In a suit for pre-emption one of several vendees was, owing to the negligence and carelessness of the plaintiff's next friend, not impleaded as defendant till after the expiry of the period of limitation for the suit.

Held, that the suit had become barred by time and the mere fact that the plaintiff was a minor was no ground for condoning the negligence and carelessness of his next friend. L. NIAZ ALI KHAN v. MUHAMMAD ABZAL KHAN. 364

s. 28, whether extinguishes right to maintenance.

Section 28 of the Limitation Act does not extinguish a right to maintenance. The cause of action for maintenance accrues from time to time according to the want and exigencies of the person entitled.

Limitation Act—contd.

Rungammal v. Echammal, 22 M. 305; 9 M. L. J. 14; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 217. In the goods of Gobinda Chandra, 23 Ind. Cas. 539; 12 C. W. N. 1141, Kedar Nath Coondoo Chowdhry v. Hemangini Dass, 13 C. 336; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 725 and Siddessary Dass v. Janardan Sarkar, 27 C. 557; 6 C. W. N. 530, followed. G. GOPAL CHANDRA v. KADAMBINI DASI. 235

Sch. I, Art. 10—Pre-emption, suit for—Property in possession of tenants—Physical possession—Limitation.

Whether the subject of a sale does or does not admit of physical possession must be determined with reference to the date of the sale, and it is immaterial whether the property afterwards became susceptible of physical possession.

Property which is in the possession of a tenant does not admit of physical possession within the meaning of Art. 10 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act. L. GANWAV. JOTI PRASAD. 903

Arts. 48, 49—Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), Sch. II, Art. 35 (ii)—Suit to recover compensation for trees wrongfully cut and removed—Small Cause Court, jurisdiction of—Limitation.

Defendant sold certain standing trees to the plaintiff which were to be cut and removed by the latter. Subsequently, the defendant sold the land to a third person, who sold the trees which were cut and removed by the purchasers. Plaintiff sued to recover the trees or compensation for them.

Held, (1) that the suit fell within the purview of Art. 35 (ii) of Schedule II, to the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, and was, therefore, not cognisable by a Court of Small Causes;

(2) that the suit was governed by Art. 48 or Art. 49 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act and that limitation began to run from the date on which the trees were cut and misappropriated. L. BIR SEN v. RAJA RAM. 33

Arts. 57, 59, 60—Loan and deposit, distinction between—Burden of proof.

A plaintiff relying upon Art. 60 of Schedule C to the Limitation Act must prove that something took place between the parties at the time the money passed which would constitute the handing over of the money "a deposit" and not "a loan." That might arise from a direct agreement or might be implied from the circumstances in which the money came to the hands of the borrower.

Ordinarily, when one person hands over money to another on the understanding that it is not a gift, but has to be re-paid when demanded, that would be considered in law "a loan"; and if the lender seeks to prove that the money so handed over was a "deposit," the onus would lie upon him to prove that there were additional circumstances which turned the "loan" into a "deposit." B. GOVIND CHINTAMAN BHAT v. KACHUBHAI GULABCHAND, 25 Bom. L. R. 503. 974

Limitation Act—contd.

Sch. I, Arts. 61, 83—Contract Act (IX of 1872), s. 222—Principal and agent—Suit by agent to recover, amount of loss incurred—Limitation, commencement of.

Plaintiffs agreed to purchase a certain amount of grain, to hold it for the defendant, and to resell it under his instructions at such times and in such lots as he might think fit. The grain was purchased and sold in accordance with this agreement and there was a loss on the whole transaction. Plaintiffs sued to recover the amount of the loss from the defendant;

Held, (1) that the transaction between the parties amounted to a contract of agency carrying with it the right to indemnity conferred upon the agent by section 222 of the Contract Act;

(2) that, therefore, the suit was governed by Art. 83 and not by Art. 61 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act;

Manghi Ram v. Ram Saran Das-Maman Chand, 26 Ind. Cas. 415; 23 P. R. 1915; 100 P. L. R. 1915; 218 P. W. R. 1915; followed.

Kandaswami Pillai v. Avayambal, 7 Ind. Cas. 399; 30 M. 167; (1910) M. W. N. 316; 8 M. L. T. 194; 20 M. L. J. 989, dissented from.

(3) that limitation began to run from that date when plaintiffs paid for the grain and not from the date when the loss was ascertained after re-sale.

Kadari Pershad-Cheddi Lal v. Har Bhagwan, 66 Ind. Cas. 900; 3 L. L. J. 65, followed. L. DEVISAHAI-RAMJIDAS v. TIRATH RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 473 148

Art. 85—Mutual, open and current account, what is.

An open account is one which is continuous or current, uninterrupted, or unclosed by settlement or otherwise, consisting of a series of transactions.

A current account is an open or running account between two or more parties, or an account which contains items between the parties from which the balance due to one of them is, or can be, ascertained.

A mutual account is an account which shows reciprocity of dealings between the parties and not an account having items on one side only though made up of debits and credits.

Ram Pershad v. Harbans Singh, 6 C. L. J. 158, relied on.

In order that an account might be mutual, there must be transactions on each side, creating independent obligations on the other, and not merely transactions which create obligations on the one side, those on the other being merely complete or partial discharges of such obligations.

Hirada v. Gadigi, 6 M. H. C. R. 142, relied on.

A mutual account is made up of matters of set-off, or, in other words, an account between parties who have a mutual and alternate course of dealings under an implied agreement that one account may and shall be set off against the other pro tanto.

The plaintiff firm was employed by the defendant firm to buy grain and sell it at a profit on behalf of the latter. The plaintiff firm was to supply funds for making these purchases, the defendant firm making a few advances in the beginning by way of margin money. The plaintiff firm was entitled to charge commission on the sales and purchases made on the defendant firm's behalf. In a suit by the plaintiff firm to recover a certain amount as balance due from the defendant firm on the transactions, it was found that, except in the beginning, when the defendant firm made some advances by way of margin money, the balance of the account had never been in favour of the defendant.

Limitation Act—contd.

Held, that it could not be said that the account between the parties was a mutual account within the meaning of Art. 85 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act, and the suit, therefore, was not governed by that Article. L. FIRM RUP CHAND-JIWAN SINGH v. FIRM POHO MAL-NATEU MAL, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 347 916

Sch. I, Arts. 103, 104, 116, applicability of—Dower-debt, suit for recovery of, nature of—Registered dower-debt—Limitation—"Compensation," meaning of—Legislative recognition of judicial construction.

Article 116 of the First Schedule to the Limitation Act is applicable to all cases where the position can be reasonably maintained that the claim sought to be enforced is a claim for compensation for the breach of a contract in writing registered.

A suit for recovery of dower-debt when there is a registered dower-deed is governed by Art. 116 of the First Schedule to the Limitation Act, although Arts. 103 and 104 of the Schedule would apply when there was no such registered instrument.

Ful Chand Bibee v. Nawab Ali Chowdhury, 1 Ind. Cas. 740; 36 C. L. J. 184; 9 C. L. J. 195; 13 C. W. N. 134, Aisatulla v. Danes Mohammad, 70 Ind. Cas. 169; 36 C. L. J. 379, (1922) A. I. R. (C) 152, relied on.

A suit to recover a dower-debt is a suit to enforce a simple money claim founded solely on the contract entered into by the husband. It is, moreover, a suit to recover compensation within the meaning of Art. 116 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

Wafeah v. Saheeba, 8 W. R. 307, Janee Khanum v. Amatul Fatima, 8 W. R. 51, Mahabubibi v. Amina, 10 B. H. C. R. 430, Ranee Khajooroonissa v. Ranee Ryesoonissa, 2 I. A. 235; 24 W. R. 163; 15 B. L. R. 306; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 526 (P. C.), Hamira Bibi v. Zubaida Bibi, 36 Ind. Cas. 87; 43 I. A. 294; 38 A. 581; 25 C. L. J. 517; 14 A. L. J. 1055; 21 C. W. N. 1; 18 Bom. L. R. 999; 31 M. L. J. 799; 20 M. L. T. 505; 4 L. W. 602; (1916) 2 M. W. N. 551; 1 P. L. W. 57; 25 C. L. J. 517 (P. C.), Nurunnissa Khanum v. Muhammad Sakru, 56 Ind. Cas. 8; 47 C. 537; 31 C. L. J. 14; 24 C. W. N. 335, relied on.

The term "compensation" as used in Arts. 115 and 116 of the Schedule to the Limitation Act is not sufficiently precise, but the technical distinction between a debt and damages is too refined for the purpose.

Ordinarily, the term compensation is not used as equivalent to damages although compensation may often have to be measured by the same rule as damages in an action for the breach. It signifies that which is given in recompense, an equivalent rendered. Damages, on the other hand, constitute the sum of money claimed or adjudged to be paid in compensation for loss or injury sustained; the value estimated in money of something lost or withheld.

Limitation Act—contd.

The term compensation etymologically suggests the image of balancing one thing against another its primary signification is equivalence, and the secondary and more common meaning is something given or obtained as an equivalent.

The Legislature is presumed to know not only the general principles of law but also the construction which the Courts have put upon particular Statutes.

Where a section of an Act which has received a judicial construction is re-enacted in the same words, such re-enactment is treated as a legislative recognition of that construction.

Jogendra Chandra Roy v. Syam Das, 1 Ind. Cas. 168; 36 C. 543; 9 C. L. J. 271, Kamini Debi v. Promatha Nath, 10 Ind. Cas. 491; 39 C. 33; 13 C. L. J. 597 and Nogendra Mohan Roy v. Pyari Mohan Saha, 30 Ind. Cas. 420; 43 C. 103; 21 C. L. J. 605; 20 C. W. N. 319, relied on. MAHAMMAD MAZHAR AL AHAD v. MAHAMMAD AZIMUDIN, 37 C. L. J. 108; 27 C. W. N. 210; (1923) A. I. R. (C.) 507 17

Sch. I, Art. 116. See REGISTRATION ACT, 1908, ss. 17, 28, 29 188

Arts. 123, 144—Muhammadan Law—Succession—Suit to recover share—Limitation.

The joint family is not an institution of the Muhammadan Law.

On the death of a Muhammadan each of his heirs becomes entitled to claim his or her share and limitation begins to run against each under Art. 144 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

There is no presumption in such a case that the male heirs hold the shares of the female heirs on behalf of the latter as managers of a joint family.

Nasiruddin Shah v. Lal Bibi, 89 P. R. 1888, Murad Khatun v. Muhammad Bakhs, 33 Ind. Cas. 742; 85 P. R. 1916; 85 P. W. R. 1916 followed. L. ZAINAB v. GULAM RASUL, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 319 425

Art. 144—General Clauses Act (X of 1897), s. 3 (25)—Materials of standing house, transfer of—Suit for possession—Limitation.

A transfer of the materials of a standing house is a transfer of immoveable property and a suit for possession of such materials is governed by Art. 144 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act. L. SHANCHI KHAN v. KARAM CHAND, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 150 705

Art. 144—Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act (I of 1900), s. 1, applicability of—Custom—Alienation by grandfather—Suit by grandson to challenge alienation—Limitation—Collateral, right of, nature of.

Limitation Act—contd.

A collateral governed by the Customary Law of the Punjab does not derive his right to challenge an alienation of ancestral property from or through his father, but from or through the common ancestor who owned the land.

Sundar v. Salig Ram, 9 Ind. Cas. 300; 26 P. R. 1911; 33 P. W. R. 1911; 34 P. L. R. 1911 (F. B.), followed.

The Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act does not affect any prescriptive right or title which had accrued or was acquired before the Act came into operation.

Sahib Dad v. Rahmat, 90 P. R. 1904; 88 P. L. R. 1904 (F. B.), followed.

Plaintiff sued to recover possession of certain land which had been sold to the defendants by their grandfather in 1887. The alienor died in 1898. Plaintiff's father had not been heard of for ten years before the institution of the suit and was presumed by the Court to have been dead;

Held, (1) that the suit was governed by Art. 144 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act and not by the Punjab Limitation (Ancestral Land Alienation) Act;

Sahib Dad v. Rahmat, 90 P. R. 1904; 88 P. L. R. 1904 (F. B.), Tulsi v. Madho Ram, 13 Ind. Cas. 343; 30 P. R. 1912; 72 P. L. R. 1912; 133 P. W. R. 1912 and Arur Singh v. Solakhan Singh, 37 Ind. Cas. 412; 174 P. W. R. 1916, followed.

(2) that limitation under Art. 144 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act began to run against the plaintiffs when the possession of the defendants became adverse to the former, that is to say, on the death of their father, when their right to possession accrued;

(3) that the plaintiff's father not having been proved to have died more than twelve years before the institution of the suit, the suit was within limitation.

Roda v. Harnam, 18 P. R. 1895 (F. B.), and Arur Singh v. Solakhan Singh, 37 Ind. Cas. 412; 174 P. W. R. 1916, followed.

The terminus a quo under Art. 144 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act is the date when the possession of the defendant becomes adverse to the plaintiff. L. SARUP SINGH v. PAL SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 642 357

Sch. I, Art. 175—Execution of decree—Compromise—Agreement to pay by instalments, effect of—Limitation. See CIVIL PROCEDURE CODE, 1908, s. 48 671

Arts. 177, 181—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, r. 4—Appeal—Death of defendant—Failure to apply within time for substitution—Abatement—Failure to object, effect of.

Where no application is made within the time prescribed by law for bringing the legal representatives of a deceased respondent on the re. ord, the appeal abates, and no failure by the persons concerned to object to action taken on an application presented after expiry of the time limited by law would alter the fact of abatement.

Limitation Act—contd.

Art. 177 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act has no applicability to an application for bringing on record the legal representatives of a deceased person who was not a defendant or respondent on the date of his death. Such an application is governed by Art. 181 of Sch. I to the Act. L WAHID BAKSH V. LALTA PERSHAD 387

Sch. I, Art. 182—Application for determination of future mesne profits—Step-in-aid of execution. See EXECUTION OF DECREE 233

Art. 182—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 4—Mortgage suit—Preliminary decree—Application to make decree final—Limitation, operation of.

A preliminary decree in a mortgage suit must be made final before it can be executed, and an application to make such a decree final must be made within three years and six months from its date. Such an application cannot be looked upon as a proceeding in execution, and the fact that a previous application, made within the period prescribed, is dismissed for want of prosecution will not avail to save limitation for a subsequent application made after the expiry of that period. B HARJIWAN DEVRAJ V. GAJANAN KASHINATH, 25 Bom. L. R. 459; (1923) A. I. R. (B) 420 187

Art. 182—Step-in-aid of execution—Talbana, payment of, whether step-in-aid.

The mere payment of talbana in compliance with an order of the Court is not a step-in-aid of execution which would extend the period of limitation for the execution of a decree. O MOHAMMAD ALAM V. BACHCHU, 9 O. & A. L. R. 68 211

Art. 182 (4)—Execution of decree—Amendment of decree after execution has become barred, effect of.

A decree which is capable of execution and is not executed within the period of limitation becomes dead and cannot be revived by a subsequent application for amendment.

Rabiuddin v. Ram Kanai Sen, 59 Ind. Cas. 186, followed.

Where a decree is quite capable of execution as it stands, its amendment cannot entitle the decree-holder to a fresh period of limitation under clause (4) of Art. 182 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act.

Anandram v. Nityananda Barham, 32 Ind. Cas. 744, relied upon. L JHAMMAN LAL V. DAULAT RAM 461

Art. 182 (5)—Execution of decree—Appeal against order in execution, whether step-in-aid of execution.

The prosecution of an appeal from an order made in the course of a proceeding in execution of a decree cannot be looked upon as an application in accordance with law to the proper Court for execution or to take some step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of clause (5) of Art. 182 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

Kristo Coomar Nag v. Mahabat Khan, 5 C. 595; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 986, Nand Kishore v. Sipahi

Limitation Act—contd.

Singh, 26 A. 608; A. W. Ne (1904) 139; 1 A. L. J. 336, relied on. B GOVINDDAS V. GANPATDAS, 25 Bom. L. R. 518; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 431; 47 B. 783 1080

Sch. I, Art. 182 (5)—Execution of decree—Application for postponement, whether step-in-aid of execution.

An application made by the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor to the Executing Court to postpone the execution proceedings with a view to a compromise being arrived at between the parties, does not constitute a step-in-aid of execution within the meaning of clause (5) of Art. 182 of Sch. I to the Limitation Act.

Abdul Kadir Rowther v. Krishna Malamal Nair, 23 Ind. Cas. 533; 38 M. 695; 1 L. W. 271; (1914) M. W. N. 563; 26 M. L. J. 433; 15 M. L. T. 305, relied on.

In order to be regarded as a step-in-aid of execution, an application must ask the Court to do something which would assist the decree-holder in furthering the execution of the decree.

An application for postponement of the proceedings with a view to a compromise being arrived at is not intended as a step towards execution but as a step which, if successful, would avoid the necessity for execution. B VISHNU NAGAPPA VENKATESH BHAT V. NARASINHA PANDURANG, 25 Bom. L. R. 490 1011

Limitation Act (X of 1922), s. 3. See LAND ACQUISITION ACT, 1894, s. 18 127

Lunacy Act (IV of 1912), s. 14—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), ss. 115, 151—Letters Patent (Lahore), cl. 12—Order by District Magistrate under s. 14—Revision—Remedy.

The Lunacy Act deals specifically and under separate headings with the two branches of proceedings, executive and judicial.

An order passed by a District Magistrate under Part II of the Lunacy Act is a purely executive order and cannot form the subject-matter of a revision application to the High Court, nor has the High Court the power to interfere with such an order under clause 12 of the Letters Patent or in the exercise of its powers of superintendence.

Any person considering himself aggrieved by an executive order passed by the District Magistrate under section 14, Part II of the Lunacy Act may apply under Part III of the Act for a regular inquiry conducted by a judicial officer. The result of such inquiry is conclusive and overrides and overrules any order which may have been passed summarily by the executive authority. L DOUGLAS DONALD, In the matter of, 4 L. 1124 Cr. 1. J. 664 696

Madras Agency Rules, rr. 8, 24, 25—Order of Assistant Agent in execution—Appeal, whether lies—Remedy.

An order of an Assistant Agent in execution proceedings is not a decree within the meaning of the Agency Rules and no appeal lies therefrom to the Agency Commissioner.

Sri Sri Vithram deo Maharajuliam Garu v. Sri Neladevi Pottamudhedevar Gar, 2 M. 256, Lagadapati Venkatanagabushanam v. Ovilapati Mahajayami, 42 Ind. Cas. 555; 41 M. 325; 34 M. L. J.

Madras Agency Rules—concl'd.

524, Rani of Tunt v. Maharaja of Jeypore, 66 Ind. Cas. 113; 16 L. W. 8; 42 M. L. J. 487; 30 M. L. T. 339; (1922) M. W. N. 314; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 271; followed.

The remedy in such a case is for the aggrieved party to move the Agency Commissioner under r. 25 of the Agency Rules to make a reference to the Government. M. LAGADAPATI VENKATARAMA BUSHANAM v. KARELLA RAMASWAMY, 17 L. W. 375; (1923) M. W. N. 244; 45 M. L. J. 781 (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 590

181

Madras District Municipalities Act (V of 1920)

—Local Rules—Rules 13, 14, 15—Municipal Election—Absence of initials of Polling Officer on ballot paper—Vote, validity of.

Under the rules framed by the Governor-in-Council for the conduct of Municipal elections under the Madras District Municipalities Act, a properly recorded vote by a duly qualified voter cannot be treated as invalid and rejected on the sole ground that the ballot paper did not bear the Polling Officer's initials as required by rule 14 (1).

Rule 14, clause (1), is not a mandatory rule, the infringement of which will render the vote necessarily invalid. The rule is intended to identify the ballot paper as one given by the Polling Officer and where such identity can be established by other evidence, the absence of initials may be disregarded.

Rules 13 to 15 are intended to enable a duly qualified voter to give his vote secretly and freely on the ballot paper supplied to him by the Polling Officer to the candidate he approves of. Where this object is shown to have been attained in spite of the infringement of any rule, such infringement cannot justify the rejection of the vote more particularly when the infringement is not by the voter but by the Polling Officer.

Shyam Chand Basak v. Chairman of the Dacca Municipality, 53 Ind. Cas. 741; 47 C. 524; 30 C. L. J. 270; 24 C. W. N. 189, distinguished.

Ackers v. Howard, (1886) 16 Q. B. D. 739; 55 L. J. Q. B. 233; 54 L. T. 651; 14 W. R. 609, Islington case, (1901) 5 O. M. & H. 125, relied on. M. KANNIAPPA MUDALIAR v. CHINNASAMI CHETTIAR, 18 L. W. 160; 45 M. L. J. 329; 33 M. L. T. 37

540

—s. 352—Specific Relief Act (I of 1877).

s. 42—Municipal Election—Rejection of Nomination Paper by Chairman—Local Government declining jurisdiction to decide as to validity of Nomination Paper—Injunction restraining holding of election pending decision of civil suit—Jurisdiction of Civil Courts—Election held—Injunction restraining Councillor elected from acting, whether can be granted—Civil suit, maintainability of—Remedy.

A Nomination Paper put in on behalf of a candidate for election as a Municipal Councillor was wrongly rejected by the Chairman of the Municipal Council and on the rejection of the Nomination Paper, the only other candidate was declared under the rules to have been duly elected. In a suit by the candidate whose nomination was rejected for an injunction to restrain the elected candidate from acting as Councillor and the Chairman of the Council from holding a meeting of the Council as then constituted for the purpose of electing a new Chairman:

Madras District Municipalities Act—cont'd.

Held, (1) that the plaint disclosed no cause of action against either of the defendants; the successful candidate did nothing wrong, as he simply found himself elected and proposed to take his seat nor could the Court be properly asked to restrain the Chairman from holding a meeting of the Council;

(2) that the proper remedy of the plaintiff was to proceed by an Election Petition to set aside the election which had already taken place.

Where after the rejection of the Nomination Paper of a candidate for a Municipal Council the election regarding the other candidates validly nominated was to be held and the candidate whose Nomination Paper was rejected attempted under rule 31 of the Madras Municipal Election Rules to refer the question of the rejection of his nomination to the Local Government and the Local Government wrongly declined jurisdiction and thereupon he brought a suit for a declaration that his Nomination Paper was wrongly rejected by the Chairman and for an injunction to restrain him from holding the election without the plaintiff as duly nominated candidate and also to compel him to hold an election with plaintiff as a candidate:

Held, (1) that the plaintiff was not bound to wait till the election was held; he had a cause of action to prevent by injunction the carrying out of the threatened action which would have the effect of illegally interfering with his rights;

(2) that section 352 of the Madras District Municipalities Act did not preclude a suit for an injunction to restrain the doing of a threatened wrongful act to the detriment of the plaintiff;

(3) that the Local Government having declined jurisdiction to interpret the rules and there being no conclusive ruling on the point, notwithstanding rule 31 of the Madras Municipal Election Rules, the Civil Court had jurisdiction to inquire into and decide the matter.

Per Schwabe, C. J.—If a man entitled to vote or be a candidate at an election is wrongfully deprived of that right, an action for damages lies against the person so depriving him; but if the act by which the right is interfered with is done in a judicial capacity, no action for damages will lie unless the act is done maliciously, i.e., dishonestly.

Ashby v. White, 1 Sm. L. C. (11th Ed.) 240 at p. 295 and (10th Ed.) 231; 2 Ld. Raym. 938; 14 Howel St. Tr. 695; 92 E. R. 126, Municipal Board of Agra v. Asharfi Lal, 65 Ind. Cas. 984; 44 A. 201; 20 A. L. J. 1, (1922) A. I. R. (A) 1, Pickering v. James, (1873) 8 C. P. 489 at p. 509, 42 L. J. C. P. 217, 29 L. T. 210; 21 W. R. 786, relied on.

Apart, however, from an action for damages in respect of past acts, there is also a cause of action of a different nature to prevent by injunction the carrying out of any threatened action which would have the effect of illegally interfering with the plaintiff's rights. Where there is a legal right which can be asserted in law or equity, a Court of Equity can grant an injunction in protection of that right.

Madras District Municipalities Act—contd.

Aslati v. Southampton Corporation, (1881) 16 Ch. D. 143; 50 L. J. Ch. 31; 43 L. T. 464; 29 W. R. 117; 45 J. P. 111. Richardson v. Methley School Board, (1893) 3 Ch. 510; 62 L. J. Ch. 943; 3 R. 701; 69 L. T. 308; 42 W. R. 27, relied on.

Per Wallace, J.—The right of being nominated to stand as a candidate for a Municipal election is a legal character within the meaning of section 42 of the Specific Relief Act; but this legal character is itself the creation of a specific Statute and where the Statute itself sets up a proper Tribunal for trying cases of the infringement of the right to such a legal character and that Tribunal has functioned judicially, the Civil Court has no jurisdiction to deal with a case of an alleged infringement of that right.

But where the duly constituted tribunal has declined jurisdiction and refused to try the question of the right of a party to a legal character the aggrieved party is thus bereft of his statutory and constitutional remedy, and it is the province of the Civil Court as a Court of Equity to fill the vacuum created and to exercise the jurisdiction which the proper tribunal has failed to exercise.

Accordingly, where the Local Government which is the statutory tribunal in a particular case, misinterprets its own rules as giving it no jurisdiction to decide the validity of a Nomination Paper at a Municipal election, the ordinary Civil Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit for that relief and to grant a proper temporary injunction retaining matters in status quo ante until the suit is tried.

(Case-Law English and Indian, considered.) M. SARVOTHAMA RAO v. CHAIRMAN MUNICIPAL COUNCIL, SAIDAPET, 17 L. W. 431; (1923) M. W. N. 266; 32 M. L. T. 178; 45 M. L. J. 23; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 475.

Madras Estates Land Act (I of 1908), s. 3 (2), (5), (11), (15)—Madras Regulation XXV of 1802, cl. 4—Grant by zemindar free of kattubadi prior to 1802—Pre-settlement inam or "estate"—Assignment of inamdar's interest in holding for term of years for money consideration with proviso for surrender—Mortgage or lease—Thirumanam, meaning of.

A sarva dumbala inam free of kattubadi granted by a landlord prior to his lands being constituted a zemindari by a sannad issued under Regulation XXV of 1802 is not an "estate" within the meaning of section 3 (2) of the Madras Estates Land Act, even though the accounts on which the peishkush on the part of the zemindar was fixed were those taken by a Circuit Committee prior to the grant of the said inam.

Sri Raja Rao Venkata Surya Mahipati Rama Krishna Rao Bahadur v. Court of Wards, 22 M. 383; 1 Bom. L. R. 277; 3 C. W. N. 415; 26 L. A. 83; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 481; 9 M. L. J. Sup. 1; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 276 (P. C.), Brahmayya v. Achiraju, 70 Ind. Cas. 615; 45 M. 716; (1922) M. W. N. 280; 31

Madras Estates Land Act—contd.

M. L. T. 91; 43 M. L. J. 229; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 373, Suryanarayana v. Patanna, 48 Ind. Cas. 689; 41 M. 1012; 25 M. L. T. 30; 23 C. W. N. 273; 9 L. W. 126; 29 C. L. J. 153; 1 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 11; 36 M. L. J. 585; 21 Bom. L. R. 547; (1919) M. W. N. 463; 45 L. A. 209 (P. C.), Secretary of State v. Rajah of Venkatagiri, 73 Ind. Cas. 741 Infra; 44 M. 864; 41 M. L. J. 624; (1922) M. W. N. 130; M. L. T. 164; 26 C. W. N. 809; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 168 (P. C.), Venkatayangaya Appa Row v. Poranki Appalarazu, 8 Ind. Cas. 546; 20 M. L. J. 728 at p. 734; 8 M. L. J. 429, Sri Rajah Sobhanadri Appa Rao Bahadur v. Sri Rajah Venkatanarasimha Appa Rao Bahadur, 26 M. 493 at pp. 404, 409; Venkata Narasimha Appa Rao Bahadur v. Sobhanadri Appa Rao Bahadur, 29 M. 52; 8 Bom. L. R. 1; 10 C. W. N. 161; 3 A. L. J. 55; 3 C. L. J. 1; 1 M. L. T. 3; 16 M. L. J. 1; 33 L. A. 46; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 897 (P. C.), Rajah Nilmony Singh v. The Government, 6 W. R. 121, Nilmoni Singh v. Bakranath Singh, 9 L. A. 104 at p. 121; 9 C. 187; 5 Shome L. R. 68; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 335; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 777 (P. C.) and Secretary of State for India v. Kirtibas Bhupati Harichandan Mahapatra, 26 Ind. Cas. 676; 42 C. 710 at p. 727; 19 C. W. N. 65; 2 L. W. 11; 17 M. L. T. 1; 21 C. L. J. 31; 17 Bom. L. R. 32; 28 M. L. J. 457; 42 L. A. 20 (P. C.); considered.

Both the Madras Regulation XXV of 1802 and the sannads issued under it speak from their dates so that all grants of inam made by zemindars prior to 1802 are prima facie excluded from the Permanent Settlement.

Where in the case of an inam granted by a zemindar prior to 1802 the inamdar assigned his interest in his holding to a third person under a document styled "thirumanam" by which the latter was placed in possession of the holding for a term of years in consideration of certain money payments and was to pay all dues other than extra taxes levied thereafter, and was bound at the end of the term to surrender without any separate relinquishment:

Held, (1) that notwithstanding the absence of any provision for payment of a periodical rent, the document was not a mortgage but a lease; Basant Lal v. Tapeswari Rai, 3 A. I. Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 956, Bengal Indigo Company v. Roghobur Das, 24 C. 272; 1 C. W. N. 83; 23 L. A. 158; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 94; 12 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 848 (P. C.) and Nidha Sah v. Murlidhar, 25 A. 115; 30 L. A. 54; 5 Bom. L. R. 111; 7 C. W. N. 289; 8 Sar. P. C. J. 435 (P. C.); relied on.

(2) that the lessee was not a raiyat holding, an "estate" within the meaning of section 3 (2), (15) of the Madras Estates Land Act and had no occupancy rights in the land.

Chidambara Sivaprakasa Pandara Sannadhyal v. Veerama Reddi, 68 Ind. Cas. 538; 45 M. 586; 16 L. W. 102; 31 M. L. T. 54; (1922) M. W. N. 749; 43 M. L. J. 640; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 292; 37 C. L. J. 199; 27 C. W. N. 245 (P. C.); distinguished.

Per Oldfield, J.—The word "payable" in section 3 (11) of the Madras Estates Land Act means "payable according to the terms of the contract between the parties to it," and section 3 (12) and (15) of the Act are applicable whatever the stage or the stages at which those terms, so far as they relate to payment for the use of the land, have to be or have been fulfilled.

Madras Estates Land Act—concld.

Although etymologically a thirumanam document is one executed in discharge, the term thirumanam has acquired a wider meaning as importing merely a settlement. M. KUPPU REDDI v. MANDALUKA, (1923) M. W. N. 170; 17 L. W. 712; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 454; 44 M. L. J. 91. 733 ss. 13, (3), 187.—Improvements made by ryots after Act—Landlord, right of, to recover rent at wet rates under contract made before Act.

Under section 13 (3) of the Madras Estates Land Act, a landholder is not entitled to recover rent at wet rates from his ryots for land which the latter has been able to cultivate wet in consequence of improvements made at his own expense after the Act came into force but on the strength of a contract made before the Act was passed. Dictum of Venkata Perumal v. Ramudu, 27 Ind. Cas. 688; 39 M. L. J. 84; 28 M. L. J. 81; (1915) M. W. N. 132; 17 M. L. T. 129, not followed.

The intention of the Legislature in framing sections 13 and 187 of the Madras Estates Land Act was to refuse to contracts made before, equally with contracts made after, the passing of the Act any effect on the relation between the ryot and the landholder. M. CHOKALINGAM CHETTIAR v. PALANI AMBALAN, 32 M. L. T. 377 (1923) M. W. N. 411; 45 M. L. J. 124 (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 685; 46 M. L. J. 18 L. W. 646. 926

Madras Permanent Settlement Regulation (XXV of 1802), ss. 3, 4—Permanently settled zemindaris—Venkatagiri zemindari—Resumption of inam or lakhiraj lands—Government, powers of.

The reversion in respect of inams or lakhiraj lands situated within the zemindari of Venkatagiri belongs to the zemindar and the Government is not entitled to resume or assess them to public revenue.

Under the sanad granted to the Venkatagiri zemindari in 1802, when it first came under the East India Company, the Government fixed a definite specific assessment on the whole zemindari irrespective of the particular assests derived from each particular unit of property within the estate and the zemindar, on his side, accepted that arrangement on that special understanding.

In view of section 3 of Regulation XXV of 1802, section 4 of that Regulation has no application to cases of permanently settled zemindaris such as the Venkatagiri zemindari. P. C. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. RAJAH OF VENKATAGIRI, 30 M. L. T. 164; 44 M. L. J. 864; 41 M. L. J. 624, (1922) M. W. N. 1; 26 C. W. N. 809; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 168. 741

Madras Revenue Recovery Act (II of 1864), s. 59

—Madras Irrigation Cess Act (VII of 1865), s. 1—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 16—Cess paid under protest—Suit to recover amount paid—Limitation.

A person who pays under protest water-cess under the Madras Irrigation Cess Act when a demand is made and then claims to recover it back by suit is not a "person aggrieved by any proceeding" within the meaning of section 59 of the Madras Revenue Recovery Act.

Madras Revenue Recovery Act—concld.

The period of limitation for such a suit is one year under Art. 16 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act and not six months under section 59 of the Madras Revenue Recovery Act.

Ruvula Vengala Reddi v. Secretary of State, 15 Ind. Cas. 328, followed.

Orr. v. Secretary of State, 23 M. L. J. 10 M. L. J. 261, dissented from. M. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. CHELLASANI VENKATARATNAM, 32 M. L. T. 236; (1923) M. W. N. 258; 17 L. W. 683; 45 M. L. J. 12; 46 M. L. J. 488; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 652. 106

Madras Village Courts Act (I of 1889), ss. 66, 67

—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 39—Village Court decree—Transfer for execution—District Munsif, power of.

A District Munsif receiving by transfer a decree of a Village Court under section 66 of the Madras Village Courts Act or withdrawing execution of a decree to his own file under section 67 of the Act has no jurisdiction to transfer it for execution to another District Munsif under section 39 of the Civil Procedure Code. M. KANDOTH SANKARAN v. KARAYI KUZHAKEPROTH ACHUTHAN, 44 M. L. J. 643; (1923) M. W. N. 353; 32 M. L. T. 403; 18 L. W. 191; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 651; 46 M. L. J. 734. 793

Malabar Law—Stanom—Grant by stanomdar—Benefit of institution—Burden of proof—Recitals in deed, value of.

If a Malabar stanomdar, who is also the manager of the family for the time being, grants a lease or makes an alienation to ensure beyond his lifetime which is for the benefit of the family, it will be upheld; as, on the other hand, any such transaction if prejudicial to the family will be set aside.

Kaithal Kuttiyan v. Kuzhalte Puthen Veetil Thirumangalath Kunharatan Ummama, 62 Ind. Cas. 62; 44 M. L. J. 509 at p. 512; 13 L. W. 208; 29 M. L. T. 172; (1921) M. W. N. 169; 41 M. L. J. 202, followed.

Ordinarily, the recitals in a document upon which such a grant depends would not by themselves be sufficient without reference to other evidence, to prove that the grant was made for the benefit of the institution or the family represented by the grantor even though the document is more than 70 years old. The grant must be supported by proof abunde that it was made for an unavoidable necessity or for the benefit or preservation of the institution of the estate.

Hari Kishen Bhagat v. Kashi Pershad Singh, 27 Ind. Cas. 674; 42 C. L. J. 115; 19 C. W. N. 370; 13 A. L. J. 223; 2 L. W. 219; 21 C. L. J. 225; 28 M. L. J. 565; 17 Bom. L. R. 426; (1915) M. W. N. 511; 42 L. A. 84 (P. C.), followed.

Magniram Sitaram v. Kasurthai Manithai, 66 Ind. Cas. 162; 49 I. A. 54; 26 C. W. N. 473; 42 M. L. J. 501; 30 M. L. T. 208, 20 A. L. J. 171; 35 C. L. J. 421; 24 Bom. L. R. 584; (1922) M. W. N. 313; 46 B. 481; (1922) A. I. R. (P. C.) 163 (P. C.), Chockalingam Pillai v. Mayandi Chettiar, 19 M. L. J. 247; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1043 on 485; 6 M. L. J. 247; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1043 on Malabar Law—concl'd.

- appeal Mayandi Chettiar v. Chochalingam Pillay, 27 M. 291; 8 C. W. N. 545; 31 I. A. 83; 14 M. L. J. 200; 8 Sar P. C. J. 587 (P. C.), distinguished. M
- MEETHALE CHALIL, PAEKUM THIRUMANGALATH v. KANDIVIL PARKUM PONGOT RAMAN NATR* 275

—Tarwad—Trusteeship—Minor, competency of—Uraima right, transfer of.

A minor is not incompetent to be an Uraiman of a Malabar Illom or Tarwad when the trusteeship belongs to it and the duties of the minor trustee may be performed by a properly constituted guardian.

Somasundra Mudaliar v. Vythilinga Mudaliar, 19 M. 285; 6 M. L. J. 92; 6 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 904
Muthu Kumara Mudaliar v. Palaniappa Chettiar, 10 Ind. Cas. 300; (1911) 1 M. W. N. 303; 9 M. L. T. 495, distinguished.

A renewal of a Kanom by some only of the Uralars of a Devaswom without consulting the rest is invalid.

It is incompetent for the last male member of a Malabar Illom to alienate the trusteeship of a temple by vesting the Uraima right by a Will in his sons. M *SUNKARAN NAMBI v. DEVAKI AN-
 THERJENAM*, 16 L. W. 26; (1922) M. W. N. 428; (1922) A. I. R. (M) 259; 43 M. L. J. 572 491

Malicious prosecution—Charge absolutely false—Probable and reasonable cause—Further evidence, whether necessary.

Where in a suit for damages for malicious prosecution it is found that the charge made by the defendant was absolutely without foundation, further evidence directly going to show that there was no reasonable and probable cause for making the charge is not necessary, as, in such a case, it is legitimate to infer that the defendant had no probable or reasonable cause. A BISHUN SARUP v. BINDRABAN, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 531 448 —Damages, action for—Death of plaintiff—Right to continue suit, whether survives.

An action for damages for malicious prosecution being personal to the plaintiff does not survive beyond his lifetime, and the action, so far as it relates to the expense incurred by the deceased plaintiff in defending himself against the prosecution, cannot be transmitted to his personal representatives.

- Rustomji Dorabji v. Nurse*, 62 Ind. Cas. 260; 44 M. 357; 40 M. L. J. 173; (1921) M. W. N. 121; 29 M. L. T. 121; 14 L. W. 200 (F. B.) and London v. London Road Car Company, (1888) 4 T. L. R. 448, relied on.

Twycross v. Grant, (1878) 4 C. P. D. 40 at p. 45; 48 L. J. C. P. 1; 39 L. T. 618; 27 W. R. 27, distinguished.

Krishna Behari Sen v. Corporation of Calcutta, 31 C. 993; 8 C. W. N. 745, not followed. B MOTILAL SATYANARAYAN v. HARNARYAN PREMSUKH, 25 Bom. L. R. 435; (1923) A. I. R. (B) 408; 47 B. 716 385

Mesne profits, application for determination of future—Step-in-a-id of execution. See EXECUTION OF DECREE 233

Minor, transaction with—Fairness of transaction—Partition—Adult co-owner, position of—Partial partition.

It is the duty of an adult person dealing with a minor through his guardian to show that the transaction is a fair one and the minor is not prejudiced in any way by any act or omission on his part.

Yeechuri Ramamurthy v. Yeechuri Ramamma, 33 Ind. Cas. 961; 30 M. L. J. 308; 3 L. W. 322, Nallappa Reddi v. Balammal, 2 M. H. C. R. 182, relied on and followed.

A Hindu co-parcener seeking to set aside a partition effected during his minority must allege and prove that the partition is unfair or prejudicial to his interests. An alienee from the guardian of a minor has to prove necessity or benefit to sustain the alienation. But the case of a co-owner who wishes to sustain a partition between himself and a minor occupies a position midway between the above two cases.

Where in a partition between one co-owner and another minor co-owner represented by his mother, it appeared that the land allotted to the adult was twenty times the size of that allotted to the minor and was situated in a locality of growing commercial importance and the mother had not independent advice and important facts were suppressed from her knowledge:

Held, that the onus of proving that the transaction was fair or beneficial to the minor was on the co-owner and the transaction on the above facts was an unconscionable one and must be set aside.

In a partition between co-owners it is proper that each co-sharer should ordinarily be given his share in every item of property belonging to the co-owners unless the items cannot be divided either conveniently or without prejudice or without affecting their utility or commercial value.

Mahomed Ibrahim v. Haji Mahomed Ibrahim, 7 Bom. L. R. 482 at p. 485; 13 C. L. J. 322; 15 C. W. N. 552, Ashamullah v. Kali Kinkur Kur, 10 C. 675; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 453, relied on. M PARAMASIVAM PILLAI v. MINAKSHISUNDARAM PILLAI, 16 L. W. 721; (1922) M. W. N. 732; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 96 883

Mortgage—Mortgagees, prior and subsequent—Decree obtained by prior mortgagee—Subsequent mortgagee not made party, effect of—Release of property from mortgage-lien, effect of—Apportionment—Equity of redemption, whether extinguished by mortgage decree.

A decree obtained by a prior mortgagee on the basis of his mortgage is not binding on a subsequent mortgagee who was not made a party to the suit on the prior mortgage and does not affect his right of redemption.

A prior mortgagee cannot by releasing a portion of the mortgaged property from his mortgage-lien throw the entire burden of his mortgage-debt on the remaining portion so as to affect a subsequent mortgagee with whom that portion is mortgaged.

The equity of redemption in a mortgaged property is not extinguished merely by the passing of a decree on the mortgage. It subsists until the sale is held and the sale-proceeds are distributed.

Mortgage—concluded

Bibijan Bibi v. Sachi Bewah, 31 C. 863; 8 C. W. N. 684; Muhammad Musa v. Babu Aidal Singh, 65 Ind. Cas. 801; 3 P. L. T. 232; (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 92, relied on. PAT SARJUG PRASAD v. HARISHCHANDRA 661

Sale under decree of prior mortgagee—Puisne mortgagee not impleaded—Property, purchase of, by prior mortgagee—Suit for sale by puisne mortgagee—Prior mortgagee, whether necessary party.

A puisne mortgagee cannot sue successfully for a decree for sale of the mortgaged property without impleading a prior mortgagee who has already purchased the mortgaged property in execution of a decree for sale on his mortgage without impleading the puisne mortgagee. A BENARSI v. BHULLU, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 423, 227

Subrogation—Intention of parties—Subrogation by co-mortgagor.

A claim to subrogation can be sustained when there is an agreement, either express or implied, with the debtor, that the lender shall be subrogated to the rights of the mortgagee. Such an agreement may be express or may be presumed from the circumstances of the case. The question to ask in each case will be, whether the new lender was lending the money on the personal security of the borrower or on the understanding that he would be substituted in place of the former mortgagee.

Mohesh Lal v. Mohant Baiwan Das, 9 C. 961; 10 I. A. 22; 13 C. L. R. 221; 7 Ind. Jur. 382; 4 Sar. P. C. J. 424; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1291 and Gokuldas Gopaldas v. Puranmal Premsukh Das, 10 C. 1035; 11 I. A. 126; 8 Ind. Jur. 396; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 543; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 692 (P. C.), followed. O. DUTAR RAM v. LAL RANJIT SINGH, 9 O. & A. L. R. 677. 113

Muhammadan Law—Decree against one of several heirs—Remaining heirs, whether bound.

Where in a suit against one of several heirs of a deceased Muhammadan, a decree is obtained by the plaintiff, the remaining heirs are not bound by the decree, nor do their interests in their father's estate pass by sale in execution of that decree. B. LALA MIYA v. MANUBIBI, 25 Bom. L. R. 408; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 411; 47 B. 712. 246

Divorce—Delegation of power—Agreement entitling wife to divorce on husband's expulsion from community—Public policy.

Under the Muhammadan Law marriage is pure, a civil contract and an agreement that the wife should be entitled to get a divorce pronounced on the breach of certain conditions of the marriage contract is not void as being opposed to the principles or policy of that law, though a Court may not give effect to the condition if as in the case of an ordinary contract, it is unreasonable and ought not to be enforced.

A condition in a marriage contract under the Muhammadan Law that the wife will be entitled to a divorce if the husband forsakes the faith of the community to which both the husband and wife belong, or is expelled from it by its Spiritual Head is not an unreasonable condition and the wife is entitled to a divorce for a breach of the condition.

Muhammadan Law—contd.

Budrunissa Bibee v. Nufseutoollah, 15 W. R. 555; 7 B. L. R. 442, Meer Ashruf Ali v. Meer Arshad Ali, 16 W. R. 260, Ayatunnesa Beebee v. Karam Ali, 1 Ind. Cas. 513; 36 C. 23; 12 C. W. N. 907, Mahavram Ali v. Ayessa Khatoon, 31 Ind. Cas. 562; 19 C. W. N. 1226, Hamidoolla v. Faizunnessa, 8 C. 327; 10 C. L. R. 291; 6 Ind. Jur. 414; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 209, Nuruddin v. Chamuri, 3 C. L. J. 49, relied on.

Under the Muhammadan Law a husband can authorise another person to pronounce a divorce between him and his wife, and when this is done unconditionally, the person so appointed can pronounce a divorce for any reason that would entitle the husband himself to do so, with the exception of a mere whim or caprice of his own, a divorce by an agent for such a cause being an unreasonable and unjustifiable use of his powers. N. FIDA ALI v. SANAI BADAR, 6 N. L. J. 166; (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 262. 1042

Legitimacy.

The Muhammadan Law raises a strong presumption in favour of legitimacy where a child is born under a man's roof and continues to be maintained in his house without any steps being taken on the father's part to repudiate his title to legitimacy as his offspring. O. GALSTAN v. ABID HUSAIN, 9 O. & A. L. R. 282; 10 O. L. J. 263. 428

Marriage—Iddat on death—Pregnancy, effect of—Marriage during iddat, validity of.

The period prescribed by the Muhammadan Law for the Iddat of a widow, on the death of a regularly married husband, if not pregnant, is four months and ten days, and if pregnant, four months and ten days or until delivery, whichever is longest.

The marriage of a Muhammadan woman before the expiry of the period of Iddat is illegal.

Ilahtia v. Imam Din, 1 Ind. Cas. 894; 29 P. R. 1909; 34 P. W. R. 1909; 47 P. L. R. 1909, followed. L. JHANDU v. HUSAIN BIBI, 4 L. 192; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 499. 590

Option of puberty—Ignorance of marriage, effect of.

Under the Muhammadan Law a girl who is unaware of her marriage at the time when she attains puberty retains her option of repudiation until she becomes aware of the marriage, and the option is prolonged until she is acquainted with the fact that she has the right to repudiate the marriage.

Bismillah Begam v. Nur Mohammad, 63 Ind. Cas. 702; 19 A. L. J. 845; 3 U. P. L. R. (A.) 186; 4 A. 61; (1922) A. I. R. (A.) 155, relied on. L. SULTAN v. WARYAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 502. 895

Pre-emption—Several vendees—Talab-istishhad; performance of.

The Muhammadan Law of Pre-emption requires that the second demand should be made either in the presence of the vendor or the vendee or on the property sought to be pre-empted. The singular words "vendor and vendee" include the plural as so.

Muhammadan Law—contd.

Therefore, talab-i-istishhad, if it is made in the presence of the vendee, cannot, in case there are more vendees than one, be said to be properly made, unless it is made in the presence of all the vendees. A ALIMAN BEGAM v. ALI HASAN, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 355; 45 A. 449 1029

— Restitution of conjugal rights—Marriage by way of exchange—Puberty—Presumption.

The father of the defendant, a Muhammadan girl, married her to plaintiff while she was still an infant in order to procure for himself the hand of the plaintiff's sister by way of exchange. Several years after the marriage and nearly two years after defendant had attained puberty, the plaintiff sued for restitution of conjugal rights:

Held, that under the circumstances the defendant was justified in denying the plaintiff's right to restitution of conjugal rights, which could not, therefore, be enforced.

The age of puberty is generally fixed at 14 in the male and 12 in the female but according to Muhammadan Law a girl must be presumed to have reached puberty on completing the fifteenth year of her life. L NAWAB BIBI v. ALLAH DITTA

896 — Succession—Suit by heir against widow for share—Dower-debt, payment of.

The liability of the heirs of a deceased Muhammadan to pay the dower of his widow is not personal, and an heir who sues the widow for possession of his share of the estate of the deceased is liable only to pay a proportionate part of the dower-debt.

Muhammad Karim Ullah Khan v. Amani Begam, 17 A. 93; A. W. N. (1895) 16; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 385, Hamira Bibi v. Zubaida Bibi, 7 Ind. Cas. 497; 33 A. 182; 7 A. L. J. 1025, relied on.

Section 212 of the C. P. Land Revenue Act makes it clear that the right of a raiayat to hold raiayatwari land devolves as if it were land.

There is a presumption that when such land passes from father to son and from the son to his widow it passes by heirship. Where raiayatwari land forms part of the estate of a deceased person it is liable to the claim of his heirs along with the rest of his property.

Gulabrao v. Sitaram, 8 C. P. L. R. 11, distinguished. N RAHMAT BI v. BHURI BI, 6 N. L. J. 161. 959

— Waki—Dedication, proof of—Burial of saintly person, whether renders land trust property.

In the absence of proof of a dedication, express or implied, of a plot of land to public religious uses, the mere burial in it of a saintly person cannot have the effect of converting the land into trust property. L ALI MOHAMED KHAN v. ALI AKBAR KHAN, 4 L. 133 613

— Widow—Dower-debt—Inherited property—Creditor of husband, rights of—Suit by widow for dower-debt—Subsequent suit by Muhammadan Law—concl'd.

creditor of husband—Widow, whether can claim remaining portion of dower—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. II, r. 2.

Under the Muhammadan Law a dower-debt is not a secured debt but a simple debt ranking equally with other debts due from the estate of the husband.

The widow's lien for dower, under the Muhammadan Law, is the right which she has, where she has taken peaceable possession of her husband's estate, to hold that estate as against the heirs of her husband until they satisfy her claim to dower. It has no application to the share which she holds in her own right as heir of her husband, still less can it give her a right to prevent another creditor against her husband's estate from recovering the amount which is due to him by proceeding against the share of the estate which the widow has inherited.

A Muhammadan widow sued the other heirs of her husband to recover her dower-debt, but she deducted from her claim a sum proportionate to the share which she had inherited from her husband as his heir. Subsequently, a creditor of the husband who had obtained a decree against his estate sought to sell in execution of the decree the share which the widow had inherited from her husband. The widow objected that she had a charge on that share to the extent of the amount of the dower which she had excluded from her claim against the other heirs in the previous suit.

Held, (1) that the dower-debt was not a secured debt and could not, therefore, operate as a charge; (2) that the widow's claim to the portion of the dower-debt which she did not include in her suit against the other heirs was barred by the provision contained in O. II, r. 2 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Inayat Ali v. Jaitun Bibi, 32 Ind. Cas. 362; 18 O. C. 263; 2 O. L. J. 579, relied on. KANEER FATIMA BEGUM v. RAM NANDAN DEAR DUBE, 21 A. L. J. 209; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 331; 45 A. 384 977

Opium Act (I of 1878), s. 9—Punjab Excise Manual, r. 37 (d)—"Preparation" and "admixture," meaning of—Opium mixture in process of preparation, possession of—Total weight exceeding prescribed limit—Offence.

The word "preparation" in rule 37 (d) of the Punjab Excise Manual designates a completed or manufactured article and not an article in process of manufacture, the test being whether the stage has been reached at which it can be used. In the same way the word "admixture" refers also to a completed article and can only be applied to a thing after the mixing has been finished, and not earlier.

In the intermediate stages of a preparation of opium an offence is committed only if the amount of opium used in the manufacture is more than that permitted by law. L HAMIRI v. EMPEROZ, 4 L. 12; 24 Cr. L. J. 668 700

Oudh Rent Act (XXII of 1886), s. 108 (10)—
"Illegally ejected," meaning of.

The words "illegally ejected" in section 108 (10) of the Oudh Rent Act imply that the plaintiff must have been in possession, and are not applicable to a case in which he had never been in possession. O GAYA DIN SINGH v. CHAUHANJA PANDE, 9 O. & A. L. R. 87; 10 O. L. J. 178 238

— s. 108 (15)—Suit by member of joint Hindu family against another for profits, whether maintainable.

A suit for profits under section 108 (15) of the Oudh Rent Act, brought by one member of a joint Hindu family against another is maintainable, if the plaintiff is a recorded co-sharer, recorded in respect of a specific share. O SOHBAT KUAR v. RAJ DEVI, 9 O. & A. L. R. 236 688

Ownership, transfer of—Principle applicable. See RIPARTAN OWNER 727

Pardah nashin lady, transaction with—Undue influence—Independent advice—Burden of proof.

The jurisdiction of Courts of Law to afford protection to pardah nashin ladies rests on a presumption of the imperfect knowledge of the world and exposure to undue influence, making it the duty of a person taking a beneficial grant or contract from a pardah nashin lady to show that the deed was explained to her and understood by her.

Starting from the elementary principle that every person taking a document from a pardah nashin lady is bound to show affirmatively that the document is her document, that is to say, that she understood the nature of the transaction and the effect of it, Courts of Law have laid down certain rules for assisting them in determining the point; but the rules so laid down are rules of prudence rather than rules of law, and their application depends on the particular facts of each case. There is a grave risk of a failure of justice if these rules are moulded into inelastic formulas or crystallised into inflexible rules and treated as of universal application, regardless of the special facts and surrounding circumstances of the concrete case which requires adjudication.

A Court when called upon to deal with a deed executed by a pardah nashin lady must satisfy itself upon the evidence, first, that the deed was actually executed by her or by some person duly authorised by her, with a full understanding of what she was about to do; secondly, that she had full knowledge of the nature and effect of the transaction into which she is said to have entered; and thirdly, that she had independent and disinterested advice in the matter.

Cases in which these questions arise fall broadly into two groups, viz., first, cases where the person who seeks to hold the lady to the terms of her deed is one who stood towards her in a fiduciary character or in some relation of personal confidence; and, secondly, cases, where the person who seeks to enforce the deed was an absolute stranger and dealt with her at arm's length. In the former class of cases, the Court will act with great caution and will presume confidence put and influence exerted; in the latter class of cases, the Court will require the confidence and influence to be proved intrinsically. The Court must in such cases have regard to the intellectual attainments of the lady concerned and will be disinclined to set aside the deed where she is proved to have been of business habits, to have been literate and to have possessed a capacity to judge for herself.

Pardah nashin lady—concl'd.

What is meant by independent advice in this connection is that a pardah nashin lady should receive advice as to the legal effect of a particular document which she is about to execute and her position under it as compared with the position which she would occupy if she does not execute the document.

Pardah nashin ladies have a claim to special consideration where they deny on oath an effectual knowledge of documents which they are said to have executed.

Where the question is whether a pardah nashin lady has operated her civil death, which she was not bound to do, the Courts will act with great caution; and will not deprive her of her property unless compelled to do so. PAT MAN SINGH v. NAWLAKHBATI, 4 P. L. T. 335; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 492 822

Parties—Mortgage suit—Person claiming title paramount, whether proper party.

A plaintiff mortgagee cannot be allowed so to frame his suit as to draw into controversy the title of a third party who is not in any way connected with the mortgage, and who has set up a title paramount to that of the mortgagor and mortgagee.

This rule is not one of convenience merely, and where the holder of a title paramount objects to being made a party to the mortgage-suit he must be discharged, even where it would be convenient to try his title in the mortgage-suit proceedings. At the same time, where no clear and distinct claim is made in the pleadings by such a party defendant and a prayer in express terms to be dismissed from the suit not being made the Court is permitted to proceed to a trial on the merits without protest the party cannot during arguments in the First Court after a protracted trial demand that he should be dismissed from the suit. O GALSTAN v. ABID HUSSAIN, 9 O. & A. L. R. 282; 10 O. L. J. 263 428 — Suit for possession against joint holders, dismissal of—Appeal in presence of some only of respondents, whether competent—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXII, r. 4—Suit for possession against joint holders, dismissal of—Appeal, abatement of, against one respondent—Appeal, entire, whether abates.

An appeal against the dismissal of a suit for possession against several persons who hold the property jointly cannot proceed in the presence of some only of the respondents.

BEJOY GOPAL BOSE v. UMESH CHANDRA BOSE, 6 C. W. N. 196, BASIR SHEIKH v. FARLE KARIM BISWAS, 28 Ind. Cas. 793; 19 C. W. N. 290 and AZIMUDDIN MANDAL v. TARA SANKAR GHOSE, 47 Ind. Cas. 638; 28 C. L. J. 201, relied on.

An appeal against the dismissal of a suit for possession against several persons who hold the property jointly abates in its entirety, where one of the respondents dies and his legal representatives are not brought on the record within time.

Parties—concl'd.

Khuda Bakhsh v. Mathra Das, 18 Ind. Cas. 182; 62 P. R. 1913; 85 P. L. R. 1913; 89 P. W. R. 1913; Hadu Lala, 21 Ind. Cas. 951; 41 P. R. 1915; 15 P. L. R. 1914; 16 P. W. R. 1914; Inayat v. Ganga, 32 Ind. Cas. 829; 3 P. R. 1916; 260 P. W. R. 1915; Daya Singh v. Buta Singh, 38 Ind. Cas. 7; 118 P. R. 1916; 189 P. W. R. 1916; Fateh v. Bhanju Ram, 41 Ind. Cas. 739; 96 P. R. 1917; 49 P. W. R. 1917; Jamna v. Sa jit, 52 Ind. Cas. 510; 67 P. R. 1919; Sardari Lal v. Ram Lal, 57 Ind. Cas. 199; 1 L. J. 225; 1 L. J. 225; 143 P. L. R. 1920; and Fatta v. Sikandar, 56 Ind. Cas. 927; 2 L. L. J. 442; 2 U. P. L. R. (L.) 112, relied on.

Gajo Singh v. Amrit Nayain Singh, 60 Ind. Cas. 722; 2 P. L. T. 234, distinguished. L. SARDARA v. ALLAYAR, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 132. 604

Partition Act (IV of 1893), s. 4, applicability of.

Section 4 of the Partition Act refers to cases where a share in a dwelling-house belonging to an undivided family has been transferred to a person who is not a member of such family, but even where the section does not apply the principle is that on partition property must, so far as possible, be left in possession of the person in occupation. An Executing Court should have regard to the principles of equity in adjusting the mode of partition.

Basanta Kumar Ghosh v. Moti Lal Ghosh, 11 Ind. Cas. 370; 15 C. W. N. 555 Note; 6 C. L. J. 8 Note; Debi Sahai v. Tara Chand, 44 Ind. Cas. 135; 44 P. W. R. 1918; 22 P. L. R. 1918; Fateh Chand v. Bilas Rai, 34 Ind. Cas. 587; 61 P. L. R. 1916; 89 P. W. R. 1916; 96 P. R. 1916; 140 P. W. R. 1916, relied on. Pesh GULAM HAIDAR KHAN v. SARDAR ALI KHAN 748.

Penal Code (Act XLV of 1860), s. 34—Common intention—Sudden quarrel.

Where several persons go to the house of another and on a quarrel ensuing there, one of the party calls on his companions to beat the latter, and they do so, section 34 of the Penal Code applies to impute common intention to all of them even though the party did not come with the intention of beating the men in the first instance. O MIAN JAN v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 525. 61 ss. 34, 149—Riot—Common object—Liability of persons present at different times.

In cases of convictions of members of a riotous mob, for a specific act of violence, if persons found at particular points of time to be members of the mob but not shown to have taken part in the specific act, are to be held guilty of that act by force of sections 34 or 149 of the Penal Code, it must be clearly found that that act was done in furtherance of the common intention of the mob while the accused were in it or that the act was such as these accused knew to be likely to be committed in prosecution of their object.

Where the common object of a crowd innocent at first develops by degrees into something heinous and culpable and such developments are not inherent in its original common object but are merely ebullitions of spasmodic fury in a direction which none at first in the crowd could have contemplated, members originally present but absent at the time of the latter acts are not liable for these latter acts. A Court cannot presume that any and every person who is found to have been present in a riotous mob at any time or to have joined it at any stage during its activities is in law guilty of every act committed by it from the beginning to the end. In such cases the Court should consider, first, what was the original intention of the mob and which of its offences naturally were inherent or likely to have occurred in the prosecution of that intention and which were not; secondly, at what stage of the riot were the accused present and what was the temper, the intention, and the common object of the mob while they were present, what acts was it likely to go on to commit in furtherance of that common object; and thirdly, whether if they had left the mob at any stage, they could nevertheless be constructively held guilty of any of the acts committed by the mob after they had left. M. GANAPATHI SARMA v. EMPEROR, 17 L. W. 197; (1923) M. W. N. 104; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 369; 24 Cr. L. J. 531. 147 ss. 88, 92—Chaining up insane person—Good faith.

Penal Code—cont'd.

Where a person, of education and wealth and living in a town, where medical attendance can easily be procured, chains up his occasionally insane brother in an unnecessarily cruel way for over 3 months and apparently would have continued so to confine him indefinitely, if the District Judge had not interfered, he cannot be said to have acted in good faith, i.e., with due care and attention and cannot be given the benefit of sections 88 and 92 of the Penal Code. A. SHIMBHU NARAIN v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 395; 45 A. 495; 24 Cr. L. J. 638; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 546. 526 ss. 96, 97, 102, 105, 340—Right of citizen to arrest another—Apprehension of commission of offence—Common Law, principles of, whether applicable to British India.

In India, the Criminal Law has been codified in the Penal Code and in the Criminal Procedure Code, and where the Codes specifically deal with a question, Courts are not entitled to invoke the Common Law of England.

Under the Penal Code, every citizen has the right to arrest or confine another where there is genuine and reasonable apprehension of danger to person or property from that other.

The decision in In re Ramasami Iyer, 61 Ind. Cas. 652; 44 M. 913; 14 L. W. 189; 22 Cr. L. J. 412 approval but not the grounds of decision.

Per Schwabe, C. J.—Under section 340 of the Penal Code the arrest of any person who has not been guilty of any offence for which arrest without warrant is permitted is prima facie wrongful confinement of the person, but sections 96 and 97 of the Code give a right to every person to defend his own body and the body of every other person and the property of himself and every other person against certain offences and this right of private defence commences under sections 102 and 105 of the Code, when a reasonable apprehension of danger to the person or property commences. Therefore, a person who has a genuine and reasonable apprehension that to allow another to remain at large will endanger the person and property of others is entitled, to arrest or confine that other.

Penal Code—contd.

M. GOPAL NAIDU, In re, 17 L. W. 592; 44 M. L. J. 655; 32 M. L. T. 352; (1923) M. W. N. 425; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 523; 46 M. 605; 24 Cr. L. J. 599

s. 99—Right of private defence, extent of.
When exercising the right of private defence, it is difficult to expect the person to weigh "with golden scales" what maximum amount of force is necessary to keep within that right. A RADHEY v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (A) 357; 24 Cr. L. J. 735 ss. 147, 325—Unlawful assembly—Rioting and grievous hurt—Rioting not complete without hurt—Separate sentences whether can be inflicted.

Separate sentences for the offences of rioting and grievous hurt cannot legally be imposed upon a member of an unlawful assembly where the offence of rioting is not itself complete until the grievous hurt is actually inflicted, that is to say, where the causing of the hurt is itself the form of force or violence which constitutes the offence of rioting.

Bhagwan Singh v. Empress of India, 4 P. R. 1901 Cr.; 59 P. L. R. 1901, relied on. L BISHNA v. EMPEROR, (1922) A. I. R. (L) 405; 24 Cr. L. J. 629

ss. 147, 426—Damage to property of another—Mischief—Rioting.

In a Collectorate partition a certain building which was in the possession of the complainant fell to the share of one A. Subsequently, there was a compromise between A and the complainant whereby the former agreed to give up the building to the latter in exchange of a plot of land. This compromise was filed before the Collector who gave effect to it in the Collectorate partition. Complainant continued in possession of the building. Accused, a servant of A, along with others, demolished the building and ploughed up the site asserting that the building belonged to his master A and that the compromise was ineffective as no deed of exchange has been drawn up in accordance therewith.

Held, (1) that the compromise having been given effect to by the Collector in the partition the title in the building had passed to the complainant;

(2) that the accused was, therefore, guilty of mischief, and consequently of rioting.

Ram Krishna Singh v. Emperor, 66 Ind. Cas. 817; 5 P. L. T. 335; (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 197; 23 Cr. L. J. 321, distinguished. PAT TANAK CHAUDHRY v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 361; 24 Cr. L. J. 542; 1 P. L. R. 242 Cr.

s. 186—Obstructing public servant—Assault on persons summoned by public servant and in investigation.

Penal Code—contd.

A Naib-Tahsildar of Income Tax visited the village of the accused where he was told by the Lambardars that the accused kept several shops and ought to be assessed to Income Tax. A dispute, thereupon, took place between the Lambardars and the accused and, in the course of the quarrel the latter assaulted and beat the former, who, as a result, declined to render any help to the Naib-Tahsildar in his investigation:

Held, that the action of the accused did not amount to obstructing the Naib-Tahsildar in the discharge of his public functions within the meaning of section 186 of the Penal Code. L MATU RAM v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 594

s. 216, offence under, when complete—“Harbour,” meaning of.

There is no time limit for the completion of an offence under section 216 of the Penal Code, which is complete as soon as it is committed, and it is immaterial whether the evasion of apprehension of the offender lasts six hours or six years.

The word "harbour" in section 216 of the Penal Code includes "the assisting of a person in any way to evade apprehension," and is not confined to providing shelter, food and clothing. L EMPEROR v. SARWAN SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 223; 5 L. L. J. 329; 24 Cr. L. J. 659

s. 297—Trespass in place of worship—Trespass, meaning of—Sexual intercourse in mosque—Offence.

The word 'trespass' in section 297 of the Penal Code does not mean criminal trespass as defined in other parts of the Code. In this section it must be taken to have been used in its original meaning as covering any injury or offence done coupled with entry upon property.

Queen-Empress v. Subhan, 18 A. 395; A. W. N. (1896) 119; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 969, Ram Prasad v. Emperor, 12 Ind. Cas. 300; 33 A. 773; 8 A. L. J. 927; 12 Cr. L. J. 532, In re Ratna Mudali, 10 M. 126; 1 Weir 256; 3 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 839, relied on.

Where a man and a woman enter a mosque and have sexual intercourse in it they are guilty of an offence under section 297 of the Penal Code. A MAQSUD HUSAIN v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 455; 45 A. 529; 24 Cr. L. J. 711 ss. 299, 300, 326—Murder—Intention—Wound causing death—Grievous hurt.

Section 300, paragraph 2, of the Penal Code is only intended to be invoked when some injury which would not in the ordinary course of nature cause death was known to be likely to cause death by the offender in consequence of the latter being aware of some abnormal condition of the deceased.

Section 300, paragraph 4 of the Penal Code can never be invoked in a case where there was an intention of causing specific bodily injury to a particular person; it only applies to a case of dangerous action without an intention to cause specific bodily injury to any person. As this paragraph is the most difficult paragraph in the section it is very undesirable to invoke it where it is not applicable.

Penal Code—contd.

- Rama Singh v. Emperor*, 58 Ind. Cas. 463; 42 A. 302; 18 A. L. J. 224; 21 Cr. L. J. 783; 2 U. P. L. R. (A.) 407, dissented from.

The words "or with the knowledge that he is likely by such act to cause death" in section 299, of the Penal Code, must be read in the light of the language of section 300 of the Penal Code, and so read they are not applicable to a case where specific bodily injury is intentionally caused to a particular person.

In the absence of any evidence to indicate that a blow on a particular part of a person was intended to be a blow on a more vital part it must be held that the offender inflicted the blow where he intended.

The expression "I shall kill you," used by an assailant does not necessarily show an intention to commit murder.

Wounds which actually cause death must be held to have endangered life within the meaning of section 326 of the Penal Code.

Obiter.—If there was an intention to cause death and death was caused by a wound or wounds inflicted in pursuance of that intention, the case would be one of murder, even though none of the wounds which the accused inflicted were of a character which would, within the knowledge of the accused or in the ordinary course of nature, have proved fatal. O RAM ASRE v. EMPEROR, 9 O. L. J. 490; (1923) A. I. R. (O) 97; 26 O. C. 18; 24 Cr. L. J. 513 49 ss. 300, Except I, 326—Death caused by single thrust of pen-knife without premeditation—Offence—Grave and sudden provocation.

In connection with the marriage of accused with one Musammal I, a certain ceremony was to be performed on a certain date. On the day so fixed, the accused found one Musammal N taking Musammal I away from her village, and when he remonstrated with her she told him that the ceremony would not take place on that day and abused him. The accused thereupon attacked the women with a pen-knife and inflicted one injury on each in the abdomen, as the result of which Musammal N died, but Musammal I survived:

Held, (1) that the conduct of Musammal N amounted to the giving of grave and sudden provocation within the meaning of Exception I to section 300 of the Penal Code;

(2) that having regard to the facts that the accused acted without premeditation, used only a pen-knife and inflicted each woman only one injury, there was a very strong presumption that he neither intended to cause death nor such bodily injury as he knew to be likely to cause death;

(3) that, however, it must be presumed that the accused intended to cause grievous hurt to the women and was, therefore, guilty of an offence under section 326 of the Penal Code. L ALLAH DIN v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 663 695

ss. 302, 304—Death caused by violent kick—Intention—Offence.

Accused taxed his wife with consorting and flirting with other men and she replied "what does it matter;" he, thereupon, struck her on the cheek and she fell down abusing him. The accused then gave a forcible kick on the prostrate body of the woman on her side which caused her immediate death:

Penal Code—contd.

Held, though the accused could be exonerated from the intention or knowledge requisite for an offence falling under section 302 of the Penal Code, the circumstances fully justified the inference that in kicking the deceased, accused knew he was likely to cause death so as to render him guilty of an offence under the latter part of section 304 of the Code.

Empress of India v. Idu Beg, 3 A. 776; A. W. N. (1881) 132; 6 Ind. Jur. 264; 2 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 697, distinguished. M MARIMUTHU, In re, 18 I. W. 188; (1923) M. W. N. 796; 24 Cr. L. J. 721 961 ss. 304, 325—Culpable homicide—Joint attack by several persons—Offence.

Where several persons jointly attack another with laths fracturing his skull and inflicting a number of other injuries which result in his death they are all equally guilty of culpable homicide even though it may not be possible to prove which of them inflicted the fatal blow.

Emperor v. Ram Newaz, 21 Ind. Cas. 663; 35 A. 506; 11 A. L. J. 804; 14 Cr. L. J. 615, relied on. A GHULAM HUSSAIN v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 673 769

s. 331—Causing grievous hurt to extort confession—Promise to restore abducted woman—"Demand," meaning of.

The accused compelled the complainant by causing grievous hurt to him to execute an agreement to restore a woman whom he was alleged to have abducted;

Held, that the accused could not be said to have committed an offence under section 331 of the Penal Code, inasmuch as the extortion of the promise for the restoration of the woman did not amount to the extortion of a confession or information which might lead to the detection of an offence within the meaning of the section.

The "demand" referred to in section 331 of the Penal Code must be with respect to property.

Queen-Empress v. Ella Boyan, 11 M. 257; 1 Weir 336, 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 179, relied on. L MAULA BAKHSH v. EMPEROR, 5 L. L. J. 375; 24 Cr. L. J. 576 272 ss. 342, 500—Defamation—Evidence as to reputation of complainant, admissibility of—Publication, proof of—Prosecution, duty of—Examination of accused, value of.

In an action for damages for libel or slander evidence may be given in mitigation of damages to show that the plaintiff has a general bad character.

Scott v. Sampson, (1882) 8 Q. B. D. 491; 51 L. J. Q. B. 380; 46 L. T. 412; 30 W. R. 541; 46 J. P. 408, relied on.

Similarly, in a criminal prosecution where it is essential, in order to constitute the offence of defamation, that the person who makes or publishes the imputation complained of should intend to harm, or know or have reason to believe that the imputation will harm, the reputation of the person, concerning whom it is made or published, the question what reputation the complainant has is relevant.

Penal Code—contd.

Where the imputation complained of is that the complainant, an official, had compelled the accused to pay him a bribe, the accused is entitled to prove that the complainant has a notoriously bad reputation as a bribe-taker, so that the imputation made as to his having taken a bribe on the particular occasion in question, even if false, could not damage his reputation as he had none to lose. In any case, proof of the complainant's bad reputation would affect the sentence to be passed in case of a conviction.

It is the duty of the prosecution in every case to make out its case by evidence, and a gap in the evidence cannot be filled up by any statement made by the accused in his examination under section 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code.

Mohideen Abdul Kadir v. Emperor, 27 M. 238; 2 Weir 408; 1 Cr. L. J. 566, relied on.

A Magistrate is not entitled under section 342 of the Criminal Procedure Code to put questions to the accused if the prosecution has not let in evidence implicating him in the offence with which he is charged, and answers to questions put by a Magistrate in contravention of that section are not admissible in evidence against the accused.

In re Abbulla Rowthan, 30 Ind. Cas. 447; 39 M. 770; (1915) M. W. N. 413; 2 L. W. 939; 16 Cr. L. J. 623, relied on.

Where in a prosecution for defamation no evidence is let in on behalf of the prosecution to prove the making or the publishing by the accused of the imputation complained of, the accused is entitled to an acquittal, and the prosecution cannot claim to have proved their case by virtue of any admission made by the accused in his examination. L. DEVI DIAL v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 225; 4 L. 55; 2 R. W. R. 1923; 24 Cr. L. J. 693. 805

s. 363—Kidnapping—Minor voluntarily leaving home.

If a minor girl leaves her husband's home without any persuasion, inducement or blandishment held out to her, so that she gets fairly away from home and then goes to a man, the latter cannot be deemed to have infringed the law even if he does not restore her to her lawful guardian. L. LACHHI RAM v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 330; 24 Cr. L. J. 564. 260

s. 363—Kidnapping—Muhammadan minor wife—Custody of husband—Lawful custody—Removal of wife—Offence.

The husband of a Muhammadan girl who has not attained puberty is not the lawful guardian of her person under the Muhammadan Law, and in the absence of proof that he was lawfully entrusted with the care and custody of the minor, so as to make the explanation to section 361 of the Penal Code applicable, the forcible removal of such a girl from his custody is not an offence punishable under section 363 of that Code. DARAJUDDIN AKANDA v. EMPEROR, 37 C. L. J. 329; 27 C. W. N. 531; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 672; 24 Cr. L. J. 712. 986

Penal Code—contd.

ss. 379, 411—Theft—Receiving stolen property—Accused pointing out place of concealment.

The mere pointing out by an accused person of the place where stolen property is concealed, which place is not in his possession, is not of itself sufficient evidence to maintain a conviction for theft, or for dishonestly receiving stolen property. L. INDAK SINGH v. EMPEROR, 5 L. J. 87; 24 Cr. L. J. 587. 331

s. 400—Association for habitually committing dacoity—Evidence of accomplice.

When persons are charged with belonging to a gang associated for purposes of habitually committing offences, the only direct evidence that can be tendered is that of accomplices. Other witnesses can testify to association on certain isolated occasions, but the man who gives evidence of habitual association for a particular purpose must almost inevitably be an accomplice. L. CHHAPROLIA v. EMPEROR, 24 Cr. L. J. 696. 808

s. 401—Associating for habitually committing theft, requisites of—Proof.

To sustain a conviction on a charge under section 401 of the Penal Code, it is necessary to prove,—

- (1) that there existed a gang of persons;
- (2) that those persons were associated for the purpose of committing theft or robbery;
- (3) that theft or robbery was to be committed habitually; and

(4) that the accused was a member of such gang. Beja v. Emperor, 26 Ind. Cas. 625; 13 P. R. 1914 Cr.; 16 Cr. L. J. 33; 223 P. L. R. 1915; 63 P. W. R. 1913 Cr., followed.

The associating and the purpose of the association may be proved by direct evidence, such as that the accused or the accused and others met and determined to join together for the purpose of habitually committing theft or robbery. In the absence of direct evidence, the associating and the purpose of the association may be established by proof of acts from which these may reasonably be inferred.

Public Prosecutor v. Bonigiri Pottigadu, 2 Ind. Cas. 307; 32 M. 179; 9 Cr. L. J. 567; 5 M. L. T. 100, relied on.

For instance, the commission of a large number of thefts by the accused within a comparatively short time gives rise to an inference that they must have been associated for the purpose of habitually committing theft. L. PIR BUKHSH v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 327; 24 Cr. L. J. 703. 815

s. 406—Criminal breach of trust—Hire-purchase agreement—Purchaser, rights of—Transfer of article during currency of agreement—Offence, nature of.

The purchaser of an article under a hire-purchase agreement has no title to the article other than that of a hirer with a right to become the owner if he choose to pay the last instalment, and if he transfers the article to a third person before all the instalments have been paid his act amounts to the offence of criminal breach of trust under section 406 of the Penal Code. A. CADD v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 510; 24 Cr. L. J. 620; 45 A. 588; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 598. 608

Penal Code—contd.

s. 412—Retention of property obtained in dacoity—Property belonging to different owners—Separate convictions.

A person found in possession of property which he knew or had reason to believe was stolen in a dacoity, and which property is identified as belonging to different owners, cannot be convicted separately in respect of the property identified by each owner unless there is evidence to prove that it was received by him at different times or from different persons.

Queen-Empress v. Mahan, 15 A. 317; A. W. N. (1893) 101; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 913, Ishan Muchi v. Queen-Empress, 15 C. 511; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 925, followed. A SHEO CHARAN v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 389; 45 A. 485; 24 Cr. L. J. 632 (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 547 520 ss. 415, 417—Despatch of insured cover purporting to contain notes, but in fact empty, whether cheating.

Accused sent an insured cover to the complainant through the Post Office purporting to contain a number of Government Currency Notes. On receipt the cover was found to contain only a letter advising the despatch of the notes and some bits of waste paper.

Held, that the conduct of the accused did not amount to cheating inasmuch as the complainant was not subjected to any of the consequences detailed in section 415 of the Penal Code. C RAMAN BEHARI ROY v. EMPEROR, 50 C. 849; 24 Cr. L. J. 684 780

s. 426—Mischief—Removal of earth by tenant in exercise of bona fide right—Dispute of civil nature—Criminal Courts, duty of.

Criminal Courts are not meant to decide questions which are of a civil nature between a landlord and his tenants.

Accused removed some earth from a plot of land belonging to his landlord in the exercise of an alleged customary right under which all residents of the village were entitled to remove earth when they wanted it. He was convicted under section 426 of the Penal Code.

Held, that the dispute, if any, between the accused and his landlord was of a civil nature and the conviction of the accused was not, therefore, justified. A HUKAM CHAND v. EMPEROR, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 544 806

s. 441—Criminal trespass—Intention to cause annoyance.

Where, with a view to attach the property of his judgment-debtor, a decree-holder enters the premises of a third person without having any right to do so, his act amounts to an invasion of the privacy of that person which would necessarily cause great annoyance, and comes within the definition of section 441 of the Penal Code, even though his primary object may not have been to cause annoyance, as he should be deemed to have intended the natural consequences of his act.

Ram Saran v. Emperor, 12 P. R. 1906 Cr.; 4 Cr. L. J. 293; 54 P. L. R. 1907, relied on.

Penal Code—concl'd.

Bhikam Singh v. Emperor, 42 Ind. Cas. 1006; 15 A. L. J. 808; 19 Cr. L. J. 46, not followed.

Akshoy Singh v. Rameshwar Singh, 35 Ind. Cas. 515; 43 C. 1143; 20 C. W. N. 1071; 17 Cr. L. J. 339, distinguished. L. LAKHMI DAS v. EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 532; 24 Cr. L. J. 639 527

s. 498—Criminal Procedure Code (Act V of 1898), s. 403—Detaining married women—Offence, nature of—Previous acquittal, whether bars prosecution for subsequent act of detention.

The detention of a married woman is a continuing offence, and the fact that a person has been acquitted of such an offence on one occasion, does not operate as a bar to his prosecution for any subsequent act of detention. To such subsequent prosecution the provisions of section 403 of the Criminal Procedure Code do not apply.

Emperor v. Harmam Singh, 6 Ind. Cas. 497; 22 P. L. R. 1910; 11 Cr. L. J. 366; 53 P. W. R. 1910 Cr., distinguished. L. NADAR v. EMPEROR, 4 L. L. J. 535; 24 Cr. L. J. 636 524

Pleadings—Appeal—New case.

The Zemindars of a village sued for possession of a house alleging that it was a Thakardwara, where the villagers worshipped and that it had recently been unlawfully taken possession of by the defendant. The suit was dismissed on the finding that the place had long ceased to be a Thakardwara and that the defendant had been in adverse possession for over twelve years. In appeal the plaintiffs gave up their previous position and sought to urge that on the house ceasing to be a Thakardwara, it became shamilat or common property of the village and that, therefore, the possession of the defendant could not be adverse.

Held, that this amounted to setting up an entirely new case which could not be permitted to be done in appeal. L. DEOK RAM v. DULI CHAND, 5 L. L. J. 97; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 259 817 Appeal, second—Inference from facts—Question of law.

Although a decision by an Appellate Court as to the effect of the evidence produced in a case is final as to the facts, the soundness of conclusions may involve matters of law and may be questioned in second appeal. The proper legal effect of a proved fact is essentially a question of law. L. PURAN v. LALA, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 216 795

Appeal, second—Question of fact—Wagering contract.

The question whether a contract is of a wagering nature is a pure question of fact, that is to say, the party disputing that he is liable under the contract has to show that, at the time the contract was entered into, the parties did not intend to carry out the contract, but agreed to abide by the prices ruling at the due dates, when differences would be paid or received. B. GANGADAS NARAYANDAS v. JERISONDAS MANCHARAM, 25 Bom. L. R. 520 1032

construction of. See CUSTOM-SUCCESSION 808

Pleadings and proof—Custom set up not proved—
Court, whether can find portion of custom set up proved.

Semble:—Enquiries as to the existence of a custom are not on the same footing as those relating to a contract, and yet in modern times, since there has been attached to the form of pleadings less rigid adherence than in former days, a Court would have little hesitation in finding on the evidence in a case that, although an entire custom set up by a defendant does not exist, yet a material part of it does.

Eshenchunder Singh v. Shamchurn Bhutto, 11 M. L. A. 71; 6 W. R. P. C. 37; 2 Ind. Jur. (N. S.) 87; 2 Sar. P. C. J. 209; 20 E. R. 3, Bhagwan Singh v. Bhagwan Singh, 21 A. 412; 1 Bom. L. R. 311; 3 C. W. N. 454; 26 I. A. 153; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 474; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 971 (P. C.) Ward v. Shepherd, (1817) 146 E. R. 367; 3 Price 608 and Desai Ranchhodass Vitoldas v. Rawal Nathubhai Kesabhai, 21 B. 110; 11 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 75, distinguished. Pat NATHUNI RAI v. RAMESHWAR SINGH, 1 P. L. R. 289

Police Act (V of 1861), s. 4. See CRIMINAL PROCEDURE CODE, 1898, s. 10

Possession, transfer of, effect of. See TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, ss. 6, 43

Practice—Criminal appeal—Absence of appellant—Procedure.

When once a criminal appeal has been admitted and a date fixed for its hearing, the Appellate Court is bound to peruse the record and to decide the appeal judicially. It cannot dismiss it for default of appearance.

Queen-Empress v. Pohpi, 13 A. 171; A. W. N. (1891) 48; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 107 (F. B.), followed. A RAM CHANDAR v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 100; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 175; 24 Cr. L. J. 662

Notes of arguments by Pleaders—Court, duty of.

When a case has been fully argued before a Judge, it ought not to be necessary for the Pleaders to submit notes of their arguments. It is the duty of the Judge to take such notes of the arguments as he thinks fit when they are being submitted to the Court; and, if he feels that he has not fully appreciated any part of the arguments which have been submitted to him, it is open to him to call the parties before him so that any further argument may be presented in open Court in the presence of the other side. If it becomes necessary, as in some exceptional case it may become necessary, for the Judge either to require or to receive notes of the Pleader's arguments, such notes ought not to be submitted to the Judge by the Pleader on one side, without first submitting the notes to the Pleader on the other side. If in any case a Pleader desires to submit to the Court the notes of his arguments or of any further argument, which he thinks in the interest of his clients ought to be put before the Court, he should submit them to the Pleader on the other side, so that the latter may have an opportunity of making any remarks or any criticism in respect thereof. But in no case should the arguments be submitted in the form of a draft judgment. C AMJAD ALI v. SURESH RANJAN PAL, 37 C. L. J. 42

Pre-emption—Death of pre-emptor after decree, effect of—Sale of land of value of Rs. 100 by unregistered deed, whether liable to pre-emption—Registration Act (XVI of 1908), ss. 17, 49—Evidence Act (I of 1872), ss. 58, 91.

A pre-emption decree cannot be affected by anything which happens after it is made.

Niaz Ali v. Muhammad Ramzan, 37 Ind. Cas. 227; 130 P. R. 1916; 193 P. W. R. 1916, Thamman Singh v. Santa, 53 Ind. Cas. 457; 119 P. R. 1919; 80 P. L. R. 1920 and Atma Singh v. Hem Raj Shah, 59 Ind. Cas. 939, followed.

After a decree had been passed in a pre-emption suit the pre-emptor died and the original vendor was his only legal representative:

Held, that this did not affect the decree which had been passed and did not involve the dismissal of the suit on appeal.

In an appeal against a pre-emption decree the Appellate Court has only to see whether the decree was correct when it was passed.

In the Punjab the law does not require a sale of immovable property of the value of Rs. 100 or upwards to be by a registered instrument, but merely prevents an unregistered deed of sale for Rs. 100 or upwards from affecting the property dealt with or from being used as evidence to affect it.

A sale of immovable property of the value of Rs. 100 or upwards effected by means of an unregistered deed of sale is, nevertheless, a sale and is liable to pre-emption.

Janki v. Girjadar, 7 A. 482; A. W. N. (1885) 97; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 749 (F. B.), relied on.

In a suit to pre-empt a sale of land sold for Rs. 100, the sale was admitted in the pleadings and the vendee subsequently produced an unregistered deed of sale:

Held, that the sale having been admitted in the pleadings no further proof of it was required under section 58 of the Evidence Act, and the provisions of section 91 of the Act could not, therefore, come into play. L. GANGA SINGH v. BHAN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 310

Decree directing payment of certain sum and costs—Failure to pay costs, effect of—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 148, applicability of, to pre-emption decrees.

It is the duty of the decree-holder in a pre-emption suit to take all precautions and make sure that the decree passed in his favour is strictly complied with.

Kanhaya Lal v. Mohammad Shafi Khan, 18 Ind. Cas. 600; 141 P. L. R. 1913; 3 P. W. R. 1913, followed.

Section 148 of the Civil Procedure Code is not applicable to decrees in pre-emption suits.

Suranjay Singh v. Rambahal Lal, 21 Ind. Cas. 583; 35 A. 582; 11 A. L. J. 959, relied on.

A decree in a pre-emption suit directed the pre-emptor to pay into Court a certain sum of money together with the costs of the suit within a certain time. The pre-emptor paid in the amount specified in the decree but failed to pay in the costs within the time fixed:

Held, (1) that the decree being perfectly clear, the pre-emptor was not entitled to any extension of time for payments of the costs;

Pre-emption—concl.

(2) that, having failed to comply with the decree, his suit must stand dismissed.

Kanhaya Lal v. Mohammad Shafi Khan, 18 Ind. Cas. 600; 141 P. L. R. 1913; 3 P. W. R. 1913, distinguished. L. KHAN MUHAMMAD v. AHMAN 891

— Pre-emptor, title of, whether relates back to date of sale—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XX, r. 14.

There is nothing in the Punjab Pre-emption Act, which declares that a pre-emptor's title vests at the date of the sale or which modifies the explicit direction contained in O. XX, r. 14 of the Civil Procedure Code that Courts shall declare the title of the pre-emptor to be deemed to accrue from the date of payment into Court of the purchase-money after decree.

A successful pre-emptor is vested with the rights of the vendee whom he dislodges, not from the date of the sale but from the date on which he enforces his rights, that is, from the date on which he satisfies the conditions of the decree and brings it into operation.

Kehr Singh v. Mahman Singh, 25 P. R. 1908; 128 P. L. R. 1908; 51 P. W. R. 1908, dissented from.

L. Beli Ram v. Hari Chand, 59 Ind. Cas. 744; 128 P. W. R. 1921; 3 L. L. J. 205, Deonandan Prasad Singh v. Ramdhari Chowdhuri, 39 Ind. Cas. 958; 44 C. 675; 32 M. L. J. 459; 1 P. L. W. 527; 15 A. L. J. 375; 21 C. W. N. 786; 25 C. L. J. 573; 19 Bom. L. R. 437; 6 L. W. 65; (1917) M. W. N. 470 and 811; 22 M. L. T. 196; 44 I. A. 80 (P. C.), followed. L. HADAYAT ULLAH v. GHULAM MUHAMMAD BEG, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 529. 444

— Substitution, date of.

A successful pre-emptor is vested with the rights of the vendee whom he dislodges not from the date of the sale but from the date when he enforces his rights, that is, from the date on which he satisfies the conditions of his decree and brings it into operation. No doubt he is substituted for the vendee in all the rights that were transferred by the sale, but the process of substitution does not take place on any date prior to the satisfaction by the pre-emptor of the conditions on which his decree has been granted to him.

Hakam Singh v. Indar, 40 P. R. 1902, dissented from.

A suit to pre-empt on the ground of possession of other property is open only to persons who at the time of sale have an established title in that property. L. MUHAMMAD AKRAM KHAN v. MUHAMMAD AZIM, 4 L. 13; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 451. 318

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act (XV of 1882), s. 48—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXI, r. 98—Execution of ejectment decree—Removal of obstruction—Small Cause Court, power of.

Under section 48 of the Presidency Small Cause Courts Act, a Small Cause Court has jurisdiction in execution of a decree in ejectment, to act under O. XXI, r. 98 of the Civil Procedure Code and remove any improper obstruction to the carrying out of its own order.

Presidency Small Cause Courts Act—concl.

Baggiammal v. Appadurai Gramany, 6 Ind. Cas. 722; 7 M. L. T. 385, followed. M. MUHAMMAD GHOUSE v. MOHIDEEN, 18 L. W. 135; 45 M. L. J. 66; (1923) M. W. N. 82. 985

Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (III of 1909), s. 56—Dominant motive to avoid bankruptcy—Fraudulent preference—Procedure.

To constitute fraudulent preference under section 56 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act, the giving of preference to a particular creditor must have been the dominant view of the debtor. Where the dominant motive of the insolvent was to keep a particular creditor quiet and avoid bankruptcy altogether and the desire to prefer and the giving of preference were incidental only, the obligation incurred by the debtor is lawful and the transaction does not offend against the Laws of Bankruptcy and must be upheld.

Sharp v. Jackson, (1899) App. Cas. 419; 68 L. J. Q. B. 866; 80 L. T. 841; 6 Manson 264; 15 T. L. R. 418, Official Assignee of Madras v. T. B. Mehta & Sons, 49 Ind. Cas. 968; 42 M. 510; 36 M. L. J. 190; 25 M. L. T. 265; (1919) M. W. N. 293, followed.

In a motion by the Official Assignee to set aside a transaction of the debtor as being a fraudulent preference, the onus of proof is on the Official Assignee to make out his case before the Garnishee can be called upon to meet it. M. SAMU PATTAR v. WILSON, 18 L. W. 696. 532

Press and Registration of Books Act (XXV of 1867), ss. 4, 14—False statement in making declaration, what constitutes.

A false statement in a declaration which is not made and subscribed before a Magistrate as provided by section 4 of the Press and Registration of Books Act, cannot be said to have been made "in making a declaration" within the meaning of section 14 of the Act.

The mere presentation of a declaration to a Magistrate is not equivalent to making it before him within the meaning of section 4 of the Act. Therefore, it is no offence to merely present a false written statement or declaration to a Magistrate. L. EMPEROR v. INAYAT, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 440; 24 Cr. L. J. 657. 689

Principal and surety—Decree against principal only—Appeal—Execution of decree—Limitation terminus a quo.

Where in a suit against a principal and his surety a decree is passed against the principal only, and the plaintiff appeals against that part of the decree exonerating the surety and the appeal is dismissed, the decree to be executed is the decree of the Trial Court, and limitation, for the purpose of execution, runs from the date that decree was passed. B. KALYANCHAND LALCHAND v. BHOGILAL JAYACHAND, 25 Bom. L. R. 371; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 400. 310

Prior and subsequent purchaser—Prior purchase, notice of—Burden of proof—Registration—Notice.

Where a prior purchaser seeks to dispossess a subsequent purchaser the onus is upon him to prove that the latter had notice of the prior purchase—mere registration by itself is no notice.

Prior and subsequent purchaser—contd.

Hemlital Motilal v. Vasudeo Ganesh, 16 Ind. Cas. 680; 36 B. & 446; 14 Bom. L. R. 634, distinguished. B PEERKHA LALKHA v. BAPU KASHIBA MALI, 25 Bom. L. R. 375; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 410. 231

Provincial Insolvency Act (III of 1907), ss. 2 (e), 16 (2), (6), 38—Right to receive debt, whether property—Payment of debt to insolvent, before order of adjudication, effect of.

A right to receive a debt is property within the meaning of section 2 (e) of the Provincial Insolvency Act and vests in the Receiver under section 16 (2) of the Act from the date of the application by the insolvent to be adjudged an insolvent.

The provisions of section 16 of the Provincial Insolvency Act as to the vesting in the Receiver of the insolvent's property are controlled by those of section 38 of the Act and by virtue of the provisions of the latter section a debt vested in the Receiver may be discharged by a bona fide payment, without notice, made to the insolvent after the date of the application for being adjudged an insolvent and before the date of the adjudication order.

Section 38 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is meant to protect debtors who have paid their debts to their creditors without knowledge of the latter's insolvency. N ONKARSA v. BRIDI CHAND, 19 N. L. R. 144; 6 N. L. J. 213; (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 290. 1037 ss. 16 (2) (b), 45 (2)—Execution of decree against insolvent—Leave of Court, whether essential.

Section 45 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act of 1907 gives a release to the insolvent at the time of his discharge, from debts entered in the schedule. But after adjudication and before discharge, section 16 (2) (b) of the Act absolutely prohibits all creditors, whether on the schedule or not, from taking execution proceedings against the person and property of the insolvent except with the leave of the Court. M NATESA CHETTIAR v. ANNAMALAI CHETTIAR, 17 L. W. 319; 32 M. L. T. 157; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 487. 213 Provincial Insolvency Act (V of 1920), ss. 10, 24 (1) (a), proviso, 35—Jurisdiction of District Court—Residence, what amounts to—"Unable to pay his debts," meaning of.

A debtor who remains within the limits of the jurisdiction of a District Court is resident therein and is entitled to present an application to that Court to adjudicate him an insolvent although he has no permanent or continuous residence within the District and may have even occasionally gone outside the District and returned.

Where all the properties of a debtor are under attachment to a creditor and his petition for permission to execute a private sale of the properties is negatived, the mere fact that there is an apparent surplus of assets over the gross debts does not prove that the debtor is not unable to pay his debts within the meaning of section 10 of the Provincial Insolvency Act.

Provincial Insolvency Act—contd.

Under the proviso to section 24 (1) (a) of the Provincial Insolvency Act, a debtor is required to furnish only prima facie proof of the fact that he is unable to pay his debts for the purpose of being adjudicated insolvent. M LAKSHMINARAYANA AIYAR v. SUBRAMANIYA AIYAR, (1923) M. W. N. 328; 45 M. L. J. 119; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 585. 74 ss. 28 (5), 66 (2)—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 60 (1) (i) (iii)—Insolvent—Half-salary divisible amongst creditors—Allowance to insolvent.

Where the property of an insolvent which becomes divisible amongst the creditors is his half-salary, the other half being protected by section 28 (5) of the Provincial Insolvency Act and section 60 (1) (i) (iii) of the Civil Procedure Code, read together, it is open to the Insolvency Court under section 66 (2) of the Insolvency Act to make, out of the divisible half of his salary, such an allowance as it may think just to the insolvent for the support of himself and his family.

Debi Prasad v. J. A. H. Lewis, 43 Ind. Cas. 984; 40 A. 213; 16 A. L. J. 107, dissented from. A. RADHA MOHAN v. M. C. WHITE, 21 A. L. J. 216; 45 A. 364; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 466. 413 ss. 66, 68—Sale held by Receiver—Court, whether can interfere.

The Court's power to interfere with a sale held by the Official Receiver under the Provincial Insolvency Act is not limited to cases where there has been some mala fides on the part of the Receiver, or purchaser. Where the action of the Receiver is irregular and has prejudiced the general interests of creditors, the Court can set aside the Receiver's order.

Thirwenkatachariar v. Thangayi Ammal, 29 Ind. Cas. 294; 39 M. 479; 17 M. T. 432, 29 M. L. J. 755, followed.

Ex parte Lloyd, In re Peters, (1883) 47 L. T. 64, distinguished. M RAMABHADRA CHETTY v. RAMASAMI CHETTY, 4 M. L. J. 284; 17 L. W. 622; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 350. 374

s. 68—Application to Court against Receiver, dismissal of—Regular suit, maintainability of.

A person who claims rights to property, taken possession of by the Official Receiver as belonging to an insolvent, and whose claim is disallowed by the Insolvency Court, may bring a regular suit to establish his rights.

Duni Chand v. Muhammad Hussain, 40 Ind. Cas. 220, 22 P. R. 1917; 14 P. W. R. 1917, followed. L SHANCHI KHAN v. KARAM CHAND, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 150. 705

ss. 69, 70, 75—Appeal from conviction under s. 69, whether civil or criminal.

An appeal heard by the Judicial Commissioner under section 75 of the Provincial Insolvency Act, against an order passed by a District Judge under section 69 of the Act is a first civil appeal heard in the exercise of the civil jurisdiction of the Court. Pesh GULAM HAIDAR v. EMPEROR. 129

Provincial Small Cause Courts Act (IX of 1887), s.

17—Ex parte decree, application to set aside—Court, power of, to determine nature of security.

Upon an application made to a Small Cause Court to set aside an ex parte decree, it is open to the Court to direct whether the security should be paid in cash, or in property, and if it gives a direction one way or the other, a reasonable time must be allowed for carrying out that direction. O SITA RAM v. LALTA, 9 O. & A. L. R. 67 219

s. 25—Decision on point of fact—Revision.

Small Cause Courts have been given very wide powers with regard to decisions on questions of fact. But in cases where their findings of fact are based on or involve assumptions or inferences which there is nothing in fact or probability to support, or are not justified by sufficient evidence, or are opposed to the evidence on record or are based on meagre or little evidence or on flagrant misinterpretation or disregard of evidence, or if injustice would otherwise be done, the High Court has power to interfere in revision. N PADAMSI v. SHESHRAO, 19 N. L. R. 72; (1923) A. I. R. (N) 292 1055

ss. 27, 32 (2)—Suit instituted in Court not invested with small cause powers—Trial and decision after Court invested with such powers—Appeal, whether competent.

In order to bar an appeal against a decree in a suit of the nature of a small cause it is necessary that the Judge trying the case should, before the institution of the suit, have been invested with Small Cause Court jurisdiction entitling him to hear the particular suit.

Sambhu Dhanaji v. Ram Vitlu, 28 B. 244; 5 Bom. L. R. 1008, followed.

A suit of the nature of a small cause was instituted in the Court of a Sub-Judge who was not invested with Small Cause Court powers. Before the suit came on for trial the Sub-Judge was invested with such powers, but he tried the suit as a regular suit and decided it:

Held, that an appeal lay from the decree of the Sub-Judge inasmuch as under clause (2) of section 32 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, the Sub-Judge could not have tried the suit as a small cause, his Small Cause Court powers having been conferred upon him after the suit was instituted. B VENKATRAMAN RAMA HEGDE KANNI v. BABURAYA VENKATESH PRABHU, 25 Bom. L. R. 516 1020

Sch. II, Art. 8—Demand note for rent, suit on—Jurisdiction of Court of Small Causes.

A suit based on a demand note executed for the satisfaction of rent for a field is triable by a Court of Small Causes. N PURAN LAL v. CHIRKUTYA, (1923) A. I. R. (N) 285 7

Art. 13—Weightment dues, suit for—Jurisdiction of Court of Small Causes.

A suit to recover weightment charges due under a contract entered into between the parties is not excluded from the jurisdiction of a Court of Small Causes, and if the valuation is below Rs. 500 a second appeal will not lie. A COLLECTOR OF Provincial Small Cause Courts Act—concl'd.

BULANDSHAHR v. RAM SARUP, 21 A. L. J. 312; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 420 217

Sch. II, Art. 15—Suit to recover balance of purchase-money, whether suit for specific performance of contract.

A suit by a vendor for recovery of the balance of purchase-money due from the vendee is not a suit for specific performance of a contract within the meaning of Art. 15 of Schedule II of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act and is not excluded from the cognisance of a Small Cause Court.

Sheik Galim v. Sadarjan Bibi, 29 Ind. Cas. 611; 43 C. 59; 21 C. L. J. 532; 19 C. W. N. 1332; distinguished. L DEUMAN v. RAMJI MAI 125

Art. 35, cls. (i) (ii)—Wrongful removal of trees—Suit for compensation—Jurisdiction.

Cutting down of trees belonging to other persons and misappropriating them is an offence against property punishable under Chapter XVII of the Penal Code and a claim for compensation for trees so cut is not maintainable in a Small Cause Court. A DUKHI v. DHANNI MISIR, 21 A. L. J. 357; (1923) A. I. R. (A) 543 956

Art. 35 (II). See LIMITATION ACT, 1908, SCH. I, ARTS. 48, 49 33

Public Gambling Act (III of 1867), ss. 3, 4—

Search warrant, not specifying place to be searched, legality of—Magistrate issuing warrant, whether competent to try case—Evidence Act (I of 1872), s. 32—Co-accused in separate case, whether can be called as defence witness.

A Magistrate signed the printed form of a warrant for the search of a house under the Gambling Act and gave it to a Sub-Inspector of Police. The place to be searched was not specified in the body of the warrant when the Magistrate signed it, but the Sub-Inspector subsequently noted down at the bottom of the warrant the boundaries of the house to be searched:

Held, that as the warrant when signed by the Magistrate was not for the search of any particular place it was illegal.

Hargobind v. Emperor, 17 Ind. Cas. 576; 35 A. 1; 10 A. L. J. 355; 13 Cr. L. J. 832 and Benwari v. Queen-Empress, 11 P. R. 1895 Cr. relied on.

A Magistrate issuing a search warrant under the Gambling Act should not himself try any case which results from the search as the accused persons have the right to examine the Magistrate as a witness as to the circumstances under which the warrant was issued.

Petitioner who was being tried in separate trials for offences under sections 3 and 4 of the Public Gambling Act wished to examine a co-accused in the case under section 4 as his defence witness in the case under section 3. The Magistrate refused to permit this:

Held, that section 132 of the Evidence Act provided sufficient protection for the witness in such a case, and he could not be excused from appearing in the witness-box. L RAJA RAM v. EMPEROR 24 Cr. L. J. 633 521

Public Gambling Act—contd.

ss. 5, 6—Warrant under s. 5—Boundaries of house not given—Warrant not addressed to definite Police Officer—Warrant, whether legal.

A warrant issued under section 5 of the Public Gambling Act, which omits to describe the boundaries of the house to be searched and which is not addressed to any definite Police Officer, is not a legal warrant, and the presumption authorised by section 6 of that Act cannot be raised. A. JAMNA PRASAD v. EMPEROR, 21 A. L. J. 602; 9 O. & A. L. R. (A) 611; 24 Cr. L. J. 630. 518

Punjab Courts Act (VI of 1918), s. 41 (3)—Error of law or procedure in deciding question of custom—Burden of proof, wrong allocation of—Appeal, second—Certificate whether necessary.

The words "notwithstanding anything in sub-section (1) of this section," with which sub-section (3) of section 41 of the Punjab Courts Act commences, preclude a Court of second appeal, in the absence of a certificate, from going into the question whether the first Appellate Court has erred in law or procedure in deciding a question of custom.

Nur Ali v. Bahawal, 31 Ind. Cas. 386; 34 P. R. 1916; 54 P. W. R. 1916, distinguished.

A second appeal on a question of custom cannot be entertained in the absence of a certificate, on the ground that the onus probandi was wrongly placed by the lower Appellate Court.

Arora v. Imam Baksh, 23 Ind. Cas. 352; 4 P. W. R. 1914; 28 P. L. R. 1914, followed. L. LEHNA SINGH v. JAGAT RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 377. 524

s. 41 (3)—Pre-emption suit—Appeal, second—Certificate, when not necessary—Punjab Pre-emption Act (I of 1913), s. 7.

Where a Court of first appeal fails to go into the question of custom and a second appeal is preferred with the object of having the question of custom tried, no certificate under section 41 (3) of the Punjab Courts Act is necessary for the validity of the appeal. L. PARMESHWARI DAS v. PARAS RAM. I Punjab Excise Act (I of 1914), s. 24 (3)—Excise Manual, Vol. I, s. 407—Possession of country liquor outside licensed premises—Licenseholder, right of.

Section 407 of Vol. I of the Excise Manual does not override the provisions of section 24 (3) of the Excise Act. It empowers a licenseholder to possess country liquor to any extent on the licensed premises, but does not entitle him to possess more than the ordinary prescribed amount of one seer elsewhere. L. EMPEROR v. PURAN SINGH, 4 L. 10; 4 P. W. R. 1923; 24 Cr. L. J. 667. 699

Punjab Excise Manual, r. 37 (d)—"Preparation" and "admixture," meaning of. See OPTUM ACT, 1878, s. 9 700

Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1887), s. 121. See ADVERSE POSSESSION 685

s. 158 (2) (vi). See PUNJAB TENANCY ACT, 1887, s. 77 (3) 673

Punjab Municipal Act (III of 1911), ss. 3 (13) (a), 189, 193—Street—"Accessible to the public," meaning of—Sanction to build—Condition regulating line of frontage, when can be imposed.

The expression "accessible to the public" in section 3 (13) (a) of the Punjab Municipal Act, means open to all the public in fact, whether by right or permission.

The power to restrict the right of free building by private owners upon private land is conferred upon Municipalities by section 189 of the Punjab Municipal Act.

Under that section a Municipal Committee has no power to enforce conditions regulating the line of frontage unless the intended building abuts on a street.

Under section 193 of the Punjab Municipal Act, a Municipal Committee may refuse permission to build at all; but if permission is granted it can only impose such conditions as are provided for in sub-section (3) of section 189 of the Act. L. ABUL HASAN KHAN v. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF DELHI, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 417. 725 ss. 169, 170, 173—Public street—Lease of portion—Municipality, right of.

When a street has vested in a Municipal Committee, it only has the power to exercise rights over it in order to maintain it as a street and for purposes of public use as such. It has no right to interfere with the enjoyment of the right of way by the public by letting out a portion of it to a particular individual for a private purpose.

Sundaram Ayyar v. Municipal Council of Madurai, 25 M. 635; 12 M. L. J. 37, relied on. L. MUNICIPAL COMMITTEE OF MULTAN v. TAHIL RAM, 5 L. L. J. 26; (1923) A. I. R. (L) 272. 592

s. 175—Notice to remove structure—Failure to tender compensation, effect of.

The language of section 175 of the Punjab Municipal Act indicates that the requisition open to the Municipality is subject to the payment of compensation, that is, the tender of compensation must accompany the notice. This procedure affords the person concerned an opportunity of appealing to the Deputy Commissioner on the subject of the reasonableness of the tender and also for securing an assessment of the value of the obstruction before it ceases to exist.

A notice under section 175 of the Punjab Municipal Act calling upon a person to remove a structure unaccompanied with the tender of compensation is bad. L. GHASITA v. EMPEROR, 4 L. 158. 813

s. 242 (1) (a). Notification under—Profession Tax—Naib Tahsildar, whether follows profession.

A public servant, such as a Tahsildar or a Naib Tahsildar, is appointed to, and holds, an office, and does not carry on a profession or calling such as would bring him within the purview of the Notification of the Punjab Government under section 242 (1) (a) of the Punjab Municipal Act imposing a Profession Tax. L. PALA RAM v. NOTIFIED AREA COMMITTEE, KOT ADDU, DISTRICT MUZAFFARGARH, 4 L. 256. 785

Punjab Pre-emption Act (II of 1905), s. 3 (2) (3)—Town—Rural area included within Punjab Pre-emption Act—1905—contd.

Municipality, whether town—Presumption—Bhanamari village, whether part of Peshawar Town.

- An administrative act including a rural area within the limits of a Municipality does not necessarily operate to destroy the pre-existing character of the area and such administrative action is not in itself sufficient to make the area so included a sub-division of a town for the purposes of pre-emption.

At the same time, the inclusion of a rural area within the Municipal limits of a town is strong evidence of the urban character of that area.

Any portion of an agricultural village may lose its character as such and become, by the force of circumstances, a suburb of a town, and a suburb of this nature is to be regarded as a sub-division of a town for purposes of pre-emption.

Umar Bakhsh v. Abdul Karim, 70 P. R. 1898, Abdulla v. Punnu Ram, 42 P. R. 1906; 85 P. L. R. 1907; 79 P. W. R. 1906 and Allah Ditta v. Muhammad Nazir, 7 Ind. Cas. 716; 84 P. R. 1910, 102 P. W. R. 1910, relied on.

The village of Bhanamari is a sub-division of the town of Peshawar for the purposes of the Punjab Pre-emption Act. Pesh SHER ALI v. KALANDAR KHAN 200

— s. 3 (2) (3)—Urban immovable property and village immovable property—Town, what is—Pre-emption, origin of.

In order to determine whether property in dispute in a pre-emption suit is village or urban immovable property, the Court has to deal not with the mauza or revenue area as a whole unit, but with the character of the particular land in suit.

Muhammad Din v. Shah Din, 90 P. R. 1907; 151 P. W. R. 1907, relied on.

Areas which were formerly agricultural may be absorbed in towns and losing all their former characteristics become suburbs indistinguishable in character from the town itself.

It is not necessary to have a gradual development in order to make an area become part of a town; an entirely new suburb may suddenly spring up by the constitution of a block of buildings.

Allah Ditta v. Muhammad Nazir, 7 Ind. Cas. 716; 84 P. R. 1910; 102 P. W. R. 1910, relied on.

The inclusion of an area within Municipal limits is a highly important factor to be taken into account in determining whether that area is within a town or within a village.

The law of pre-emption is derived from three sources, Muhammadan Law, the necessities of the existence of racial communities and public and private convenience. One of the main reasons for the acceptance of a pre-emptive right is the vital necessity felt by every community, when it first becomes homogeneous, to preserve to itself its essential homogeneity. To allow landed estate to pass into the hands of strangers is not only to deprive the community of a valuable asset into which its communal right has not been entirely abandoned, but also to entail the dissolution of its internal organisation by the engrafting of strangers upon the common body. For these reasons the first right of pre-emption in the case of agricultural land or of the sites of agricultural villages accrues primarily to the relatives of the original owner and after them to other members of the proprietary body.

Punjab Pre-emption Act—1905—contd.

On the other hand, pre-emption in towns, though the principle may have originally been evolved from Muhammadan Law, depends at the present time purely on the consideration of public and private decency and convenience; here it is not relationship but contiguity which is of prime importance.

In order to determine whether any specified area is to be considered as part of a town or part of a village, the test to be applied is whether such an area has retained any of its original characteristics which would be consistent with the organisation of a society to whom the principles of pre-emption among agricultural communities would apply, or whether, on the other hand, it is one to which the principles of town pre-emption are applicable. Pesh MUHAMMAD ALI KHAN v. MAKHAN SINGH 855

— s. 4—Pre-emption right, nature of—Qualification for pre-emption whether must be retained till date of suit.

The right of pre-emption in the Punjab is given by the Punjab Pre-emption Act, which provides that on a sale being effected a right of pre-emption arises in favour of certain classes of persons.

Dictum of Shah Din, J. in Dhanna Singh v. Gurbakhsh Singh, 4 Ind. Cas. 337; 91 P. R. 1909 161 P. W. R. 1909; 148 P. L. R. 1909 (F. B.) followed.

A person, therefore, who is entitled to pre-empt a sale on the date of the sale is entitled to enforce his right notwithstanding the fact that on the date on which he brings the pre-emption suit he has lost the qualification which gave him his right.

Sanwal Das v. Gur Parshad, 4 Ind. Cas. 179; 90 P. R. 1909; 159 P. W. R. 1909; 147 P. L. R. 1909, Dhanna Singh v. Gurbakhsh Singh, 4 Ind. Cas. 337; 91 P. R. 1909; 161 P. W. R. 1909; 148 P. L. R. 1909 (F. B.) and Hira v. Bansilal, 52 Ind. Cas. 557; 90 P. R. 1919; 27 P. W. R. 1919, followed.

Fateh Singh v. Sant Singh, 27 Ind. Cas. 29; 43 P. R. 1915; 47 P. W. R. 1915; 125 P. L. R. 1915, dissented from.

Janki Prasad v. Ishar Das, 21 A. 374; A. W. N. (1899) 126; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 947, distinguished. L. AZIM KHAN v. SEWA RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 458 797

— s. 12 (a), as amended by N.-W. F. P. Regulation (I of 1906)—“By right of blood relationship,” “in order of succession,” meaning of—Persons entitled to pre-empt.

The law of pre-emption obtaining in the North-West Frontier Province is one which deprives a person claiming to succeed by Will or other form of artificially regulated succession from putting forward pre-emption rights under section 12 (a) of the Punjab Pre-emption Act as amended by the North-West Frontier Province Regulation, I of 1906, but it includes all cases where the preemptor would be entitled to succeed to the property sold by right of blood relationship, whether such relationship is with the vendor himself, or with the natural heirs of the vendor.

Punjab Pre-emption Act—1905—concld.

Clause (a) of section 12 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act assumes by its concluding words "in order of succession", that any person who would be entitled ultimately to inherit, however remote such inheritance might be, and however many preferential heirs might be in existence, has a right of pre-emption under the clause.

Pesh HABIB GUL v. SHAHDAD KHAN

594

Punjab Pre-emption Act (1 of 1913)—Building mainly used as residence and part as workshop—"Shop," meaning of.

The mere fact that a part of a building, which is mainly used as a residence, is used as a tailor's workshop, would not convert the whole of it into a shop.

The word "shop" denotes a building primarily used for the retail sale of goods. L. SANT SINGH v. GOBIND RAM, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 209

454

s. 3 (5) (a)—Guardians and Wards Act (VIII of 1890), s. 29—Sale by guardian of minor with sanction of Court, whether liable to pre-emption.

Section 29 of the Guardians and Wards Act prohibits the sale by a guardian of the property of a ward without permission of the Court. The Court, under this section, makes no order for sale, but merely authorises a transaction which would otherwise not be binding upon the minor. The sale is in fact a transaction inter partes approved of by the Court, and the Court, having approved of the contemplated sale, has no further say in the matter.

Such a sale cannot be described as one made in execution of an order of a Civil Court within the meaning of section 3 (5) (a) of the Punjab Pre-emption Act, and is not, therefore, exempted from liability to the exercise of the right of pre-emption. L. SALIG RAM v. BARKAT ALI, 4 L. 164

442

s. 7. See PUNJAB COURTS ACT, 1918, s. 41. (3).s. 7—Pre-emption—Custom—Mohalla Bagrian, of Katthal in Karnal District—Proof of custom.

Where a town is divided into sub-divisions the pre-emptor must prove affirmatively the existence of the custom of pre-emption in the particular sub-division in which the property in dispute is situate and the onus is not discharged by proof of the custom in the neighbouring sub-divisions.

Mela Ram v. Bando, 12 Ind. Cas. 859; 59 P. R. 1911; 198 P. W. R. 1911; 48 P. L. R. 1912; Prabh Dial v. Bhikhoo Mal, 61 Ind. Cas. 822; 3 L. L. J. 387, followed.

A judgment based upon a compromise or confession though of some probative force, cannot be placed on the same footing as one in which after contest a custom is held to be proved or negatived.

Imperial Oil Soap and General Mills Co., Limited, Delhi v. M. Masbah-ud-din, 61 Ind. Cas. 325; 2 L. 83, followed.

Punjab Pre-emption Act—1913—concld.

The custom of pre-emption* does not exist in Mohalla Bagrian of the town of Katthal in the Karnal District. L. LEKH RAY v. INDER MAL, 4 L. 176

658

s. 16—"Owner," meaning of.

The word "owner" as used in section 16 of the Punjab Pre-emption Act does not mean a person who is not in danger of losing his ownership right at the instance of a pre-emptor. L. HADAYAT ULLAH v. GHULAM MUHAMMAD BEG, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 529

444

s. 16 (secondly)—"Structure," meaning of.

The owner of a "building or other structure" on a site, within the meaning of section 16 (secondly) of the Punjab Pre-emption Act, is like a co-owner in the property sold and, therefore, his right of pre-emption is inferior only to a co-sharer therein.

The word "building" or "structure" is not defined in the Punjab Pre-emption Act, but, for the purposes of section 16 (secondly) of the Act, the word structure can be applied to a wall or a shed or any other unsubstantial erection, for which the word "building" cannot be used. Therefore, not only the owner of a building on a site, but also of an erection of a less substantial kind has a right of pre-emption in respect of it. L. MUHAMMAD UMAR v. FAYAZ-UD-DIN

911

s. 16 (sixthly)—Pre-emption—Sale of different shares in house—Owner of house contiguous to some shares, whether can pre-empt.

Three co-owners of a house sold the respective portions of the house owned by them to the same person on different dates by separate sale-deed and for varying considerations. Plaintiff, who owned a house which was contiguous to two of the portions sold, brought a suit to pre-empt the sale of all the portions sold.

Held, that the mere fact that all three portions sold were at one time parts of a single house, was not sufficient in law to enable the plaintiff to claim pre-emption in respect of that portion which was not independently subject to his right of pre-emption. L. GENDA RAM v. RAM CHANDER 1013

Punjab Tenancy Act (XVI of 1887), ss. 53, 76 (i), (e), (f)—Purchase of occupancy rights by landlord—Tenant, whether can withdraw—Suit by heir of tenant to recover occupancy lands, whether maintainable—Jurisdiction of Civil Courts.

It was not the intention of the Legislature to render the action of an occupancy tenant irrevocable once he had made an application under clause (2) of section 53 of the Punjab Tenancy Act, and he has as much right to refuse to carry on the proceedings as the landlord has to refuse to accept the valuation of the right of occupancy by the Revenue Officer. An occupancy tenant has a right to withdraw his offer made under section 53 (2) of the Punjab Tenancy Act up to such time as the landlord makes the payment contemplated by sub-section (5) of the section.

Labhu v. Hamira, 38 Ind. Cas. 944; 1 P. R. 1917 Rev., approved of.

Punjab Tenancy Act—contd.

A suit by the heir of an occupancy tenant to recover the occupancy lands from the landlord on the ground that an alleged purchase of the occupancy right by the landlord is null and void is not barred by the provisions of section 76 (i) (e), or (f) of the Punjab Tenancy Act. L GHULAM QUTAB-UD-DIN v. SARDARA, 4 L. J. 73; (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 521; 5 L. L. J. 338 209

—s. 59—Occupancy tenancy—Joint tenants—Survivorship—Separation of shares—Partition.

The principle to be followed in cases of succession to an occupancy holding, as against the landlord, is that joint tenants of a holding, even though it was not held by their common ancestor, are to be regarded as a single tenant, and as long as any of them, or the descendants of any of them, survive, the landlord cannot claim in the share of any tenant whose line has died out.

Mohru v. Mutsaddi, 109 P. R. 1894 (F. B.), relied on.

The division of a joint occupancy holding for purposes of cultivation or in order to enable the co-sharers to raise money by mortgaging their shares in the holding does not indicate that the holding has, as a matter of fact, been finally partitioned. L AMIR KHAN v. MINH MAL, 370

—ss. 77 (3), (1), 98—Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit by superior proprietor for declaration of right to recover dues in kind from inferior proprietor, nature of—Suit, whether cognisable by Civil or Revenue Court—Direction under s. 98, whether confers jurisdiction on Civil Court—Jurisdiction, whether can be conferred by consent.

Parties to a suit cannot confer jurisdiction upon any Court by mutual agreement.

A suit for a declaration of the right of a superior proprietor to recover dues in kind from an inferior proprietor is essentially one arising out of the conditions of a tenancy and is excluded from the cognisance of a Civil Court by section 77 (3), (i) of the Punjab Tenancy Act.

Section 98 of the Punjab Tenancy Act refers solely to the action of a Revenue Court. It confers upon the Revenue Court a certain power of making a direction to the parties before it. That direction may bind the parties, but it does not necessarily bind a Civil Court, or confer upon that Court a jurisdiction which it would not otherwise possess. Where a Revenue Court refers the parties to a civil suit under the provisions of section 98 of the Punjab Tenancy Act, the Civil Court does not thereby acquire jurisdiction to hear a suit which it would otherwise be incompetent to entertain under the other provisions of the law. Pesh. PUNNU LAL v. BHOJA RAM, 760

—s. 77 (3) (i)—Punjab Land Revenue Act (XVII of 1887), s. 158 (2) (vi)—Jurisdiction of Civil and Revenue Courts—Suit by landlord for declaration of right to recover batai—Suit for correction of revenue entry.

There is no foundation for the idea that suits brought under the Specific Relief Act are ipso facto entertainable only by Civil Courts. Where a suit falls within the purview of any clause of section 77 (3) of the Punjab Tenancy Act, that suit must be heard by a Revenue Court, whether or not so far as the form of the suit or the particular remedy prayed for is concerned the suit also falls within the purview of any section of the Specific Relief Act.

Punjab Tenancy Act—concld.

Ibrahim v. Akbar, 34 Ind. Cas. 209; 58 P. L. R. 1917; 104 P. W. R. 1916, followed.

Rahmun v. Hasham, 7 Ind. Cas. 77; 73 P. R. 1910; 103 P. W. R. 1910; 144 P. L. R. 1910, dissented from.

A suit by a landlord against a tenant for declaration that he is entitled to take batai instead of a cash malikand from the tenant falls under section 77 (3) (i) of the Punjab Tenancy Act and is exclusively triable by a Revenue Court.

Gamu v. Karim Khan, 33 P. R. 1908 (F. B.); 83 P. W. R. 1908; 171 P. L. R. 1908 and Sawan Singh v. Rahman, 55 Ind. Cas. 739, relied on.

Obiter dictum.—A suit for the correction of a revenue entry is triable by a Revenue Court alone and the jurisdiction of a Civil Court to try such a suit is barred under section 158 (2) (vi) of the Punjab Land Revenue Act. L DASONDHI v. BADAR BAKHSI, (1923) A. I. R. (L) 405; 4 L. J. 335 673

Putni Regulation (VIII of 1819), s. 8 (2)—Proceedings for realization of arrears of rent, nature of—Service of notice on defaulter.

Proceedings under the Putni Regulation, taken for the realisation of arrears of putni rent, are not taken against persons at all, but against the tenure; and the Zemindar is quite right in setting out in his petition and notices the name of the putni and the name of the putnidar as recorded in his books. The Regulation does not contemplate service of notice upon the defaulters personally. The proceeding is thus throughout against the tenure, and the mere fact that in the application to the Collector, the Zemindar mentions the names of one or two of the parties in possession, though not registered in his books, and omits to mention the names of others, does not in any way vitiate the sale or render the proceedings invalid.

It is incumbent on persons who acquire an interest in a putni tenure by succession to get themselves registered in the books of the landlord. If they fail to take the necessary steps and at the same time make default in the payment of rent, they cannot very well be heard to assail the legality of a sale under the Putni Regulation on the ground that their names were not mentioned in the application to the Collector. G BEHARI LAL v. NASIMANNESSA BIRI, 37 C. L. J. 222; (1923) A. I. R. (C) 527 482

Railways Act (IX of 1890), ss. 72, 77—Carriage of goods—Goods consigned under Risk Note, Form B—Non-delivery—Suit for damages—Notice, whether necessary—Authority to sign Risk Note—Wilful neglect, proof of.

The provisions of section 77 of the Railways Act apply to a suit to recover compensation for the non-delivery of goods consigned to a Railway Company for carriage.

Railways Act—contd.

East Indian Railway Company v. Kali Charan Ram Prashad, 69 Ind. Cas. 103; 3 P. L. T. 215; (1922) Pat. 145; (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 106, dissented from.

Great Indian Peninsula Railway Company v. Jitan Ram-Nirmal Ram, 72 Ind. Cas. 440; 4 P. L. T. 173; (1923) Pat. 82; 1 P. L. R. 169; (1923) A. I. R. (Pat.) 285; 2 Pat. 442, followed.

Under section 72 of the Railways Act a consignor of goods is bound by the provisions of a Risk Note signed by a person who actually delivered the goods to the Railway Company.

Where goods are consigned to a Railway Company for carriage under Risk Note, Form B, and the Company is sued for compensation for non-delivery of the goods, if the Company proves loss of the goods, the burden is on the plaintiff to establish that the loss was due either to the wilful neglect of the Railway Administration or to theft by, or to the wilful neglect of its servants. Pat E. I. R. Co. LTD. v. GOPRAM-GOURISHANKAR 642

s. 74.—Risk-note—Exemption—Proof of loss or destruction.

A Railway Company in order that it may claim an exemption from a liability to pay damages by virtue of a Risk-note executed in their favour by a consignee must prove that the goods consigned have been lost or destroyed, that is to say, that they are no longer in the possession of the Company and that they are not lying about in their premises or that some kind of search for them was made by the Company. It is not sufficient merely to prove that the goods were not found at an intermediate station and that they are untraceable, in the absence of any evidence that they were loaded at the station of consignment. N. DAUBHAI v. G. I. P. RAILWAY, 6 N. L. J. 97 375

s. 77, applicability of—Claim based on non-delivery—Notice to Railway Company.

The provisions of section 77 of the Railways Act apply not only to claims for compensation arising out of loss, destruction or deterioration of goods, but also to claims arising out of non-delivery or wilful mis-delivery.

Madras and Southern Maharashtra Railway Company v. Haridoss Banmali Doss, 49 Ind. Cas. 69; 41 M. 871; 35 M. L. J. 35; 24 M. L. T. 38; 8 L. W. 340 and Deorao v. Great Indian Peninsular Railway Co., 14 Ind. Cas. 684; 8 N. L. R. 34, relied on.

East Indian Railway Company v. Kali Charan Ram Prashad, 69 Ind. Cas. 103; 3 P. L. T. 215; (1922) Pat. 145; (1922) A. I. R. (Pat.) 106, dissented from.

In the matter of requiring a notice of a claim to a Railway Company in order to enable the latter to make enquiries and, if possible, to recover the goods, there is no reason for making a distinction between cases of loss and cases of non-delivery.

Courts ought not to import distinctions such as the above into the Railways Act unless they rest upon some basis of sound reason which would be likely to have commended itself to the Legislature.

Railways Act—concl'd

The provisions of the Railways Act as to notice must be strictly observed, and a person who is desirous of serving an effective notice of claim must direct it to the Manager or the Agent, as the case may be. N. JIWANDAS v. AGENT E. I. R. COMPANY, 19 N. L. R. 139. 1033

Railway Company—Goods consigned under Risk Note, Form B—Loss of goods—Wilful neglect or theft—Onus of proof.

In an action for the price of goods short delivered by a Railway Company to whom they were consigned for carriage under a Railway Risk Note, Form B, the onus lies upon the plaintiff to prove that loss was due to theft by, or to wilful neglect of, the Railway Company's servants.

Although in equity a Railway Company ought to give such information to their customers as is in their possession with regard to the loss of goods delivered to them, it is not incumbent, under the law, upon them to do so. Still the Company should produce before the Court for examination those of its servants who are in a position to be acquainted with the facts relating to the disappearance of the goods. Where this is done, the absence of any explanation by the Company as to what had happened to the goods, is not evidence that the short delivery was due to wilful misconduct of the Company's servants.

Smith, Ltd. v. Great Western Railway Co. (1922) 1 A. C. 178; 91 L. J. K. B. 423; 27 Com. Cas. 247; 38 T. L. R. 359, followed. B. G. I. P. RAILWAY v. HIMATLAL JAGJIVANDAS, 25 Bom. L. R. 350; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 389 606

Risk Note, Form B—Suit for damages for short delivery—"Loss" meaning of—Burden of proving loss—"Robbery" and "theft," meaning of.

In a suit for damages for non-delivery of goods against a Railway Company where the plaintiff has not alleged loss of the consignment, it is for the Railway Company to prove the loss before seeking protection under the Risk Note, Form B; and it is only after it has proved this that the plaintiff can be required to prove that the loss was due to a cause for which the Railway Company was liable.

Ghelabhai Pansi v. East Indian Railway Company, 63 Ind. Cas. 241; 45 B. 1201; 23 Bom. L. R. 525 and Secretary of State for India in Council v. Firm Jiwan and Abdullah, 71 Ind. Cas. 609; 21 A. L. J. 220, relied on.

East Indian Railway Co. v. Nathmal, 39 Ind. Cas. 130; 39 A. 418; 15 A. L. J. 321 and Smith, Limited v. Great Western Railway Co., (1922) 1 A. C. 178; 91 L. J. K. B. 423; 27 Com. Cas. 247; 38 T. L. R. 359, distinguished.

The word "loss" in Risk Note, Form B, means loss to the Railway Company and not loss to the plaintiff.

Secretary of State for India in Council v. Firm Jiwan and Abdullah, 71 Ind. Cas. 609; 21 A. L. J. 220, followed.

Railway Company—concl'd.

Hill, Sawyres & Co. v. Secretary of State, 61 Ind. Cas. 926; 2 L. J. 133; 3 L. J. 297, dissented from.

The terms "robbery" and "theft" in Risk Note, Form B, have the same meaning in the case of theft from a running train.

Great Indian Peninsular Railway Co. v. Bhola Nath-Debi Das, 70 Ind. Cas. 854; 45 A. 56; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 79, relied on. A. E. I. RAILWAY COMPANY v. KISHEN LAL, 21 A. L. J. 438; 9 O. & A. L. R. 531; 45 A. 530 986

Registration—Mortgage-deed—Fraud—Presumption—Burden of proof.

Where the party attacking a mortgage-deed relating to several properties on the ground of fraud in registration, shows that the property in virtue of which registration was effected either did not exist or that the mortgagor never had any title thereto, the burden of showing that no fraud had been committed is thrown on the other side. The fact that such property was entered in the deed is in itself sufficient to raise a presumption that a fraud was intended.

Harendra Lal Roy v. Hari Dast Debi, 23 Ind. Cas. 637; 41 C. 972; 27 M. L. J. 80; 1 A. L. J. 774; 16 M. L. T. 9; (1914) M. W. N. 462; 1 L. W. 1050; 18 C. W. N. 817; 19 C. L. J. 484; 18 Bom. L. R. 490; 41 I. A. 110 (P. C.) and Jadunath Kunwar v. Dharam Narain, 55 Ind. Cas. 511; 23 O. C. 38; 7 O. L. J. 36; 2 U. P. L. R. (O.) 37, followed.

Biswanath Prasad v. Chandra Narayan Chowdhury, 63 Ind. Cas. 170; 48 I. A. 127; 43 C. 509 (P. C.), explained.

Pahladi Lal v. Liraiti, 48 Ind. Cas. 200; 41 A. 22; 10 A. L. J. 371 and Ram Dai v. Ram Chandrabai Debi, 32 Ind. Cas. 440; 4 P. L. J. 433, distinguished. O SURJA v. BIJAI BAHADUR SINGH, 9 O. & A. L. R. 107 18

Registration Act (Act of 1908), ss. 2 (7), 17 (1) (d).—Construction of document—Agreement to lease—Registration.

Defendant executed a document in plaintiffs' favour whereby he acknowledged the receipt of a certain sum as earnest-money and agreed to lease to the plaintiff a certain area of land for five years on an annual rental of Rs. 180 :

Held, that the document was an agreement to lease and required registration under section 17 (1) (d), read with section 2 (7), of the Registration Act. L. NANAK CHAND v. MUHAMMAD ZAHUR-UD-DIN, 4 L. 44; 5 L. L. J. 257 927

ss. 17—Agreement conferring pre-emption right—Registration.

An agreement conferring a right of pre-emption does not create any right in immoveable property, and is enforceable without being registered.

Kashi Kunbi v. Sumer Kunbi, 5 Ind. Cas. 231; 32 A. 206; 7 A. L. J. 206, followed.

Ramasami Pattar v. Chinman Asari 24 M. 449 at p. 401, dissented from. B. UTTAMRAM v. BAL KUSUM, 45 Bom. L. R. 79, (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 226; 47 B. 283 866

Registration Act—cont'd.

ss. 17—Memorandum of terms of mortgage—Registration.

An entry in a bahi which recites the terms of a mortgage but is not signed by any of the parties to the alleged mortgage, is not an instrument creating any right within the meaning of section 17 of the Registration Act and does not require registration. L. TIRKHA v. SOLHU 642 ss. 17, 28, 29—Place of registration—Mortgage-deed—Property not mortgaged included to give jurisdiction to particular Registrar—Registration, validity of—Personal covenant, suit on, whether maintainable—Limitation—Limitation Act (IX of 1908), Sch. I, Art. 116.

Where certain property which is not intended to be mortgaged is included in a mortgage-deed merely to give jurisdiction to a particular Sub-Registrar to register the deed, the properties really intended to be mortgaged being situate outside the jurisdiction of the Sub-Registrar, the registration of the deed as a mortgage-deed is invalid as being in fraud of the Registration Law.

Harendra Lal Roy Chowdhuri v. Hari Dasi, Debi, 23 Ind. Cas. 637; 41 C. 972; 27 M. L. J. 80; (1914) M. W. N. 462; 16 M. L. T. 6; 18 C. W. N. 817; 19 C. L. J. 484; 16 Bom. L. R. 400; 12 A. L. J. 774; 1 L. W. 1050; 41 I. A. 110 (P. C.), Biswanath Prasad v. Chandra Narayan Chowdhury, 63 Ind. Cas. 170; 48 C. 509; 48 I. A. 127 (P. C.), relied on.

Notwithstanding the invalidity of the deed as a mortgage, however, a personal covenant to pay contained in such deed, is valid and enforceable inasmuch as under section 29 of the Registration Act a deed containing such a covenant can be validly registered at any place where the parties to it desire and a claim based on such a covenant is governed by Art. 116 of Schedule I to the Limitation Act.

Joginnee Mohan Chatterjee v. Bhoot Nath Ghosal, 29 C. 654; 6 C. W. N. 856, Biswanath Prasad v. Chandra Narayan Chowdhury, 63 Ind. Cas. 170; 48 C. 509; 48 I. A. 127 (P. C.), followed.

Per Devadoss, J.—Where a document consists of two or more parts or where there are two or more covenants in a document, the mere fact that one part or one covenant becomes inoperative or invalid by reason of non-compliance with or violation of the provisions of the Registration Act, does not necessarily make the other parts or covenants of the document invalid or inoperative.

Kalka v. Mathura Das, 50 Ind. Cas. 220; 21 O. C. 341, dissented from. M. DRONAMRAJU RAMA RAO v. KISSAPRAGADA VEDAYYA, (1923) M. W. N. 166; 44 M. L. J. 373; 32 M. L. T. 222; 17 L. W. 695; (1923) A. I. R. (M) 447; 46 M. 435 188 ss. 17, 47, 49—Execution of deed of gift—Adoption of son—Registration subsequent to adoption, effect of.

The effect of sections 17, 47 and 49 of the Registration Act is that if a title under a deed is complete except for registration, no subsequent alienation of or dealing with the property by the vendor or donor, as the case may be, can defeat the title, which, on registration, becomes an absolute title dating from the date of the execution of the document. Nor does the subsequent birth or adoption of a child or death of the donor or vendor have any effect in defeating a title obtained under an instrument executed before the happening of these events but registered thereafter.

Registration Act—contd.

Venkat Rama Reddi v. Pillai Rama Reddi, 38 Ind. Cas. 70; 40 M. L. J. 690; 4 L. W. 465; (1917) M. W. N. 112; 20 M. L. T. 450; followed.

Where a deed of gift was executed and handed over to the donee and the next day the donor adopted a son and thereafter the deed was registered.

Held, that the deed of gift was perfectly valid and the subsequent adoption did not affect its validity. M. KALIANASUNDARAM PILLAI v. KARUPPA MUPPANA, 17 L. W. 23; (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 282. 206 ss. 17, 49—Petition to Revenue Court in mutation proceedings—Admission of title—Registration; whether necessary.

An application in the mutation proceedings in the Revenue Court, by the defendant admitting plaintiffs' claim to a portion of a holding is not a document of title and does not require registration.

Jagran Misra v. Bisheshwar Dubé, 35 Ind. Cas. 701; 38 A. 336; 14 A. L. J. 449 (F. B.), distinguished. A. RAM KISHEN RAI v. SHERO SAGAR, 402

s. 17 (2) (b)—Agreement to effect mortgage—Agreement creating charge—Registration.

An agreement to merely effect a mortgage is admissible in evidence without registration; but if it is relied on as justifying a declaration to a charge as distinguished from a mortgage, it ceases to be a document, merely creating a right to obtain another document but becomes in effect a document operating to create a charge in future, when the declaration sought is made, and requires registration to render it admissible in evidence.

Bengal Banking Corporation v. Mackertich, 10 C. 315; 8 Ind. Jur. 436; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 211, followed; B. TIRTHDAS GHANSHAMDAS v. SADHUSINGH UDHASINGH, 25 Bom. L. R. 313; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 287. 296

s. 17 (2) (v)—Sale of immoveable property—Receipt for earnest-money, whether compulsorily registrable.

A document which merely evidences the receipt of earnest-money in respect of a sale of immoveable property of the value of more than Rs. 100 and does not in any way create or declare any rights in the property, but recites that another document would subsequently be executed which would serve as a document of title in respect of the property agreed to be sold falls within the purview of section 17 (2) (v) of the Registration Act and is not compulsorily registrable. GANDA RAM v. RAM CHANDER, 1013

Registration Act—concl'd.

s. 49—Unregistered document—Admission for collateral purpose. See ADVERSE POSSESSION 889 ss. 72, 76, 77—Refusal to register; refusal to admit for registration, and refusal to accept for registration, distinction between—Refusal to register—Appeal to Registrar—Suit to enforce registration, when maintainable.

For a suit to lie under section 77 of the Registration Act the following requisites are necessary:—

- (1) The presentation of the document required to be registered by a person authorised to present it to the Sub-Registrar;
- (2) A refusal to register by the Sub-Registrar;
- (3) An appeal within time to the Registrar;
- (4) A refusal to register by the Registrar; and
- (5) The institution of the suit within time.

The expression "refusing to admit a document for registration" in section 72 of the Registration Act refers to cases where registration has been refused rather than to cases where a Sub-Registrar has declined to accept a document at all at the first stage of his proceedings. In other words, refusal to admit to registration and refusal to register are the same thing. There is, however, a distinction between the expressions "refusal to accept for registration" and "refusal to register."

Gangadara Mudali v. Sambastva Mudali, 34 Ind. Cas. 769; 19 M. L. T. 397; (1916) 2 M. W. N. 38, distinguished.

Therefore, in order to validate a suit under section 77 of the Registration Act there must be a refusal to register and not merely a refusal to accept for registration.

Section 72 of the Registration Act must, however, be read widely as giving a general power of appeal in all cases where registration is refused and where refusal is not on the ground of non-execution.

Shama Charan Das v. Joyemoolah, 11 C. 750; 5 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1259, relied on.

There is no authority for the proposition that where the Sub-Registrar refuses registration on a number of different grounds, there is no appeal to the Registrar under section 72 of the Registration Act, merely by reason of the fact that one of those grounds refers to a question of limitation. Pesh Bibi Ainna v. Mohammad Rukan Alam, 182

Riparian owners—Sudden change in course of river—Land belonging to one owner joined with that of another—Ownership, transfer of—Principle applicable—Identity of lands not lost, effect of—Dhardhura, custom of—meaning of—Wajib-ul-arz, construction of—Bengal Alluvion and Diluvion Regulation (X I of 1825), s. 4 cl. (2).

Where by a sudden change in the course of a river, a piece of land belonging to one riparian owner is cut off and placed in contiguity to that of another riparian owner, the ownership in it is not changed so long as its identity is not destroyed.

The principle of law stated above is one not merely of English Law, nor a principle peculiar to any system of Municipal Law, but it is a principle founded in universal law and justice, and has been embodied in clause (2) of section 4 of the Bengal Alluvion and Diluvion Regulation.

Riparian owners—concl.

Where a person sets up a custom in derogation of the aforesaid principle he must prove the same by clear, definite and specific evidence.

It is wholly against all principles to uphold a custom by means of possible inferences or even by probable implications.

The word dhardhura is not a term of art signifying necessarily always and under all conditions that the deep stream constitutes a permanent boundary between two estates on the opposite bank of a river.

The wajib-ul-arz of a village on one side of a river contained the following entry: "As between our village and the opposite village D, there is an old boundary formed by the main stream of the river, and as up till now the main stream flows below our village the land of the katr appertains to village D, but when the main stream shall flow below D, we shall be entitled to the land of the katr." The wajib-ul-arz of the village on the opposite bank stated, "The river passes by the extremity of this village and, therefore, when any land on this side of the river is washed away to the other side, the same is taken possession of by the Zemindar on whose side the land falls, i.e., the custom of dhardhura prevails."

Held, (1) that though the usage of dhardhura was expressly mentioned in the wajib-ul-arz, yet the condition of things to which it was applicable was stated in words which may merely connote the acquisition of land by gradual accretion, and if that were so the entry would amount to nothing more than a mere recital of the general law.

(2) that there was nothing to show that the entries in the wajib-ul-arz were explicitly applicable to a case of a transfer of land from one side of the river to the other by a sudden change of the course of the river. O. BALBHADDAR PRASAD v. HAR NARAIN DAS, 9 O. L. J. 518; (1923) A. I. R. (O.) 102

727

Riway-i-am, entry in, value of.

An entry in the riway-i-am which is not opposed to general custom is a strong piece of evidence in support of the custom mentioned in it.

Beg v. Allah Ditta, 38 Ind. Cas. 354; 45 P. R. 1917; 12 P. W. R. 1917; 21 M. L. T. 310; 32 M. L. J. 615; 19 Bom. L. R. 388; 15 A. L. J. 525; 21 C. W. N. 842; 44 C. 749; 26 C. L. J. 175; 44 I. A. 89 (P. C.), followed. L. SANT KATU v. SHER SINGH, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 476

786

Sajjada nashin, appointment of, effect of.

In the absence of a wakf the appointment of a person as a sajjada nashin must be regarded as a courtesy title only.

Zinat Bibi v. Emma, 40 Ind. Cas. 240; 107 P. R. 1917; 111 P. L. R. 1917; 92 P. W. R. 1917, followed. L. ALI MAHOMED KHAN v. ALI AKBAR KHAN, 4 L. 133

618

Sea Customs Act (VIII of 1878)—Customs duty.—G. I. P. Railway Company—Stores imported into British India—Line owned by Government but worked by Company—Liability of Company to pay customs duty.

Sea Customs Act—concl.

As the G. I. P. Railway is owned by the Government and has been made over to the Company simply for management under contract, the stores purchased and imported by the G. I. P. Railway Company into India for the use of the undertaking are, at the time of importation, goods belonging to the Government for the purpose of the payment of customs duty. B. SECRETARY OF STATE FOR INDIA v. G. I. P. RAILWAY, 25 Bom. L. R. 470; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 423

468

Specific Relief Act (I of 1877), s. 22.—Specific performance—Discretion of Court.

Courts have an absolute discretion to decree specific performance or not.

Specific performance should be refused where it is likely to prove a source of constant trouble and friction between the parties and would not result in an appreciable advantage to the plaintiff, or where the decree for specific performance is likely to prove nugatory owing to the exercise by a subsequent vendee of a superior right of pre-emption. L. GENDA RAM v. RAM CHANDER 1013

s. 27.—Specific performance—Constructive notice, doctrine of, applicability of—Third person in possession—Duty of purchaser to make enquiry.

Defendant purchased a piece of land knowing that the superstructure on the land belonged to another person than his vendor. He made no inquiry as to the nature of that person's possession or that of his sub-tenants who were actually in occupation under him, and it ultimately appeared that there was a prior contract to sell in favour of that person. In a suit by the latter for specific performance of the agreement to sell in his favour:

Held, that defendant must be taken in law to have had constructive notice of the prior agreement to sell and of all the equities in favour of the plaintiff, since he had wilfully abstained from or grossly neglected to make an inquiry which would have informed him of the prior agreement and he was, therefore, not entitled to resist plaintiff's suit for specific performance.

The general principle of constructive notice in such cases as the above is that notice of the occupation of the properties purchased by a person other than the vendor which indicates that the vendor is not entitled to present possession, at once puts the purchaser on inquiry as to the interest that occupier holds in the property. Where nothing more is known to the purchaser, or would be known to him, on reasonable enquiry, than the fact that certain tenants are in occupation under a tenant right he is not affected with notice of more than the facts as to those tenants' rights.

But when, beyond this, the purchaser is directly informed and, therefore, knows of the occupation of the property by another whether by himself or by his sub-tenant he is equally put upon notice to inquire into the interest of that other. The absence of such inquiry will fasten the purchaser with all the equities which the occupier holds against the purchaser's vendor.

Daniels v. Davison, (1809) 16 Ves. (Jun.) 249; 33 E. R. 978; 10 R. R. 171, Hunt v. Luck, (1901) 1 Ch. 45; 70 L. J. Ch. 30; 83 L. T. 479

Specific Relief Act—contd.

49 S. R. 155; 17 T. L. R. 3 and Faki Ibrahim v. Faki Gulam Mohidin, 60 Ind. Cas. 986; 45 R. 910; 23 Bom. L. R. 335, followed. M BABA SHAH v. MOHAMMED AKBAR, (1923) M. W. N. 280; 17 L. W. 541; 32 M. L. J. 301; 45 M. L. J. 1571 (1923) A. I. R. (M.) 563 297

— s. 42—Declaration as to right of succession—Suff. maintainability of.

[A suit does not lie for a declaration, not of an existing right but of a spes successionis, that is, the chance or possibility of acquiring a right in the future. The Courts will not grant a declaration that plaintiff is entitled to succeed to certain property on the happening of a certain event. Sririmathoo Moothoo Vija Ragoonadah Kollandupuree Natchiar v. Dorasinga Tevar, 2 I. A. 169; 15 B. L. R. 83; 23 W. R. 314; 3 Sar. P. C. J. 456 (P. C.), Greeman Singh v. Wahari Lali Singh, 8 C. 12; 9 C. L. R. 249; 6 Ind. Jur. 101; 4 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 8 (P. C.) and Pirhi Pal Kunwar v. Guman Kunwar, 17 I. A. 107; 17 C. 933; 5 Sar. P. C. J. 569; Rafique & Jackson's P. C. No. 118; 8 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1167 (P. C.), relied on. L. LALU v. FAZAL DIN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 403; 4 L. 106 893

— s. 42—Hindu manager, alienation by—Declaratory suit by co-parceners, whether competent—Decree for possession on payment of Court-fees.

A Hindu co-parcener is not competent to sue for a mere declaration, that a sale of the family property by the manager is not binding on the family. He must sue for possession as well. Nevertheless even if he has asked for a mere declaratory decree, he can be given a decree for possession on his payment of the necessary Court-fees. L. AMIR v. KAHAN CHAND, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 255 818 — ss. 53, 56—Temporary injunction—Injunction, whether limited to subordinate Courts.

Section 56 of the Specific Relief Act, which occurs in the Chapter relating to perpetual injunctions, has no application to temporary injunctions which are by the express words of section 53 left to be regulated by the Code of Civil Procedure.

A Court can issue a temporary injunction staying proceedings in a Court not subordinate to it.

The Code of Civil Procedure is not exhaustive and the Courts have inherent jurisdiction to act ex debito justitiae in order to do that real and substantial justice for the administration of which alone they exist.

Manohar Lal Mahabir Pershad v. Jai Narain-Babu Lal, 55 Ind. Cas. 403; 2 L. L. J. 283, relied on. L. KANSHI RAM v. SHARAF DIN, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 144 909

Stamp Act (II of 1899), s. 2 (22), Sch. I, Art. 5—

Promissory-note—Instrument undertaking to deliver grain on demand, nature of—Stamp-duty leviable.

An instrument which contains an undertaking to deliver a certain quantity of grain on demand, is not a promissory-note as defined in section 2 (22).

Stamp Act—contd.

of the Stamp Act. It is an agreement requiring a stamp of eight annas under Art. 5 of the Stamp Act. O. ABHAIRAJ KAUR v. DATA DIN, 9 O. & A. L. R. 163 485

— s. 36—Document held to be admissible in appeal—Decision, whether can be questioned in Letters Patent Appeal.

A suit was brought to recover a certain sum of money on the basis of a document which was held by the Trial Court to be a promissory-note, but which was not, as such, properly stamped. On appeal to the High Court it was held by a Single Judge that the document was not a promissory-note and was admissible in evidence on payment of the necessary stamp-duty and penalty. On an appeal being preferred against this decision under the Letters Patent:

Held, that the order of the Single Judge amounted to an admission of the document in evidence within the meaning of section 36 of the Stamp Act, and, consequently, could not be questioned in appeal.

Mongal Sain v. Gobind Das, 139 P. R. 1890, followed.

An appeal under the Letters Patent is a stage of the suit for the purposes of section 36 of the Stamp Act. L. BRIJ RAJ SARAN v. JOTI PRASHAD, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 657 799

— s. 36—Document insufficiently stamped—Admission in Trial Court—Revision, interference in, whether competent.

If a deed has been admitted in evidence before the Trial Court, even though insufficiently stamped, its admissibility cannot be questioned by a Court exercising revisional jurisdiction. N. KRISHNAJI v. SUKHEDEO, (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 284 85

— s. 36—Document insufficiently stamped, admitted in evidence—Admission, whether can be subsequently questioned.

Once a document has been admitted in evidence in the Trial Court, it cannot be called in question in the same suit on the ground that the document was not duly stamped.

Devachand v. Hirachand, 13 B. 449; 7 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 299 (F. B.), Shiddappa v. Irava, 18 B. 737; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1000, followed. B. BALA v. BHIRU, 25 Bom. L. R. 450; (1923) A. I. R. (P.) 412 125

— s. 62 (2)—Award directing partition—Stamp, liability to—Arbitrator, signature by—Arbitrator, prosecution of.

Where an arbitrator signs, otherwise than as a witness, an award directing partition on an unstamped paper, he is liable to prosecution under section 62 (2) of the Stamp Act, if the instrument is chargeable with duty. O. EMPEROR v. PUTROO LAL, 9 O. & A. L. R. 378; 24 Cr. L. J. 592 336

— Sch. I, Art. 45—Hindu joint family—Oral partition—Deed transferring shares—Stamp chargeable.

At the time of an oral partition between three brothers who formed a joint Hindu family, certain shares in a Company, which stood in the name of the eldest brother, were not thrown into the hotch-pot. Subsequently, the eldest brother executed two deeds transferring to each of his younger brothers, the number of shares which fell to each, and the question was as to the Stamp duty leviable on the deeds:

Stamp Act—concl'd.

Held, that the deeds were chargeable under Art. 45, Schedule I to the Stamp Act, as instruments of partition. B SUPERINTENDENT OF STAMPS v. CHIMANLAL LALBHAI, 25 Bom. L. R. 112; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 237; 47 B. 321 718

Succession—Pagwand—Presumption—Whole blood, whether excludes half blood—Gagiani tribe of Peshawar District.

Where it is found that the parties to a suit follow the pagwand rule of succession the onus of proving that the whole blood excludes the half lies on the party alleging it.

Gholam Muhammad v. Muhammad Bakhsh, 4 P. R. 1891 (F. B.), relied on.

The rule prevailing in the Gagiani tribe of the Peshawar District is that in succession to a brother's estate the whole blood excludes the half. Pesh SAFDAR KHAN v. MUHAMMAD ZAMAN KHAN 577

Suits Valuation Act (VII of 1887), s. 11—Objection as to valuation—Trial Court exceeding jurisdiction—Change of forum of appeal, effect of—“Appellate Court,” what is.

Under section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act, the disposal of a suit cannot be deemed to have been prejudicially affected on the merits, merely because of a change of the forum of appeal consequent upon the under-valuation.

Raghava Chariar v. Raghava Chariar, 8 Ind. Cas. 545; 20 M. L. J. 726; 8 M. L. T. 404, Narayani Ammal v. Secretary of State, 41 Ind. Cas. 167, Ammalu Ammal v. Krishnan Nair, 62 Ind. Cas. 711; 30 M. L. T. 38, followed.

Mohini Mohan Misser v. Gour Chandra Rai, 56 Ind. Cas. 762; 5 P. L. J. 397; 1 P. L. T. 390; 2 U. P. L. R. (Pat.) 123; (1921) Pat. 105, dissented from.

Section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act when referring to an under-valuation or over-valuation “prejudicially affecting the disposal of a suit or appeal on its merits” is not considering at all the different rules of procedure that there may be an appeal from one Court to another.

The mere fact of under-valuation of a suit by the plaintiff involving a trial by a District Munsif instead of by a Sub-Judge's Court cannot be deemed to be “prejudice” within the meaning of section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act to the unsuccessful party on account of the party being restricted to a right of second appeal to the High Court on questions of law only instead of a regular appeal on questions of facts also.

Per Courts Trotter, J.—The object of section 11 of the Suits Valuation Act is to provide a machinery for curing the original lack of jurisdiction. The expression “Court of first instance” in sub-section (1) (a) of section 11 means not the Court in which the suit ought to have been started but the Court in which it was in fact started. Similarly, the expression “Appellate Court” in sub-section 1 (b) of the section means not the Court in which the appeals should have been started in the first instance, but the Court to which it did in fact go and ought to have gone, if the lack of jurisdiction were to be condoned. M NADUVIL EDM KARNAYAN v. CHERIYA PARVATHI NETHIVAR, 18 L. W. R. 45 M. L. J. 135; (1923) M. W. N. 489; 46 M. 63 87

Suits Valuation Act—concl'd.

Tort-feasors—Knowledge of illegality—Contribution.

The rule that there can be no right of contributions inter se between two wrong-doers applies where the wrong-doers knew or ought to have known that they were doing an illegal or wrongful act; but if they acted under a bona fide claim of right and had reason to suppose that they had a right to do what they did, then the right of contribution inter se exists.

Subut Singh v. Imrit Tewari, 5 C. 720; 6 C. L. R. 62; 2 Ind. Dec. (N.S.) 1066, Sreeputty Roy v. Loharan Roy, 7 W. R. 384, Merryweather v. Nixan, (1799) 2 Sm. L. C. (5th Ed.) 546; 8 T. R. 186; 16 R. R. 810; 1 Sm. L. C. (10th Ed.); 383, 101 E. R. 1337, Farebrother v. Ansley, (1808) 1 Camp. 342 and Adamson v. Jarvis, (1827) 4 Bing. 66; 12 Moore 241; 4 L. J. (O.S.) C. P. 68; 29 R. R. 503; 130 E. R. 693, relied on. N JHIBU v. BALAJI, 19 N. L. R. 75; (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 255 228

Tort—Report by Municipal Sub-Committee—Privileged communication—Defamation.

A report made to the Chairman by members of a Sub-Committee of a Municipality in discharge of their duty and on a subject in which they are interested as members, is privileged and no action for damages for defamation would lie unless malice was proved against the members. N SHRIRAM MOTI RAM v. SHAIKH AHMAD, (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 226 39

Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 6 (d)—Right to future maintenance—Alienability—Test.

The right under a contract to a defined amount in cash or kind for future maintenance is “property” under section 6 of the Transfer of Property Act. But whether it is an interest in property restricted in its enjoyment to the owner personally so as to render it inalienable under clause (d) must depend on the facts of each case and must be ascertained by the ordinary rules of interpretation of the contract, the question being whether the intention of the parties was that the right should be personal and, therefore, inalienable. That intention is to be ascertained from the language of the document itself and the surrounding circumstances at the time of its execution, considered as a contract to come into operation at once without reference to what has in fact since happened.

A widow by a deed surrendered all her interest in her late husband's property in favour of the nearest reversioner of her husband in consideration of his agreeing to pay some debts of the husband and maintain her during her lifetime and the document also provided in the alternative that if it was not convenient for her to live jointly with him, she should remain in the building in which she resided and be then entitled for separate provision for food, clothing and a certain quantity of rice, which were charged upon certain immovable properties:

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Held, that the intention of the parties to be derived from the document was that the rights of the widow under the contract should be personal and inalienable under section 6 (d) of the Transfer of Property Act. M. SUBRAYA SAMPIGETHAYA v. KRISHNA BAI PADITHAYA, 46 M. 659; 45 M. L. J. 533. 584 — ss. 8, 43, application of—Transfer of reversionary rights, validity of—Possession, transfer of, effect of.

Although the general principles contained in the Transfer of Property Act are binding upon the Courts in the Punjab and the N. W. F. Province the Act itself with its technicalities has no force as such in these Provinces.

Bhagwati v. Chaoli, 55 Ind. Cas. 698; 2 U. P. L. R. (L.) 79, relied on.

In the Punjab and the N. W. F. Province a transferor of reversionary rights is bound by his act when succession opens to him. Even if section 6 of the Transfer of Property Act is to be regarded as making such a transfer illegal and, therefore, a nullity from which no equity can arise, as the Act itself is not in force in these Provinces, the section constitutes no statutory bar to a contract which would otherwise be enforceable in equity.

Bhagwati v. Chaoli, 55 Ind. Cas. 698; 2 U. P. L. R. (L.) 79; 2 L. L. J. 689, relied on.

There is no necessary parallel between what a Court can do in execution against a person having merely a spes successionis and the equity which such a person can create against himself by binding himself to do something if a certain contingency happens.

A person in possession holding a lien in equity is in a far stronger position than one who is seeking to enforce his equity against a person who holds possession against him. Pesh KABAL SHAH v. MOHAMMAD BAQA, 120

— s. 6 (e)—Damages, right to claim whether transferable.

A right to claim damages for an alleged breach of contract is not transferable under section 6 (e) of the Transfer of Property Act. B. HIRACHAND v. NEMCHAND, 25 Bom. L. R. 445; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 403; 47 B. 719. 465

— s. 10—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), s. 60—Property retained under compromise, whether amounts to transfer—Restraint on alienation, validity of—Life-interest—Attachment under decree.

A Hindu widow, who claimed the widow's estate in certain property which she alleged belonged to her husband, was offered maintenance only on the ground that the property belonged to the joint family. A compromise was arrived at by which she was given a restricted life-interest without power of alienation and the joint family was to have the reversion. A decree-holder against the widow urged that the restriction against alienation was void, and in the alternative that the interest of the widow as it was could be attached in execution:

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Held, (1) that the compromise was a family arrangement under which the widow was to remain in the personal enjoyment of certain lands for the term of her life, and that it did not amount to a "transfer of property" within the meaning of section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act to attract the provisions of that section as to restraints on alienation;

(2) that the interest of the widow as it was not liable to attachment, as the restriction on alienation prevented the widow from having a "disposing power" within the meaning of section 60 of the Civil Procedure Code. B. BASANGOWDA VIRUPAXGOWDA v. IRGOWDATI KALLANGOWDA, 25 Bom. L. R. 293; (1923) A. I. R. (B.) 276; 47 B. 597. 196

— s. 41, applicability of, to manager of religious endowment. See TRUSTS ACT (II OF 1882), ss. 1, 64. 711

— s. 53—Fraudulent transfer, setting aside of—Creditor, who is not judgment-creditor, whether can sue.

There is no warrant for the proposition that a creditor cannot maintain a suit to set aside a deed which is obnoxious to the provisions of section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act, until he establishes his debt by obtaining a decree from a Court of Law.

As soon as a person who complains of a transfer coming within the purview of section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act proves his debt either by producing a decree in his favour or by any other evidence, oral or documentary, he is entitled to sue, and it is not necessary that he must be a judgment-creditor or should have obtained a lien or charging order on the property transferred by his debtor.

Reese River Silver Mining Company v. Atwell, (1869) 7 Eq. 347; 20 L. T. 163; 17 W. R. 601 and Ishwar Timappa Hegde v. Devar Venkappa Shanbog, 27 B. 146; 5 Bom. L. R. 19, relied on.

The only distinction between a judgment-creditor and an ordinary creditor who seeks to set aside a transfer as fraudulent under section 53 of the Transfer of Property Act, is that while the former is not bound to bring a representative suit on behalf of all the creditors of the debtor, the latter should bring an action on behalf of the general body of the creditors. L. CHINA MAL v. GUL AHMAD, (1923) A. I. R. (L.) 478. 719

— s. 54—Sale, verbal—Consideration, payment of—Possession, delivery of—Registration not effected by vendor—Vendor, right of—Equity, rule of.

A person sold a plot of land to the defendant and agreed to execute a deed of sale in respect of it. The latter paid the consideration and possession was delivered to him. The vendor failed to perform his agreement and the sale was declared invalid for want of a registered deed. In appeal the vendee contended that the vendor could not oust him, as he had paid the consideration and obtained possession:

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Held, that if the sale could not take effect as a sale for want of formality, it would have the effect of an agreement for sale with consequences in equity, and that, therefore, the vendee obtained a good title in equity to the land in suit.

Puchha Lal v. Kunj Behari Lal, 20 Ind. Cas. 803; 18 C. W. N. 445; 19 C. L. J. 213; Jnan Chandra Das v. Rajani Kanta Pal, 41 Ind. Cas. 850; 22 C. W. N. 522; Maung Shwe Goh v. Maung Inn, 38 Ind. Cas. 938; 44 C. 542; 21 C. W. N. 500; 21 M. L. T. 18; 15 A. L. J. 82; (1917). M. W. N. 117; 32 M. L. J. 6; 25 C. L. J. 108; 19 Bom. L. R. 179; 5 L. W. 532; 10 Bur. L. 1. 69; 44 I. A. 15 (P. C.), relied on. Pat RAM KISHUN MAHTO v. HARIHAR MAHTON 30

s. 68—Compromise in execution of decree—Mortgage, usufructuary, created—Registration, absence of—Long recognition of mortgage by parties—Estoppel—Hindu Law—Mortgage—Destruction of security—Substitution—Government revenue paid by mortgagee—Recovery from mortgagor—Covenant, implied.

In 1869, the parties to a money-decree came to an agreement in execution of the decree, which was embodied in an application made to the Court. According to the agreement it was acknowledged that a certain sum was due to the plaintiff, and he was put in possession of certain plots of land belonging to the defendant, it being agreed that he should take the usufruct in lieu of the interest due on the debt, and that the defendant could redeem the land on payment of the amount of the debt. It was further agreed that if the plaintiff was dispossessed he should then proceed with the execution of the decree. The Court accepted the compromise and plaintiff obtained possession of the land. In 1920 the land was submerged by the action of a river and the plaintiff sued under section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act, requiring the defendant to give at equivalent security to the plaintiff for the land or to pay up the amount of the debt together with a certain sum paid by the plaintiff as Government revenue:

Held, (1) that even though the due formalities had not been complied with no objection to the validity of the mortgage could be taken after it had been acted upon by the parties for fifty years; Abid Husain v. Asghar Husain, 19 Ind. Cas. 445; 11 A. L. J. 506; Salamat-uz-zamani Begam v. Masha Allah Khan, 43 Ind. Cas. 645; 40 A. 187; 15 A. L. J. 98, followed.

(2) that, even if section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act was not applicable to the case owing to the fact that the mortgage had been created before the passing of that Act, the principles of Hindu Law, by which the parties were governed, applicable to such a case were exactly the same as those embodied in section 68.

(3) that the plaintiff having been compelled to pay the Government revenue owing to the inability of the defendant to do so, and in order to avoid being dispossessed from the land, the defendant was liable to pay the amount to the plaintiff.

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

(4) that the condition contained in the compromise that in the event of dispossession the remedy of the plaintiff was to execute his decree could not apply to a case of dilavion;

(5) that, therefore, the plaintiff's suit must be decreed.

In every contract of usufructuary mortgage there is at least an implied contract for quiet possession and this implies a contract to pay the Government revenue in order to avoid dispossession for non-payment. A RAM SEWAK RAI v. SHEO NAIK RAI, 21 A. L. J. 294; 45 A. 388; (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 433 945

s. 68—Mortgage security—Diminution in value.

A mortgage security will be considered diminished in value within the meaning of section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act, if its letting value has decreased, even though the property itself has undergone no change.

Where a person who mortgaged his str plots with possession stipulated to pay Rs. 75 as interest on the mortgage money and executed a simultaneous kabuliyat to rent the plots from the mortgagee at the amount but at the time of the fixation of rent by the Revenue Court as ex-proprietory tenant, objected to the amount, and the Rent Court fixed the rent at Rs. 27:

Held, that the value of the security had diminished within the meaning of section 68 of the Transfer of Property Act and the mortgagee could sue for the mortgage money. A FARUK DIN v. KISHEN LAL, (1923) A. I. R. (A.) 584 902

s. 72—Repairs by mortgagee—Improvements to suit particular tenant.

Putting iron bars into a window of a house usufructuarly mortgaged, in order to suit a particular tenant, for doing which the mortgagee has received increased rent, is not repairs within the meaning of section 72 of the Transfer of Property Act; and no compensation can be claimed for the same at the time of redemption.

Rupan Singh v. Champa Lal, 26 Ind. Cas. 521; 37 A. 81 at p. 86; 13 A. L. J. 14, followed. A CHHAMMU LAL v. BHAJAN LAL 985

s. 83—Deposit by mortgagor—Non-acceptance by mortgagee—Disposal of case—Subsequent payment to mortgagee—Jurisdiction of Court—Security bond; legality of.

Where a mortgagee refuses to accept a tender made by a mortgagor in Court and the Court disposes of the matter by passing an order that the mortgagor is entitled to withdraw the money, it is not open to the Court afterwards to direct payment of the money to the mortgagee.

Section 83 of the Transfer of Property Act does not authorise the Court to take any security bond from any party when disposing of the money tendered by the mortgagor in respect of the mortgage. Pat RATNA KOER v. NANHAKI, (1923) Pat. 256 1053

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

s. 89, construction of—Priority.

An order made under section 89 of the Transfer of Property Act for the sale of mortgaged property, has the effect of substituting the right of sale thereby conferred upon the mortgagee for his rights under the mortgage, and the latter rights are extinguished. Therefore there can be no right of priority in respect of a payment made after the passing of such an order.

Het Ram v. Shadi Ram, 45 Ind. Cas. 798; 48 A. 407; 5 P. L. W. 88; 16 A. L. J. 607; 35 M. L. J. 1; 24 M. L. T. 92; 28 C. L. J. 188; (1918) M. W. N. 518; 20 Bom. L. R. 798; 22 C. W. N. 1033; 9 L. W. 550; 12 Bur. L. T. 72; 45 L. A. 130 (P. C.); and Maru Mal v. Durga Kunwar, 55 Ind. Cas. 969; 47 L. A. 71; 18 A. L. J. 396; 38 M. L. J. 419; 11 L. W. 529; (1920) M. W. N. 323; 2 U. P. L. R. (P. C.) 75; 22 Bom. L. R. 553; 32 C. L. J. 121; 42 A. 364; 27 M. L. T. 319; 25 C. W. N. 397 (P. C.), followed.

Bibijan Bibi v. Sachi Bewah, 31 C. 863; 8 C. W. N. 684, discussed. O LUTAR RAM v. LAL RANJIT SINGH, 9 O. & A. L. R. 677 113

s. 91 (f)—Civil Procedure Code (Act V of 1908), O. XXXIV, r. 1—Mortgage suit—Attaching creditor, whether necessary party—Omission to implead—Right of redemption whether affected.

A creditor, attaching mortgaged property in execution of his money-decree who is given a right to redeem by section 91(f) of the Transfer of Property Act is a person having an interest in the right of redemption and is thereby entitled under O. XXXIV, r. 1 of the Civil Procedure Code to be joined as a defendant in a suit on the mortgage. If he is not so impleaded, his right to redeem cannot be affected by a decree in that suit. N MEGHRAJ v. KESHEO RAO, 6 N. L. J. 181; (1923) A. I. R. (N.) 311 8

s. 101—Merger—Mortgagee acquiring equity of redemption.

The latter portion of section 101 of the Transfer of Property Act does not apply where no intervening incumbrances exist and where a merger of a less estate takes place in a greater estate which is to be distinguished from the merger of a lower in a higher security. Where a mortgagee also becomes the absolute owner of the equity of redemption, the mortgage is extinguished by merger, unless there are any puisne or mesne incumbrances against which the equity of redemption is required to be kept alive.

Bhawani Kumar v. Mathura Prasad Singh, 16 Ind. Cas. 210; 40 C. 89; 16 C. W. N. 985; 12 M. L. T. 352; 23 M. L. J. 311; 16 C. L. J. 606; (1912) M. W. N. 244; 14 Bom. L. R. 1046; 39 L. A. 228 (P. C.); Arunugasundara Maharaja Pillai v. Narasimha Iyer, 20 Ind. Cas. 916; 29 M. L. J. 583; (1915) M. W. N. 39; 14 L. W. 542; 18 M. L. T. 110, Rajah of Kalahasti v. Prayag Dassjee Varu, 35 Ind. Cas. 223; 30 M. L. J. 391; (1916) 2 M. W. N. 92, and Sri Ram v. Ramji Das, 2 Ind. Cas. 949; 59 P. R. 1909; 86 P. L. R. 1909; 94 P. W. R. 1909, followed on.

Transfer of Property Act—contd.

Chiali Ram v. Gulab Khan, 11 Ind. Cas. 392; 37 P. R. 1911; 190 P. L. R. 1911 and Bur Singh v. Hazara Singh, 63 Ind. Cas. 760; 3 L. 99; (1922) A. I. R. (L.) 275, distinguished. L GOBIND SARUP v. KULDIP SINGH 764

Trespass—Building on land belonging to another—Knowledge of builder, effect of—Building without permission—Building, removal of—Acquiescence, doctrine of.

If a person begins to build on land supposing it to be his own and the real owner, perceiving the mistake, abstains from setting him right and leaves him to persevere in his error, he will be allowed, in equity, to assert his title to the land. But if he builds, knowing it to be the property of another, nothing will prevent the real owner from afterwards claiming the land, with the full benefit of the expenditure upon it.

Ramsden v. Dyson, (1866) 1 H. L. 129; 12 Jur. (N. S.) 506; 14 W. R. 926 and Bemi Ram v. Kundan Lal, 26 I. A. 58; 21 A. 496; 1 Bom. L. R. 400; 3 C. W. N. 502; 7 Sar. P. C. J. 523; 9 Ind. Dec. (N. S.) 1022 (P. C.), relied on.

When a person writes a letter to another asking permission to construct a building upon his land and makes the construction in the expectation that permission will be granted but without waiting for it, he does so at his own risk.

Where a person builds on another's land the acquiescence of the owner will deprive the latter of his legal rights, only when the acquiescence amounts to fraud. There are several requisites necessary to constitute fraud. In the first place, the person making the building must have made a mistake as to his legal rights. Secondly, he must have expended some money or must have done some act, not necessarily upon another's land on the faith or mistaken belief. Thirdly, the owner, the possessor of the legal right, must know of the existence of his own right which is inconsistent with the right claimed by the person making the building. Fourthly, the owner must know of the latter's mistaken belief of his rights. Lastly, the owner must have encouraged the person making the building in his expenditure of money or in the other acts which he has done, either directly or by abstaining from asserting his legal right. When all these elements exist, there is fraud of such a nature as will entitle a Court to restrain the owner from exercising his legal rights.

Willmoti v. Barber, (1880) 15 Ch. D. 96 at p. 105; 43 L. T. 95; 28 W. R. 911, relied on. HEMANGINI DEVI v. BEJOY SINGH 223

Trust—Fraudulent introduction of stranger—Breach of trust.

The fraudulent introduction by some of the trustees of a stranger into the body of trustees amounts in law to a breach of the trust. M SANKARAN NABI v. DEVAKI ANTHEERJENAM, 16 L. W. 26; (1922) M. W. N. 428; (1922) A. I. R. (M.) 259; 43 M. L. J. 572 491

Trusts Act (II of 1832), s. 1, 64—Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882), s. 41, applicability to manager of religious endowment—Mahant